TWO FAMOUS RIDERS

STRIKING FEATS OF ENDURANCE IN THE PIONEER DAYS OF THE WEST.

Aubrey's Ride Was the Greatest Physical Achievement Ever Accomplished In This Country—Frontiersman Jim Moore's Hard Ride.

The greatest physical achievement ever accomplished in this country was the ride of F. X. Aubrey from the plaza of Santa Fe, N. M., to the Public square at Independence, Mo., a distance of nearly 800 miles, through a country inhabited by warlike Indians, a large part of which was then a sandy desert. It was about the year 1851 that Aubrey gave his wonderful test of human endurance, before which all other attempts of the kind pale into insignificance. He was a short, heavy set man, 38 years of age, in the prime of manhood and strength. His business for ten years as a Santa Fe trader had made him perfectly familiar with the trail and all the stopping places. He was a perfect horseman, and, although there were great riders in those days, none of them cared to dispute the palm with Aubrey.

On a wager of $1,000 he undertook to ride alone from Santa Fe to Independence inside of six days. It was without a thought of fear that he undertook the terrible feat. It was to be the supreme effort of his life, and he sent half a dozen of the swiftest horses ahead, to be stationed at different points for use in the ride. He left Santa Fe in a sweeping gallop, and that was the pace kept up during nearly every hour of the time until he fell fainting from his foam covered horse in the square at Independence. No man could keep up with the rider, and he would have killed every horse in the west rather than have failed in the undertaking. It took him just 5 days and 19 hours to perform the feat, and it cost the lives of several of his best horses.

After being carried into a room in the old hotel at Independence Aubrey lay for 48 hours in a dead stupor before he came to his senses. He would never have recovered from the shock had it not been for his wonderful constitution. The feat was unanimously regarded by western men as the greatest exhibition of strength and endurance ever known on the plains.

The ride of Jim Moore, a noted frontiersman of the pioneer days, is also worthy of mention. Moore was a man of almost perfect physique. In fact, by military standards he was a model. He weighed 160 pounds, stood 5 feet 10 inches, straight as an arrow, with good neck well set on his shoulders, small waist, but good loins, and had the limbs of a thoroughbred. No finer looking man physically ever rode a broncho than Jim Moore. He could run like an Indian, was as active as a panther, the best natured man in the world, but as courageous as a lion.

In the early sixties Moore was a pony express rider. His route was from Midway station, half way between Fort Kearney and Cottonwood Springs, to Julesburg, a distance of 140 miles. Moore rode the round trip of 280 miles once a week. The stations were from 10 to 14 miles apart, and a fresh horse of Spanish blood was obtained at each station. There was little delay in these changes of horses, as the rider gave the "coyote yell" half a mile away, and, day or night, the station men had the pony ready, so that the rider had only to dismount from one horse and mount the other, and with a dig of the spurs he was on a run again. This ride of 140 miles usually was made in 12 hours. On each route there were two express riders, one going each way. As easy as it may seem to some for a man to bestride fresh horse after horse for 140 miles, there were few men able to stand up to it.

Upon the occasion of which I am to speak Moore's route partner had been ailing, and Moore was anticipating and dreading that he might have to double the route. In this anticipation he realized that there is a time limit to endurance, and therefore he gave the broncbos a little more of the steel than usual and made the trip to Julesburg in 11 hours. Arriving at Julesburg, he had his fears confirmed. His partner was in bed. He had hoped that he might have a few hours for rest, but before he had time to dismount and stretch his cramped and tired muscles the "coyote yell" of the east going rider was heard.

He drank some cold coffee, filled his pocket with cold meat and was in the saddle again for another 140 mile ride. In order to be able to live the route out he sent them for all there was in them, with the result that he arrived at Midway, after having ridden 280 miles, in 22 hours from the time he had left there. Ben Holliday gave him a gold watch and a certificate of his remarkable performance. Many of the old frontiersmen now living knew Moore, knew of his 280 mile ride in 22 hours and have seen the watch and certificate.

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

MOZART'S SKULL.

It Has Been Found and Its History Has Been Traced.

Owing to an extraordinary story, which was recently circulated, to the effect that Mozart's skull had been stolen from a museum in Vienna, the skull itself has now been found, and its history, which is an astonishing one, has been traced and authenticated.

Mozart's skull was never in the Mozart Museum at Vienna, from which it was alleged to have been stolen. It has now been placed in the Hyrtl Orphan Asylum at Moedling, in Austria. It appears from the facts which have now been discovered that Mozart's body was hurriedly interred along with the bodies of numerous victims of an epidemic. He died at the age of 34 and was buried on a stormy night in 1791, along with other victims of the disease, in St. Mark's Cemetery in Vienna.

Owing to the panic prevailing because of the epidemic there were no obsequies. The exact resting place of Mozart's body was known only to a grave digger called Joseph Rothmayer. Rothmayer was a skilled musician and a great admirer of Mozart, and in order to prevent the body from being stolen he wrapped long wires around the coffin.

Some time afterward Rothmayer, animated by musical enthusiasm, surreptitiously opened the grave and stole the skull. He kept it as a sacred relic until his death, when it became the property of one Radschopf, his successor. Both these men maintained the greatest secrecy about their ghastly treasure. Joseph Hyrtl, brother of the celebrated anthropologist, became the next owner of the skull. Hyrtl was a musician of renown and an ardent admirer of Mozart and Radschopf gave him the skull as a mark of esteem, one of the most extraordinary presents ever given by one person to another.

On his deathbed only did Hyrtl reveal the secret. He then told his brother. The latter had the cranium carefully prepared and placed on a velvet cushion under a glass cover. With his own hand Joseph Hyrtl inscribed the following words on the temporal bone:

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart,
Gestorben 1791, geboren 1756.
Musa vitat mori! Horazt.

In this condition Mozart's skull is now to be seen at Moedling.

A Boy's Essay on Water.

A very original essay on water is quoted by a contemporary. One or two of the writer's ideas upon the subject are strikingly novel. For instance, he divides all water into four subheadings—rainwater, soda water, holy water and brine. "Water," he continues, "is used for a good many things. Sailors use water to go to sea on. Water is a good thing to fire at boys with a squirtgun and to catch fishes in." But the strangest of all uses for water is this: "Nobody," he says, "could be saved from drowning if there wasn't water to pull them out of." This reminds one of the boy's essay on pins, in the course of which he said that pins had saved many lives by people not swallowing them.

The man who can hardly crawl, and has just strength to get through a day's work, has no strength left for family life. He wants to be quiet; to be alone, out of sight and sound of everybody.

What a difference between such a man and the healthy, hearty man, who romps with his children and rides his laughing baby to "Banbury Cross."

What makes the difference? Usually disease of the stomach, involving the entire digestive and nutritive system.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When these diseases are cured the hindrance to the proper nourishment of the body is removed and strength comes back again.

"I am happy to say I am getting to feel fine," writes Mr. A. J. Vanderwater, of 873 West Division Street, Chicago, Ill. "In all I have taken six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four or five vials of the little 'Pellets.' They have done me worlds of good. These medicines have brought the great change in me from a slow mope of a man that could hardly crawl, tired and sick all the time, and could do no work. Now I can work, sleep, eat, and feel fine, and that tired feeling is all going away. I am very thankful that I wrote to Dr. Pierce. His 'Golden Medical Discovery' and his little liver 'Pellets' have almost made a new man of me. I feel young as I did at thirty years. No other doctor for me, only Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

AMONG THE MUD SPRINGS.

Their Contents Are as Varied in Color as the Rainbow.

Among the wonders of the Yellowstone National park none excites more interest than what are known as "the paint pots," or boiling mud springs. There are several groups of these springs in the parks, one of the largest of which occupies a space of 300 yards in length by 25 in width, in what is known as the valley of Alum creek, near the crater hills. A second group is near the wall of the grand canyon of the Yellowstone, four miles below Yellowstone lake and six miles from the crater hills. This group occupies a space three acres in extent, and it is said the springs present a magnificent sight when in the course of eruption.

The principal spring is called the Blue Mud Pot and is 35 feet in diameter. It is near the large sulphur spring and when in a tranquil state looks like a lake of blue mud. The contents of the spring are more like muddy water than thick mud, although at times the mud has a consistency of mortar. In some portions of the spring various degrees of consistency are found, ranging from the muddy water state to a thickness of common mortar.

There are no particular times of eruptions from these springs, and, though they are in groups or are very close together, not more than two feet separating some of them, there seems to be no connection between them, and they are of different colors. Various shades of brown, red, pink, blue, lavender and gray are to be found, and when all of them are spouting together the kaleidoscopic coloring makes a beautiful picture. The streams thrown from the craters of the springs sometimes mount as high as 40 feet and in falling form an edge around the turbid lake that causes the resemblance to paint pots. In the valley of the Alum creek, where the Blue Mud Pot is found, tourists observe puffs of mud rising from the surface for over 300 yards.

The second group of springs presents every possible variation of color. There are perhaps hundreds of the smaller springs, all of them having the raised edges, which are covered with the varicolored mud. This mud has a temperature of over 180 degrees and seems to be boiling at all times. The springs at this point greatly resemble caldrons of paint and are pink, lavender and pure white in color.

In these smaller springs there is generally a circular pit about ten feet deep completely covered on the outside with the colored mud. This mud when dried and burned, whether with fire or by the sun, makes the finest quality of plaster. Geologists claim that after being properly worked up it would make better mortar or plaster than anything now used for the purpose. When the white mud is burned, it takes a form very much like that of finished meerschaum and is quite as pliable and lasting. The mud contains a great deal of sulphur and tastes strongly of alum.

SICK WITH GALL STONES.

You can't get any means more effective than Powley's Liquified Ozone to dissolve kidney impurities and make that organ healthy. Almost the first dose will improve the condition and make the system healthy. Mrs. Abbott was most grievously afflicted. Read the story of her bringing back to life as told by herself:—

THE OZONE CO., Ltd., TORONTO, ONT.

Gentlemen: About three years ago I was taken very sick with gall stones in the bladder. I had one of the best doctors in the city, but my case baffled his skill. I also tried various remedies. I became so low that my life was despaired of, and my children, who were in Chicago, were sent for to see me before I passed away. I was advised by my neighbor to try Ozone. In a few days my condition was so much improved that my family began to hope. I continued the treatment and, after taking three bottles was completely cured of my trouble. I am 66 years of age and I feel several years younger since taking the Ozone, as it has toned up my whole system.

I have recommended Ozone to several of my friends, and it would be an encouragement to you if you could hear the praise these people give your remedy.

(Signed) MRS. CHAS. ABBOTT, 24 Hamilton St., Toronto, Ont.

The healing effect of Powley's Liquified Ozone on the membraneous linings of the body are peculiar to the preparation alone, because of the stable oxygen it contains. It eases the pains in the back and makes the kidneys perform their duties thoroughly. It cures permanently and effectively.

THE FAIR IN FULL SWING.

laundry establishment up to its present complete state of equipment, have been years of steady plodding and perseverance to accomplish his ideal. His model premises which now forms a separate block of buildings known as the Parker Block, is centrally situated at Nos. 177 and 179 Charlotte street, with a depth of 170 feet, with sales rooms in front and a series of work shops in rear, have all been the results of his own persevering enterprise. The installing of the best laundry plant obtainable, and the equipment of his work shops with steam processes and latest improved appliances and machinery, has given to Peterborough an industry second to none in Canada, affording employment to over forty work-people the year round. The exhibit which Mr. Parker makes at the Fair affords an insight into the character and variety of work which he is capable of turning out. In one class there is shown many excellent samples of laundred work, including white dress shirts, coloured cambric shirts, linen collars and cuffs. In this connection it may be stated that the highly finished condition of this work is the result as it comes from the hands of skilled labour. Expert shirt ironers from Berlin, each of whom are specialists at the business, are engaged constantly on the finest laundry work, which ensures perfect satisfaction to the most fastidious patrons. In another case is displayed samples of cleaned kid gloves, furs, etc. In another ostrich plumes are shown cleaned and dyed in various delicate tints. There is also a fine display of white and coloured sheepskin mats, the long, fleecy, delicate creamy white samples having a rich silky gloss showing special treatment. Childrens' silk and wool wearing apparel are also shown in which the dry cleaning process has been used. All kinds of gentlemen's clothing are cleaned, dyed, repaired and pressed in the most satisfactory manner. A forcible example of the transformation made in dyeing old garments is depicted in an old coat, labelled "before dyeing" and "after dyeing"—one half of the coat having become brown faded and unsightly, while the other half, which has been put through the dyer's hands, comes out a bright jet black in strong contrast to its faded counterpart.

Carpets of Luxurious Tread.

The special carpet exhibit made at the Fair by the firm of Messrs. Turnbull & Co., George street, is calculated to arouse eager interest if you have any floors to cover this fall. A carpet is something more than a mere floor covering. It should satisfy the artistic sense as well. In a properly furnished house the carpet sets the pitch with which all the other decorative effects should harmonize. The profusion of patterns shown by Turnbull & Co. are a study of ingenuity and beauty. There is a fine choice of designs, calculated to please both the quiet and extravagant tastes. These embrace elegant velvets, Brussels, tapestries, all wools and unions. The richest weaves have been unrolled and spread out, forming the walls, floor and ceiling of the effective display. The beautifully decorated interior shows rolls of the brightest favourites, as well as handsome art squares, novelties in rugs, fancy door mats, rich bed comforters, etc. Rich lace curtains, portieres and drapes lend additional embellishments to the display.

Very large purchases were made by Turnbull & Co. this season. The importations includs all grades of carpets from the most expensive and luxurious to the medium and cheaper weaves, adapted for Peterborough's trade. The big store on George street is stimulated with the prospects of advancement, and ripe with ideas for trade increase; and this exhibit reflects some of the bounties of the department devoted to floor coverings, and house furnishings. Mr. Migh.. is sanguine that the sterling qualities which his firm offer in home needs will influence the biggest fall trade ever enjoyed.

What surprised many when examining the goods was the reasonableness of the prices. Apparently the buying is in the hands of one knowing the business thoroughly. Twenty-five to fifty cents a yard saved on a good new carpet is an important item and worthy of careful consideration, especially so when fine English Brussels and velvet carpets are offered at such a saving. A richer and more effective floor covering could not be planned than some of these new carpets of "luxurious tread." And if you haven't kept tab on what the wool carpet men have been doing, just see the styles shown in this exhibit and you'll be surprised at the colour effect. In fact, once decide that you will furnish a home and the matter of selection may be safely committed to the care of Messrs. Turnbull & Co.—in other words, "you get married, Turnbull & Co. will feather the nest."

The Same Old Goughs at the Same Old Stand.

"Still at the same old stand," said Mr. Gus Gough, as he piloted a bunch of his cronies into the main building, and pointed proudly to the towering display of clothing made by his firm.

The "old stand" referred to is the south-eastern section, comprising about one-fourth of the ground floor of the building, where Gough Bros. have become familiar to fair visitors year after year.

"You seem to be holding the fort again for another year, Gus."

"Yes, our firm appreciate the value of a permanent location at the fair. We like the fact to remain embedded in the minds of the people that we're here—at the same old stand—to stay.

Mr. Gough doubtless is impressed with the idea that an old location at the fair is beneficial in the same way as an old business stand. Perhaps for the same reason that his firm insists that their advertisement in the newspapers must always appear "top of column, next reading matter."

Gough Bros.' exhibit this year was another comprehensive exemplification of the advanced styles in the ready-made clothing trade. It surpassed in variety and completeness any similar display ever made in the building. The originality and skill shown in the arrangement of the exhibit must have impressed the thousands who witnessed it. Whatever expense and trouble the firm must have been put to — and it must have been considerable — they have the proud satisfaction of knowing that it well repaid them. Their endeavour is, every year to make their exhibit an attractive advertisement for their figures, and they appeared more than usually successful this year. They were the only representatives of the clothing interests in Peterborough at the Fair. Year after year Gough Bros. broaden their borders and new life and spirit rise out of their great business just when one might fairly assume that they had reached their zenith.

With an eye single to the interests of all classes, Gough Bros. exhibit included an interesting display of medium and high-class ready-to-wear suits, overcoats, and ulsters for fall and winter wear, marked in plain and convincing figures. Men's, youths' and boys' garments were shown in satisfactory variety. Light fall overcoats, heavy winter ulsters, men's round and square cut coats, youths' and boys' suits and reefers, in all the various new styles of the season. There was also seen the new Raglan overcoat, the swell long overcoat of the season, which is enjoying so much popular favour now; also the "Raglanette," and standard short box coat, with full back, in all the most up-to-date styles of fabrics. The garments represent the highest achievements of the clothing designer's skill. The display was effectively decorated with white and blue bunting, attractively designed price tickets, and appropriately lettered show cards. The whole effect was well worked out, the dressing bearing evidence of a carefully prepared plan to give an artistic effect, such as is frequently seen in the massive show windows of the firm on George street. To Mr. W. T. Merrill belongs the credit of designing and decorating the exhibit, which entitles him to all the praise so liberally bestowed on it. Emmet Dougherty was in charge of the display and was industriously engaged handing out Gough Bros. pretty "Duke and Duchess" cards to the crowds of admirers.

NOTES.

One of the prettiest single articles on exhibition is an artificial broken tree, manufactured by Coughlin Bros. It is of Bedford free stone, and the design is beautiful. The work is marvellously well done, and a more natural looking article it would be hard to find. The knots, the rough bark and the shape of the tree is brought out most wonderfully.

ONTARIO MINISTERS' TOUR.

Messrs. Gibson and Stratton at Port Arthur.

A Very Hearty Reception at That Town and Fort William—Flowers From the Ladies.

(From the Globe.)

Port Arthur, Sept. 24. — Hon. Messrs. Gibson and Stratton, assisted by Mr. Jas. Conmee, M.P.P., addressed meetings at Murillo, Port Arthur and Fort William last night. Mr. Gibson spoke at Fort William. Mr. Stratton brought down the house at Port Arthur by telling how Mr. Conmee would knock gently, then louder and louder still, for grants for new Ontario, and he was not sure but that he would kick in the door if the grants were not forthcoming.

Mr. Gibson told of the actual growth in new Ontario since his last visit, and of the need of larger grants year by year for free grant and mining roads as well as for railways in new Ontario. Homes in Ontario for Ontario's sons and a market in new Ontario for old Ontario's wares was Hon. Geo. W. Ross' motto. From what he had seen and from the reports of the different parties sent out, the Government and the Liberal party felt fully warranted, and would push actively along the development of new Ontario. "Why," said he, "you will be surprised at the interest that is being taken in new Ontario. After I had finished a meeting on my last tour in old Ontario, and stated that I was prepared to answer any questions, a gentleman got up and said, 'If you have time, sir, we would all like you to tell us more about new Ontario.'"

After the Port Arthur meeting was over the Ministers' carriage was escorted down to Cumberland street, and the crowd cheered itself hoarse as the carriage drove off for Fort William. To-day the party was shown the schools, elevators, etc., at Fort William.

At Port Arthur the platform was crowded with ladies and gentlemen. The ladies took possession of the train between the two stations, pinned button-hole bouquets on their visitors' coats and presented them with large hand bouquets, while the man put a partridge on the dining-car, so that while travelling through new Ontario the Ministers would have to admit that they found it a land of flowers and game.

Nervous and Sleepless.

Two horrors crowded into one life, the product of poor digestion, and the poisons that are thereby formed within the body. There's just one method of cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food, but mind, food properly digested. That's the difficulty—the digestive power of the stomach must be improved. Rich, red blood formed, strength given to the organs to drive out poisons; then comes strength, vigor and endurance. Ferrozone does all this and more: it makes sick people well; weak people strong. Sow Ferrozone and you reap health. Sold by Ormond and Walsh.

ANNUAL FALL OPENING.

Unrivalled Display Made by Richard Hall & Son.

Exquisite Goods Which Were Personally Selected Last Month in the European Markets for the Peterborough Trade.

It is seldom that an opportunity is afforded of seeing two more artistically decorated windows, outside of the large cities, than is presented this week by the firm of Richard Hall & Sons. One of the windows is devoted to carpets, and of the three designs shown in Crossley's Wilton and Brussels for bedroom, dining room and parlour respectively, it would be hard to conceive of anything more tasteful or richer in colouring. The other window is reserved for costumes, mantles and suits together with a display of millinery, and the great attraction which this window possesses for the ladies is ample evidence of the care which has been taken in its arrangement.

Inside the store the display of goods in connection with the annual fall opening is something bewildering and a sight in which the ladies of the town are revelling, as the stock is one which has never been equalled in town in point of variety and general excellence. As is well known the firm does almost all its buying in the big manufacturing centres of Europe, and the purchases now on view as the result of Mr. Dickson Hall's recent trip abroad, speaks volumns for the discrimination and taste which he exercised in making his selections for the fall trade. The advantages which accrue to a firm through being able to pick up the very latest novelties in the different lines and to have the entire output of a mill to pick from are so great as to justify Messrs. Richard Hall & Sons in their statement that they have far outstripped their rivals this season in their fall display.

On the ground floor the goods in the various departments are shown in the most artistic manner possible, and the colourings in the dress goods are indeed superb as are those in the silk and satins. The novelties shown in the sequin, plain, coloured and black laces and nets are endless in their variety and the display of gloves and hosiery is also most attractive.

On the floor above the millinery also shows the advantage of a personal selection in an unlimited market. The Parisian and New York pattern hats are entrancing in their beauty. Birds and feathers are used far more extensively in the trimmings than for some years, and the combinations are endless that are effected with vari-coloured shades of velvet. An unusually large selection of black hats is also shown.

A corner to which ladies are magnetically drawn on this floor is that which is fitted up as a bedroom. It is a marvel of the decorator's art, and the draping of the curtains on the walls and in connection with a cunningly designed "cozy corner," would be hard indeed to surpass. The materials used are exquisite. A Battenberg bedspread and pillow shams on Nile green over pink, is greatly admired, as are the old-rose and green curtains, and the delicate pink carpet, which harmonize so beautifully in colouring.

In mantles, capes and ladies' suits there is a great variety to choose from, and as the majority of the stock is imported directly from the German and New York markets, the styles are most modish and up-to date. The ladies' long coats, and the black goods command particular attention.

STRETCH OUT.

Many a man is unable to stretch his arms or legs because of rheumatism. There is no excuse for this state of affairs. Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure will remove the disease in short order. In the case of Henry Hasler, Flinton, Ont., two bottles made him as sound as ever. He had suffered from muscular rheumatism in his arms and legs for two months and was perfectly helpless. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days' treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

The irresistible attractions of these displays influenced the attendance of large groups of delighted visitors to-day. What they saw was the very essence of style, the cream of novelty, the extreme limit of utmost values.

The best and most exquisite from everywhere has been sent to Fair's for this occasion.

The Millinery Exhibits to be seen are creations by famous Milliners. You see the originals of the leading Hats of this season—the Hats that set the style for women.

Most elaborate displays are made of Cloaks, Capes, Jackets, Tailor-made Suits and Skirts, Waists, etc—beautifully adapted garments original and distinctive in elegance and style.

This gives but a faint impression of the aristocratic showing at Fair's—the rest you'll have to come and learn about.

A FOUL CONSPIRACY

Result Placed Gerald Sifton on Trial for His Life.

SIGNIFICANT HINT BY DEFENCE.

The Witness, Herbert, Cross-Examined by Mr. Johnston—His Evidence in the Main Very Little Impaired—Dr. Macneil's Evidence Somewhat Both Ways—The Effect of the Blows.

London, Sept. 26.—Dr. D. G. MacNeil of Arva, who attended Joseph Sifton in his dying hours, was called toward the close of the murder trial yesterday afternoon. His evidence was sensational. It pleased the prosecution in one part, in another it was very much to the taste of the defence.

The doctor testified that while Gerald Sifton's father lay unconscious and dying, the prisoner asked if something could not be done to relieve his sufferings. When told his father was unconscious to suffering, the prisoner said if the doctor had nothing, that he had strychnine. Then he added, "If money is any consideration," but was cut short by the doctor. This followed Gerald's outburst: "Oh, my poor father; how I wish you could speak to me."

The defence elicited the statement from the Crown witness that it was impossible that blows had been rained upon the head of Joseph Sifton with an ax used with the force of one chopping wood. This was in contradiction of Walter Herbert's statement that he struck Sifton three times and that Gerald dealt from eleven to fourteen blows, some of them with both hands.

The defence dropped a hint that they intend to show that a foul conspiracy has placed Gerald Sifton in the dock, and on trial for his life. This was when Ephraim Bathurst said he was in the Sifton barn, looking for a fork, when he overheard two talking in the stable below. One of these was Edgar Morden of butter-paper fame.

Here the Crown objected and was successful, at least, temporarily. But the defence is understood to have witnesses on the same line.

Dr. MacNeil described the injuries to the head. There was a "boggy" feeling extending over three inches on the top and two wounds. These, he said, might have been caused by an ax.

James Burgess, a Hamilton traveler, was put in the cell alongside Gerald Sifton last December, and Sifton told him, he says, that "what was grinding him was that Walter Herbert had squealed after he had spent $375 on the lawyers for his defence."

Nearly all the morning was taken up with Mr. E. F. B. Johnston's cross-examination of Walter Herbert. In the main part of the story the witness did not falter, but on the minor points, which may prove important links in the chain.

Shortly after the examination began, when Herbert was giving important evidence, the judge turned to him suddenly and said: "You agreed with Gerald Sifton to tell what was untrue for $1,000?" Herbert assented.

"You agreed to swear falsely for $1,000?" put in Mr. Johnston. Herbert assented.

These questions and answers seemed to make an impression on the jury. Later on Herbert shifted a bit and excused himself. He said that he hit the old man the first blow with the ax as he was coming up the ladder, but it was not a hard blow, and it was hit by the broad side of the ax. He had afterwards caught the old man to prevent him from falling. Sifton dragged the old man up to the mow, and then went at him in earnest with the ax.

When court resumed in the afternoon Herbert was again in the box. He added the sensational statement to his evidence that the prisoner said the doctor had little hopes of his father getting around, but that he would see that he would not. He said he had stuff that would fix him if he did.

The trial bids fair to last well into next week.

London, Sept. 26.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra returned to England yesterday from the Continent.

BRAVE PRINCIPAL GRANT.

He Tells His Physicians That His Life Work Is Not Yet Finished—Constant Medical Attendance.

Kingston, Sept. 26.—"I'm not dead yet, gentlemen," was the way Dr. Grant greeted his medical advisers yesterday afternoon. And then he proceeded to say that with the help of God he hoped to be able to do much more work, that his life work was not yet completed. These have been the most vigorous words he has uttered since he was stricken.

He is weak, extremely so, but he has a good constitution, and it is standing by him. He is lying on his own bed, one brought yesterday from his home. In a large, sunny, quiet room in the Watkin's wing. Three skillful nurses are with him, one constantly at his side, and the medical men have the case well in hand. They watch the varying changes and conditions and are thus ever ready to meet the emergencies that arise.

Yesterday Dr. W. T. Connell, pathologist at the college, appeared as a consulting physician, and his microscopical and chemical examinations both of the excretions and blood, will aid in speedily detecting any new developments. The doctors are thus constantly alive to the case. They know there are still dangers, but they also feel encouraged by the improvements noted. They have the kidneys and bladder fulfilling their functions, the heart steadier and find he enjoys his nourishment. The slight disarrangement of the liver, producing a jaundiced condition of the skin, has not increased, and is being treated in hope of a speedy improvement.

Dr. Grant's friends are constant and thoughtful. None is allowed to see him, however. They are leaving their loving messages in the form of floral gifts, which are allowed in the room for some time daily, thus helping to gladden the patient. It will be quite a time before Dr. Grant can leave his present quarters.

Constans Will Return to Turkey.

Paris, Sept. 26.—M. Constans, the French Ambassador to Constantinople, who left his post because the Sultan failed to carry out his promises in regard to the payment of these claims and the settlement of the quays dispute, is preparing to return to Constantinople. He told a friend yesterday, however, that immediately upon his arrival at that place he would demand a clean settlement of all the outstanding difficulties between France and Turkey, including a formal acknowledgment of France's conquest of Algeria and Tunis—something which has never yet been accorded.

A Minister's Disappearance.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—The mysterious disappearance of Rev. John Branston of 71 Sheridan avenue, Parkdale, is causing the gravest anxiety to his family and friends. The missing gentleman left his home on Saturday afternoon, and that was the last seen or heard of him, and up to a late hour last night no clue to his disappearance had been discovered. He is a superannuated Methodist minister, and his relatives scout the idea of suicide, and are convinced that his absence is due either to illness or foul play.

Strike at Kingston.

Kingston, Sept. 26.—Yesterday morning 200 machinists employed in the locomotive works went out on strike because a union man was discharged for refusing to work overtime. The man in question had been taking holidays, and was instructed to work overtime in order to catch up with his work. He refused, and was discharged. The union asked that he be taken on again, but the request was not granted, hence the strike. The works will be closed rather than submit to the men's demand.

Carrie Nation's Lecture.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Carrie Nation lectured in Toronto last night before an intelligent and respectful audience of probably 1,500 people. She spoke for about 40 minutes. There was nothing distinctive or new about her speech.

Big German Deficit.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—The papers assert that the next German budget will show a deficit of more than 100,000,000 marks ($25,000,000.)

A FINE TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT.

New York Outlook.

Mr. Roosevelt is now President of the United States. In this grave crisis there was not a moment's hesitation, a moment's uncertainty, or a moment's suspense. All men knew, even in the first shock and consternation of an awful crime, that, while a President had fallen, not only was the Government undisturbed, but that the administration of its laws would go on without break or change. This is the noble heritage of political character gained by a thousand years of living under free institutions, and by the example and leadership of hosts of statesmen who, like President McKinley, held their own wills subordinate to the will of the Nation, and the will of the Nation subordinate to the will of God.

There is a deeper and more vital continuity than that of policy; it is the continuity of character. No more impressive illustration of faith, sincerity and beauty of character has been seen in modern times than that which was witnessed by those who stood about the deathbed of President McKinley. Stainless, amid all the temptations of public life, without blot, under the fierce light which has beat upon him in these recent years, with a devotion to his wife as dignified and touching as anything in the annals of chivalry, President McKinley, in the first place of the Nation, stood for the noblest qualities of the men of the English-speaking race. He had the purity of Washington, and the sweetness of Lincoln; and in the supreme hour his dignity and strength sustained at the highest levels the traditions of personal character which have never departed from the White House.

That tradition will be continued unbroken by Mr. Roosevelt. There will be no change in the character of the President of the United States. Of a different stock from that which flowered in the industry, the integrity, and the indomitable patience of Mr. McKinley, Mr. Roosevelt is as genuine an American. Eight generations of honourable men, prominent again and again in the affairs of the city and the State of New York, link him with the earliest colonial times. His family history has been an unbroken tradition of integrity and public usefulness; and whatever impetus and impulse come from the legacy of an honourable ancestry have borne their fruit in Mr. Roosevelt. No one has ever questioned either his integrity or his courage. Entering upon a public life at one of the most depressing and discouraging periods in the history of the country, he has stood from the first for integrity of private character and for independence and competency in public action. But one principle has governed him — a passionate desire to do the work of the State without fear and in the best possible way. In the Legislature of the State, in the Civil Service Commission at Washington, as Police Commissioner in the City of New York, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy on the eve of the war with Spain, and as Governor of New York, his course has been marked, not by passive honesty, but by resolute and aggressive integrity. Whether the work to be done was outside of or within the public gaze, whether it was apparently of small or of great moment, it has been done with an enthusiasm for right-eousness in public action which has been an inspiration to the younger men of the country. A gentleman in the best sense of a much abused word; a man of honour, upon whose reputation, in spite of the bitterest criticism, not a shadow rests; a man of proven courage, Mr. Roosevelt will continue in the Presidency the very highest traditions of integrity and independence which are associated with the place.

Although the youngest man who has ever become President, Mr. Roosevelt has had an unusual preparation for the position. He was fortunate, to begin with, in having the opportunities of a thorough training. He has supplemented university education by a life of study no less than by a life of action. When he entered college his health was very uncertain; but, instead of yielding to the limitations of his condition, he made a resolute and intelligent attempt to overcome them, with the result that he has become a man of exceptional strength and endurance. This achievement is typical of his spirit and his career. His whole life has been an energetic and persistent effort to increase the power as an instrument for public service. He had been out of college but a single year when he entered the Assembly at Albany and at once awakened the interest and the antagonism of ring and routine politicians by his straightforwardness and his determination to make a public office a public trust. At Albany he learned the ways of the politican and the methods of legislative action; in Washington, as a member of the United States Civil Service Commission, he rapidly mastered one of the most difficult and perplexing problems presented to the General Government and became familiar with the whole administrative field; as Police Commissioner in the city he studied the municipal problem at first hand, and formed the acquaintance of all classes of people; as Assistant Secretary of the Navy he not only foresaw what most men failed to foresee, the approaching war with Spain, but he sat about preparing for it with resolution and energy and a quick eye for the weak points and for essential developments which went a long way towards placing the navy in the state of efficiency which astonished the world at the breaking out of the war.

The story of his courage, his coolness, his humanity, and his efficiency in the field need not be recalled. As Governor he was not only intrepid and frank, but he was also cautious and conservative, dealing with the largest matters affecting the interests of the State with clearness of judgment as well as with independence of view. The difficulties of his position were very great, but in the face of them he rendered services to the State so conspicuous that the machine politicians were bent upon forcing him to accept the nomination for the Vice-Presidency, in order to get him out of the way. Never in the history of politics has there been a more signal and disastrous reversal of the plans of small men; for the attempt to remove Mr. Roosevelt from the direction of affairs in New York has made him President; while his successor, Governor Odell, has developed, not only capacity of a high order, but the ability to rise above the aims and standards of machine politics. Mr. Roosevelt, therefore, carries to the White House a great fund of experience. He has, fortunately, the energy, the courage, and the faith of a young man; but he has had twenty years of public service; he has been in contact with public affairs from different points of approach; he has studied public problems close at hand from different points of view, and he goes into the White House with a very unusual practical training for the work awaiting him there. Mr. Roosevelt is not only a man of courage and a man of action, he is also a man of great sensitiveness and generosity of nature. The circumstances under which he has been called to the Presidency must weigh upon him with almost crushing force. He enters upon a great place and upon the most arduous duties without any of the enthusiasm of a recent popular election behind him, and without the elation of personal triumph. A tragic event has laid an imperative duty upon him; no one who knows him can doubt for a moment the spirit with which he will discharge that duty. He ought to be made to feel in peculiar measure, in view of these extraordinary circumstances, the confidence and affection of the people which is already finding widespread and warm-hearted expression. He will continue unbroken the tradition of character which comes to him from Mr. McKinley, without spot or blemish; he will also continue beyond doubt the policy which Mr. McKinley lived long enough to define, to incorporate into action, or to foreshadow with great distinctness. That he will carry that policy to its logical conclusions we do not for a moment doubt; and in that confidence the country ought to give him not only solid but sympathetic support.

McMULLEN'S LONG "TERM"
Eight years in the tolls when South American Kidney Cure gave him his liberty.
Michael McMullen read in the newspapers of South American Kidney Cure, and when doctors tried hard and had failed to cure him, he, with the faith of a prophet commenced the use of this greatest of Kidney Specifics. In his own words: "Gravel and Kidney Disease had been the bane of my life for eight years. Thanks to South American Kidney Cure to-day I am a well man. I wish I could have every kidney sufferer within the sound of my voice for long enough to tell it." 50

On Monday evening the Presbyterian church was the scene of a very pleasing event, when the members of the church met and presented Miss Roxburgh with a handsome clock and bronze vase, accompanied by the following address:

Dear Miss Roxburgh,—It is with feelings of the deepest regret that we, the members of the Norwood Presbyterian Church, associated with you in church work, learn of your intended and immediate departure from our midst to undertake new duties and responsibilities elsewhere.

From early childhood you have been most constant and punctual at all the religious services and undertakings of our church, while your rare talents, and attainments, both musical and literary, have contributed largely to its spiritual and intellectual prosperity. In social circles, both in the church and in the town, you will be greatly missed, and kindly remembered.

Not only in the Sang Service have you rendered most valuable aid cheerfully and willingly, but in the more arduous, though less attractive, yet more important work of teaching and training the young of our Sabbath School and Endeavour Society, you have been most faithful and self-sacrificing.

We trust that you may long be spared to work in the wider field, where a greater scope may be obtained for well doing, and that your future life may be bright and happy.

While we thus bear testimony to your many virtues and add wishes for your future prosperity and happiness we cannot give expression to the deep heartfelt sorrow which we all feel tonight.

As a slight manifestation of our love and esteem for you, we ask you to these gifts,—the clock, a measurer of time, proclaiming the fleeting hours as they pass, with the fond hope that sometimes, at least, the sound of its chime may recall in days to come, the happy joyful hours we have spent together.

That God may bless you and keep you in health and strength, and that your pathway may be as the just going forth with the perfect day is the earnest prayer of us all. Farewell!

Signed on behalf of the church by thirty-four of its members.

The members of the N. P. Y. P. S. C. E., of which Miss Roxburgh has been an active member since its organization, also presented her with a gold C. E. pendant, accompanied by the following address:

Dear Miss Roxburgh,—We, the members of the C. E. Society of the Norwood Presbyterian Church learn with deep regret that you purpose severing your connection with our organization, and leaving for a distant part of our land. In losing you we feel that we are parting with the organizer and main-stay of our society. You have been at all times an ardent and successful worker in everything concerning our highest good, and your kind, cheerful and courageous personality has been an inspiration to us all to do something as humble followers of Christ, for His glory, and for the good of those who associated with us in our Endeavour Society.

We desire to show our kindly feeling toward you by asking you to accept this gold pendant as a slight token of our friendship and regard and hope that it may at times recall to your memory the happy and joyful years of your youth spent among us.

We all join in most heartily wishing you every happiness in your new home and pray that our Heavenly Father may bless you abundantly, and that you may be spared many days to work in His vineyard.

From our hearts we wish you God-speed and with sorrowful feelings we bid you farewell.

Signed on behalf of the Society,
LILLIE CHANDLER,
MARY NICOLL.

LISTS IN GOOD SHAPE

Liberals Have Worked Faithfully and Diligently.

PRINTERS' INK IS VALUABLE

Good Advice in Reference to Political Organization and Discussion Given to the Liberal Association by the Central Organization—Preliminary Preparation Essential—Small Committees.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Ever since his return from Great Britain Premier Ross has been in receipt of advices from all sections of the Province assuring him of the splendid work accomplished on the revision of the voters' lists. Never before on behalf of the Liberals has so much attention been given to this important phase of an election contest. There are yet a number of voters' list courts to be held, and the workers in the canstituencies report that these also will receive the closest attention possible, while special regard will be paid the lists wherever the Opposition urged "good work" to be done, as their instructions directed by the "sound Conservative assessors" and the "clerks who are friendly."

This year the Liberals are fortunate in having attended to the lists in each step of the work, viz., (1) in supplying names to the assessors, (2) in adding names to the Municipal Courts of Revision, and (3) in appealing to the Judge's Court to add names improperly omitted, and striking off names wrongfully inserted. By following these steps the Liberals have made themselves reasonably sure of having all their own friends on and the names of unqualified persons struck off.

The organizations which the Liberal candidates and officers of the riding Liberal associations revived for the work of revision should not be allowed to lapse into inactivity. They should rather be inspired to press on with the work, with the view of having all the vote polled on election day, and thus insure the return of the Ross Government by a handsome majority.

The Work of Organization.

On this question of general organization Mr. Alexander Smith, Secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, has issued the following circular:

The time is very opportune for political discussion and organization. With reference to organization, good would result from meetings of the riding Liberal associations, the Liberal associations of the municipalities, and of Liberal clubs wherever they exist, and where the friends locally consider they should be continued, and also by the formation of new clubs.

In any movement towards the formation of Liberal clubs it will be well to consult (1) the Provincial Liberal candidate, (2) the Liberal candidate in the last Dominion election, (3) the chief officers of the riding Liberal association, (4) the officers of the Liberal associations in municipalities where it is proposed to form Liberal clubs, and (5) other Liberals who will assume some responsibility in connection with the same.

If these steps are taken with reference to proposals for the formation of Liberal clubs a better feeling will exist and more confidence will be reposed in whatever clubs are formed.

Printers' Ink Valuable.

For general public meetings of our friends, their associations or clubs, I will be pleased to do what I can towards securing speakers who will deal with the political topics of the day, and for all such gatherings care and system should be exercised in order to thoroughly advertise the same by notices in the public press, the issuing, distribution and posting up of large posters, and a general distribution of circular letters sent through the post. It frequently occurs that speakers are disappointed to find that a meeting has received but paltry advertisement, and the only way to insure good results is as above outlined, for then even those who do not attend the gatherings will have their interest aroused, and thus add to the general enthusiasm.

Preliminary Preparation Essential.

Regular business meetings of associations and clubs will be held where only members are in attendance, and I would be pleased to attend these regular meetings and devote an hour or so to a talk on organization; for whatever else may be done in the way of fostering political sentiment, results will not be up to our anticipations unless our friends put into practice good methods of organization. We cannot have too many of our best men skilled in a knowledge of organization. It is all very well for people to generalize and shout, "Organize!" "Organize!" "Organize!"; but a few quite hours spent in preparing the organization for a riding is worth more than days of generalizing and shouting.

I prepared, on behalf of our association, for the Provincial campaign of 1894, Dominion of 1896, Provincial of 1898, and Dominion of 1900, instructions on organization. These were issued by thousands, those for the Dominion being sent to all the Provinces and the Territories. In addition to these, books on the revision of the voters' lists and organization pertaining thereto have been freely sent out each year in our Province. A study of these documents has been of great service to many of our best men, and the pity is that more of those who desired Liberal success did not take advantage of the opportunity to become more conversant with the details of organization and the qualification of voters.

Value of Small Committees.

In due time the organization compendium will be revised up to date for the approaching election, but in the meantime no occasion should be let slip to have organization matters discussed by a number of friends who have some knowledge and experience in matters of detail.

Clubs are good enough in their own sphere, but organization can best be accomplished through the polling subdivision committees, the associations for the municipalities, and the riding associations. These should get first and chief attention.

With reference to all the matters above mentioned I would be pleased to hear from you, and if you decide to form Liberal clubs I shall be pleased to furnish you with copies of a draft constitution that may be useful to you; and I shall, moreover, be glad to attend any regular business meeting of any Liberal association or club in your constituency, met, not for general public discussion, but for a better understanding of the political conditions of the constituency and an appreciation of the principles of organization.

NOTHING AS GOOD

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Everywhere are Curing Where Other Means Have Failed.

Every day the fact grown more apparent that there is no substitute for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Nothing else is as good whether for Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Distress after Eating, Pain in the Stomach, Biliousness, Indigestion, or any other sign of disorder of the digestive system.

Every day letters come telling how other medicines and treatments were tried but everything failed, failed, until a cure seemed beyond possibility and despair stared hope in the face. Such a case was that of Mr. William Bogie, proprietor of the well known Waverley House, Montreal.

Mr. Bogie was afflicted with Dyspepsia for many years as so many hotel proprietors are. Now is it not to be supposed that a man in his position would try everything in medicine to be had for money to get cured? Mr. Bogie did everything—everything but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and everything failed. And then he tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They were his last resort. If they failed him too his case was hopeless. Did they fail him? Do Dodd's Dyspepsia usually fail? Read his letter:

"I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and Indigestion for many years and until I used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I could get nothing to help me. I tried all the treatments and cures on the market in vain. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, however, have completely cured me. I consider them worth fifty times the price asked."

Health of the Province.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—The monthly report for August of the Provincial Board of Health was issued yesterday, and it shows the health of the province to be better than for the corresponding month of last year. The total number of deaths was 1,917, and last year 2,388, a percentage of 10,9 and 11.5 respectively. The deaths from contagious diseases were as follows: August, 1901, scarlatina, 7; diphtheria, 16; measles, 3; whooping cough, 12; typhoid, 30; consumption, 171; August, 1900, scarlatina, 8; diphtheria, 37; measles, 1; whooping cough, 14; typhoid 44; consumption, 180.

Shoal Lake, Man., Sept. 26.—Tuesday night burglars entered Mr. G. Manson's general store and blew open the safe in his office, taking about $1,000 in cash, mostly grain money.

SHOE SELLING
FOR FAIR WEEK.

Just breaking into the Fall and winter season comes a week of Shoe Selling during Fair week. For fair week buyers we point to the merits of the stock we have on view. Each line the best for its purpose. Each Shoe perfect in make, material, style and finish. To wear our shoes is to be convinced of their merits.

A list of prices is sometimes esteemed dry reading. It may be to some, but should not be to the buyer. It shows comparative values, it tells the kind of Shoe at a stated price. Our lists are interesting, for the Shoe, at the price, will be found of very superior value, our facilities enabling us to offer the equal of the largest departmental store. Our necessity, our whole trade, is Shoes. We share in the great advantage that arises from buying wholesale for Seven Stores. Hence lower prices, hence lower to customers. Scan this Fair Week List—fall and winter shoes are now seasonable. Let the list help you to decide.

THE ANATOMY OF THE STOMACH

The stomach is the principal, although not the only, organ of digestion. It is about 12 inches long and four inches in diameter at the largest end. It is shaped like a pear, with large end and entrance to the left, and the small end and exit to the right. In the stomach all solid foods are dissolved, and made ready to be mixed with the bile and pancreatic juices in the second stomach and bowels. If the food is not dissolved in the stomach, it is not dissolved at all, but passes entirely through the system without in any way enriching the body.

Hence the importance of a healthy stomach. The principle trouble is weakness of the muscles of which the stomach is composed, and lack of sensitiveness to the nerves which cause the gastric or food dissolving juices to flow. Two principal features are thus demanded of a stomach remedy. Merrill's System Tonic embodies these features exactly. It tones the muscles and enriches and restores the nerves; not in a transitory, but in a lasting manner. Take it when sour eructation, heartburn, gas on the stomach, pains in the stomach, sense of heaviness in the stomach and a general unpleasant feeling, indicate that your stomach is out of condition. You'll be delighted with the results and pleased to find that you can eat a hearty meal and enjoy it.

TURNBULL'S FALL OPENING.

Exquisite Display of Millinery Capes and Jackets as Well as Dress Goods.

A Large Staff of Obliging Clerks Ensures Customers Receiving the Most Prompt Attenion.

The fact that Turnbull's had decided to throw open their entire premises, last evening, in connection with their annual fall opening had the effect of crowding the big establishment to the doors and everyone present expressed the greatest delight at the manner in which the display of goods was arranged and the courtesy of the staff in attending to the wants of customers. The presence of so many capable and obliging clerks is one of the features which contributes so largely to making Turnbull's such a very popular store to shop in.

Naturally the greatest interest, last evening, was centered in the upstairs display and a visit to the millinery show rooms well repaid the visitor as the display was indeed a splendid one. The circumstance of Miss Campbell having spent several weeks in New York, this fall, resulted in the firm being able to show the very latest patterns as introduced this season in the American market. The shapes are larger this year and the trimmings lie closer to the hats. Pan-velvets, hearts, tips, ribbons and fur trimmings are largely used. The popular styles are the large Gainsborough and turban effects.

There is an entire change of style this year in Jackets and Capes, and there is a great demand for the 36 and 42 inch garments. The shades which seem to be most popular are, blacks, greys, and fawns. A specialty is made of children's coats at Turnbull's, and a beautiful range of capes and fur-lined goods are also shown.

In the dressmaking department Mr. Might felt that the best he could get would be none too good for his customers, and he announces having secured the services of one of the leading Canadian dress and jacket designers in the person of Miss Florence Burton, who for several years past has been with the R. Simpson Co., Limited, Toronto. Her designs are quite equal to tailor-made garments, and Mr. Might is to be congratulated on the enterprise which he shows in endeavouring to cater to the wants of his customers in such a manner.

The store windows are most artistically arranged, and they reflect the greatest credit on Mr. James Maude's taste in the harmonizing of colour. Some exquisite designs in pattern hats are shown as well as some very beautiful designs in ladies' suitings.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT ST. LUKE'S.

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Symonds—Special Music.

The Interior of the Edifice was Very Beautifully Decorated With the Products of the Harvest Field.

A very large congregation was in attendance at St. Luke's Harvest Thanksgiving services last evening. Various portions of the services were taken by Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, Rev. J. C. Davidson and Rev. Mr. Armitage, respectively, and the sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. Symonds.

The interior of the edifice bore evidence to the large amount of work which must have fallen upon the shoulders of the ladies, as the decorations were indeed most tastefully arranged. The window sills were all laden with small fruits and vegetables, whilst sheaves of corn and other grain were used in abundance in such places as they could be shown to the greatest advantage. The altar was very beautifully decorated with great clusters of white asters.

Rev. Dr. Symonds confined his remarks to elucidating and explaining the term "Bread of Life" and needless to say the address was pregnant with fine thought. Life was described as a series of experiences, happy or unhappy as the case might be. Naturally opinions differed as to which class the experiences could be identified with, as what might be considered happy by some would be the reverse for others. This would be exemplified in the case of a class of young men who in endeavouring to "see life" were brought face to face with the spectre of Death. As all knew error only lived by reason of the germ of truth which it contained. In many places in the Scriptures Christ is represented as speaking of life. Satan offers a life in which the false glitter of brilliancy is often mistaken for the genuine article and for this life of gambling and sin many barter the solid gold of good character, clean living, health and tried friends. The question, however, is "what really constitutes life?" All know that at some period there is a parting of the ways, when the time arrives for a choice of paths to be made and in this connection we must believe what the Saviour says of life and give due weight to His view of life and its activity. In His eyes the superlatively important possession of man is His spirit—this power to be like unto God, whose whole time upon earth was devoted to living an ideal life, which has proved an inspiration to thousands. Though Christ speaks almost entirely of the Spiritual side of life it must not be thought that He is indifferent to the material side.

The spirit does not as yet occupy the throne of the heart of man, but the time may come when it will do so exclusively. Man wants correction and inspiration.

Dr. Symonds then went on to speak of the great sympathy of the Saviour for the least striving for the higher life and of His promises to give strength to mankind to aid in the uplifting of present conditions.

Bread is often spoken of as "the staff of life," and rightly so. And as bread is to the material life so is God to the spiritual life.

It has been noticed in connection with a band of soldiery, that though tired and footsore, the sudden strains of a band of music will inspire them with new life — so it is, when in life one feels spiritually dull and depressed, and perusing the Scriptures some call to a higher life, at once the call to a higher life, and instantly the moral and spiritual life is reawakened to a greater effort.

God is the supreme source of the spiritual force at work in the world. When you take the name of Jesus Christ on your lips in prayer you feel refreshed and it means that you have taken the bread of life into your soul.

The special music which was prepared for the occasion, reflects great credit on Mr. Davies and his choir. The Nunc Dimittis and Magnificat were arrangements of Mr. Davies, and in the latter the solo work was taken in excellent voice by Miss Nellie Davies, who also sang the solo in the anthem, "O, Give Thanks unto the Lord,"—Smart. The voice of this young soloist has improved wonderfully during the past year, and she was heard with no small amount of pleasure last evening.

NO LIGHT TO-NIGHT.

Those Depending on Electricity Will be in Darkness.

At an early hour this morning the water again broke out of the raceway and in consequence there is not sufficient power to generate the electricity needed to light the town.

The trouble exists through the fact that the foundations of the piers in one of the new sluiceways were not put down deep enough, and the water has undermined them. All the timber will be removed and the sluiceway filled in.

As it will take some time to do this, the town will be in darkness to-night, as far as electricity is concerned.

At the Peterborough Central Exposition.

THE SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS.

Concert Held in the Evening in the Market Hall Last Evening—It was Well Patronized.

After the opening ceremonies yesterday afternoon the visitors to the grounds started in to amuse themselves as opportunities afforded. There are plenty of opportunities. Apart from the exhibits of an indoor and outdoor variety there are the usual number of side attractions such as "The Pan-American," "The five-legged pig," etc. There is the candy man, the pea-nut man, the professional fakir, the axe juggler, etc., all of which afforded great enjoyment for the young people the old people and people of every class. The special attractions in front of the grand stand were the feature of the day's entertainment, however, and the excellent work of the famous Roman axe jugglers, the comedy artists and the many other performers was splendid. The band of the 57th Regiment under Prof. R. Glidden, was stationed just down in front of the grand stand, and the axe juggling and other feats were performed to sprightly music. The crowd too centred here and the grand stand was comfortably filled with an appreciative audience.

The baby show was a most decided success and could not have been more keenly contested. There were fully a dozen entries and the little ones were put on exhibition on the speakers' stand for only a short while, whilst the proud mothers watched on in breathless anxiety. The youngsters unconscious of the nature of the ceremony behaved remarkably well and appeared to look their prettiest. The judging of the youngsters has in passed years devolved upon the newspaper men but the freely spoken minds of the disappointed mothers caused the quill pushers to resign their commission and this year the task was undertaken by more venturesome hands. The prize which was a ten dollar gold piece donated by Messrs. Gough Bros., was won by Mrs. W. H. Allan, of Douro.

Another very leading feature of yesterday's programme was the first race in the Schneider Competition. This is a race that is to be run in a series of races for a cup very kindly donated by Mr. Schneider, one of Peterborough's jewellers. The contest is open to the county, and the specification is a 100 yard dash. There were only two entries but the excitement became intense. The competitors were George Taylor, of town, and F. N. Rutherford, of the School of Practical Science, Toronto, formerly of Norwood, and son of Mr. Wm. Rutherford, of South Monaghan. Taylor being a local man and Rutherford being but little known in the running line, most of the money was being wagered on him. His backers in fact were offering big odds, but the race was not as one sided as the betting. However, the event did not close satisfactorily. Taylor won the the first heat by an ace only, the time being 11 1-2 seconds. In the second heat a horse attempted to cross the course and caused trouble. Rutherford entered a protest and the matter will be determinsd later.

The officials were as follows: — Starter, Sidney Mitchell; judges, Messrs. T. E. Bradburn and A. H. Stratton; timekeeper, W. J. English.

THE OPEN TROT.

The open trot brought out four entries for the first heat, after which one of the contestants dropped out. A peculiar feature of the event was that three of the horses were owned by three different Elmhirsts.

The following is the result by heats.

Fred S., Henry Elmhirst	1	1	1
Little Demon, J Elmhirst...	2	2	2

OUTSIDE EXHIBITS.

The outside exhibit of live stock, swine, poultry, etc., is first-class. In fact the pens are nearly all filled and the class of exhibits is being warmly admired. There is some change in the personnel of the exhibitors from that of last year's show. There are a number of well know stockmen conspicuous by their absence, while again many new men have entered the field, and have made a creditable showing. The cattle are exhibited more extensively than for some previous years and every available stall has been filled. In fact it is with some little difficulty that some of the exhibitors are being accomodated. The horses, too, can compare very favourably with the exhibits of former years. Although the exhibit of swine is very poor as regards their number. In this class there is only a small exhibit, although what swine that are on the grounds are quite up to the mark. The poultry exhibit is a very leading attraction and is being much admired. The exhibit in this class is unusually large and the competition so keen that the judges should find it exceedingly difficult to make awards satisfactory to every person. The exhibits in the poultry class are not entirely of a local nature but include a number of well known outside exhibitors. The directors and in fact many prominent outside live stock men express themselves as highly delighted with the show, particularly as to the outside display.

THE CATTLE.

In the Jerseys the following were the principal exhibitors:—

F. J. Macklin, 15 head and herd; E. B. Hinman, 15 and herd; C. H. Curtis, 6 head; Messrs Sutton, 15 head; M. S. Burnham, 10 and herd; Wm. Grey, two cows; G. W. Hatton, heifer calf; F. J. Heatherington, 9 and herd; W. Westlake, one-year-old heifer; John Clancy, Jersey milch cow.

In Ayrshires there was a creditable exhibit. Wm. Stewert & Son, 15 and herd; C. H. Curtis, 5 head; H. Rightmyer, one-year-old heifer; Jos. Rightmyer, milch cow; W. J. Bullock, three head.

The exhibitor in Holsteins was Mr. Andrew Cameron, who had the field exclusively, showing ten head and a herd.

The Durhams were fairly well represented by Boland Bros, 3 head; R Handbidge, 3 year old bull; Harry Fowler, yearling bull; Moses Sutton, one year old bull, and bull calf; H C Garbutt, 4 head; Wm Stewart, Otonabee, 3 head; Dundas & Grandy, 5 head and herd; W J Bullock, a 2 year old and one year old heifer.

In Polled Angus the exhibitors were chiefly shown by Messrs Jas A McLeod, 11 head and herd; Wm Stewart & Son, 13 head and herd; Geo A Ritchie, 9 head.

The competition in the Grades was taken part in by Messrs Wm Dawson, milch cow, Jas A McLeod, fat animal; C H Curtis, 2 head; Moses Sutton, 3 head; Wm Gray, milch cow; Arnott Bros, heifer calf; C B McAllister, Milch cow; H Rightmyer, 3 head; W Stewart, Otonabee, 3 head; Geo A Ritchie, fat animal; Wm Stewart & Son, fat animal; A Cameron, heifer one year old.

SHEEP.

There was a fair exhibit in this class, amongst them being Southdowns, shown by R L Holdsworth & Son, 8 head and pen; Courtice & Power, 12 head and pen.

In Oxford Downs there was not an entry of any kind.

Shropshire Downs exhibits were made by A E Meadows, who showed 11 head and pen; and C H Courtice, 4 head.

Leicesters were shown by Allan Bros, who showed 15 head and pen; Jos Staples, 3 head; Andrew Cameron, 9 head and pen; John Fairbairn, ram yearling and ram lamb.

Cotswolds were in evidence by the following exhibitors, R Vance & Son, 6 head; Brooks & Langmaid, 13 head pen; Wm Stillman, 6 head and pen.

Fat sheep of any breed were shown by Brooks & Langmaid, 2 fat sheep, Allan Bros, two head, C H Curtis, 1 and Andrew Cameron 1.

SWINE.

As before stated there was a rather small exhibit, but the hogs that were shown were of an exceptionally good quality. Those who made entries were Messrs. R Vance & Son, who were the only exhibitors in the improved Berkshire, excepting William Stewart & Son, who showed a one year old boar.

Messrs. C H Curtis and Jos Staples showed in Tamworths and in Improved Yorkshires Robert Bowles and N W Mabel showed.

Any other breeds found Robert Bowles, Wm Dawson, N W Mabel, Arnott Bros, and Thos Hooper to the front.

POULTRY.

The poultry exhibition was very large and competent judges stated that while there was some poor birds there was nevertheless a splendid exhibit of high grades. A finer exhibit of poultry has seldom been seen at the Peterborough Central.

HORSES.

In the Roadster Class R S Trew had a one 2 year old gelding, and two 1 year olds; Moses Sutton was to the front with a 2 year old gelding; W B Stewart had a one year old gelding; John Hutchinson a 1 year old filly, a brood mare and foal and a colt of 1901; H C Garbutt, a 2year old gelding; Jonathan Smith, a brood mare and foal, two year old gelding, two 1 year old fillies, and a colt of 1901; Wm Campbell, a 2 year old; Richard Lillico, a 2 year old, and a 1 year old; G C McDonald, brood mare and foal; John Clancy, stallion; Harry Fowler, a 2 year old colt; Thos Hooper, a 2 year old; J Foster, a mare and foal, and a colt of colts of 1901.

Carriage horses were exhibited by R S Trew, single driver under 15 1-2 hands; R Vance & Son, single driver over 15 1-2; C G Graham, single driver under 15 1-2; F Joty, pair of carriage drivers over 15 1-2; F S Cline, single driver under 15 1-2; J C Anderson, single horse under 15 1-2; Dundas & Grandy, pony under 15 1-2; Moses Sutton, 2 year old gelding; T Sisson, 2 year old and 1 year old; Wm Grey, single driver under 15 1-2; T Hooper, sr., 2 year old; J Martin, 3 year old, a 2 year old colt, colt of 1901, and brood mare John Hutchinson, brood mare and foal, 1 year old filly and colt of 1901, also a pony under 14 1-2; Harry Fowler, 1 year old, and single driver under 15 1-2; H C Garburt, single driver under 15 1-2, and a 3 year old driver; H Rightmyer, single driver; R A Dutton, pair of drivers over 15 1-2; Wm Stillman, two single drivers under 15 1-2, mare and foal; W J Cox, 3 year old driver; W J Handbidge, 3 year old driver; T A Davis, single over and single drivar under 15 1-2 hands; Samuel Dayell, single over, 3 year old driver; Robert Handbidge, 2 year old and 3 year old; G A Reid, pair of drivers under and a single driver under 15 1-2; Noble Kelly, single driver under 15 1-2, Milburn Bros, single driver under 15 1-2, and a 3 year old driver; Clifford Handcock, pony under 14 1-2. NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT.

The night entertainment which took place in the market hall last evening, was very largely attended. Amongst the artists that performed to the delight of the audience were Lily Bletso, the Canadian premier cornet player, and the youngest of her sex in Canada who plays that difficult instrument; Nellie Franklyn, the clever English dancer and singer, in a pretty and picturesque song and dance sketch; Areno, the contortionist, who performs feats which have mystified the medical profession in Canada and the United States; the Bletso Children, National Dancers, winners of numerous prizes and the cleverest young dancers in Canada; Harry Ritch, Canada's foremost commedienne, in a series of very funny and amusing songs and sketches; Franklyn and Hiatt, the marvellous English lightning change impersonators, in realistic sketches of English character, including the seaside resort, lady and gent, the race course swells, the London costers, and London society swells; Varnin and Turonne, the celebrated Roman axe jugglers, in wonderful feats of daring and strength, handling a perfect shower of axes, and Walton and Jones, in a funny and very pretty comedy sketch.

TO-DAY'S ATTENDANCE.

The weather to-day was quite up to that of yesterday, and it was thought that the attendance would be quite large. Such, however, was not the case, for although the programme was of a first class variety, and the day was an ideal one for outdoor pleasure, still the people failed to take advantage of it.

The attendance at the fair both yesterday and to-day has been far from satisfactory, and the finances will of course be correspondingly affected. Last year the attendance on the last day of the show was small, but there was some excuse, as the weather was most discouraging. Finer weather could not have favoured the exhibition than to-day, the closing day of the show, but the attendance is quite small. The receipts at the gate yesterday were well on to $150 less than last year, and to-day a similar state of affairs will most likely be recorded.

The country people are not to blame, not entirely to blame at any rate, for perhaps there never was a show under the auspices of the Central Agricultural Society that was so poorly patronized by the townspeople. They have not taken, up to the time of writing at any rate, the interest in their exhibition that they should, which is a discouraging circumstance for the directors to consider.

The 57th Regimental Band arrived on th. grounds at about one o'clock, and soon the programme of the afternoon was set going. The grandstand contained a fair crowd, and the programme in front by the special enterrainers was quite up to the mark. The stock, the poultry, and other exhibits outside, as well as the inside exhibits, continued to be a source of much admiration, and in the matter of exhibits the show is Death Adjourns Inquiry.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The Schley Court of Inquiry was brought to a sudden termination for the day eighteen minutes after convening yesterday morning by the announcement of the sudden death of Judge Jeremiah Wilson, senior counsel for Admiral Schley. The announcement was made to the court by Hon. Isidor Rayner, assistant counsel, who asked the court to adjourn for the day.

Admiral Dewey said: "I have to announce that owing to the death of Judge Wilson, counsel, the court will adjourn for to-day until to-morrow morning."

The announcement of Judge Wilson's death created consternation, not only among members of the court, but among the spectators, and some minutes elapsed before people generally would accept the report. The judge had been present in the court all day Monday.

Shamrock Allows 43 Seconds.

New York, Sept. 25.—The official measurements of the cup challenger Shamrock II. and the cup defender Columbia were made public last night at the New York Yacht Club. The result was in the nature of a surprise, for it showed that the Shamrock, which is the larger so far as sail area and displacement is concerned, allows only 43 seconds to the Columbia over the 30-mile course, on which the contests for the America's Cup are to be sailed. Both boats were measured with 52 men on board. The difference in the sailing length of the two boats is 1.435 feet. This, computed on the time allowance of the New York Yacht Club, gives the Columbia an allowance of 43 seconds in a 30-mile race.

Marquis Ito Coming.

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 25.—Marquis Ito, the Japanese statesman, will arrive here on Tuesday next by the steamer Tosa Maru on a visit to America for his health.

Cultivate Good Health

Feed the Nerves Enrich the Blood, Revitalize the Whole Body by Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Whenever there is an ache or pain, when the appetite fails, when there are sleepless nights, and momentary spells of weakness, look for the cause and see that it is removed at once.

Cultivate good health while yet there is something to build on, instead of waiting until the nerve force is depleted and vitality completely exhausted.

To persons suffering the results of thin blood and wasted nerves, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies all the needs of the system and brings perfect health.

Mrs. E. McLaughlin, 95 Parliament street, Toronto, states:—"My daughter was pale, weak, languid and very nervous, her appetite was poor and changeable, she could scarcely drag herself about the house, and her nerves were completely unstrung, she could not sleep for more than half an hour at a time without starting up and crying out in excitement.

"As she was growing weaker and weaker I became alarmed, and got a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. She used this treatment for some weeks, and from the first we noticed a decided improvement. Her appetite became better, she gained in weight, the colour returned to her face, and she gradually became strong and well. I cannot say too much in favour of this wonderful treatment, since it has proven such a blessing to my daughter."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food occupies a field by itself, and is unique in the respect, that it cures by forming new, rich blood and nerve force, building up the system and increasing the weight.

It is a reconstructant, restorative and revitalizer of most unusual merit, which sends new life and new vigor to every part of the body, and gradually and permanently cures all nervous troubles and diseases, resulting from weak blood and low vitality. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Elm Leaved Goldenrod.

It is well known that when a plant grows in shady places it is likely to have a greater leaf area than when it grows in the open sunshine. It must have a larger surface to collect the light when the latter is comparatively dim. Now, most of the goldenrods live in the open fields, having rather narrow leaves, but the exquisite elm leaved goldenrod lives in woods and copses, where the shadows are thick and direct sunshine is a fleeting thing. And so we find that this species has the broad, thin leaves of a shade plant—leaves with well developed stems, but otherwise so similar to those of the elm tree as to give this goldenrod its distinctive name. But it gives a touch of color to the somber shades of the woods that we would not willingly do without.—Woman's Home Companion.

How It Worked.

"Yes," said the old inhabitant, "old man Jinks climbed a pine tree to get rid o' the life insurance agent, an a harricane come 'long an blowed the tree down, an the agent was the fust to pull Jinks from under it, an he was head pallbearer at Jinks' funeral an preached a sarmont on the uncertainties o' life an insured the whole town an went his way rejoicin."—Atlanta Constitution.

"Huh! Baldness is no secret."

BOUND FOR THE FRONT.

An Incident Showing the Military Courage of the Montenegrin.

In military courage the Montenegrin probably stands at the head of European races. The best wish for a baby boy is, "May you not die in your bed!" and to face death is, to man or boy, only a joyous game. Says W. J. Stillman in his "Autobiography:"

I have seen a man under a heavy Turkish fire deliberately leave the trenches and climb the breastwork, only to expose himself from sheer bravado.

While lying at headquarters at Orsabuk, awaiting the opening of the campaign in 1877, I was walking one day with the prince, when a boy of 16 or 18 approached us, cap in hand.

"Now," said the prince, "I'll show you an interesting thing. This boy is the last of a good family. His father and brothers were all killed in the last battle, and I ordered him to go home and stay with his mother and sisters, that the family might not become extinct."

The boy drew near and stopped before us, his head down, his cap in hand.

"What do you want?" asked the prince.

"I want to go back to my battalion."

"But," said the prince, "you are the last of your line, and I cannot allow a good family to be lost. You must go home and take care of your mother."

The boy began to cry bitterly.

"Will you go home quietly and stay there," said the prince, "or will you take a flogging and be allowed to fight?"

The boy thought for a moment. A flogging, he knew well, is the deepest disgrace that can befall a Montenegrin.

"Well," he broke out, "since it isn't for stealing, I'll be flogged."

"No," said the prince, "you must go home."

Then the boy broke down utterly.

"But," he cried, "I want to avenge my father and brothers!"

He went away still crying, and the prince said: "In spite of all this he will be in the next battle."

Bronchitic Asthma

is now easily cured, not by pouring nauseous destructive drugs into the stomach, but by inhaling Catarrhozone. Drugs do more harm than good, but the soothing, healing, medicated air that Catarrhozone supplies to the lungs and bronchial tubes cannot fail to benefit. Catarrhozone prevents these smothering spasms and headaches, cures the cough, and makes breathing easy. Universally used; doctors recommend it; druggists sell it; 25c and $1.

Somerville, Texas, Sept. 25.—A race riot was started here last night, and several hundred shots were fired before the negroes broke and fled. One negro is dead, and two men are seriously wounded.

The Youngster Hushed.

When the great French chemist Chevreul attained his hundredth birthday, he was entertained at a public dinner, at which his son, a high official in the department of justice, 67 years old, was also present. The old man made a speech and in telling an anecdote made a slight slip, which his son corrected. Old Chevreul turned around quickly and said in a sharp tone, "Hush, youngster, when I am talking." And the "youngster" held his tongue.

Neighborhood Amenities.

"I hear Bilk has put up some new houses in your neighborhood."

"Yes, and he's ruined the neighborhood with them."

"He says you had spoiled it with those houses of yours."

"Now, isn't it just like Bilk's meanness to say a thing of that kind about a fellow he's known all his life?"—Leslie's Weekly.

DAPPLE'S MISTRESS

A Story of the Civil War.

"Stop, Dapple. We must look to this."

The scene was a green stretch of summer lawn in front of a fine old Virginia farmhouse; the speaker a slight, bright faced girl, gracefully mounted on a small, gray pony.

The sun was dropping out of sight behind the green hills, and far away down the silver bend of the Accoceek came the tramp of retreating troops, with now and then the muffled roll of a drum or the shrill bray of a bugle.

Old Virginia, the queen mother of the sunny south, was overrun with soldiers, devastated by fire and sword, shaken to her very foundations by the thunders of the civil war.

Colonel Moreton was far away from his pleasant home in the front ranks of death and danger; but Irene, his only child, still braved the terrors of invasion and remained at the farmhouse with her invalid mother and a few faithful old servants.

Cantering across the grounds an hour after the retreat of the invading troops, something attracted the young lady's notice—a prostrate figure under the shade of the great cottonwood tree.

"Stop, Dapple. We must look to this."

Dapple stopped, and Miss Irene leaped lightly from her saddle, and, throwing the silken reins over the pony's neck, she went tripping across the grounds to the spot where the figure lay.

It was a tall, soldierly figure, clad in army blue, with a pale, worn face and an abundance of curling chestnut hair.

Colonel Moreton's daughter looked down upon the senseless soldier with all her woman's divine compassion stirring within her bosom.

"Poor fellow!" she murmured, laying her soft hand upon his brow. "I wish I could help him."

The soft voice and the softer touch called back the veteran's wandering senses. He opened his eyes and looked up in the young lady's face. Great, luminous, handsome eyes they were, that somehow reminded Irene of her brother Tom's eyes, and Tom was down in the trenches in front of Richmond. The compassion in her heart stirred afresh. She smoothed back the tangled curls from the soldier's brow.

"My poor fellow!" she said. "Can I do anything for you?"

He struggled up to his elbow, with a stifled groan.

"My horse threw me," he explained, "and they left me behind. I think I must have fainted from the pain. I thank you very much, but I can't see how you can help me. I suppose I must lie here till they take me prisoner, and I'd almost as soon be shot."

Irene smiled—a smile that lighted her dark, bright face into positive beauty.

"I am in the enemy's country," she said, "but if you will trust me I think I can help you, at least I will see that you are refreshed and made comfortable."

She put her hand to her bosom, and drawing forth a tiny whistle she put it to her lips and blew a sharp little blast.

Dapple pricked up his gray ears and came cantering to her side, followed instantly by a colored manservant.

"You see," smiled Miss Irene, flashing a beaming glance on the soldier, "I hold my reserve forces at a moment's warning. Here, James, help this gentleman to the horse and then ride for Dr. Werter to dress his limb."

James obeyed without a word, and by the time the sun was fairly out of sight the Union soldier, refreshed and made comfortable, lay asleep in the best chamber of the pleasant old southern mansion.

Meanwhile, on the long veranda, Irene kept watch, her slight, willowy figure wrapped in a scarlet mantle, her flossy, raven tresses floating on the winds.

By and by, as the midnight stars came out and glittered overhead, above the dreamy flow of the river, above the murmur and rustle of the forest leaves, arose the clash and clang, the roar and tramp, of advancing troops.

Irene's dark face flushed and her lustrous eyes dilated. She crossed the veranda with a swift step and tapped lightly at the door of her guest's chamber.

"They are coming," she whispered. "They will take you prisoner if you remain. You must go."

The soldier started to his feet and made his way out, but he reeled against the doorpost, faint and gasping for breath.

"I can't walk!" he cried. "There's no hope of escape!"

But Irene held out her lithe, young arm.

"Yes, there is," she said cheerfully. "Lean on me. I can help you down, and you shall ride Dapple. He knows the river road, and you will overtake your comrades by dawn. Hurry; there is no time to lose!"

The soldier leaned upon the brave, helpful young arm and succeeded in reaching the lawn below.

"Dapple," the young girl called in her clear, silver notes, "come here!"

In a breath Dapple was at her side. The girl stood and looked at the gentle creature and then threw her arms around his neck.

"Oh, Dapple, pretty Dapple," she sobbed, "it breaks my heart to part from you! Goodby, Dapple!"

In the next breath she stood erect, her eyes flashing through a mist of tears.

"Come, sir," she said, "allow me to help you to mount. Dapple, take this gentleman down the river road and at your utmost speed."

Dapple uttered a sagacious whinny, but the soldier hesitated.

"Why don't you mount, sir?" cried the girl impatiently. "Will you remain here and ruin both yourself and me?"

He vaulted into the saddle without a word.

"Away, Dapple, like the wind!" cried Irene, and the little mountain pony shot off like an arrow.

* * * * * * *

The war was over, and once more over the blasted and desolate homes of Virginia peace and freedom reigned.

Captain Rutherford made it his business to go back to the Potomac hills and to Colonel Moreton's farmhouse the moment he was discharged from service. But where the stately old homestead stood he found nothing but a mass of ruins, and of Dapple's mistress not the slightest tidings could he obtain.

Three years went by, and the ex-captain found himself the wealthy heir of an old uncle and took himself off on a tour amid the Swiss mountains. Dapple went with him, as he always did since that eventful night when the brave little pony bore him safely beyond reach of the enemy. He had been the captain's inseparable companion in all his wanderings. He was with him now, ambling over the green Tyrol valleys and climbing the Switzer steeps.

One September afternoon, when the captain's tour was drawing to a close, somewhere in the vicinity of Mont Blanc he fell in with a traveling party from New Orleans. It consisted of Madam Lenoir, her son and two daughters and a young American lady who was her companion and interpreter.

Captain Rutherford found madam a charming woman, and while the young persons of the party busied themselves in spreading out a collation under the trees he lay amid the long, rustling grasses listening to madam's pretty feminine chatter and in his turn relating incidents and reminiscences of his own war experience for her edification.

Among other things he told her of Dapple and of his midnight ride among the blue hills of old Virginia.

Madam was intensely interested.

"And the gallant little pony carried you safely through?" she cried, with beaming eyes.

"Safely through, madam, with the enemy at my very heels," replied the captain.

"Miss Moreton," cried madam, "will you have the kindness to pass the claret cup? And, pray, Captain Rutherford, whatever became of Dapple?"

The captain raised himself to a sitting posture.

"Dapple, Dapple," he called. "Come here!"

From the forest shadows near at hand a small gray mountain pony came ambling forth. Madam Lenoir's companion, advancing with the claret cup in her slim white hand, uttered a sharp little cry and wasted all the luscious liquor on the rustling leaves at her feet.

"Oh, Dapple, Dapple!" she cried.

Dapple heard the sweet voice and knew it in an instant. He broke into a joyous neigh and shot like an arrow for the young lady's side. She caught his shaggy head and held it close to her bosom, sobbing like the silly child she was.

"Oh, Dapple, my pretty Dapple, have I found you at last?"

Madam Lenoir, comprehending the denouement, looked on with glistening eyes.

Two weeks later the pleasant party was breaking up. Madam and her party were going back to France.

"And now, Irene," said the captain, "how is it to be? You will not listen to my suit or accept my love? Then you will be forced to part from Dapple again. She is mine by the right of possession. I cannot give her up. Come, now, give you final decision—are you willing to part from me and Dapple forever?"

Irene looked up with her old, glorifying smile.

"I could bear to part from you," she said wickedly, "but never again from Dapple. If you take Dapple, you will have to take her mistress, too, Captain Rutherford."

And the captain made no objection. A month later saw Dapple's mistress his wife.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355,-92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

THE ATTENDANCE NOT VERY LARGE

much ahead of those of several years back. The only thing in fact that is lacking is the crowd. But the directors are not down-hearted. They point to the fact that Ottawa, Toronto, Kingston and other places, have suffered in a like manner this year, a circumstance that is attributed to several causes, and they also predict that the smaller shows yet to follow will run up against the same "hoodoo."

This afternoon the show grounds presented a very pretty appearance. The inspiring music of the band, the acting of the various artists, the monotonous music from the merry-go-round, the din from the "Pan-American," the shout of the fakir, and the clang of the machinery, combine to create a scene quite enchanting.

The drawing contest and the green trot are the principal items on the programme for the afternoon.

CHEESE EXHIBIT.

The exhibit of cheese in the main building was fair and the result was perhaps a little surprise. Mr. Stewart Payne, of Warsaw factory, carried off first prize, Mr. J. C. Anderson, of Keene, second, and Mr. A. Beavis, of the Star factory, third prize. Mr. Kline, of Lakefield, who carried off first honours at the Pan-American, also made an exhibit. The judges were Mr. George Fitzgerald and Mr. Wm. H. Wrighton.

NOTES.

The special attractions are under the management of Mr. Wm. Banks, formerly night editor of the Mail and Empire. Mr. Banks is manager of Munro Park, Toronto, and is a hustler at his business. He is employed by the Street Railway Company of Toronto to keep their park attractions up to date.

The new Ontario colonization tent occupies a conspicuous place on the grounds and is giving out much valuable information regarding the settlement in that country. The tent is in charge of Mr. W. G. Field, representing the Clergue syndicate, who is well posted on matters pertaining to colonization. Inside the tent are maps, pamphlets, etc., and upwards of 250 people paid the tent a visit yesterday. They all appeared well pleased with the information given them.

The traffic from points on Rice Lake and the Otonabee River has not been what was expected of it. The steamers Water Lily and North Star which came up yesterday had plenty of room for more passengers, and the show in fact has not reaped much assistance from the traffic by boat. Amongst the visitors to the show, however, are many of the Presidents, Vice-Presidents, Directors and other officers of the various Agricultural Societies throughout the district. They call, as a rule at the official head-quarters and are cordially received.

Sgt.-Major Brittain has been most attentive in his duties as chief ticket receiver, and has the business down to perfection now.

Mr. Reg. Turner has a large tent near the main enterance which he is utilizing as a bicycle checking head-quarters. As the attendance of town people has not been very large, not as large at any rate as it should have been, the number of bicycles at the grounds in correspondingly small.

Mr. McQuay, Peterborough's well known confectioner, has the monopoly of the "officers mess," and is kept busy catering to the wants of the hard working officials.

Mr. W. J. Green, the energetic Secretary, has had a busy time of it for the past few days and is performing his duties with his old time vigour.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS.

The whole of the interior of the show building was monopolized with special displays of an interesting character. They were mainly representative of the merchandise of local business firms, and as such reflected creditably on the enterprise of the respective exhibitors. The reader will find a detailed description of the most worthy of these exhibits

The Colonial Motor Company's Gasoline Engine.

A new and special feature of the exhibition was the four horse power gasoline engine manufactured and shown by the Colonial Motor Company, of Peterborough, Limited. These engines are the invention of Mr. W. J. Hamilton, of this town, and are the admiration of crowds of intelligent, enterprising visitors, who are not slow in recognizing their points of superior excellence, comprising exactness and due proportions of all the parts, simplicity of mechanism, strength and durability, combined with lightness and ease of movement from place to place; covered gears, cams and governors shielded, ease and rapidity in starting, absolute control of flow and complete vaporization of gasoline, consequently no waste of either fuel or power; perfect electrical ignition, and above all safety and low cost of running—any man of ordinary intelligence can learn in half a day how to operate these engines.

Their application as a motive power includes pumping, pulping, straw and ensilage cutting, grinding, sawing, threshing, running electric light dynamos, launches, yachts, planing and other mill or shop machinery, and anything to which motive power is usually attached. A test of these engines, extending over a period of twenty-eight days was recently made at the premises of the Colonial Motor Company, 212 Hunter street, Peterborough, by the superintendent, Mr. W. J. Hamilton, when the company's plant was run for the above named period at the low cost, for gasoline, of twenty-eight and a half cents per day for a four h. p. engine, which supplied all the motive power required to run the plant.

The Colonial Motor Company has now thirty of their gasoline engines either completed or nearing completion, and a number of others in various stages of construction. The horse power ranges from one and a half to sixteen, and those in contemplation will run from sixteen to thirty horse power. The smaller ones are now installed and working with splendid results in launches, machine shops and as power in running farm machinery. An important factor in the handling of these gasoline engines is the moderate cost price to bona fide purchasers, and the low cost and simplicity of their operation.

Grafton & Co's Publicity.

Messrs. Grafton & Co., the high-grade clothing dealers, of George street, were very much in evidence all over the show grounds and leading thoroughfares through the medium of their conspicuous advertising features. This prosperous firm seem to put great faith in the value of this class of advertising, which depends for its value entirely upon attractiveness. The firm use up a large amount of coloured lithographs mounted on frames, illustrating the new season's styles of their fine clothing. These lithos are well executed, bright and attractive. It is not so much what is said—though saying the important thing and saying it effectively, is desirable—but it is keeping in the public eye that is paramount; and these handsome coloured fahsion plates of Grafton's styles do this effectively. And they were made to do it well at this fair. On every public corner, and eligible location, the eye caught these attractive placards. The main entrance to the grounds, the main building and all the smaller buildings were decorated with them. Right in line with the grand stand and within easy range of the great mass of spectators a large platform was erected where the performances of the special attractions of the fair were going on; and it was conspicuously noticeable that the very dressing rooms and stage built on the platform for the use of the actors were formed of Grafton & Co's brightest lithos. One much admired placard deserving of special mention was a hand painted oil device of Grafton & Co's trademark from the artistic brush of Mr. John Watson, town.

Bibby's Cream Equivalent.

was amongst the exhibits in the main building. This popular calf food has only recently been introduced into Canada, the manufacturers having opened a branch in Toronto. It is used with very good results where milk is scarce, where skim or separated milk only is available, or where no milk at all can be spared for calf-rearing.

Messrs. Bibby are the largest manufacturers of cattle foods in the world, and keep a well equipped experimental farm for testing their products. They have a reputation for the quality of their output. Farmers who are short of milk for their calves, may learn more about "Cream Equivalent" by applying to Mr. C. N. Brown, Simcoe street, who is the agent for Peterborough District.

G. Walter Green's Pumps.

The Otonabee Power Company may control the water power at No. 5 dam as much as it likes, but it has been left to Mr. G. Walter Green to control the water power and water supply drawn from wells.

Mr. Green's pump exhibit at the Fair this year was, as usual, one which farmers spend a good deal of time in examining and asking for information. Mr. Green exhibited five different styles of wooden pumps and one iron pump. The features which continue to make these pumps so successful are their reliability, winter and summer, their ease of operation, and their great durability. They are adapted for any and every kind of household and farm purposes. If you examine the timber they are made from, the iron work, and the substantial way they are finished, it's no wonder they sell on sight.

Mr. Green is the local agent for the Brantford "Ideal" gasoline engines, one of which was erected on the ground, and in full running order. The manufacturers have chosen a type of engine which is simple in its parts, economical and handsome in design. The most vital part of this gasoline engine is the "igniter," or the device which ignites the gasoline after it has entered the cylinder. They are absolutely guaranteed.

Mr. Green is also the district agent for the well-known Brantford "Steel King" Windmill, many of which are now erected in and around Peterborough.

Mr. Green's business has increased nearly 20 per cent. this year. His rigs and men are continually on the road filling orders. He is very busy in his foundry and machine shop on McDonel street west, turning out castings, plough points, and other iron work. He also devotes special attention to repairs of agricultural implements, and has facilities for turning out good work.

Coughlin Monumental Works.

Brief reference was made in Wednesday's report to the exhibit made by the Coughlin Monumental Works, whose office and workshops are situated at No. 214 Hunter street west. This exhibit occupied quite a prominent position, directly inside the east entrance, and was continually surrounded by admiring crowds. The chief feature of this exhibit was a unique design of a monument carved out of American freestone, quarried in Bedford. The design is symmetrical, a broken tree, in which the rough bark, the knots, and the shape of the tree are all chiselled out in a very natural manner. From one knot is to be seen a scroll hung by a rope, for the inscription. The Coughlin firm also show samples of different granites from the most noted quarries in the world. They also display lithographed plates of handsome designs of headstones and monuments. This firm's business has lately been increasing at a rapid rate, so that they have to carry one of the largest assortments of granite designs of cemetery work in Central Ontario. They ship work out of town quite a distance, including New Ontario. At present they are offering very special inducements in granite monuments on account of having an extra large stock.

The remainder of the Prize List will be published to-morrow.

Light or no light, there will be an Auction Sale at Clarke & Gibson's Jewellery Store to-night and every morning, afternoon and evening till cleared out.

GRAVER THAN WAS THOUGHT.

Hon. J. Israel Tarte Suffering From Considerable Deafness From Accident

Montreal, Sept. 26.—The committee charged with the arrangements for the banquet to Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works, met yesterday, when the following letter was read:

To the President of the Chamber of Commerce:

Dear Sir,—The accident from which I suffered the other day in Quebec is much graver than I thought at first. I am suffering from considerable deafness in the left ear, and my medical attendant strongly recommends that I should take as much rest as possible for some time to come. I must, therefore, kindly request you to postpone to a later date the banquet which the commercial organisations of Montreal have been kind enough to tender to me, and which had been fixed for the Oct. 3 next. I need not tell you how much I regret this unfortunate circumstance. I beg to remain yours truly,

J. Israel Tarte.

The committee, after expressing how deeply they sympathized with the overworked Hon. Minister of Public Works, unanimously resolved to postpone to a date to be determined later on.

Shoemaker's Backache.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets a Positive Cure for This Complaint.

The constant bending over that of necessity a shoemaker must do when at work, comes hard on his back and hard on his kidneys. Backache and lame back are the great bugbears of a shoemaker's existence. That Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets can ease the aching back and cure the kidney trouble is amply proven in the following case:—

Mr. J. O'Shea, corner Main and Market streets, Lucan, Ont., the well-known shoemaker of that village, says:—"A shoemaker's work requires lots of sitting and leaning forward, and invariably, as in my case, in time brings on a pain in the small of the back and Kidney trouble. This has been my complaint for two or three years, and I was about tired of it. Some one told me about Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and I got a bottle at John Farrell's drug store. The taking of this one bottle was followed by complete relief. This is naturally a big lift to me in my work and I am correspondingly grateful. I can recommend the Tablets conscientiously to others."

If you are anxiously desirous of being cured insist on having Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. Price 50 cents a box, at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

Will Sail in a Breeze.

New York, Sept. 26.—Weather sharp, and yachting experts last night united in predicting that a breeze will blow to-day that will give the Shamrock and the Columbia a race which will be memorable in the long series of cup events. Only the betting shows the trend of opinion, and the prevailing odds are 10 to 8 on the American boat. Sir Thomas Lipton is, however, sanguine.

Poor Girl, Pity Her.

Growing! Yes, into weakness, but not strength. Studies — plenty of them. Tired, of course she is, and weak, too. Does not eat enough, and digests far less than enough. This condition is so frequent, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferrozone, and then watch her appetite improve, herr cheeks and lips grow ruddy, her step elastic, her spirits buoyant. All this simply the result of eating and digesting enough, making blood, and thereby strengthening the nerve and brain power. Ferrozone gives a woman's strength to weak girls. Your daughter or wife needs Ferrozone. Get it to-day from Ormond & Walsh.

DUKE'S REPLY TO CIVIC ADDRESS

Great Contrast Evident in the 41 Years Which Have Elapsed Since His Royal Father Visited the "Village Hamlet in a Solitude"—New University Buildings Opened

Winnipeg, Sept. 27.—Winnipeg yesterday participated in a demonstration unique in its history. Her citizens in tens of thousands lined the streets, and with enthusiastic loyalty cheered the future King and Queen of the British Empire. From the C. P. R. station to Government House, the procession was one continuous ovation. In the brilliant sunlight of a Manitoba autumn, with flags fluttering gaily from every staff, and bunting of the national colors, draped and festooned everywhere. The weather, upon which the success of an out-of-door demonstration depends in so great a degree, was all that could be desired.

The route of the procession was early crowded with pedestrians commenting on the decorations and marking the various stages of preparation for parade. By 11 o'clock everything was in readiness, and public expectation was high. Punctually on time the Vice-Regal train pulled in and His Honor and party awaited in the marquee the arrival of the Duke and Duchess, occupying the interval in being introduced to and chatting with the gentlemen having charge of the reception.

The arrival of the royal train was the signal for an outbreak of cheering from the thousands without the barriers; a cheer that was repeated and re-echoed all along the route. Winnipeggers know that royalty had entered their gates. The acclamations burst out afresh as the royal party drove to the City Hall, in front of which were formed the veterans of the Transvaal, who under other skies had worthily upheld Canadian valor and Imperial unity. These were presented with the medals they had won on African veldt and kopje, His Royal Highness saying a few words to each; words that will long be remembered and cherished by those to whom they were addressed.

The citizens of Winnipeg, through their civic officials, then presented a loyal address, to which His Royal Highness gave a simple and suitable reply, which among others contained these paragraphs:

"During the long and memorable journey to the extreme eastern and from thence to the far western limit of our vast Empire, we have seen everywhere many and varied proofs of its steady but certain progress, material and political, but I doubt whether in the whole course of that experience a more striking example is to be found than in the comparison of the Fort Garry of our childhood with the Winnipeg of to-day.

"Then, as you say, 'A village hamlet in a solitude,' broken only by the presence of 'the passing hunter and fur trader,' to-day the busy centre of what has become the great granary of the Empire, the political centre of an active and enterprising population in the full enjoyment of the privileges and institutions of British citizenship.

"I rejoice that we come amongst you at a time when we can join in the congratulations of your fellow subjects in a year of unprecedented prosperity which you are enjoying, and we pray that years to come may show no diminution of the prosperity or of that energy and determination which characterized the pioneers and settlers of the province."

The royal party then entered their carriages and drove to Government House, where they were entertained by His Honor and Mrs. McMillan. The same signs of affectionate loyalty that had characterized their progress to the City Hall followed them throughout the route, salvo after salvo of cheers and the waving of flags accompanying the whole way.

The Duke formally opened the university during the afternoon, the thousand children sang national airs, and altogether the event was one of the greatest interest. A member of the royal party said the display of the children was one of the finest features of the Duke's entire tour.

The dinner at Government House was a brilliant function. The route to the station for a mile and a half was a blaze of light, and 25,000 or 30,000 people cheered the royal couple for the entire distance. The illuminations were excellent, considering the short notice the citizens had to make preparation.

The royal party left for the west at 10.30. Their visit had given unwonted satisfaction. After the ceremony at the hall yesterday, of presenting medals, the Duke personally pinned on Col. Evans' breast his C. B. decoration. The Duke, at the University building, sat in a chair which his father had similarly occupied 41 years ago.

Victoria Is Ready.

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 27.—The British warships Amphion, Warspite, Condor, Phaeton, Sparrow Hawk, and two torpedo boats, will act as convoy to the steamer Empress of India, on which the Duke of Cornwall and York is coming to Victoria on Tuesday next. The ships are brilliantly decorated and illuminated. Elaborate preparations are being made here by the Dominion, provincial, civic, naval and military authorities for the reception.

The Prince of Wales.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Herald's London correspondent wires: I have just heard on most excellent authority that all the details in connection with the creation of the Duke of Cornwall and York as Prince of Wales are completed, and that the dignity will be conferred immediately on his return. It has always been anticipated that this would be the case, and I am now in a position to say it is an accomplished thing. By conferring the title of Prince of Wales upon the Duke of Cornwall and York after an interval following upon his own demission of the title, King Edward is strictly following precedent.

CZOLGOSZ SENTENCED.

Murderer of President McKinley to Die in Electric Chair in Week of 28th October Next.

Buffalo, Sept. 27.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, was yesterday afternoon sentenced to death in the electric chair in the week beginning Oct. 28.

To the question put by the clerk, "Have you any legal cause to show why sentence should not be pronounced against you?" the assassin replied: "I have nothing to say about that."

Turning to the prisoner, Judge Titus held a brief conference, then to the court counsel for the defendant, said:

"He says no other person had anything to do with it; and that no other person knew of his commission but himself. His father, or mother, or no one else, knew nothing about it."

The prisoner closed his lips, stared straight ahead of him, and awaited the court's pronouncement of his doom.

The sentence was brief.

"Czolgosz," said the court, "you have committed a grave crime against the State, and our Union in the assassination of our beloved President. After learning all the facts and circumstances in the case, 12 good men have pronounced you guilty of murder in the first degree. You say that no other person abetted you in the commission of this horrible act. The penalty is fixed by statute, and it becomes my duty to impose sentence upon you. The sentence of this court is that in the week beginning Oct. 28, at the place designed, and in the manner prescribed by law, you suffer the punishment of death."

LEON F. CZOLGOSZ.

Czolgosz stood erect, looking straight at the judge. He did not tremble, not a muscle quivered. As soon as the death sentence was finished he took his seat in the same indifferent manner that has characterized him throughout the trial. He was brought to his feet quickly by the officers at 2.20. They shackled him and led him away to the jail.

ACCEPTS THE CHALLENGE.

Shaffer Will Endeavor to Fix Responsibility for Failure of Strike.

Pittsburg, Sept. 27.—When President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers was shown the open letter issued Wednesday night by Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, in reply to his statement charging them with the responsibility for the failure of the great steel strike, he said he would accept their challenge, and was ready to submit to an investigation as to the truth of his charges.

"I desire to go to the root of this matter," said he, "and will select as my man, Simon Burns, president of the Knights of Labor, and the National Window Glass Association. Mr. Burns can choose a second man, and Gompers and Mitchell the third party."

Miss Stone, the American missionary, kidnapped by Bulgarian Brigands, is to be ransomed.

MILLIONS BEING EXPENDED

In Permanent Industries George M. Reid, of London, Talks About the Excursion to Algoma.

(From London Advertiser.)

Mr. George M. Reid, president of the Federation of Liberal Clubs of Ontario, and Col. Leys, M.P.P., have returned from the Liberal excursion to Sault Ste. Marie, and other places in New Ontario. Both gentlemen speak in the most enthusiastic terms about the great work of development that is going on there, and of the wonderful future that the northern country has. It is not possible, they say, for anyone to realize the magnitude of the work going on there without seeing it. To the Advertiser Mr. Reid said that what struck him most forcibly, next to its magnitude, was its permanency. Everything was being done in the most substantial way — buildings all made of stone, railroads of the best materials, everything solid. Everything with which Mr. Clergue was connected was done as though to last forever, thus proving that he was in the legitimate business, but engaged in a work that is justified by the limitless resources of the district. To use Mr. Reid's words, "No one who once visited that country saw what was going on, and realized how vast and rich the country was, would question the wisdom of the government's action in granting concessions by means of which it is being changed from a barren country into one that is a very hive of industry."

Mr. Reid first to Michipicoten. Mr. Reid said, "Here quite a fine town has sprung up. A large commercial dock has been built there, with wharves for merchant vessels, it has waterworks and electric light and telephone systems. We went from there to the Helen mine, about seven miles out. The railway is of the most substantial character. Everything is thoroughly up-to-date. Standard rails, steel cars of 50-ton capacity, and the finest Baldwin locomotives. At the mine the ore is shovelled into great pits, and is supplied by an automatic process. After being transferred to the cars it is run down to the ore dock at the harbor. The bottoms of the cars are opened and the ore drops into the ships without having been touched except by machinery from the time it came from the mine. The ore put in 2,500 tons a day, and 500 men are employed. They have quarters on a table-land near the mine, and the dining room there seats the whole staff at a time. All their cookery is done by steam. The Board costs $4 a week on the grounds, and they get it. The company owns more than all the land. They are draining a lake near the mine, and the water will be used for power purposes. It covers a large deposit of iron ore.

Besides the immense establishments that had previously been erected there, the party found at the Soo a splendid mill of solid stone just completed, a chemical plant nearly finished, and a steel plant that now has a capacity of 500 tons per day, and is contemplated to have a capacity of 2,000 tons per day. Before the party left the company expects to produce steel rails. At the present time the expenditure amounts to $2,000,000, and Clergue has contracts on hand to the amount of $3,000,000 more. It is estimated to cost

The story of the Soo and the great Algoma district is a good illustration, of the marvellous results that may be obtained when great natural advantages, unlimited wealth and trained brains are brought together. The first white man to visit the connecting link between the two upper lakes, saw that it possessed valuable latent powers, but for long, long years after that few people believed that the country roundabout had advantages sufficient to warrant outlay in developing that power. After the C. P. R. was built along the north shore the possibilities of the district were recognized, and canals were constructed on both sides of the river. The one on the American side, on which half a million dollars had been spent, proved a failure, and the people of the Canadian Soo, who had dropped $265,000 into the big ditch, dreaded that their money had also been ruthlessly invested. But then Clergue came, and paid the town all that had been spent for the canal, and from that day to this he has been resistlessly bringing the riches of the great Algoma district to the surface.

His first idea was to complete the canal, and that then manufacturers from all over the world would hasten there to use the power. When they didn't come, the company had to turn manufacturers themselves, to save the original investment. Clergue therefore began a careful examination of the country, and of this he has said, "There is opportunity for a population in Northern Ontario equal to that of Southern Ontario, equal in number, equal in prosperity." The vastness and variety of his enterprises are the natural results of a six years' period of evolution. A writer recently said of Clergue, "His horizon is one that expands with each new difficulty which he overcomes, and with the discovery of new resources in the old barren Algoma, which he now backs against the world." He has surrounded himself with a staff of young scientists, by whose aid he has discovered that the country possesses possibilities that are truly remarkable and he has proceeded to utilize each new discovery. He first engaged in the manufacture of wood pulp, and when the values of Canadian wood pulp were marked down he designed new machinery to convert the moist into dry product, and to do this built a foundry and machine shop at a cost of $125,000. Chemical pulp was even more valuable, so he looked about for the sulphur necessary to manufacture it, and found it at Sudbury. In that limit he found nickel enough to supply the world for 100,000 years. He devised a means of taking sulphur from the ore — something that had never been done before, and then erected an immense sulphite pulp mill. One of the by-products was an alloy of nickel and steel superior to any that has been known, and a great reduction plant and ferro-nickel works was built to utilize it in the production of armour plate and guns. The Sudbury ore was too rich in nickel content, so he prospected for iron and found it near at hand. He then erected blast furnaces and works for the manufacture of Bessemer steel. So he went on from one vast undertaking to another, and the end is not yet, each by-product found being the cause of further researches and more immense buildings. Necessarily, also, with the success of these enterprises came the construction of railways, the building of ships and the extension of the system of canals for greater supplies of power.

As has been said, all things that Clergue has done are of permanent value. He has changed a dead village into a rich town and made a barren country smile with prosperity. At the Soo is found the best illustration of the municipal efforts of the Ross Government's policy of progress in New Ontario. Millions upon millions of dollars have been planted there, and the crop, as seen already is a country of happy homes and rapidly developing resources.

NOTHING AS GOOD

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Everywhere and During Where Other Means Have Failed.

Every day the fact grown more apparent that there is no substitute for Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Nothing else is as good whether for Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Distress after Eating, Pain in the Stomach, Biliousness, Indigestion, or any other stomach disorder of the digestive system.

Every day letters come telling how other medicines and treatments were tried but everything failed, until a cure seemed beyond possibility and despair stared hope in the face. Such a case was that of Mr. William Boggs, proprietor of the well known Waverley House, Montreal.

Mr. Boggs was afflicted with Dyspepsia for many years, as so many hotel proprietors are. Now it is not to be supposed that a man in his position would, by exception, in medicine to be had for money to get cured! Mr. Boggs did everything—everything but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and everything failed. And then he tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They were his last resort. If they failed him too his case was hopeless. Did they fail him? Dr. Dodd's Dyspepsia usually fail? Read his testimonial:

"I have been troubled with Dyspepsia and indigestion for many years and until I used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, I could get nothing to help me. I tried all the treatments and cures on the markets in vain. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, however, have completely cured me, and I consider them worth fifty times the price asked."

Adjudged Guilty of Manslaughter.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 27.—John Rogers, a member of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion, was yesterday adjudged guilty of manslaughter by Justice Walker, on the charge that he caused the death of his two children by failing to provide them with medical treatment. The prisoner was remanded to jail, and today will be allowed out to appear for sentence when called upon, his furnishing bonds to the satisfaction of the Attorney-General. Rogers admitted that the teachings of Eugene Brooks, who is also charged with causing the death of the children, led him not to call in a doctor when his family were suffering from diphtheria. Brooks will not be tried until November 4.

SIFTON'S LIFE FIGHT

Dr. McNeil Believes the Death Was Accidental.

MARY M'FARLANE'S EVIDENCE.

Said That Gerald Sifton Had Offered Her $1,000 on Her Wedding Day, But the Offer Was Made While Father's Dead Body Was Lying in the House—Edgar Morden's Evidence.

London, Sept. 27.—The cross-examination of Dr. McNeill, the doctor who treated Joseph Sifton after his fatal accident and before death, was continued yesterday morning in the Sifton trial. He expressed the opinion that the death of the elder Sifton was accidental.

The court room and surroundings were again crowded, and the interest in the case in London is intense.

The complete evidence of Mary McFarlane, as given to Mr. Riddell, differed little from that given before. She told of her relations with Joseph Sifton and the early marriage, and the appearance of the man after the accident. She said that Gerald Sifton had offered her $1,000 on her wedding day, and promised that she should live with them until that time. To Mr. Johnston, however, she explained that this offer was made while Joseph Sifton was lying dead in the house, and she and all were crying.

Under the circumstances, and because she was treated as one of the family, and about to become a mother, she did not consider this very unreasonable. She was still undergoing examination when the court adjourned.

The Afternoon Session.

During the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Cooper, Methodist preacher at St. John's, a mile from the Sifton homestead, told the court that Gerald Sifton stated to him he had given Dr. McNeill, the coroner, $1,000 in notes not to hold an inquest on the body of his father. The funeral had been advertised to take place on Monday, and on the Sunday previous McNeill told him there was money in this thing for him, and that unless Gerald paid him $1,000 he would stop the funeral procession and order an inquest.

Sifton told the clergyman he was feeling very miserable; that he had suffered loss of sleep and was grieving over his father's death, and would not have had the scandal of an inquest for $1,000. So he reluctantly signed notes which McNeill drew up for two of $250 denomination and one for $500. He said he was going to take legal proceedings against the doctor, and the clergyman advised him to wait until he obtained a receipt for a part of the money.

Mary McFarlane and the mother were among the witnesses, and on the stand during the afternoon. Mary said Gerald told her he had a revolver to be used if Morden tried to put up a game on him. Mrs. McFarlane stated that on the morning of the tragedy, an hour before it occurred, she was at Gerald Sifton's. Gerald said he was going to the minister's to find out if the marriage had taken place, and, if it had not, he was going to put his father where he would not be married that day. When Gerald heard he was going to be arrested, he asked the witness not to tell of the threat he had made.

Next to the evidence of Walter Herbert, the confessed accomplice, the story of James Morden, as told in the witness box yesterday, was the most sensational in a trial noted for its many startling features. Morden is a respectable looking young farm laborer, and related his story in a manner that did not break down before Mr. Johnston's severest cross-examination.

He said that on the evening preceding the tragedy Gerald Sifton came to the place, a mile and three-quarters distant, from the prisoner's home, and said: "There is hell to pay at our place. The old man is going to marry Mary McFarlane. He drugged her and got her into trouble in such a way the law can't take hold of him. I will give you $1,000 to come with me and we will smash the old man on the head on the road and nobody on Christ's earth will know anything about it." Morden said he would do nothing of the kind.

Gerald then proposed that they should jump into the old man's house, choke him to death and hang him up in the barn, and say it was suicide. Morden did not go to warn the older Sifton, because if anything happened he would have been mixed up in it. He told Gerald not to do it; that he would be hung himself, or get an innocent man hung.

Ten days after the tragedy Gerald told the witness his father's body was going to be taken up. Gerald said that was not bothering him, that decomposition had set in and they could not tell anything. He said they could not scare anything out of Walter Herbert either.

FAIR PRESIDENT KILLED.

Charles Lawrence of Collingwood Meets With Instant Death.

CollingWood, Sept. 27.— Charles Lawrence, president of the Great Northern Exhibition, also president of the West Simcoe Farmers' Association, and a highly respected farmer and breeder of high class stock, met with a fatal accident while leaving the exhibition grounds at 11.30 last night. His horse taking fright at a hand organ which was passing at the time, threw him from his buggy against a tree, breaking his neck and fracturing the skull. Death was instantaneous.

HAS KITCHENER RESIGNED?

London Paper Says He Has Owing to Disagreements With Brodrick.

London, Sept. 27.—The Daily News publishes an unconfirmed rumor that Lord Kitchener has resigned the post of commander-in-chief in South Africa, owing to disagreements with Mr. Brodrick, the War Secretary.

The Boer Trek to Mexico.

New York, Sept. 27.—A trek to Mexico is contemplated by the Boers, according to a cable despatch from London to The World, which says:

"Part of the land is the Floreshale's estate, a concession from the Government of Mexico to certain financiers, one of whom is a member of the House of Commons. The purchase price has been set down at $2,500,000, which will buy 20,000,000 acres, this being the aggregate of two concessions now in the hands of syndicates. The smaller of the two estates comprises 5,000,000 acres.

"This land has seaboard of 200 miles, and will thus offer shipping facilities, which were denied to the Boers in South Africa, and which they so much desired."

Concentration Campers.

London, Sept. 27.—The official return just issued shows that the South African concentration camps in August contained 137,619 persons. The deaths numbered 2,845, of which number 1,878 were children.

An Ideal Ready-made Food.

Prof. Naumann, a most eminent authority on chemical and medical questions, says that cod liver oil is almost an ideal ready-made food. He says it is easy to digest, easily makes fat, and is also a medicine. Scott's Emulsion contains this oil so prepared that it is not at all unpleasant.

Spain has followed up her threat to Morocco by promptly despatching warships to Tangier.

KITCHENER IS FIRM

He Has Put His Banishment Proclamation Into Effect.

TEN BOER LEADERS SENT AWAY.

Kruger Has Reports Estimating the Number of Rebels in the Field at 15,000—A Probably Exaggerated Number—No Money Is Needed—Sufficient on Hand Yet to Finance the War.

Pretoria, Sept. 25.—Ten Boer leaders who have been captured since Sept. 15 have been permanently banished from South Africa.

KRUGER'S REPORTS.

15,000 Rebels in the Field Probably an Exaggerated Number.

London, Sept. 26.—Mr. Kruger has received reports estimating the rebels in the field at 15,000. Probably this is a greatly exaggerated number, but the Boers are still getting many recruits in Cape Colony. Burghers are said to be contemplating a trek to Mexico, where a vast area of country is open to them for a small cash payment.

No Money Needed.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is now believed to have enough money in hand to carry on the war at the present rate of expenditure until the end of January.

Sergt. Wood Sick.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—Sergt. John Trustlove Wood of the Canadian Scouts is dangerously ill of enteric fever at Pretoria, so states a cablegram received by the Governor-General from the Casualty Department at Cape Town, dated Sept. 22. Wood went out to South Africa with the Royal Canadian Dragoons, having enlisted in Winnipeg. When the Dragoons came home he stayed behind and joined the Canadian Scouts. His next of kin is Mrs. A. Wood, Rannoch, Perth County, Ont.

CHEERED BY THE WAY.

Royal Party Enthusiastically Greeted at Various Points Along the Line En Route to Winnipeg, Man.

Fort William, Sept. 26.—The special train bearing the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and their traveling companions westward to British Columbia spent yesterday on the rugged north shore of Lake Superior, and by night had put Fort William and the lake behind them, and were speeding on towards Manitoba.

The day's run was for the most part through long stretches of unsettled country, but at all the widely separated towns and villages the people gathered to offer their cheers and welcome to the royal party. There were lumbermen, hunters and miners and some Indians in the little crowds, and the welcome was always a hearty one. The railway stations were all decorated, and each little settlement had a display of flags and bunting. The largest crowd was gathered at Chapleau, which was passed at daylight, and far to the westward, after night had come, the people were still gathered about the stations as the train swept past.

The Royal train stopped for an hour at Polko to allow the party to dress, and the Duke left his car for a brisk walk. Both the Duke and Duchess took a lively interest in the country through which they passed, and greatly enjoyed the beautiful, wild, rugged scenery. They were particularly interested in the sixty-mile run along the ledges and promonitories on the lake shore from Heron Bay to Jackfish Bay.

The lake was constantly in sight, and the views along the rock-rimmed coast were a succession of impressive pictures. The earlier hours of the day were bright, but in mid-afternoon it began raining and the temperature fell to chilliness.

The Duke and Duchess will reach Winnipeg at noon to-day, and an alteration in plans, which will extend their stay, was made yesterday. They had intended to leave there late in the afternoon, but have now decided to remain for dinner at Government House, and will not resume their journey until late to-night.

Some of the time will be made up west of Winnipeg, but it is probable that there will have to be a slight re-arrangement of the western schedule.

Poor Girl, Pity Her.

Growing! Yes, into weakness, but not strength. Studies — plenty of them. Tired, of course she is, and weak, too. Does not eat enough, and digests far less than enough. This condition is so frequent, but how seldom noticed even by food parents. Give her Ferrozone, and then watch her appetite improve, herr cheaks and lips grow ruddy, her step elastic, her spirits buoyant. All this simply the result of eating and digesting enough, making blood, and thereby strengthening the nerve and brain power. Ferrozone gives a woman's strength to weak girls. Your daughter or wife needs Ferrozone. Get it to-day from Ormond & Walsh.

The Crops in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—A report issued by the Minister of Finance, M. Dewitte, shows that the winter grain crop in the southwestern provinces is excellent, and that it is above the medium in Northern Caucasus and Finland. The winter crop is only mediocre in Southeastern Russia and in the Volga Provinces. The spring grain crop is everywhere worse than winter crop on account of the drought.

Fac-Similis of Genuine.

THE ANATOMY OF THE STOMACH

The stomach is the principal, although not the only, organ of digestion. It is about 12 inches long and four inches in diameter at the largest end. It is shaped like a pear, with large end and entrance to the left, and the small end and exit to the right. In the stomach all solid foods are dissolved, and made ready to be mixed with the bile and pancreatic juices in the second stomach and bowels. If the food is not dissolved in the stomach, it is not dissolved at all, but passes entirely through the system without in any way enriching the body.

Hence the importance of a healthy stomach. The principle trouble is weakness of the muscles of which the stomach is composed, and lack of sensitiveness to the nerves which cause the gastric or food dissolving juices to flow. Two principal features are thus demanded of a stomach remedy. Merrill's System Tonic embodies these features exactly. It tones the muscles and enriches and restores the nerves; not in a transitory, but in a lasting manner. Take it when sour eructation, heartburn, gas on the stomach, pains in the stomach, sense of heaviness in the stomach and a general unpleasant feeling, indicate that your stomach is out of condition. You'll be delighted with the results and pleased to find that you can eat a hearty meal and enjoy it.

A SOCIAL NIGHT.

For Men at the Y.M.C.A. Last Evening Was Very Successful.

There was something of an unusual character took place at the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. last evening, which took the form of a "Social Night," and only those who were present will be able to speak intelligently of what took place. The reception rooms were very beautifully decorated with cut flowers and flags, so kindly donated by friends of the Association.

The programme was certainly unique. To arouse the proper spirit of the young men, a basket-ball match was played between teams chosen by Messrs. R. Harding and W. Robinson, of the Canadian General Electric Co. It was understood that each player should be entirely ignorant of the game, and the referee, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, was still less informed as to the ruling of the game. However, he said that there would be only two rules which he would enforce,—"What we have we'll hold," and "Self preservation, the first law of nature." These did seem to be the sole object of each player to uphold, and the agility and skill displayed by all the men reminded one of the Grecian games of which we have so often read. At the completion of the game the referee claimed he had witnessed a beautiful combination of Canada's national games.

On retiring to the reception parlour, were groups here and there with attentive ears to the phonographic selections from the instrument owned by Mr. A. C. McCallum. This was alternated by banjo selections by Mr. Henderson, and solos by Messrs. Legg, Teft, Maguire and Watson. After refreshments were served, the party of about 100 men disbanded, with nothing but goods words for the pleasant evening spent. The committee in charge are to be congratulated for the success of the evening. They wish also to thank the ladies of the town for their kind assistance.

MR. MOSS HAS RESIGNED

His Position as Superintendent of the Nassau Works.

Mr. W. M. Moss, who has held the position of superintendent of the work at Nassau, which is being done by the Canadian General Electric Company, has resigned, and is succeeded by Mr. W. W. Wood, of Ottawa. Mr. Wood comes to Peterborough highly spoken of as a citizen, and will no doubt push the construction work ahead with much vigor.

LET THERE BE LIGHT.

To the Editor of the Examiner;

Dear sir,—I am informed that the accident at the works of the Light & Power Company will deprive the town of electric light for a week longer. This is exceedingly unfortunate, and will be a great inconvenience to our citizens who depend upon electric light and to those citizens who have need to use our streets at night. Isn't there some way to tide over the difficulty or provide us with light in the meantime? We were assured a few days ago, over the signatures of the Presidents of the Light & Power and Power Companies respectively, that they had abundance of power for sale for manufacturing purposes. If this is so, why cannot the Auburn Company be neighbourly and lend the Light Company enough of its surplus electricity to furnish light while repairs are being made? We all know when the Examiner premises were destroyed by fire the Review, an opposing establishment in the way of business, came to the rescue and helped the Examiner continue its business and keep its engagements with its patrons. This is what we would expect in a Christian community. Why can't the power companies do the same? The Auburn Company does its own lighting, and if, as asserted, it has surplus electricity to spare, it would be a great convenience to the public if it were converted into a form to make it available for the use of the Light Company. The failure of the latter company to provide auxiliary steam power for use in case of accident, would thereby be largely neutralized. Can't something be done to shorten the revived life of the tallow-dip, and meet the demand of the public—"Let there be light?"

Yours truly,
Fiat Lux.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH HARVEST FESTIVAL

Passed off Most Successfully Last Night.

Rev. R. Seaborn Preached the Special Sermon—The Attendance was Quite Large.

The annual harvest festival of St. John's church was held last night, and proved most successful, in spite of the unexpected difficulty of the lack of light. The body of the church was fortunately lighted by gas, and impromptu means had to be resorted to in the chancel.

The church was beautifully decorated with all kinds of harvest products, and several new effects were introduced this year. The musical part of the service was arranged on a scale never before attempted in St. John's. Choir Master Glidden was supported by an excellent volunteer orchestra which opened the service with solemnizing effect. The orchestra also accompanied the hymns. The choir, which has been practicing for this occasion for the past two months did splendid work in spite of lack of sufficient light. The well known harvest hymns were sung with stirring effect by the large congregation present, led by the choir and orchestra.

The sermon was preached by Rev. R. C. Seaborn, of Bowmanville, who took as his text the parable of the rich fool, St. Luke xii .17

The preacher said that the modern estimate of the man thus pictured by our Lord would be that of a shrewd business man, who made proper arrangements for the future. The Lord's estimate, however, of this same man was clearly stated; he was a fool. The preacher went on to show the reason for the difference between this human opinion and divine judgment, and to urge his hearers so to frame their lives so they might not be a failure in the sight of God. We were called upon to attend to our worldly business and family duties faithfully and well, and we should also make proper provision for the future, but these things should not take all our time, and should not have the first place. Every man and woman had a divine mission in life, on the carrying out of which the true success of life depended. The man who is merely a successful working machine without accomplishing life's higher purpose, is a failure.

Mr. Seaborn concluded by pointing out that no man lived to himself. Nations, churches and individuals all had God-given duties to others, and on their performance, true success hinged.

The offertory, which was a liberal one, was donated to the building of a church at Young's Point, the Rector remarking that a thanksgiving service was one in which every one should unite to give freely for others, and this, as a matter of fact, was done by the choir, orchestra, congregation, and those who contributed the grain, vegetables, flowers, etc., in this church.

The special music will be repeated on Sunday, both morning and evening.

CHARGES DISMISSED.

Both Doig and Stevenson Clear Their Skirts of Complicity in the Wire Stealing Case.

Yesterday in the County Judge's Criminal Court, David Doig was charged with stealing a quantity of copper wire from the Canadian General Electric Company, and also with receiving a quantity of copper wire knowing the same to have been stolen.

The evidence of Robert Smith, the principal witness for the prosecution, showed that he had had three transactions with Doig, that he had in the first place gone to Doig, and told him that he was about to steal wire from the Canadian General Company, and asked him if he would buy if he he did the stealing. His evidence further was that Doig has purchased separate parcels of wire from him on three different occasions. There was no person present at any of the transactions except the last one, at which time he said that a man named Corrigan was present, but Corrigan was not available in the case to give evidence.

The evidence of this witness was very unsatisfactory, and no credence was placed upon it by either the Court or any of the spectators. In cross-examination, he admitted that he was a persistent liar, that he was a thief, and had been for some time, and that inducements had been offered him to give evidence against the prisoner.

The evidence of Chief Roszel was also taken as also that of Constable Adams, in which they stated that Doig had told them that he bought no wire from anyone except in the regular course of his business.

The evidence of George Dainty merely stated that he had met the witness, Smith, on one occasion about 12 o'clock at night, but neither Doig nor any other person was present.

The Judge dismissed the charge on the ground that the evidence of Smith required corroboration, and there was no corroborative evidence whatever.

Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution and Mr. W. A. Stratton, K.C., for the defence.

A similar charge which had been laid against C. W. Stevenson was considered in the same light by Judge Weller, and was also dismissed.

Mr. E. B. Stone represented Stevenson in the case.

NO LIGHT FOR A WEEK.

Citizens Will Have to Depend on Gas and Lamps.

"There may be no electric light for a week!"

This was the statement made by Mr. Scott this morning when asked if the raceway would be fit to use to-night.

It seems that besides the damage done to the bank of the raceway, where the piers are undermined, that the power house itself is not any too strong in the places where trouble occurred in the spring.

As general repairs will now take place, there will be no light this week and probably not for the greater part of next.

Lamp vendors should do a good trade for a few days.

SOMETHING EXPLODED.

A Lad on Cedar Street has a Painful Accident.

It has been quite the custom of late for small boys to build bonfires at the side of the road on the various streets outside the business limits of the town. Leaves and other debris are used as fuel. It was while thus engaged on Cedar street that Fred Dunnett met with a very painful accident on Wednesday evening last. A loaded cartridge which was amongst the debris exploded in the fire with serious result. Young Dunnett was struck in several places by flying bits of brass from the cartridge. Dr. McClellan, who attended him, took three pieces of brass out of the boy's leg, and he is now progressing as favourably as might be expected.

THE BOARD OF TRADE

Members Discuss the Question of Power.

MANY VIEWS EXPRESSED.

Several Resolutions Adopted in Connection With the Matter—A Lively Discussion.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held last night, being especially called to consider the question of leasing the water power on the Otonabee River from the government for municipal purposes.

The meeting though not particularly well attended was decidedly interesting and sometimes of a rather exciting character, the main object of the meeting being at times lost sight of in the exchange of personalities.

The chair was occupied by Mr. D. W. Dumble, president of the Board of Trade. There were also in attendance Messrs. James Kendry, M. P., Mayor Denne, Jas. Stevenson, R. M. Dennistoun, T. E. Bradburn, J. H. Burnham, R. C. McHarrie, W. H. Meldrum, T. F. Matthews, Adam Hall, G. K. Martin, Wm. Rudkins, J. B. McWilliams, Chas. Stanley, F. J. Jamison, George Ball, A. L. Davis, Jos. Batten, J. A. Culverwell, T. Q. Quartermain and others.

In opening the discussion the chairman stated that he had called the meeting at the request of a large number of citizens who seemed to consider that it was proper and right for the Board of Trade to have and express an opinion on behalf of the citizens at large, in regard to the water powers on the Otonabee river. He said that he understood that some time ago the town applied to the government for the water power of dam No. 5, although the application on behalf of the town was then declined, it seemed that the rights were now to be granted to a private company. He did not wish to say as to whether this was right or wise, and had called the meeting to consider the whole question involved. Of one thing he was sure, that the interests of the town were bound up in the future use of these water powers, and whether they should be developed by the government and given free to the municipality, or whether they should be developed by the municipality for the use of factories in the town, or whether the rights should be conceded to private individuals, were matters for the meeting to discuss. He considered that if the matter was properly dealt with there would soon be a demand in Peterborough not only for the power of No. 5 dam, but of the other dams on the river, and also the power of the Burleigh water fall. His view was that in the future all these various powers would be required in the development of the manufacturing industries of the town. He hoped that the gentlemen present would consider the matter without regard to any personal interests involved in the present ownership of light and power plants of the town, and act solely in the interests of the town of Peterborough as a whole.

The secretary read a letter from the Rev. J. C. Davidson in which he stated his regret that owing to the harvest festival at his church he was unable to be present at the meeting and strongly recommended that the question of municipal ownership should be favourably considered at the meeting, as he was convinced that this was the only proper solution for this and similar matters.

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion and after some little delay Mr. J. H. Burnham arose to discuss the question. He argued against any discussion of the matter from a sectional stand point and pleaded that the interests of the community as a whole should be regarded as superior to the interests of any party of men in the town. He referred to the fact that light, water and at last air were being monopolized by speculators for their selfish benefit, and stated that the present tendency, both in the older and civilized countries, was to circumscribe the power of monopolists. His speech in the main was a strong advocacy of municipal ownership. Referring to the Otonabee Power Co., and the Cereal Co., he considered that it was desirable in the public interests that they should be allowed to develop power, as they were doing, for certain specific manufacturing purposes, whereas the Burleigh Falls Power Co. only seemed to exist for the locking up of power until such time as the imperative needs of the people enabled them to sell it at a high figure. He agreed with the chairman's remarks on the paramount importance of the whole question to Peterborough, and hoped that speculation in such powers would not be permitted by the Government. He concluded by moving the following resolution:

"That the Government of the Dominion and of the Province be memorialized by the Board of Trade and by the Municipal Councils, regarding the public ownership of water powers for public and general use."

MR. GEORGE BALL.

Mr. George Ball, on rising to second the resolution, spoke strongly of the municipal ownership of all public franchises, and presented to the meeting a copy of a memorial from the Federation of Labour in town addressed to the Government at Ottawa, disapproving of the lease to the Otonabee Power Co.

MR. JAS. STEVENSON.

Ex-Mayor Jas. Stevenson, did not consider Mr. Burnham's motion as at all definite, and did not see what good it was. He stated that the late Conservative Government had given a lease of the power of No. 5 dam to him for a company in town at $1,500 a year, but that this lease had been cancelled by the present Government when they took office on the ground that the rate was too low. He wanted to see the power developed in the interests of the town. He hoped that the parties applying for it would get it, and considered that the Government should let all the power on the river to any parties who would develop and utilize it.

MR. GEO. K. MARTIN.

Mr. George K. Martin pointed out that the meeting seemed to lose sight of the fact that the powers on the river did not belong to Peterborough, but were strictly national property, and were the assets of the whole community. The dams had not been constructed by Peterborough money solely, and the Government occupied the position of trustees for the whole of the taxpayers of the Dominion. He considered that the Government should make the best bargain possible for the people as a whole, of course having regard to the fact that the proximity of Peterborough gave it a considerable interest and voice in the matter. He did not think any Government could properly engage in the business of developing and supplying electric power, as it would shortly lead to the favouring of their own political friends, and while in the abstract he was in favour of the municipalization of public franchises, he considered that the developing of power from dam No.5 was a somewhat speculative matter, in which it was not in the interests of a town like Peterborough to embark. He argued that it would be much better for the Government to make the best bargain it could for the existing powers with men who would treat the whole matter on a commercial basis. Competition would do the rest.

MR. KENDRY, M.P.

Mr. James Kendry, M.P., commenced his remarks by protesting against what he considered was the assumption of the chairman that he alone was interested in the welfare of Peterborough. Dealing with the question under discussion, he expressed the opinion that the Government had no right to sell the water power on the Otonabee river at a price which would damage the interests of those already engaged in the development of electric power in the town. If the Government desired to do this they should buy out and take over the concerns already engaged in the business. He had no objection to the leasing of the water powers at a fair rental, as he agreed with the previous speakers that every horse power that could be developed would be ultimately required by factories in this vicinity. THE LAST DAY OF THE FAIR.

Directors not Discouraged by Small Attendance.

THEY HOPE TO DO BETTER.

When Interest is not so Much Centred in the Visit of the Vice-Regal Party and the Pan-American.

The seventeenth annual Exhibition of the Peterborough Central Agricultural Society closed yesterday afternoon and whilst the entries were quite satisfactory as to numbers and quality, the attendance was not up to the mark it should have been in view of the exceptional degree of energy put forth by the directors and officers to make it a success, and in view of the additional fact that more appropriate weather for an exhibition could not have been wished for. The management of the Peterborough Central is not discouraged, for there are various reasons that may be attributed to the smallness of the attendance, particularly on the part of the townspeople. Exhibitions of the same nature have so far this season proved to be running likewise in hard luck. The Toronto Industrial, the Ottawa Central, the Kingston Fair and other places have had the same story to tell, and the opinion is universal that the Pan-American which is still on, and the excitement in anticipation of the visit of the vice-regal party party to nearby points throughout Ontario, has had a telling effect upon the old time fairs of former years. Such big affairs make the less pretentious events, as for instance an agricultural exhibition, take the form of a passing side show. This state of affairs will last only for this season it is earnestly hoped and the rural and city population will once more revert to its normal condition. The directors of the Peterborough Central and other such societies that have suffered from the limited attendance, may feel assured that their efforts another year will be crowned with success. But it must be distinctly understood that the Peterborough Central was a success in every particular save attendance, and those who were present feel well satisfied with what they saw.

There were no entries for the green trot and of course there was no race. However, the drawing contest proved very interesting. The teams taking part in the same were supposed to draw as much as they could on a stoneboat loaded with pig iron. Mr. John Deyell's team moved the cargo 18 feet 10 inches, Michal O'Brien's team went 16 feet 4 inches and John McManus' of Millbrook 6 feet 3 inches.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce Special brought out quite a few entries and the handsome silver medal similar to those presented by the bank on former occasions went to H. P. Kennedy for having the best gentleman's road horse shown in buggy.

NOTES.

Dr. Willoughby, Ex-M.P.P., was once more a judge on horses. The Dr. is one of the Peterborough Central's most competent judges and has been for years past.

A piano was used to good advantage on the platform yesterday afternoon and the singing was done to a piano accompaniment.

The Secretary's office was most complete. It had telephone service up town.

Superintendent Capt. G. W. Bennett made himself very obliging and useful throughout the three days.

The candy and pea-nut men did not reap a very big harvest.

AN ADDRESS

Which was Presented to Miss Lena Martyn Last Night.

The young ladies of the insulating department of the Canadian General Electric Company, surprised Miss Lena Martyn in her home at No. 19 Crescent street last evening, when they presented her with a handsome gold chain, and read the following address:—

Miss Lena Martyn, Peterborough.

Dear Lena,—It is with anything but pleasure that we have heard of your intended departure from our town, and from our midst, to make new friends and acquaintances abroad. Indeed you leave a vacant place which will not soon be filled by another.

You have for a long time been a warm and constant friend to us all, and your pleasant face and kindly bearing will long be remembered and cherished when you have ceased to appear among us.

Others have come and gone and been forgotten. Their places have been filled by others, and now we are forced to believe that you are to leave us.

We can only wish you every success and happiness in your new position, that your thoughts may often revert to the happy days we spent together.

We beg you to accept this chain as a slight intimation of our regard for you and of the high esteem in which you are held by us.

And once more wishing you a prosperous future, we will say, Good-bye.

Signed on behalf of the girls in the Insulating Department.

SHIP "HARD AGROUND"

A distressing skin disease had well nigh wrecked his good ship "Health," but Dr. Agnew's Ointment came to the rescue and it's timely aid relieved the distress and brought him safe to land.

C. H. Howard, a prominent steamboat man, of Rangeley, Maine, writes:—"Enclosed find thirty-five cents for a box of Dr. Agnew's Ointment. I bought a box in Portland recently for a distressing case of skin disease, and it did me so much good that I want to try another box. It is the only remedy that has ever given me any relief and I believe it will cure me" 35 cts. 31

Canadian Pilot Blamed.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—Vice-Admiral Bedford has communicated with the Harbor Commissioners regarding the accident to H.M.S. Indefatigable while under the charge of Pilot Poulle, on her way up the St. Lawrence River last week, informing the board that a court which investigated the affair found that the accident was due to a grave error of judgment on the part of the pilot.

Diseased Kidneys

Results From Exposure to Cold and Dampness or Injury of the Back—A Wonderfully Successful Home Treatment is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Though among the most painful and fatal of diseases, derangements of the kidneys are indicated by such marked symptoms that it is not necessary for anyone to be in doubt as to their ailment. Increasing weakness, debility and loss of weight; dull, heavy pains in the back, over the kidneys; frequent and pressing desire to urinate; scanty, highly-coloured urine; quick pulse; dry, harsh skin; constipation and diarrhoea alternating; nausea and stomach troubles and dropsical swellings, are the indications of kidney disease.

As the most frequent cause of kidney disease is exposure to cold and dampness or straining of the back and kidneys, it is especially common among workingmen, teamsters, railroaders and farmers. Kidney disease is also the result of constipation, and is found to prevail among men and women of sedentary habits and those accustomed to irregular hours, highly-seasoned foods and alcoholic liquors.

Mr. James Dellihunt, a most respected resident of Consecon, Ont., states:—"I was a sufferer from Bright's Disease for several years, and at times the tortures of mind and body were almost beyond endurance. The pains were in my head, between the shoulders and down the whole spine, concentrating across the kidneys, where I was never entirely free from pain. When I got up in the morning I went about bent over nearly double. It gave me great pain to urinate, and at times the water was very scanty. Medicines seemed to have little or no effect in my case, until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The first dose relieved me, and five boxes entirely cured me. I have no pains in my kidneys, and can do as good a day's work as I ever could."

Mr. J. J. Ward, J. P., of Consecon, certifies that he knows Mr. Dellihunt's statement of his cure to be correct and true and without exaggeration. It seems Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills owe much of their success to the fact that they have a direct and combined action on both the kidneys and liver, and so thoroughly rid the system of complicated diseases of these filtering organs. There is no longer any doubt as to the remarkable virtue of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In Canada alone last year there were sold over one hundred and ninety thousand boxes of this great kidney medicine; one pill a dose; 25c. a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

RAIL SHOOTING.

Sport With Which Canadian Gunners Are Tolerably Unfamiliar.

From late spring to early fall every marsh in Southern Ontario is literally alive with rails, chiefly soras; nevertheless rail shooting is a sport with which Canadian gunners are, I fancy, tolerably unfamiliar, says Ravenspur in Toronto Star. Rails are such retiring creatures that the ordinary gunner seldom sees them. They seldom fly, and when started they press their narrow, slab-like bodies between the reeds and run swiftly and silently away. Besides this the more desirable wild duck is usually to be found wherever there are rails, and for these reasons, and others, few Canadian gunners bother much with the latter. Yet they are game birds, afford fair sport, and taste well on toast or in a pie. Of the several species found in Canada the little yellow rail is exceedingly rare. Next in size comes the sora, which literally swarms in the marshes at certain seasons. The Virginia rail is larger than the sora and scarcer, and the king rail is the largest of all, and is fairly common in Western Ontario marshes. They all breed where they live—in the marshes. I have found the nests of the king rail and the sora, never of the other two, saucer-shaped structures, hidden among the reeds and placed a few inches above the water. Farther south rail shooting is quite a popular sport. There the usual practice is for the gunner to sit in the bow of the boat while the man in the stern poles the craft through the reeds. When rails are flushed they rise just above the tops of the reeds, fly a dozen yards or so in a straight line, with their long legs dangling loosely below them, then they drop suddenly between the grass tops again and run silently away. While flying they are not hard to shoot, and down South rail shooters often make big bags. I never killed more than a dozen in any single evening. My mode of procedure was doubtless slightly unorthodox, because I shot rails as I shot most of my other game — alone, save for the companionship of an English setter. My method was to paddle up to the marsh and then put the dog out and let him splash about and flush the birds. Soras are, I dare say, still plentiful in Sarnia Bay, but the king rails were frightened away years ago by the snorting iron horse. A peculiarity of the rails is that the approach of rain makes them noisy, and it gives you a weird feeling sometimes to be apparently alone in a marsh with several thousand soras about you, all invisible, but all cackling like mad. Another peculiarity of these very peculiar birds is that the first touch of frost drives them south. You may find a marsh literally alive with them one day and deserted the next if a frost has intervened. Mysterious little creatures! They are weak fliers, and not being web-footed are not swift swimmers. How they manage to vanish so completely and so suddenly, nay, more, how they manage to make the long journey to the far South, are puzzles naturalists have not yet been able to solve.

Imitations

of Dodd's Kidney Pills are legion. The box is imitated, the outside coating and shape of the pills are imitated and the name—Dodd's Kidney Pills is imitated. Imitations are dangerous. The original is safe. Dodd's Kidney Pills have a reputation. Imitators have none or they wouldn't imitate. So they trade on the reputation of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Do not be deceived. There is only one DODD'S. Dodd's is the original. Dodd's is the name to be careful about—

THE CASTLE OF CRONBERG.

Princess Frederick Carl of Hesse and Her Castle of Friedrichshof.

Princess Frederick Carl of Hesse, to whom the Empress Frederick bequeathed the beautiful castle of Friedrichshof at Cronberg, is the fifth and youngest child of the late Dowager Empress, and was her favorite during the last few years of her life. The Empress gave the name of Margarethe to the little princess, who was born on April 22,

PRINCESS FREDERICK CARL OF HESSE.

1872, and who was married to Prince Frederick of Hesse on Jan. 25, 1893. The castle at Cronberg is one of the finest country seats possessed by the royalty of Europe. It is a spacious and sumptuously furnished palace, surrounded by a magnificent park, set in some of the most romantic country scenery in Germany. The place was greatly loved by its recent occupant, who spent upward of $1,000,000 in improving the house and grounds.

Imitative Instinct Play.

Wordsworth's lines of a child at play, "as if his whole vocation were endless imitation," were recently recalled by a conversation overhead in the children's ward at a provincial hospital.

A little girl whose role was that of nurse rang an imaginary telephone on the wall to talk to her companion at the farther end of the room, who played the part of doctor.

"Hello!" said the nurse. "Is that the doctor?"

"Yes," answered her companion in a deep voice. "This is the doctor."

"This lady is very ill," he was informed.

"Well, what seems to be the matter?"

"She has swallowed a whole bottle of ink," said the nurse.

The doctor, not flurried, inquired what had been done for the patient, but the nurse, too, was ready in emergencies.

She answered, "I gave her two pads of blotting paper!"

Doctors not seldom give up a case, but a mother never does. While life lasts, while there is a spark of vitality which love's labor may fan into a flame, she toils untiringly for the child she brought into the world. And sometimes where the doctors fail the mother succeeds. She has no prejudices. Any means she will use which will save her child.

The mother's prescription given below is a case in point. Her daughter was given up by physicians as suffering from an incurable disease, called "wasting of the digestive organs." The mother prescribed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and "Favorite Prescription," and had the happiness of seeing her daughter restored to perfect health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a nerve-nourishing, flesh-forming medicine—making new blood and new life.

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is a true temperance medicine.

"My sister (of Arlington, Washington Co., Nebr.,) was taken very sick and had several doctors," writes Mrs. C. L. Harrison, of Elk City, Douglas Co., Nebr. "They could not do her any good, and told my mother they would not come any more, as no doctor could help her, that she could not get well. She had 'wasting of the digestive organs.' My mother said to my sister: 'Well, I almost know that Dr. Pierce's medicines will cure her.' So she bought six bottles—three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' three of 'Favorite Prescription,' and some of the 'Pellets;' and now my sister is a well woman.

"We thank you for your medicine."

The Story of a Stolen Watch and Its Timely Recovery.

Writers of fiction, no matter how sensational, are obliged to avoid working into their stories any situation that appears improbable. Writers of facts are not thus handicapped. The following is a narration of an occurrence that, wonderful and improbable as it may seem, nevertheless happened in this city.

One of the large pawnbrokerage houses engages an expert accountant to go over its books once a month. This accountant, who lives in Brooklyn, went to the pawnbroker's office direct from his home recently to go over the concern's books. He reached the Bowery on a car and walked the rest of the way, stopping once on the road. When he got to the office, instead of passing through the private hall he went through the store, where the loans are made. As he was entering the shop he was almost knocked down by a young man who rushed out through the swinging doors. Inside he saw one of the clerks laughing and holding something in his hand.

"What is the matter?" he asked.

"Why, that fellow who just rushed out so wildly brought this watch and wanted $10 on it. He said he had bought it for $40. It is a $250 watch, so I thought he had stolen it, and I told him to wait a minute and I would call up the police and find out where he got it for that money. You see how he waited." And he laughed again.

"Let me see it," said the accountant.

The watch was a gold repeater and stop watch. So soon as the accountant cast his eyes on the timepiece he put his hand in his pocket where he usually carries his watch. It was empty.

"That's my watch," he said, and, opening the case of the back of the watch, he showed an inscription which his father had engraved there when he presented it to him. The thief had stolen it from him while he was in the car and had reached the pawnbroker's only a few minutes before him and before he himself had discovered his loss.

Long Life is Inherited.

This statement you can prove by investigation. When a person whose ancestors had long lives dies in middle age you can in nine cases out of ten trace the cause to disordered kidneys and consequent suffering from Bright's disease, rheumatism, fatty heart or dropsy. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prevent and cure these fatal and painful disease as no other preparation was ever known to do. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

Not Wholly Lost.

'Tis better to have loved and received allmony than never to have loved at all.

Her Secret.

This is the age of woman,
At least so women say,
But just the same a woman
Doesn't give it away.

Her Dog.

Probably the man whose wife owns a pug dog has the sympathy of the dog.

Entomological.

The fly has rare good health, I wot;
His appetite is prime.
The dinner bell may ring or not;
He's always there on time.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355.92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

Mr. Kendry's remarks were of a personal character in reference to the chairman's holding property in the town.

Mr. Charles Stanley strongly supported municipal ownership, instancing as an example the Toronto Street Ry.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams rose to reply to remarks that had been made in reference to the Burleigh Falls Co. and Mr. Culverwell. Although not a member of the Board of Trade, he was interested in the development of power. Several years ago he bought the Burleigh Falls, and sold them in 1899 to Mr. Culverwell. There was a fall of 29 feet at Burleigh, and he considered it the best power on the river. While others had put in claims for damages to the Government in connection with the construction of the canal, he had made none, and he therefore considered that the Government had no claim on the Burleigh Falls Co.

Mr. W. H. Moldrum stated that the Government was making a good bargain with the Otonabee Power Co. in charging them ten per cent. on the cost of construction of dam No. 5.

At this juncture there was considerable cross-firing and a lively interchange of compliments between the speaker, Mr. Culverwell and Mr. McWilliams, in regard to the prospectus, etc., said to have been issued by the Otonabee Power Co.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun said that he was one of the deputation to Ottawa who opposed the leasing of the dam to the Otonabee Power Co, he thought that he could pour some light on the matter. All the interests involved were represented at Ottawa in the interview with Hon. Mr. Blair. They talked the matter over and discussed it pro and con for about two hours. He had considered that Mr. Blair with his legal mind thoroughly understood the whole question, and he had every confidence that the Minister would do justice to all concerned. He had no objection to the Otonabee Power Company obtaining a lease of the power but very much doubted if the dam had been constructed for the amount represented by the Otonabee Power Company. He also considered that a fair rental should be paid for it. Three or four dollars per horse power would be nearer the mark than 60 cents, and he went on to point out that the proposed lease is not to the Otonabee Power Company, but to Messrs. W. H. Meldrum, R. R. Hall and W. A. Stratton, and he stated that these gentlemen might or might not relet the power to the Otonabee Power Company as they saw fit.

Mr. Meldrum took exception to several of the remarks made by the speaker.

Mr. Culverwell addressed the meeting on behalf of the Burleigh Falls Company. He wanted it distinctly understood that his Company were not objecting to the action of the government. They were only objecting to what he considered were the misrepresentations made to the government by the promoters of a rival enterprise.

Mr. Meldrum again interrupted the speaker, and a rather unparliamentary discussion ensued.

Mr. Culverwell concluded by stating that the reason nothing had been done in the development of the Burleigh Falls Power was that they had been subjected to most unfair opposition by parties whose names he did not mention. He threatened, however, quite dramatically, amidst the laughter of the meeting, that if he were goaded much longer he would publish the whole details in the public press.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams again arose and referred to the history of the matter while he was in the council. He stated that he and others had approached the government on behalf of the town council and that the government then asked $4 per horse power, from the municipality for the use of dam No. 5. Now it was proposed to lease the same power at 60 cents per horse power. He then went into a calculation to show that if the town had raised a hundred thousand dollars at par at 3 per cent. debentures it could have developed power most advantageously to the town which would have made a large profit on the transaction. He proceeded to make some rather personal remarks in regard to Mr. Meldrum's actions in the council. This of course brought from Mr. Meldrum a very lively retort and for a time the personal aspect was decidedly interesting. Each gentleman accused the other of a lack of veracity.

Mr. T. F. Matthews spoke in the interests of the users of power in the town, and moved a resolution that the Government be requested to insert a clause in the lease of dam No. 5 providing that the lease be cancelled if the leasees enter into a combine with any other company for the raising of the cost of power to the consumer. He also argued that the development of power was of such a nature that the town could not properly embark in it, at the same time he considered that the interests of the community as a whole should be safeguarded in every way possible. Mr. Matthews' resolution was seconded by Mr. Stanley, and carried unanimously.

Mr. A. L. Davis made perhaps the best speech of the evening, exhibiting a thorough grasp of the whole subject, and dealing most impartially with all the interests concerned. Speaking as a member of a corporation that owned over half a million dollars worth of property in the town, he naturally wanted to see the fullest development of power—of every ounce of power available. He was sure that all would be required, and stated that the power developed by the Cereal Co would not be utilized for the running of small plants requiring from 50 to 100 h. p., but would be used in the development of enterprises requiring all the way from 500 to 1,000 h.p. He very strongly supported the granting of power by the Government to private corporations, who would develop them in the interests of the town, and pointed out that the interests of the gentlemen in question were wrapped up in the development of the town in which they lived. He agreed with Mr. Matthews that the citizens could not be induced to vote for the expenditure of one hundred thousand dollars for the development of power as a municipal enterprise, and stated that the town had nearly reached the limit at which it could sell debentures advantageously, having regard to the maintance of its credit amongst the financial men of the country. All the gentlemen interested were personal friends of his and he did not consider that the interests of any of them would be ultimately injured by the granting of the proposed lease to the Otonabee Power Company, as he was confident that before very long all possible power would be utilized at a rumerative rate.

The president, Mr. Dumble, at this point drew attention to an invitation which had been received from the Montreal Board of Trade to the banquet to be tendered to Hon. Mr. Tarte in recognition of his services in the development of the waterways and communications of the country.

Mr. Meldrum moved that the secretary be requested to acknowledge the receipt of the invitation, and to express the regret of the Board that it could not be represented at the banquet, at the same time stating its appreciation of the splendid services Mr. Tarte had rendered to the country in the development of its railway and canal facilities.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Matthews and duly carried, as was also Mr. J. H. Burnham's resolution.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

There was a great game of golf played on the links a day or so ago, when Dr. Eastwood and Mr. C. B. McAllister met in the semi-finals for the club championship. The course is 27 holes, and in the first time around the score was 46-45½ the second time it was 44-42, and the third time it was 46-44. Dr. Eastwood was two holes up, and also two strokes.

The Port Hops ladies are playing their return match with the local ladies to-day.

The Peterborough Club is to be congratulated on the fact that Mr. R. M. Hamilton has been chosen to play on the Inter-Provincial Team against Quebec. Mr. Hamilton gave Mr. Lyon quite a run for the championship in Toronto, being only one down when the twelfth hole was played.

RUGBY.

There will be a practice on the Nicholls oval to-morrow afternoon at 4.30 o'clock.

PERSONALS.

Miss Sadie Sands of Kingston is visiting Miss Katye Macpherson, No. 73 Paterson street.

Mr. A. W. McPherson returned to Peterborough last night after a three months' visit for study in Germany. Mr. McPherson was warmly welcomed by a number of his friends as he stepped from the train at the C. P. R. station. He is enjoying the best of health, and says that his trip was a most delightful one.

The Lindsay Post, in referring to a harvest home festival held in Lindsay on Tuesday evening, says: —"Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Peterborough, gave a pleasing and appropriate solo, 'The Dear Old Home,' and followed with an inspiring address. In opening he said great men were made by obedience to their best thoughts their highest impulses. Men were low down because they had obeyed their lowest thoughts. Obedience to that which is highest and noblest will enable you to reach up to everything possible in human life. Hang on the walls of your memory those pictures which will be an inspiration to you when you gaze upon them in future years."

LIPTON V. MORGAN.

First Race Between Shamrock II. and Columbia Declared Off.

New York, Sept. 27.—One of the biggest crowds that ever put to sea went down to Sandy Hook Lightship yesterday to witness Sir Thomas Lipton's second challenger, Shamrock II., and the white flyer, Columbia, which successfully defended the old America's Cup against his first trophy hunting two years ago, struggle for the yachting supremacy of the world in the list of the cup races of 1901. But the excursion fleet returned disappointed. The great single-stickers went out this morning fresh for the battle, but the sea refused them a field of conflict. The wind, never more than nine, and sometimes as low as three knots, was too light and shifty to carry the contestants over the 30-mile course in the time allotted by the rules.

At the end of five and a half hours, the prescribed time, the race was officially declared off and the yachts were towed back to their berths inside of Sandy Hook. When the gun aboard the committe boat was fired to call attention to the signal declaring the race off, the American was still seven miles from the finish line. The Englishman was hull down astern of her, the experts estimating her distance behind the Columbia at over three-quarters of a mile.

Disappointment at London.

London, Sept. 27.—The failure of the yachts to cover the course in time to constitute a race has created general disappointment in Great Britain, but chagrin at the apparent poor showing of Shamrock II. overshadows all our expressions of feeling. Evidently they had expected the challenger to outdo the defender under any conditions.

King Edward displayed great interest, and was kept posted as to every movement of the yachts.

FRUITS OF FORWARD POLICY.

Hon. Messrs. Gibson and Stratton on New Ontario.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—After a fortnight's absence in touring the north-western part of Ontario, where they saw much of our new growing regions, and delivered a number of speeches at meetings in the towns and settlements, Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. J. R. Stratton yesterday returned to their respective offices. They looked the better for their trip, and were high in their praise of the prosperity and development, as well as the rich promise for the future, which they found everywhere they went.

Will Hang Oct. 25.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—Joseph Ernest Laplaine, who some months ago shot and killed his boarding mistress, Mrs. LeFebvre, with whom he was in love, was yesterday afternoon found guilty and sentenced by Judge Ouimet to be hanged on Oct. 25. The mother of the prisoner, who was in the court-room, broke into convulsive sobs and had to be helped out of court.

Two horrors crowded into one life, the product of poor digestion, and the poisons that are thereby formed within the body. There's just one method of cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food, but mind, food properly digested. That's the difficulty—the digestive power of the stomach must be improved. Rich, red blood formed, strength given to the organs to drive out poisons; then comes strength, vigor and endurance. Ferrozone does all this and more: it makes sick people well; weak people strong. ROYALTY AT REGINA

The Duke and Duchess See Prairies Covered With Snow.

CORDIAL RECEPTION ACCORDED

The Produce of the Fields, as Well a Flags and Bunting, Used in Many Places With Decorative Effect—Mounted Police Make a Brave Show—Just a Glimpse of Royalty.

Swift Current, N.W.T., Sept. 28.—The Vice-Regal train arrived here at 8.11 p.m. yesterday and left at 8.50 p.m. The royal train arrived at 9.19 and left at 9.25.

Progress Through the West.

Indian Head, N.W.T., Sept. 28. — Indian Head was reached at 10 o'clock yesterday. Crowds were waiting on the station platform, which was decorated with flags, bunting and sheaves of wheat. The reception to the royal party was also enthusiastic and cordial. On the first train Sir Wilfrid Laurier appeared on the platform of his car and was kindly received. On the second train the Duke of Cornwall and York was plainly seen and was cheered to the echo.

Mounted Police Drawn Up.

Qu'Appelle, N. W. T., Sept. 28.—Here, as elsewhere, on the trip to Regina, the station platform was crowded with people ranging from babes in arms to the oldest residents in town. The arrival yesterday of the train was greeted with hearty cheers. At Sintaluta, Indian Head and Qu'Appelle the local detachments of the Northwest Mounted Police patrolled the station platform, their splendid bearing and neat appearance calling forth words of praise from all.

Just a Glimpse of Royalty.

Balgonie, N.W.T., Sept. 28.— A hearty cheer was given by the people of Balgonie who had gathered at the station to see the royal train go through. It was only a passing glimpse they got, but the cheer they gave as the train flashed by was none the less hearty because of that.

Prairie Covered With Snow.

Regina, N.W.T., Sept. 28. — The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall reached here at midday yesterday, and were accorded a cordial reception. Lieut.-Governor Haultain and a large delegation of officials and citizens were waiting at the station to extend the formal greetings. The local troops and police paraded and formed the escort of the royal party to Government House. The Duke and Duchess got their first touch of winter yesterday. They awoke to find the prairies covered with snow, and the thermometer holding close to the freezing point. The westward journey was continued late in the afternoon.

PRINCIPAL GRANT WEAKER.

His System Is Not Responding Readily to Treatment.

Kingston, Sept. 28.—After several days of improvement Principal Grant had another setback yesterday. The doctors are finding that he is not rallying and responding to treatment as was expected, following a resumption of their functions by the bladder and kidneys. They attribute this to the lack of vitality. Possibly in recent years his work and worry have impaired his outwardly apparent robustness; in other words his spirit and activity were more assertive than his real bodily strength warranted. With low vitality the damage done by the shock has not been repaired as it should have been under the treatment accorded. During yesterday afternoon it was found that he was again suffering slight chills, followed by a rise in temperature, and therefore a corresponding decrease in strength.

Last night there was again considerable anxiety about his state. He has now been a sufferer for a week. Last Saturday he was able to travel from Montreal to Kingston. Last night he could hardly move in bed. It was his indomitable will that kept him up until he reached home.

Condition at Midnight.

Kingston, Sept. 28.—(12 p. m.)—The unfavorable symptoms noticed at 5 p. m. have not been intensified. Both his fever and pulse dropped again and his general appearance improved. There has not been a repetition of the chill since. He replied bright and cheerily to the questions of his physicians, after which he dropped off into a natural sleep.

THE NEW JUSTICES.

Sir Louis Davies to Be Sworn In on Tuesday—Mr. B. M. Britton.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Sir Louis Davies will be sworn in as a Judge of the Supreme Court at 12 o'clock Tuesday next. His appointment to the bench will appear in the Gazette to-day. Mr. B. M. Britton is to be a Judge of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, a Justice of the High Court and a member of the King's Bench division; Emilion B. Paradis, a puisne Judge of Quebec, and Major W. Forester, Royal Canadian Dragoons, to be honorary A. D. C. upon the staff of His Excellency.

B. M. BRITTON, K.C., THE NEW JUDGE.

An Investigation Ordered.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The Minister of Militia has ordered a court of inquiry to investigate the facts connected with the parade of Ottawa men in khaki on the occasion of the presentation of medals by the Duke of Cornwall and York a week ago last Friday. It is quite evident, therefore, that the incident is not by any means closed, as some people imagined.

THE CORDAGE COMPANY.

Contractor Hartley is Rushing the Work Along With Expediency.

The work on the erection of the buildings for the Canadian Cordage Company is being rapidly pushed forward.

The stone-work is well under way for the foundation for the boiler-house, and the brick work on the same building will be started, it is expected, on Tuesday.

The boiler house is to be completed first in order that the interior of the other buildings may be heated as soon as the walls are up and the roof placed in position. The work of completion can then be carried on inside.

The main building is to be built in three sections divided by fire-proof walls. As soon as the first section is erected the work on the interior will be started and the carpenters and painters can thus be given a chance on their contracts while the other two sections are being built.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Routley Duly Celebrate the Day.

The Kingston Whig makes the following reference to the celebration of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Routley, of Kingston, parents of Mr. C. B. Routley, of town.

On Sunday and Monday Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Routley, Sydenham street, celebrated their golden wedding day. All the sons, daughters, and a number of grand-daughters assembled, and spent a happy, joyous time. The house and tables were artistically decorated. One of the features of the feast was a mammoth wedding cake, upon which reposed a cup which the friends and relatives of the aged couple filled with gold, silver and bills. The singing by Mr. and Mrs. Routley was listened to with pleasure, and, despite their age, it was splendidly done. They sang the hymns, "How Firm A Foundation," and "All Hail The Power of Jesus' Name," the family joining in the chorus.

Tea was served on Sunday at five o'clock, after which Mrs. Routley again favoured her children with a song, "Let Us Gather At The River," accompanied on the piano by her eldest daughter, Mrs. E. E. Ross. The family takes great pride in the fact that every members is skilled in music, and could supply the harmony required in all parts of an entertainment. There were no toasts proposed, owing to it being the Sabbath day.

On Monday afternoon from 3.30 to 6 p.m. Mrs. Routley was "At Home" to her friends, over sixty of whom gathered and extended to the aged couple best wishes for long continued health and happiness. The family furnished a splendid musical programme. Among the guests were Mrs. G. F. Wilson and Mrs. W. J. Mahood, sisters of Mr. Routley. After refreshments had been served the family, sons on one side of the room and daughters on the other, sang with vim that sweet old song, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

The venerable couple are to be congratulated on their long and prosperous life, and many are the friends who most earnestly wish for them a continuance of health and happiness.

Both are among the oldest residents of Kingston, Mrs. Routley being a native of the city, and Mr. Routley coming here in 1841 from Devonshire, England, where he was born in 1821. The latter has resided here ever since, except in 1847 and 1848, when he was in Peterborough.

Public life had no attraction for him. He is identified with the Oddfellows, A.O.U.W., Arcanum, and Home Life Societies. In religion he is a Methodist, an attendant at Queen street church.

Mr. Routley had ten children, all of whom are living. They are; John, Arthur, Alfred, Mrs. Ross, and Miss Martha, of Kingston; C.B., Peterborough; George E., Syracuse, N.Y.; W. H. Hamilton; Mrs. W. J. Bell, Crab Orchard, Nebraska; Mrs. A.S. Wright, Auburn, N.Y. Ten grandchildren are also numbered among Mr. Routley's descendants.

WEDDING AT WARSAW.

Nuptials of the Eldest Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Gow.

On Wednesday, Sept. 18, a very interesting event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Gow, when their eldest daughter, Miss Jennie, became the bride of Mr. Edwin R. Hamblin.

The ceremony which was performed by the Rev. R. Hyde, took place at 12 o'clock noon, in the presence of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

The bride, who in the absence of her father, was given away by her brother, Mr. C. E. Gow, was daintily attired in white organdie trimmed with lace and white satin ribbon. She wore a bridal veil of Brussels net; fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms and lily of the valley, and carried a bouquet of white asters and maiden hair fern. Miss Beatrice Gow, who was becomingly gowned in corn coloured organdie, trimmed with lace and black velvet ribbon, assisted the bride. Mr. Herbert Payne, cousin of the groom, was best man.

The ceremony over, the guests sat down to a bountiful wedding breakfast, after which the happy couple drove to Peterborough and took the 5.30 G.T.R. for Buffalo and intervening points.

The bride's going away dress, was brown covert cloth suit, with blue silk vest. Upon their return home, they will take up their abode at the groom's residence on the 3rd line, Dummer, where their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

CHAPTER III.

Montreal has many things of which it can justly boast, and many churches of rare beauty and historical interest, but none can rival in architectural and artistic perfection Notre Dame Cathedral, an edifice grand and imposing in the highest degree. The parish of Notre Dame is the oldest in the Canadian metropolis, and was founded simultaneously with the city itself when Maisonneuve and his band of French colonists reached the island of Mount Royal in May 18, 1642. Th ecitizens erected a fort and a temporary chapel of bark in which they worshipped till the following year, when a wooden edifice was constructed. You will note throughout all our history wherever the French attempted to found a colony, one of the first things they did was to rear a sacred edifice, in which to worship and to Christianize the native wild and barbarous tribes. Religion was of paramount importance ,and the untiring zeal and Christian philanthropy of the Jesuit missionaries in our early Jhistory is most commendable and shows what self denial and personal sacrifice real God-fearing men will suffer for the upbuilding of the Church and the salvation of the heathen. In 1654 a still more commodious structure was erected, which met all requirements till 1672, when a spacious parish church was built. This last building was used without any materia' alteration, for a century and a half, or until 1829, when the present church was opened to the public with pomp and ceremony by Mgr. Lartigue, the first Bishop of Montreal. The beauty of Notre Dame baffles description. You must behold itself to fully appreciate it. Its front is perfect in symmetry. Its bold and lofty tower, between which is the grand portico, sixty feet in height, being measured from foundation to pinnacle, are two hundred and twenty-seven feet high and attract attention from every point of the compass. If the atmosphere is clear, they are visible from the south for a distance of thirty miles. In the grand portico, three colossal statues placed over the arcades represent the Virgin Mary, St. Joseph, and St. John the Baptist, the patrons of Lower Canada and of Montreal. Architecturally the Cathedral belongs to a branch of the Gothic, or pointed arch order, a school made familiar to the public by the ancient cathedrals of Europe, and a style which church authorities consider in perfect harmony with Christian thought. But imposing as is the exterior of Notre Dame, it pales into insignificance when contrasted with the richness of the interior. Paintings, gildings, sculpture, and stained glass everywhere in profusion, and everyone a masterpiece, almost confound the senses, but fill the heart and mind with sublime reflections. The deadly silence which prevails unbroken but for the occasional rattle of a rosary in the hand of some devout worshipper ,makes you feel as though you were in the midst of heavenly environments and the immediate presence of Deity. The vastness of the auditorium, which is capable of accommodating fifteen thousand persons, inspires admiration, which is heightened as the eye slowly travels from altar to altar, from chapel to chapel, and finally rests on the grand main altar, the richest of its kind in the Western Hemisphere. The numerous and variegated lights which beam continually on this altar reminds one of those in the temple at Jerusalem. A person is oppressed by the grandeur of his surroundings, when entering this noble Temple of the Lord for the first time. To describe the beauties of the various altars and chapels, which adorn the eastern and western side aisles of the cathedral, in a narrative of this kind, would be utterly impossible. Indeed I doubt if the most brilliant intellect could paint more than a meagre and diminutive picture of Notre Dame's exquisite beauty. However I shall make a few pertinent remarks about the chapel of Notre Dame of the Sacred Heart, sometimes designated as the "Holy of Holies," or the "New Chapel," which is one of the choicest monuments of art in America. It is nearly one hundred feet in length, sixty feet in width, and sixty feet in height, and its decorations can be studied for hours in the smallest details. In the harmony of its lines and splendour of its ornamentation the chapel rivals the church proper and its paintings are considered the finest in Canada, and possibly in America. The confessionals placed between altars are triumphs of the wood carver's art. Amongst the statuary of Notre Dame no piece is more admired than a little statue of the Virgin carved from the purest white marble, and resting on a pedestal of the same material, which was presented to the church by Pope Pius in 1872 together with a small golden cross which the Pontiff was in the habit of wearing on his own person. Second in general esteem, is a bronze statue of St. Peter, a copy of the one in Rome. But interesting as all these statues are, in impressiveness they are far behind the grand main altar with six groups of statutes and basreliefs, all of which are magnificent masterpieces of sculpture, and the work of Beuriche, the famous artist, of Angiers, France. Among the most notable figures are the "Sacrifice of Isaac" and "A Priest of the son of Aaron Offering up the Sacrifice of a Spotless Lamb," but the grandest and most sublime group of all, is the one entitled the "Bloody Sacrifice of Christ." The Virgin Mary is standing at the foot of the Cross, a sword of agony piercing her very soul while she offers herself as a victim with her Divine Son. St. John overcome with sorrow has turned away his face, unable longer to look upon the awful scene, while Mary Magdalene is bitterly weeping over the sins she has so generously expiated. The foregoing is only a brief, inadequate description but were it to receive justice a mightier pen than mine must needs be requisitioned, and a volume much larger than this, be entirely devoted to the beauty and majesty of this world-famous temple of God. Just a word about the bell and organ of this great and costly Cathedral, before we proceed to other sacred edifices and notable buildings of the Canadian metropolis. "Le Gros Bourdon" the ponderous bell of Notre Dame is famed for the richness of its tone. It is six feet high, measuring eight feet seven inches in diameter at its mouth, and weighs twenty-four thousand seven hundred and eighty pounds. It hangs in the western tower, and in the eastern are ten smaller bells, toned in such perfect harmony that almost any sacred air can be executed while they peal. The organ is of no less interest than the cathedral itself or its bells,it has five thousand seven hundred and seventy two pipes, from the size of a quill to huge tubes over thirty feet long. It required six years to build it, and Fred Archer, the famous organist, who inaugurated it on Easter Day, 1891, pronounced it the finest instrument in existence in America. This wonderful cathedral with all its accessories cost over one million dollars, and its vast auditorium and spacious galleries can comfortably accomodate forty-five thousand persons. We must not dwell too long among the sacred places of interest, but before diverting our attention to secular things, St. James' R. C. church and the Jesuit College are worthy of our notice. The former was built in accordance with a plan revealed to a priest, in a dream. It is said to be similar in design to St. Peter's in Rome and is noted for its lofty dome, which we were told was four hundred feet high. The colossal bronze statues ,too, that ornament its bold and imposing front, are alike worthy of the visitor's notice, for some of them when placed in position appear like mere miniatures, while in reality they are over eighteen feet high. The Jesuit College is of theological institutions I suppose, one of the most ancient and important in the city. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon, when my friend and I visited this school and although we were informed the authorities did not make a practice of escorting visitors through its interior nor about the sacred precincts, through the courtesy of the faculty, we were permitted to inspect several class-rooms, the science room, museum, etc. and our amiable guide briefly explained everything he considered necessary. The divisions we saw presented a very tidy appearance. Everything was scrupulously clean and it was plainly evident the faculty believes cleanliness next to godliness. The museum was particularly interesting, and a person could profitably spend many hours studying the elaborate collection of curiosities contained therin. It embraced all the curios generally found in a building of its kind and among other things a small pipe-case, which was of paramount importance in the estimation of every devout Roman Catholic. This exhibit is only a very ordinary pipe-case, to be sure, bound with red plush, but it is not prized for its intrinsic value so much as for the sacred memories that encircled it, as a halo around the sun. His Holiness the Pope presented it to Lieut.-Governor Mercier who in turn presented it to the college. For my own part so far as the general appearance of this treasure was concerned, I could discern nothing strikingly unique or attractive about it, but our attendant devoted so much stress to its minute description, that I surmised he inferred it should elicit some favourable comment from the visitors whom he had taken so much trouble to entertain. Being equal to all emergencies, I at once took in the situation, and partly through fear of being branded as sacrelicious and partly from duty and real sincerity I remarked with a benign smile "It is very beautiful." This with a few other flattering remarks, satisfied the fancy of our guide, and we proceeded. It certainly is a priceless tribute of respect to Lieut.-Gov.Mercie, and evidence of the high esteem in which that gentleman is held by the present Pontiff. Another object of greater interest to me was a human skeleton. This gruesome sight would to many be a terror, but I must admit I grew very intimate with it on short acquaintance, and, although not particularly interested in osteology, made a close examination of its symmetrical form. It is an old saying, "It doesn't take a very brave horse to face a dead lion," and methinks a soldier who couldn't face the sacred memories that encircle it a bony skeleton would never gain notoriety for conspicuous gallantry in fighting Boers. As we stand before this spindly yet comely figure, and observe how carefully every bone has been fashioned, and draw upon our imagination for evidence of the functions they perform, we are forced to exclaim "Man is strangely and wonderfully made." Had time permitted, I would have considered it a pleasure to linger in this department and study the various interesting curios in this vast collection, but we had promised to be back at the WItness office at 4.15 to see the massive steam press at work on the Daily Edition, so we retraced our steps to the corner of Craig and St. James steets. Those of my readers who are familiar with such ponderous machines, triumphs of the printer's art, would be considerably amused were I to attempt to explain their wonderful mechanism, for I know comparatively little about printing or printing presses.

Were you ever at a horse show? If you were you saw on a small scale what we witnessed and were compelled to endure day after day in the Armouries for nearly a week. It was horse, horse, horse, everywhere you went and nine men out of every ten you met were discussing this popular topic. Those who had animals of this class for sale, were to be seen in small groups here and there, forming combines, no doubt, and they generally set their price and clung to it. They knew if the beast suited the Government's agents, the price offered no barrier, in making a sale. It mattered not what class appealed to your equine fancy, you could find it in this motley multitude. There were buckers, biters, and kickers that would kick the glasses off the man in the moon, but they were all represented as being as quiet and docile as a lamb, and so gentle that a lady could manage them with perfect ease and safety. There might possibly be something in a lady's voice or manner that would act as oil upon the troubled waters of the ponies bad disposition, but one thing is certain, none of "our boys" possessed that "something," and frequently it was extremely difficult to determine whether the horse or man was the more vicious. Patience is a virtue, conspicuous by its absence in the C.M.R., but in many instances I belief Job himself would have become angry, and not without due cause. According to military calculation, a horse is worth three men, and it is almost as unpardonable an offence to reprove a horse as to abuse the sacred bull of India, officers are not nearly so particular, about the manner in which the horse abuses his "would-be master. The equine could kick, bite, or do anything and everything that A pleased, and if its rider was seriously injured, he must console himself as best he could, and believe the horses action cute. As a matter of fact, horses are like officers, and other individuals. When they overstep the mark of common decency and due respect for others, if they are reproved for it then, or, as military men say, "called down," they will be very soon convinced of the fact that man was born to rule, and would in future restrain their impudence and evil propensities. I cannot discern the philosophy in the reasoning which arrives at the conclusion, "a horse is worth three men," unless it be due to the greater inconvenience and expense in replacing him, or that he can carry a more cumbersome burden. From careful reasoning I deduce, that a horse without his master isn't worth stable room. However, this is not an opportune time to discuss this phase of the subject, so we will return to the purchasing of horses in the Armouries. Despite the earnest recommendations of the dealers, whose word is generally heard like a fish story, we tested every animal bought, if they gave evidence of being incorrigible, had their tails "docked," or belonged to the Blood class, they were rejected. Horses with diminutive tails were not accepted, because the officers said the South African flies would be a constant source of torment to such animals, and if they were of an excitable or fretful disposition, would never secure a moment's rest. This was quite true, but we hadn't to go to South Africa to verify the statement. The Canadian fly knows his business about as well as the best of them, and is just as crude and unmerciful as any of his kind. The horses were bought, and finally landed in South Africa. Note the absurdity of our actions. When in Montreal, thousands of miles from the source of discomfort, we were exceedingly particular about the horse's welfare. We would shudder at the thought of bringing a short-tailed horse to the Orient to die as a martyr, tortured to death by the tropical pests.

Kidney Irritability.

Causing Frequent Rising at Night, is Completely Cured by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets

Many people are troubled with an irritable condition of the kidneys and bladder that compels frequent attention during the day and frequent rising at night.

For such an annoying and serious kidney trouble, there is no remedy so beneficial as the modern kidney medicine, Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They allay all irritability, regulate the kidney action and permit undisturbed rest at night.

Mr. Isaac Hutel, an old and highly respected resident of Mount Forest, Ont., has this to say:—"For some ten years past, owing to hard work in my younger days on the farm, I have had a constant pain in my back that ran at times up into my shoulders. The kidneys bothered me very much and my liver somewhat also. I tried a good many remedies with only indifferent success, until I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets at Yeoman's drug store in this town. The result of using these Tablets has been beyond my expectations. They stopped the pain and soreness in the back and allayed the kidney irritation, so that I can now rest well at night. They have also regulated my bowels and stirred up my sluggish liver, so that I am only too pleased to give this testimonial as to the good the remedy accomplished in my case."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

IS DEAFNESS CURABLE?

It is greatly to be regretted that the medical profession have, in the past, conveyed to the public the opinion that deafness is incurable, as this impression deters the majority of deaf people from seeking relief from their affliction. But physicians are in no way to blame for this, as it is only of late years that the division of medicine into special branches has produced so great an advance in medical science that many diseases once classed as incurable are to-day regarded as capable of complete cure under the application of modern discoveries.

The treatment of ear disease was one of the latest branches of medicine to be taken up as a speciality, but in spite of the attempts to reach the pathological changes in the internal structures of the ear which are the cause of deafness, by means of liquids and vapours forced through the nose, catheterization of the eustachian tube, electricity, syringing, and blistering, no great amount of permanent relief was attained. This cannot be wondered at when the anatomy of the organ of hearing is studied, as it will be noted that all the delicate tissues that bear direct relations to the nerve which conveys the impressions of sounds to the brain, are carefully protected by being deeply situated within the bony structures of the skull behind the external ear.

It remained for Dr. Drouet to modify the opinion of the medical profession, both as regards the treatment and the curability of deafness. The principle of the Drouet treatment consists in utilising the well-known absorbent properties of the skin. A preparation in the form of a crescent-shaped plaster is applied behind the ear to the bony prominence (mastoid process), and the medicaments being taken up by the skin are conveyed to the deeply-seated tissues of the ear, to begin the work of regeneration of the hearing. The formula of this plaster is the real foundation of the Drouet treatment, but auxiliary preparations in the form of general medication or antiseptics for the nose or ear are sometimes necessitated by the variations of the case.

The remarkable results of this treatment, which has now been followed for several years, show that neither the duration of an ear disease nor the age of a patient can be considered a bar to the recovery of hearing—in fact, the incurable cases are chiefly to be found among those who have undergone surgical operations for the removal of some of the essential structures of the organ of hearing. Our readers, who are interested in the subject, will be glad to know that "The Journal for the Deaf," which is published monthly at the Drouet Institutes of London, Paris, and Brussels, is sent free to any person applying for it. To get the English edition, which contains particulars of some two hundred cases recently cured, they have only to write to the Secretary of the Drouet Institute, 72, Regent's Park-road, London, England. The journal is always accompanied by a pathological report form, on which the patient can give a complete description of his case that will enable the Consulting Surgeon to send full information regarding the treatment necessary for a cure.

DAY OF THE DOCTORS

Defence's Contention Is "Morally, Practically Impossible."

AGREED WITH CROWN THEORY.

Wounds That Led to Elder Sifton's Death Were Not, They Believed, the Result of a Fall of 24 Feet, But Administered With an Ax—Edgar Morden Not to Be Called As a Witness.

London, Sept. 28.—Martin Morden yesterday narrated the incidents of the visit paid by Gerald Sifton to him on the night on which it is alleged Gerald tried to get a confederate in his scheme of murder. He was awakened at his boarding house in London street at 1 o'clock on the morning of June 30, the day the old man was killed. Gerald told him the old man was going to marry Mary McFarlane the next day, and he asked Martin to come out and use his influence with the girl to stop it. Gerald said the reason the marriage had been arranged so quickly was because two months ago the old man had accomplished the girl's ruin. Martin replied that under the circumstances he would let the girl do as she pleased.

Gerald suggested a plan to prevent the marriage. It was to put up a hayrack, and the two of them could get the old man up on it, and give him a couple of blows with a hammer. Martin refused, saying the girl could marry the old man if she wanted to. Gerald said his father would never do it. His father had already killed one woman and driven another crazy. Gerald then drew from his pocket a vial, filled with a white, crystal-like substance, and said: "If one thing won't do it, another will." When Gerald left he remarked: "Well, if you won't go with me, I'll tackle the job alone."

That afternoon Morden heard of the death of Joseph Sifton, and on Sunday met Gerald, who described the accident, saying his father had grabbed the ax away from him and started to knock boards off the barn, and had fallen. Gerald said before the accident he had a talk with his father, who agreed to postpone the marriage for some time.

In describing the accident Gerald said that both the ax and the hammer were used in knocking off the boards. At this meeting Edgar Morden was also present, and Gerald asked them not to think anything of what he had said to them about causing his father's death, as he had thought the whole matter over and concluded that it was "too risky to tackle it."

Some days after the old man was killed Gerald met Martin and asked if he had seen Edgar and James Morden lately. He said that Edgar had threatened that they would all squeal if they were not paid, and he would willingly give $1,000 to be divided among the three, but Edgar had said that it would take the price of a 50-acre farm to fix it.

The witness was cross-examined by Mr. Johnson Morden admitted that the will was mentioned at almost every conversation which he had with Sifton.

The Afternoon Session.

The Crown reached the medical experts in the Sifton murder trial today. Two of the most eminent men of the profession in the country were called before the court rose. They were Dr. Harry B. Anderson, Professor of Pathology at Trinity University, and Dr. George A. Bingham, Professor of Surgery at Trinity.

Dr. Anderson testified that, having examined the injuries received by the deceased Joseph Sifton, he was of the opinion that it was "morally, practically impossible" that the injuries were sustained by the fall of 24 feet, which the defence alleged. He entirely coincided with the theory of the Crown that the wounds were administered with an ax. They were quite compatible with such an attack as Walter Herbert, the alleged accomplice, who has confessed to his part in the crime.

Dr. Bingham was scarcely less emphatic in his belief that the wounds couldn't all have resulted from a single fall. The doctors said if there had been a fall and so severe injuries resulted as indicated, there would have been injury elsewhere, which the post-mortem examination, put in by the Crown yesterday afternoon, states is not the fact. The body was in a perfectly normal condition. The only injuries were the fractures at the right side of the skull, and the "boggy" mass on top of the head.

An important bit of testimony was the finding of blood upon chips taken from the ladder where the deceased stood when, according to Walter Herbert, he received the first murderous blows. The absence of traces of blood inside the barn has been a serious drawback to the Crown's case. The end of the case for the Crown is in sight.

Edgar Morden, who was the strongest witness against the prisoner at the preliminary examination, will not be called, because his testimony has been discredited by his connection with the "butter-paper" will, since found to have been a forgery.

RHEUMATIC PAINS.

Caused by an Impure Condition of the Blood.

If Neglected They Will Grow Worse and Serious Results Will Follow—Rheumatism can be Permanently Cured.

From the Telegraph, Quebec.

Rheumatism is one of the most common and at the same time one of the most painful affections from which humanity suffer. It affects the joints and muscles, and is characterized, even in its simplest form, by a dull constant pain. While it remains in the joints and muscles, it is sufficiently painful and distressing, but as it is liable to attack the vital organs, such as the heart, the disease becomes a source of danger, and in many instances it has proved fatal. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills possess qualities for the cure of this disease which are unequalled by any other medicine. Mr. Cyrus Lamond, a well known resident of Stadacona, Que., bears testimony to the wonderful curative powers of these pills. To a reporter of the Telegraph, he gave the following story:—"Until some three years ago I always enjoyed the best of health, but about that time I was attacked with what proved from the outset to be a severe case of rheumatism, from which I suffered great torture. I tried a number of supposed cures for this disease, but none of them benefitted me. I seemed to be constantly growing worse, so I called in a physician, but as his treatment did not give me relief, I sought the assistance of two other doctors, but they also failed to help me. My appetite left me; my strength gradually ebbed away; one of my legs was drawn out of shape, and I was never free from pain. I was in despair of ever being well again, when one day a relative brought me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to take them. He seemed to have such great confidence in the pills that I determined to follow his advice. To-day I am happy that I did so, for with the use of less than a dozen boxes of these pills the pain from which I suffered so much is all gone, and I feel stronger and healthier than I did before. This I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I would strongly urge similar sufferers to give them a trial."

Experience has proved Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to be without an equal as a blood builder and nerve restorer. It is this power of acting directly on the blood and nerves that enables these pills to cure such diseases as rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, locomotor ataxia, paralysis, and all the ordinary diseases of the blood and nerves. These pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or can be had by mail, postpaid, at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Captain and Pilot Drunk.

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 28.—Evidence of a sensational character was brought out at the inquiry into the loss of the steamer Islander, which has been resumed.

Dr. A. W. Phillips, who lost his wife and daughter in the disaster, said he could not find any life preservers in his stateroom, and when he did find them in the cabin there was nobody to assist or instruct them how to put them on.

Mace Green of Tacoma swore positively that the captain and pilot were intoxicated. The captain was at the bar for two hours, he said, and he had seen him take two drinks.

CURES KIDNEY DISEASE

It's a well known fact that the kidneys are accountable for nearly 75 per cent. of the deaths of a year. If you have a headache, if your skin is jaundiced, if you have headaches and neuralgic pains in the head, if your urine is highly colored, and causes pain when urinating, if it is scalding—you can correct this condition by taking Powley's Liquified Ozone. Just read Mrs. Barriball's letter. It goes to show the value of our preparation:—

THE OZONE COMPANY, Ltd.,
TORONTO, ONT.

Gentlemen: About ten years ago I had a bad case of diphtheria, which left a weakness in my whole system, especially a sore throat, which was a great annoyance. I used to get medicine from my doctor, which helped me, but did not cure. I was advised to try "Ozone," which I did, with the result that it cured my throat entirely, and have had no return of the trouble since. I also had kidney trouble, which was very bad. Since taking "Ozone" I have been relieved of this trouble also. We have used the remedy in our family for some time, and so confident are we of its curative powers that we would not be without a bottle of it in the house. We also recommended it to several of our friends, who found it an excellent family remedy.

(Signed) MRS. BARRIBALL, 81 Allan Ave., Toronto.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is oxygen in stable liquid form, its action is diuretic—it cleans out the kidneys and relieves the inflammation that affect those organs. It will stop back pains very quickly.

Write our consulting physicians a full statement of your symptoms and get a specialist's advice free of charge. Address all communications to the Consulting Department of the Liquid Ozone Company, 229 Klazie Street, Chicago, Ill.

Watches are Ruined.

Did it ever occur to you that more watches are ruined by incompetent workmen than by actual wear? There is no part of Frost's business that receives more care than the watch repairing department. Mr. Frost is an expert workman, who has spent his whole life time among watches. The whole family of Frosts are watchmakers and good ones too, and Mr. Frost of "Diamond Hall" is one of the best. Every watch that passes through his hands must be right before it leaves the store.

Light or no light, there will be an Auction Sale at Clarke & Gibson's Jewellery Store to-night and every morning, afternoon and evening till cleared out.

At Campbellford.

The 57th Regimental Band was in Campbellford yesterday, where it rendered music during the day at the annual fall show, and in the evening gave a programme in the Music Hall. The building was packed, and the audience was enraptured with the music. Mr. Herb Morphet sang "Always," to a beautiful soft band accompaniment, and Mr. Harry Clark rendered one of his popular solos. Mr. Joe Halpany, too, was warmly received in his vocal numbers. During the evening Dr. Hay presented Mr. Glidden with a $5 gold piece as a souvenir of the visit.

WAS BURIED TO-DAY.

Interment of Rev. Mother M. Austin, Superior of the Congregation at St. Joseph.

The funeral took place from Mount St. Joseph this morning, at nine o'clock of Rev. Mother M. Austin, Superior of the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph, in this Diocese, whose death was recorded in Thursday's issue. Solemn requiem mass was sung at St. Peter's Cathedral, after which interment took place in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

The celebrant of the mass, was Very Rev. Dean Murray, of Cobourg; Rev. Father Maguire, of Hastings, officiated as deacon, and Rev. Dr. O'Brien, of Peterborough, as sub-deacon. The sermon was delivered by Ven. Archdeacon Casey, from the text, "And Jesus saith to him, if thou wilt be perfect, go sell what has hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have a treasure in heaven. Then come and follow Me."—St. Matthew 19th chap., 21st vs. Other priests who were in attendance at the funeral were Rev. Father O'Connor, of St. Joseph's Hospital; Rev. Father Conway, of Norwood; Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Young's Point; and Rev. Father Phelan, of Peterborough.

A telegram was received from His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, who is in New Ontario, expressing his great sorrow and extending kindest sympathy to the bereaved Sisters, whose sorrow is most pitiful to behold, on account of the deep love and veneration which they entertained for the deceased, who was the Mother Superior at the time they all entered the Community.

The deceased was known by her good works, and beneficent acts of kindly charity throughout the entire Diocese. She was a native of Gore's Bridge, County Kilkenny, Ireland, where she was born in March, 1838. Before entering the Community, Mother Austin was known as Miss Catherine Doran. Her parents were residents of Kingston, and at the time of her birth were visiting in Ireland.

Showing an early desire to lead a religious life, she entered the Community of the Sisters of St. Joseph, Toronto, on Jan. 13, 1858, and made her religious profession in 1860, two years afterwards. Her virtues and talents soon brought her to the notice of her superiors, and in 1866 she was appointed to the responsible office of Mistress of Novices. To her was thus confided the care and training of the younger Sisters. She fulfilled these duties with judgment and success, and was again elected to the same office in 1877.

Bishop Jamot, on his appointment to the Diocese of Peterborough, knowing the zeal and good works of the Sisters of St. Joseph, induced them in 1883 to take charge of the schools in Cobourg, with Mother M. Austin as Local Supervisor. The Sisters of St. Joseph had already houses in Port Arthur and Fort William. In 1890 they took charge of the Convent School at Lindsay, and the hospital in Peterborough. The same year Sisters living in the Diocese of Peterborough were canonically separated from the Toronto communities, and were established as a separate community for the Diocese of Peterborough, under the jurisdiction of the present Bishop, Rt. Rev. R. A. O'Connor, D.D. Mother M. Austin was elected first Superior, and has been re-elected every time since. In 1894 the Community, which had temporarily the Mother House in Lindsay, purchased the beautiful Sherwood property, now known as Mount St. Joseph, and took possession of it as the Mother House on Jan. 1st, 1895.

The Mother Superior was the possessor of a most beautiful and saintly Christian character, and her rare humility was amongst the most remarkable of her virtues. The duties devolving upon her as the head of the Community in this diocese, were heavy and responsible, but were discharged with the greatest judgment.

CREATED EXCITEMENT.

Temporary Loss of a Purse Containing a Quantity of Gems.

Considerable excitement was aroused on the market this morning by the fact that Mrs. K. G. Lech missed a purse which had been attached to her belt. As the purse contains four diamond rings, a pair of diamond earrings, and a diamond brooch, besides a considerable sum of money, it was thought that a pickpocket had made a rich haul.

The suspense, however, was relieved when Miss Andrews, of Otonabee, returned the purse to Mrs. Lech, after finding it on the stairs.

THERE WILL BE LIGHT.

Contrary to expectations the Citizens Will Have the Benefit of Electricity To-night.

A visit to the Cereal Company raceway revels the fact that extraordinary exertions are being made to have such temporary repairs effected as will enable the Peterborough Light and Power Company to supply light this evening to the citizens.

The timbers in the sluiceway which had been undermined by the water, have been removed and a large gang of men are engaged in filling in the sluiceway with gravel.

Mr. Scott, manager of the local branch of the Cereal Company, and Mr. Aaron Cox are wading into work with their sleeves rolled up, and promise that if nothing unforeseen turns up there will be plenty of light for to-night, even at the risk of the bank again giving away.

The work needed to repair the damage done by the anchor ice in the spring will not be undertaken until the present trouble is rectified.

Although the light will be furnished to-night and to-morrow night, the water will again have to be let out of the raceway on Monday in order to allow of the repairs being completed. Enough power, however, to supply the centre of the town with light, will be supplied by the Auburn Power Company as explained in the appended interview with Mr. A. Stevenson, secretary of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. When seen this morning, Mr. Stevenson said:—

"I noticed some question in the Examiner as to why the Light Company did not connect with the Auburn Power Company's wires, and we wish to explain the matter, as we think it is due to the public that they should be told everything in connection with the trouble.

"The Auburn Power Company's circuit is run at a presure of 2,500 volts, ours at 1,000, and the transformers of the latter would not operate when connected with current from the former. When our probable shut down was only for one night we did not attempt what was impossible in one day, viz.—to replace our present transformers, but as it seems probable we shall be shut down four days next week, provision is being made to-day to put up transformers in the centre of the town suitable for operating with the Auburn Company's circuit. This involved a large expense but will at least secure the centre of the town against any recurrence of the trouble."

A NORWOOD WEDDING.

Wedding of Miss Annie Raddon and Mr. John McMillan.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Raddon and Mr. A. J. Raddon, of Peterborough, have returned from Norwood, where they were attending the marriage of Miss Annie Raddon. The Norwood Register gives the following description of the wedding:

"A very pretty and quiet wedding took place yesterday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Raddon, in this village, when their daughter, Annie, was married to Mr. John McMillan of this place. The connubial knot was tied at 8 o'clock, Rev. F. J. Somerville, pastor of the Presbyterian church officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. After the wedding dejeuner, Mr. and Mrs. McMillan left on the midnight train for Kingston, from whence they will go by steamer down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, returning by way of Ottawa. On their return to Norwood they will reside in the house lately occupied by Rev. Mr. Peer on Queen street. They have the best wishes of a host of friends."

SALVATION ARMY.

The Annual Harvest Festival to be Held on Oct. 5th.

The Salvation Army will celebrate the annual Harvest Festival on Saturday, Oct. 5th, to Tuesday, Oct. 8th, inclusive. The officers in charge of the local corps solicit from the public a little of the bountiful blessings of field and store, in kind or cash, as a thank offering to God. Anything received will be turned to good account, and it is more particularly to help its officers in this and poorer corps who toil incessantly for the good of humanity that this effort is being made. Staff-Capt. Archibald, who is in charge of the work among the men at the Central Prison, Toronto, comes to lead the meetings on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 5th and 6th.

Gifts can be sent to the barracks on Simcoe street, where Ensign and Mrs. Bloss will be there to receive them.

REGIMENTAL NOTES.

The 57th Will go to Toronto Tuesday Evening—The Programme.

Orders have been received by Lt.-Col. Edwards to the effect that the 57th will embark for Toronto on the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 8th, at 8 o'clock, arriving at the Exhibition Grounds at Toronto at 10.30 p.m.

The regiment will be inspected on Wednesday morning, and in the afternoon there will be a general rehearsal of all the troops preparatory to the Review on Thursday before the Duke of York. The Regiment will leave Toronto for home on the evening of the 11th.

Company inspection will take place on Thursday and Friday evenings next week, and a number of the officers will drill their men every evening in the meantime.

A general parade will take place on Tuesday evening next, when every man expecting to go to Toronto is expected to be in attendance. Tunics will be worn unless the evening be wet, when serges will replace them.

It is incumbent on every officer to have his men in the best possible condition, in order that credit may be reflected on the town when the review takes place in Toronto.

THEY CLOSED THE SWING.

Enniamore Residents got Impatient to Cross the New Bridge.

The Chemong Lake bridge is completed with the exception of a few trifling details and the structure will in all probability be passed upon by the county engineer next week.

The bridge is at present fit for travel, but until it is formally assumed by the county the contractors have declined to allow it to be used for traffic. The swing bridge is kept open and the contractors have the crank for its adjustment under lock and key in their office. The matter of the absence of a crank, however, did not trouble some of the residents of Enniamore who were anxious to cross the bridge and get into market this morning.

Some of the boys got out with a boat last night and closed the swing enabling quite a number to cross this morning before the contractors were aware of what was going on.

MOTIVE POWER DEVELOPMENT

The meeting of the Board of Trade on Thursday evening was in no sense, it may be safely asserted, representative of the views and interests of the people of Peterborough. It seemed to be mainly a gathering of people interested in some of the local power enterprises or in, by some means, inducing the Government to deal with a local power company in a way that would prevent the latter from supplying power at figures which would be in the interest of the manufacturing advancement of the town. The result was, therefore, just what might have been expected where there were so many varied and conflicting interests concerned, and a corresponding variety of personal advocates. The result was the adoption of a colourless resolution, which has no practical bearing upon the present situation.

For many years the people of Peterborough have been looking for some sort of divine interposition that would develop and make available for public use, our great water powers, and no divine interposition came. At length through the efforts of some public spirited citizens of Peterborough, the Cereal Company was induced to locate in Peterborough and develop power for their own use. There is no use interjecting into the power discussion personal matters, and the relations of the Light and Power Company to the Gas Company, or of the Auburn Power Company to the associated concerns. All these matters are quite aside from the main question, and if they are not designed to obscure the merits of the main question, they certainly have the effect of complicating matters, befogging the subject, and preventing a clear view of the real point at issue.

In spite of all these personal and private interests which have been so insistently urged, the absolute fact remains that there has been for years no appreciable amount of power furnished or made available by the Auburn Power Company for manufacturing purposes, and what has been supplied, apart from large quantities, has been held at a price beyond its value, for the simple reason that they have had a monopoly. The Peterborough Light and Power Company have also had a monopoly of the supply of light, and the citizens of the town have been paying for 16-candle-power light, and it is for them to say whether that light has been up to the standard, or has even approximated the standard paid for.

Now no one can deny that the offer of the Otonabee Power Company to furnish power (independently and apart from the gentlemen connected with it) is a good and desirable one in the interests of the town, and calculated to meet the requirements of power for manufacturing purposes; nor can it be denied that these facts are what arouse the hostility and opposition of the old companies to the Otonabee Power Company, which have not only been unable to supply anything like the power required but by virtue of a monopoly have held what might have been available at impracticable prices. The people of the town—the ratepayers—must not lose sight of the fact that every pound of power developed on the Otonabee will be forced to find employment, and the finding of that employment of developed power, and bringing in industries to utilize that power must result beneficially to the town, increase its manufacturing industries and in the process enhance the value of every foot of land and of every dollar's investment in commercial undertakings. And that is the end to be aimed at, the general good of the town of Peterborough. This town has suffered, negatively at least, long enough from personal and private interests being given precedence to public interests, and such influences must not be allowed to remain. No hole and corner resolutions secretly concocted by persons whose local patriotism and public spirit have never led them to put a dollar into any enterprise, must be allowed to obstruct a large, practicable and feasible scheme for the development of power, to be made available for the purposes of this town.

The Dickson Company have had the advantage of cheap power for themselves, for they have been in a position to develop it for themselves. The Auburn Power Company have had the benefit of cheap power for themselves because they have been in a position to develop it for themselves. The Canadian General Electric Company will be able when their present works at Nassau are completed, to furnish themselves with cheap power, and the Cereal Company will, since they practically develop it themselves, have the benefit of power at reasonable cost.

The Otonabee Power Company will have no cheaper power for the use of manufacturers than any of the concerns mentioned, when there is taken into consideration the cost of production, the cost of transmission, and the cost of management. But there is this vitally important difference: According to the arrangement of the Otonabee Power Company with the town, the town will have 400 horse power at $15 per horse power, to offer to manufacturing industries, and, to any industry wishing to settle in Peterborough and, unable to secure power from any of the companies, the town can say, "We can, and do, offer you the power you require up to 400 horse power, at $15 per h.p." To this extent, therefore, the town has the key of the situation, and is in a position to deal on a business basis with industrial concerns seeking a good site and cheap power. These Peterborough is in a position to offer, once the Otonabee Power Company is in operation, which will, in all probability, be the first of February, judging from the urgent necessity of immediate development, and the activity of operations at Dam No. 5.

Viewed from a practical standpoint, the whole discussion, or, rather, squabble regarding water powers, is childish and irrelevant. It seems that only personal considerations, or considerations of private interests, inspire the opposition to a practical scheme of power development. All the zeal exhibited is not called forth by any feeling of interest in the town, or the property holders. With cheap power available, the town has a chance in this regard, which it has never had before, to offer inducements to manufacturing concerns to settle here. The conditions surrounding the lease of power to the Otonabee Power Company, are such as to force the immediate development of power, such as required for four concerns now needing it, and for other concerns which may be seeking a location where first-class transportation facilities and power at a low price are available.

The Dominion Government is composed of men of business ability and experience in business affairs, and we have no doubt the Government has a full knowledge of the local situation, and recognizes the importance of immediate development of power, and not only the immediate, but future development, such as future needs may call for. We are sure in dealing with any further development, the Government will proceed with regard to sound business principles, such as will produce the best results in providing an abundant, as needed, supply of power, and at a rate reasonable enough to permit of the town being placed in a position to give cheap power inducements to manufacturing concerns.

The point for the ratepayers to keep before their eyes is that every additional development of power on the Otonabee River imposes a new obligation upon the promoters of the enterprise to find a market for that power. To do this, new industries must be brought to town, and, therefore, every power developer will be an agent, in addition to the Town Council, the Board of Trade, and every public spirited citizen in adding to the wealth and industrial importance of the town, as represented by additional manufactories. From a Peterborough point of view, therefore, all the power possible should be developed, and it is in the interest of every citizen to see that the Government does not place upon the work of developing power, restrictions that they do not place elsewhere, and all efforts, by whatever interest suggested to induce the Government to make the development of water power more difficult, should be frowned down by every ratepayer who has the interests of the town at heart.

Is it in the interest of Peterborough to have new manufactories? Is it in the interests of the town that the Canadian Cordage Company should establish its works here? Is it in the town's interests that the Shovel Company should do its manufacturing in Peterborough? Is it in the interests of the town that the Central Milling Company should build a mill here, establish a new market for grain, and employ labour in Peterborough? Is it in the town's interest that Mr. Meldrum's mill should be built in Peterborough, creating employment for labour and a market for grain? Is it in the interests of the merchants of Peterborough that every farmer possible should be induced to make Peterborough his market centre? Some farmers assert that other towns afford a better grain market than Peterborough. Is it not our interest to change that by encouraging every enterprise that will, by creating a larger demand for grains, enhance the price? Every additional bushel of grain that can be made to find sale in Peterborough, represents an additional profit to the merchant and trader.

The Examiner has no interest in any of the power development schemes, existent or projected. It wishes them all well, and hopes that their investment will be found profitable, and that they will find a market for all the power they can make available. It also hopes that the other dams on the river will be applied for, for the development of power, and trusts that the Government will place no obstacle in the way of bringing about the development of all the water powers in sight so that Peterborough may get what she requires for her future greatness as a manufacturing centre, practically unlimited water power, and at a cheap rate.

CZOLGOSZ AFRAID.

President McKinley's Murderer Breaks Down at Auburn—A Case of Nervous Terror.

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Czolgosz, President McKinley's murderer, in the custody of Sheriff Caldwell of Erie County and 21 regular and special deputies arrived at Auburn at 3.15 a. m. yesterday. The prison is just across the road from the depot, the distance which the party had to walk after alighting from the car being less than fifty yards. Awaiting the arrival of the murderer was a crowd of only about 200 people, but either from fear of the crowd, which was not very demonstrative, or from the sight of the prison, Czolgosz's legs gave out, and two burly deputy sheriffs were compelled to practically carry the man into the prison. Inside the gate his condition became worse, and he was dragged up the stairs and into the main hall. He was placed in a sitting posture on the bench, while the handcuffs were being removed, but he fell over and moaned and groaned, evidencing the most abject terror.

As soon as the cuffs were unlocked the man was dragged into the principal keeper's office. As in the case of all prisoners the officers immediately proceeded to strip him, and put on a new suit of clothes. During this operation Czolgosz cried and yelled, making the prison corridors echo and re-echo with evidence of his terror.

The prison physician, Dr. John Gerin, was summoned, and on his arrival he examined the man, and ordered his removal to the cell in the condemned row, which he will occupy until he is taken to the electric chair. The doctor declared that the man was suffering from fright and terror, but declared he was shamming to some extent.

The collapse of the murderer was a surprise to everyone. En route from Buffalo he showed no indication of breaking down. He talked some and expressed regret for his crime. He said, "I am sorry for Mrs. McKinley."

President McKinley's Will.

Canton, Ohio, Sept. 28.—The will of the late President McKinley was offered for probate yesterday afternoon. All his real estate and the income of any personal property is bequeathed to Mrs. McKinley. To his mother he directs that $1,000 a year be paid, and at her death said sum to be paid to his sister, Helen McKinley. Whatever property remains at the death of his wife shall go to his brother and sisters, share and share alike.

It Saves From Disease and Death

Mr. Charles Comeau,

of Neguac, New Brunswick, Says:

"I AM NOW CURED THANKS TO Paine's Celery Compound"

Dyspepsia and Liver Trouble Forever Banished.

The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs,—I can conscientiously recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who may be suffering from dyspepsia and liver trouble. For years while living in the Black Brook, I suffered from a complication of troubles, and was so bad with dyspepsia that I could not touch a morsel of food. I found it difficult to sleep, and what little I did get was often broken with dreams. Intense sufferings from liver complaint added to my load of agony; I also had dizziness, pains in the back, and was pale, haggard and despondent.

I kept doctoring and dosing without deriving the slightest benefit, and finally gave up all hope of getting well. One day my daughter, who had read of a wonderful cure by Paine's Celery Compound, begged me to try one bottle of the medicine. I told her it was no use to throw away money, but she pleaded so hard, that to please her, I bought a bottle, and before it was used up I felt better. Encouraged so much, I continued with the medicine and improved every day.

I am now cured, thanks to Paine's Celery Compound. You cannot wonder that I consider Paine's Celery Compound the greatest medical discovery in the world. I urge all who are suffering to try this grand medicine and test its virtues.

Yours truly,
CHAS. COMEAU.

HIS HANDS ARE TIED

Alleged Disagreement Between Kitchener and Brodrick.

MARTIAL LAW IS THE CAUSE.

Pall Mall Gazette Says Commander of the Forces in South Africa Is Dissatisfied With the Partial Enforcement of the Law, Which He Wants Proclaimed at Cape Town and Elsewhere.

London, Sept. 28.—The Pall Mall Gazette yesterday afternoon confirmed the rumor published by The Daily News yesterday of differences between Lord Kitchener and War Secretary Brodrick, and adds that as a result Mr. Brodrick has had a long interview with the King.

The Pall Mall Gazette declares it is in a position to say that Lord Kitchener is dissatisfied with the partial enforcement of martial law in South Africa, wanting it proclaimed at Cape Town and elsewhere. He also desires more serious penalties for rebellion, and better reinforcements. Lord Kitchener took over the command with the explicit understanding that his hands were not to be tied, but, as this condition was not carried out, "he is seriously reconsidering his position."

British Made a Demand.

Lisbon, Sept. 28.—The British Ambassador has demanded that the Portuguese Government stop the smuggling of arms for the Boers, through Lorenzo Marquez, on the East African coast. The local papers denounce the demand as officious intermeddling by the British.

Rinderpest at Pretoria.

Pretoria, Sept. 27.—Rinderpest is virulent here. The outbreak was first noticed about Sept. 4, and the disease has now spread through the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony. Energetic measures have been taken to inoculate all the Government and private stock now in the hands of the British, and it is said the pestilence has already been checked. The stock that is still in the hands of the Boers is expected to suffer heavily. The visitation is looked upon by the British as a not unmixed curse, as it is hoped that because of the loss of their cattle the Boers will be unable to harvest their crops.

The Appeal for Arbitration.

New York, Sept. 28.—Charles J. Pierce, representative in the United States of the Orange Free State, has received a copy of the appeal for arbitration made by the Boers to the Administrative Council of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

HONORS FOR CANADIANS.

Col. Cartwright and Trooper Mulloy Among Those Decorated.

London, Sept. 28.—A long list of honors and promotions conferred for service in South Africa is published. Major Burnham, the American Scout who was on the staff of Lord Roberts, gets a companionship of the Distinguished Service Order; Lady Sarah Wilson is decorated with the Royal Red Cross; Col. Cartwright of the Canadian corps becomes a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and 16 other Canadians receive the Companionship of the Distinguished Service Order, including Mulloy, the blind trooper.

Want to Quit.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Several letters have been received from Ottawa troopers in South Africa, saying that at the end of the year the writers will buy their release from the service.

The ground for complaint on the part of the men is that they have not received horses, but are doing infantry duty, and that they are kept so constantly on the move that all their waking hours are spent in hard work, and there is practically no leisure. The writers say that fully 60 per cent. of the Canadians will buy out at the end of the year and return to Canada. They enlisted for three years.

Honor to a Gunner.

Acton, Sept. 28.—At Acton to-day a monument erected by popular subscription will be unveiled to the memory of the late W. J. Moore, a gunner in D Battery, who died at Pretoria on Nov. 9 last. Gunner Moore was a general favorite, and all classes unite to do honor to his memory.

Joint Action Against Turkey.

Paris, Sept. 28.—The Courier du Soir, which is usually well informed, makes the following sensational statement: "One of the results of the conference between the Emperor Nicholas and President Loubet, M. Waldeck-Rosseau and M. Delcasse during the Czar's visit to France is an exchange of views between European cabinets, now progressing, with the object of arriving at an understanding as to action against Turkey. Germany's concurrence is assured, as Emperor William has consented, but Count Von Buelow has raised objection to some of the details of the action proposed, thus necessitating a further reference to the other Governments before a final decision can be reached."

Whole Train Was Derailed.

Omaha, Sept. 28.—A through passenger train on the Wabash from St. Louis to Omaha was wrecked yesterday 11 miles southeast of Council Bluffs. The entire train, consisting of mail and baggage cars, two day coaches, a chair car and a Pullman sleeper, rolled down an 18 foot embankment and turned bottomside up. The train carried nearly a hundred passengers. Three persons were perhaps fatally injured, 16 seriously hurt, and a score of other persons received minor bruises.

RACE WILL BE RE-SAILED TO-DAY.

Brisk Breeze for Second Meeting of Shamrock and Columbia.

New York, Sept. 28.—The first race of the America's Cup series, which, after a disappointing day of fluky zephyrs, was abandoned in a dead calm Thursday, will be re-sailed to-day. At a late hour last night the Weather Bureau issued the following bulletin:

"The wind on Sandy Hook on Saturday will be fresh and easterly in the morning, and will probably shift to northeast in the afternoon, increasing to brisk."

According to the definition of a "fresh breeze," interpreted into figures from the standard of the Weather Bureau, in the morning the velocity of the wind will vary from 10 to 19 miles an hour. By a brisk breeze is meant one driving anywhere between 20 and 29 miles an hour.

PAID FOR REVIEW.

All Units Will Get 50 Per Cent. on Account of Pay and Rations.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—All units taking part in the royal review at Toronto will be allowed an advance of 50 per cent. on account of pay and rations.

At the termination of the mobilization, officers commanding brigades, including cavalry, field artillery, infantry, rifles and army medical corps, will forward to headquarters, Ottawa, with the least possible delay, the pay sheets and claims of the units under their respective commands, accounting thereon for advances received.

Applications for the Canadian general service medal for services in the Fenian Raids of 1866 and 1870, and the Red River expedition of 1870, will be considered until further orders.

Few People Escape Piles

And Dr. Chase's Ointment is the Only Positive and Guaranteed Cure for This Torturing Disease.

There is usually very little satisfaction in consulting a physician regarding a case of piles. In nine cases out of ten he will recommend a surgical operation, forgetting, it may be, the risk, suffering and physical as well as financial expense which this treatment entails. For this reason very many people are going about in misery with piles, believing that they cannot be cured except by means of the surgeon's knife.

It is to such persons that this advertisement will bring good news of great value. Dr. Chase's Ointment has grown in popularity until to-day it is recognized the world over as the standard ointment for the cure of itching, burning skin diseases, and as absolutely the only preparation that can be relied upon to cure every form of piles.

It seems strange that anyone should suffer the wretched uneasiness and acute torture of burning, itching piles when it is so easy to procure Dr. Chase's Ointment. Nearly every dealer in medicine keeps Dr. Chase's Ointment, and you can apply it at home without any inconvenience. The first application is usually sufficient to put an end to the itching, and it is rarely that more than one box is required to make a thorough cure.

Mr. F. Stokes, 116 Dunlop street, Barrie, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with blind, itching piles for years, and could get nothing to stop the constant itching. I was always in pain until a friend of mine told me of the wonderful cures Dr. Chase's Ointment had made among his acquaintances.

"I only used one box, and am entirely cured. In gratitute for this marvellous cure, and for the benefit of others suffering as I did, I send you this record of my case."

Mr. Geo. A. Booth, of Trenton, Ont., writes:—"This is to certify that Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely cured me of itching piles from which I suffered for two years in spite of all the remedies I used and which failed to cure me."

Hosts of cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has actually cured serious and long-standing cases of piles have been reported in the Canadian press. Should you want to know more about it ask your druggist or your neighbour. There are few people in Canada who are not familiar with the record of this famous preparation. If your dealer does not have Dr. Chase's Ointment in stock it will be sent post-paid on receipt of price, 60 cts. a box, by Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 12

Conservatives Win the Seat.

London, Sept. 27.—A Parliamentary bye-election was held Thursday in Northeast Lanarkshire to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John Colville, who had represented this constituency in the Liberal interest since 1895.

The following was the result of the polling: Sir William Rattigan, Conservative, 5,673; Cecil Harmsworth, Liberal Imperialist, 4,789; Robert Smillie, Laborite, 2,900.

Thus a split in the Liberal vote, the outcome of the war in South Africa, has given to the Government a seat which the Liberals carried by 1,552 at the last general election.

A SHORT APPLE CROP

Reports of Failure From All Parts of Ontario.

WILL BE NONE FOR EXPORT.

Thirty Per Cent. of the Average Yield Will Be All That May Be Depended Upon in the Province—Growers Will Have to Get Better Prices or Lose Money This Year.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—A careful estimate submitted at the National Apple Dealers' Convention in this city on August 7 placed the entire output of apples in Ontario at 35 per cent. of an average yield. Unfavorable weather conditions have since reduced this estimate to 30 per cent. The following summaries of advices from towns throughout Ontario brings the information about the crop down to date:

The apple crop in the Napanee section was exceptionally poor this year, the yield not being more than twenty-five per cent. of the average. This was again greatly diminished by the prevailing heavy winds, which reduced it fully fifty per cent.

At Sarnia the apple crop is about a complete failure.

At Berlin the apple crop is scarce, almost nil for winter fruit.

There is practically no apples in the St. Catharines section. Spies are the best, but there is no crop for buyers and not enough for the local demand.

The apple crop is very short in Perth and the quality only fair.

The apple crop in Huron County was thirty-five per cent. of regular crop, but reduced by wind storms to twenty-five per cent.

In Oxford County the apple crop is not what the farmers would have it. On the whole, it is going to be very slim, and the apples are said to be threatened with a worm.

The apple crop in the County of Peel may be considered a failure, not over probably a third of what it usually is.

The buyers say there are no apples for export in the Guelph section. Only enough for home trade.

The apple crop in St. Vincent Township, Grey County, is anything but satisfactory to fruit growers. It will not be over one-quarter the usual yield.

The apple crop in the Markham section is a total failure. Farmers throughout the township all say that they won't have one barrel where last year they had 25 to 50.

The crop of apples in the Owen Sound vicinity is fair; about 20 per cent. was lost owing to high winds the past ten days, but the quality is No. 1.

There are no extensive apple growers in the Kingston district. The yield is only about half the usual amount.

The apple crop in the Belleville district, which was originally not more than 25 per cent. of last year's, suffered a loss of at least one-fourth by a heavy gale some two weeks ago.

Apple crop in the Chatham vicinity very poor; almost a failure.

Very few apples in the Brantford section; they are so scarce that crop is considered a failure here.

The apple crop in Prince Edward County this year is not nearly as large as was expected earlier in the season. A wind storm a few days ago was very damaging to the crop. It is estimated that at least a quarter of the apples were blown off.

The apple crop in the Paris section is almost a complete failure, and fruit growers are not at all encouraged at the outlook.

The apple crop in the locality of Port Hope will not yield over 25 per cent.

The apple crop throughout Wentworth is a failure, all varieties being scarce and of poor quality.

In the vicinity of Wallaceburg there are no apples of any kind; crop a total failure.

The apple crop in the counties surrounding London will be a very short one this season. Fall apples will average about 10 per cent. of the usual crop. Winter apples will pan out about 30 to 35 per cent. of former years.

The apple crop in the Galt section will be very light. Farmers, as a rule, will hardly have enough for home use.

In the neighborhood of Niagara-on-the-Lake the apple crop may be said to be a total failure.

Around Whitby the crop is away below what it usually is on an off year.

Imitations

of Dodd's Kidney Pills are legion. The box is imitated, the outside coating and shape of the pills are imitated and the name—Dodd's Kidney Pills is imitated. Imitations are dangerous. The original is safe. Dodd's Kidney Pills have a reputation. Imitators have none or they wouldn't imitate. So they trade on the reputation of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Do not be deceived. There is only one DODD'S. Dodd's is the original. Dodd's is the name to be careful about—

MARKET REPORTS.

Wheat Cables Lower—Chicago Wheat Up a Peg—Manitoba Wheat Grading Fairly Well—The Latest Quotations.

Thursday Evening, Sept. 26.

Wheat cables were lower to-day. In Paris the closing was 20 centimes lower for Sept, and 25 centimes lower for January and April.

Wheat futures were lower in Liverpool by ½d to ⅝d and corn futures by ⅝d to ¾d.

In the Chicago markets wheat and corn closed ½c higher. Oats were quoted unchanged from yesterday.

New Manitoba wheat coming forward is grading fairly well. During the week ending Sept. 14 there were inspected at Winnipeg 1045 cars of wheat, of which 466 graded No. 1 hard, 390 No. 1 northern, 161 No. 2 northern, 5 No. 3 northern, 10 rejected, 2 no grade, 5 condemned. The large proportion of wheat grading No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern (there is no No. 2 hard grade now), makes it evident that the bulk of the wheat is bringing top prices.

STOPPED BUYING WHEAT.

Elevator Men Urge Farmers to Dry It in the Sheck.

Winnipeg, Sept. 27.—The following statement was given out for publication yesterday by an elevator man:

In view of the wet weather, the enormous quantity of wheat still in stock and the limited facilities of treating same by drying, the elevator companies have decided to stop buying for a time in the hope that farmers will abstain from threshing till the grain has had an opportunity to dry in the shock, which it will do more quickly than in any other way, and will secure better prices to the producer and less risk to the dealer. The elevator companies, however, are prepared to receive and ship for farmers at their own risk of grade and condition.

Long Life is Inherited.

This statement you can prove by investigation. When a person whose ancestors had long lives dies in middle age you can in nine cases out of ten trace the cause to disordered kidneys and consequent suffering from Bright's disease, rheumatism, fatty heart or dropsy. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prevent and cure these fatal and painful diseases as no other preparation was ever known to do. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

Strictly Appropriate

One of the pretty Sunday-school teachers has a class of little girls, and it is her custom to tell them each Sunday of some little incident that has happened in the week and request the children to quote a verse of Scripture to illustrate the story. In this way she hopes to impress the usefulness of Biblical knowledge upon the little ones. Last Sunday she told her class of a cruel boy who would catch cats and cut their tails off.

"Now, can any little girl tell me of an appropriate verse?" she asked. There was a pause for a few moments, when one little girl arose and in a solemn voice said:

"Whatsoever God has joined together let no man put asunder."

Look Ahead, Girls.

If young girls would look ahead it would sometimes save them from serious collision with the men they marry. It is here that ignorance is almost a crime. The young husband cannot understand it when the wife changes to a peevish, nervous, querulous woman. And the young wife does not understand it herself. She only knows that she is very miserable.

If ever there is a time when nature needs help it is when the young girl is adjusting herself to the new conditions of wifehood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It promotes regularity, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All womanly confidences are guarded with strict professional privacy. Write without fear or fee to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I will drop you a few lines to-day to let you know that I am feeling well now," writes Miss Anaie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., West Va. "I feel like a new woman. I took several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have no headache now, no backache, and no pain in my side any more. No bearing-down pain any more. I think there is no medicine like Dr. Pierce's medicine. I thank you very much for what you have done for me—your medicine has done me so much good."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

WHY WOMEN

Like Merrill's System Tonic.

The first reason is that the use of this valuable medicine produces a clear complexion, rosy cheeks and ruby lips. You can easily tell a well woman. Her step is light and buoyant, her complexion as described above, and there is a complete lack of that don't-care-to-live air about her. These results can be obtained by any woman, no matter what her complexion may now be, and no matter how old or care worn she may feel, if she persists in using a few bottles of Merrill's System Tonic. It cures constipation and liver troubles, which causes the sallow and muddy complexion. It restores the blood to its naturally healthy condition and this gives the tint to the skin without the use of face powder. It cures female trouble and regulates the female functions, and restores the vivacity of girlhood. Used according to instructions it cures falling of the womb, whites and leucorrhœa. No medicine in the world to-day is more valuable to make sick women well, than Merrill's System Tonic.

Give it to young girls who are pale and nervous. Give it to women who expect to become mothers. Give it to women in all conditions of life and it will more than substantiate its claims. Merrill's System Tonic purifies the blood, builds up the system, strengthens the nerves and cures constipation.

Each 50c bottle contains 50 pleasant-to-take doses, and is sold

PETERBOROUGH FALL ASSIZES.

Before Honourable Mr. Justice Falconbridge.

MONDAY AT ONE O'CLOCK.

There is Quite a Large List of Cases—Several of Local Interest—Perhaps no Criminal Work.

The fall assizes of the High Court of Justice for the County of Peterborough open at one o'clock on Monday, before the Honourable Mr. Justice Falconbridge, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Division of the High Court of Justice. The docket is considerably heavier than usual, there being nine cases in all set down for hearing. Four of these are jury cases and five non-jury actions. There may not be any criminal cases for hearing as it is not yet known whether the Hull larceny case will be put down for trial.

JURY CASES.

Morrison vs. Canadian General Electric Company. The plaintiff was James Morrison, who resides in the city of Toronto. In his statement of claim he alleges that on or about the 11th day of February, 1901, he was employed in the service of the Canadian General Electric Company, in Peterborough, as wireman, and that on the 11th day of February, while wiring a factory building then in course of construction, for the defendents, he was ordered to go upon a platform or scaffold, hung from a gallery, which runs around the interior of the said factory building, at a height of 25 feet from the ground floor, that he accordingly went on the said scaffold, and proceeded with his work, and that while so employed it broke into pieces, causes the plaintiff to fall to the floor, a distance of about 25 feet, by reason of which he sustained severe injuries, including a collis fracture of the left arm, a dislocation of the left elbow, etc. He alleges that the said scaffold was dangerous and in defective condition, that the defendents had previous knowledge of this and he therefore asks that he be allowed damages for said injuries, the cost of the action, and such other relief as the nature of the case may require.

The statement of the defence is very brief. The defendants deny the allegations contained in the statement of claims, and set up that any accident to the plaintiff was caused by his own want of prudence, care and caution, which contributed to the same.

Denton, Dunn & Boultree, Toronto, for plaintiffs; Smith, Rue & Greer, Toronto, for defendants.

Dunlop vs. Perth Mutual Fire Insurance Company. This is an action in which the plaintiff seeks to recover from the defendants the amount of a fire insurance policy, alleged to have been held by the said defendants on certain property of the plaintiff, and which was destroyed by fire. The money has not yet been paid, the plaintiff alleges, although particulars of the loss and damage have been duly delivered to the defendants.

The defendants allege that the plaintiff, in insuring his property, misrepresented the then cash value of the goods insured, therefore violating the contract between the company and the policy-holder. The defendants also allege that the plaintiff swore to fulfill declarations, and they further allege that the fire by which the goods insured are alleged to have been destroyed, was procured by the act of the plaintiff.

Odlum de Laplante for plaintiff; McPherson & Davidson, Stratford, for defendants.

Scriver vs. Richardson. The plaintiff, John B. Scriver, is a labourer residing in the Township of Asphodel, and the defendant, Thomas Richardson, is a farmer residing in the same township. The action is brought by the plaintiff to recover damages to the extent of $2000, claiming that the defendant, on a certain date, seduced Margaret Amelia Scriver, servant of the plaintiff.

The defendant denies the allegations contained in the plaintiff's statement of claims, and puts the plaintiff to proof thereof.

Fred Clarry, Hastings, for plaintiff; Geo. J. Sherry, Norwood, for defendant.

Fitzgerald vs. Fitzgerald. This is an action arising out of the will of the late James W. Fitzgerald. Plaintiff is Margaret Fitzgerald, widow of the said late J. W. Fitzgerald, and the defendant is a son of the late Mr. Fitzgerald by a former marriage. The statement of claim alleges that she was duly married to the deceased, etc., and that subsequent thereto she joined in execution of certain mortgages for the purpose of barring her dower in certain lands, two of which mortgages were subsequently paid off. Then, that some time later, without her knowlegde and consent of the plaintiff, the deceased, for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiff of her dower, made a secret voluntary conveyance of the said lands to the defendant for an "alleged expressed consideration of $11,000, reserving to himself, the deceased, a life estate, without impeachment for waste." The deceased then made his last will and testament, whereby he appointed the defendent as sole executor and made made him sole beneficiary of his estate, without making any provision for the plaintiff or the issue of her marriage with the deceased. The plaintiff claims that the conveyance was made without consideration and without bonafides and were merely calamable and formed forming part of a scheme to deprive her of her dower in the said lands. She asks that her dower be given her out of the said lands, that the said conveyance be declared null and void, as against the plaintiff's right to dower in the said lands, and, if necessary, that the same be set aside, damages for arrears, etc.

The statement of defence is in effect that the conveyances were made in good faith and were bona fides, and that they were made with consideration, and denies that they were made "without colour," etc.

Roger & Bennet, for plaintiffs; E.B. Edwards, K.C., for defendants.

NON-JURY CASES.

Humphries vs. Agget. The plaintiff is Henry Humphries, and the defendant is Courtland Agget, who were both executors and trustees of and under a certain will. For certain alleged actions on the part of the defendant, the plaintiff seeks to have the defendant removed from the position and office of Executor and Trustee, and that a new one be appointed in his place.

F.B. Edwards, K.C., for plaintiff; A.L. Colville, for defendant.

Thorndyke vs. Thorndyke. An action arising out of the will of the late Elizabeth Thorndyke, mother of the plaintiff, Joseph Thorndyke. The defendant, Wm. Thorndyke, is a brother of the plaintiff. The action is brought about to set aside a certain instrument said to have been executed by the late Mrs. Thorndyke.

R. Ruddy, Millbrook, for plaintiff; Robertson & McLellan, Toronto, for defendants.

Poussette vs. the Dickson Co. This is a case arousing out of the alleged agreement of sale between the Dickson Co. and Mr. Starr, of Cornwall. The plaintiff claims the sum of $40,000 for his services in bringing about the said alleged agreement of sale, which the plaintiff claims the defendants refused to carry out.

The defendants, amongst other things state that they know nothing about the alleged agreement mentioned in the statement of claim, and that they never authorized or requested plaintiff to enter into any such negotiations.

Clarke, Banes & Swabey, Toronto, for plaintiff; Roger & Bennet for defendants.

Ontario Bank vs. Wynn and Ferguson. This is an action in which the plaintiffs seek to recover from the defendants the amount of an alleged joint promisory note for the sum of $1600. The defendant, Robert Ferguson, denies that he signed any such note.

Poussette & McWilliams for plaintiff; G.S. Sherry for defendant Ferguson.

Starr vs. Hazlitt. The plaintiff in this action is David A. Starr, of the town of Cornwall, and the defendants are Mary Ann Hazlitt, Ellen Walsh, Elizabeth Davidson, Charlotte Dickson, Martha Dickson and the Dickson Co., Limited. The plaintiff alleges that the defendants agreed to sell "The Companies real estate in Peterborough, Ashburnham, and Lakefield, and the company's timber berths in the Township of Anstruther, Cavendish and Harvey, together with all saw logs and timber cut on the same during the season 1900, all the said logs and timber lying at Lakefield and Peterborough, all lumbering plant and horses, together with the Steamer 'Alligator,' and also the shares in the Peterborough Light & Power Co., held by the defendents, and the Co's. half interest in the Peterborough and Ashburnham Street Railway Company, also all lumber, lathe, shingles and wood for the price or sum of five hundred and thirty thousand dollars, payable in the manner set forth in the said agreement, to which the plaintiff at the trial of this action craves leave to refer." Continuing in his statement of the claim, the plaintiff alleges that the defendants failed to convey out the said agreements, although the plaintiff states that he has always been ready to carry out his portion of the said agreement. He claims damages to the extent of seventy-seven thousand dollars and the costs of the action.

The defendants say, amongst other things, that "the said defendants know nothing of the alleged agreement in writing of the 9th of May, 1900, set up by the plaintiff."

There is also a statement of defence on the part of the individual members of the company filed by Messrs. Hall & Hayes.

Leitch, Pringle & Caron, Cornwall, for plaintiffs; Hall & Hayes for defendants, Dickson Co., and Roger & Bennet for the individual members of the Company.

WOOD CARVING.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

RUGBY.

The tickets are now out and the members may procure the same from the secretary or his assistant.

Norwood has written the secretary of the local club that they will be unable to get a team together this season.

Ben Simpson of town, will play half-back on the Queen's team this year. Last season he played full-back.

The chances are that Peterborough's team will be shaken up a bit this season. The absence from town of a number of old players will make such changes necessary. Some of the Management Committee in chatting the situation over the other night, favoured playing Harold Armstrong at full back and bringing Scott up to the half back line to play with Vic McWilliams and McPherson. Hal Burnham would then be moved to inside wing, taking Revell's place, the latter being used to strengthen the scrimmage. The other two men in the scrimmage would then be Jack Dainard and Sturgeon. Dillon is said to be slated for inside wing on the other side and Norman Bell for quarter. Crowley, Rickey and Graham will of course catch places on the team and there is a big bunch of aspirants out for the remaining positions.

Corbett had been drinking and annoying the Bulger family. They kept a grocery and the deceased owed them money for goods. He wanted some things, and upon being refused went to the home of the Bulger's and raised a row. Mr. Bulger went to get a policeman, and Mrs. Bulger claimed that Corbett tried to get in through a window. WHEN S.A. WAR IS OVER

King Edward and Queen Alexandra May Visit Colonies.

INDIANS GREET THE DUKE.

Progress of the Royal Tour Through Canada—At Calgary the Party Was Met by a Great Gathering of Red Men—Medals Presented to Those Who Won Them in South Africa.

London, Sept. 30.—The Daily Express says it understands that when the war in South Africa is over King Edward and Queen Alexandra intend to visit the Colonies and India, and that while in India His Majesty will be crowned Emperor of India.

INDIANS GREET THE DUKE.

A Great Gathering of Red Men at Calgary to Meet Royalty—Presentation of S.A. Medals.

Calgary, N. W. T., Sept. 30.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall were entertained Saturday by Indians, cowboys and mounted police, who pictured northwestern frontier life before them with all of the dash and color, and count the experience one of the most interesting of their Canadian tour. Their special train arrived here shortly before 10 o'clock, and a delegation of city officials and citizens gave formal greeting to the royal party. The Duchess was escorted to a coach, and, surrounded by a detachment of mounted police, drawn through the crowded streets to Victoria Park.

Mounts were provided for the Duke and his staff, and, attired in his uniform of the Royal Fusiliers, with the ribbons of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, they rode to the park. At the park three troops of the mounted police were drawn up and the Duke inspected and reviewed them. The police then executed a series of manoeuvres which were splendidly done. The Duke then decorated Inspector J. M. Belcher of the Mounted Police with the Order of St. Michael and St. George, won for services in South Africa with Strathcona's Horse, and presented service medals to 107 men who participated in the South African campaign.

At the head of the service men walked Col. L. W. Herchmer, for many years commandant of the Mounted Police and now superannuated, in the plain clothes of a civilian.

Visited Indians.

After the review and presentation of medals, the royal party rode to Shaganappie Point, where the tepees of 2,500 Black Feet, Blood, Pigan, Farce, Stoney and Cree Indians were pitched. They had gathered from all over the territory to greet the son of their great white chief. The Dominion Indian regulations were relaxed for the occasion, and those who desired wore the paint and feathers of the olden war times. Their camp was pitched on a table land commanding a view of the valley.

The Duke and Duchess, with the Countess of Minto, Premier Laurier and Duke's staff, occupied a specially erected stand, and before the chiefs, with their blankets and pipes, sat for the pow-wow. Besides the chiefs in circular form were the boys and girls from the Indian mission schools, and still further back, in another semi-circle, were the squaws and pappooses; while to the extreme rear were 400 mounted braves.

When the Duke had reached the centre of this vast and picturesque group the loyal address of the chiefs was read.

After the addresses, several of the chiefs spoke in their native tongues—White Pup of the Black Feet, Crop Ear Wolf of the Bloods, Running Wolf of the Piegans, Bulls Head of the Sarcees, Jonas Big Stony of the Stonies, and Joseph Samson of the Crees. Hon. David Laird, Dominion Commissioner for the Indians, acted as master of ceremonies.

The only speaker who developed the proverbial eloquence of the Redman was Sampson, who, seizing on a momentary change in the skies as a theme, said that even as he spoke the sun was bursting in the heavens as a token of welcome, and expressed the hope that peace and goodwill might ever reign on earth, and especially among tribes of Alberta. The other chiefs were strongly in favor of more grub and more blankets.

The Duke cast his reply in high flown language, the only previous occasion on which he has used it during his tour having been in speaking to the Maoris of New Zealand. He pointed out that their pipes were empty and their hearths cold when the great white mother had come to their aid, but the part which won a response from his hearers was his allusion to their loyalty during the rebellion of 1885. This allusion was loudly applauded by the chiefs and head men around him.

The children from the missions sang "God Save the King," and then in strange contrast there was a wild fantastic dance. The mounted Indians dashed about the plain in an exhibition of wild and reckless riding, following a Sarcee chief whose partially naked body was painted a bright yellow. The Duke and Duchess were greatly interested in the Indians, and, leaving the stand, spent ten minutes walking among them. Through the interpreters they conversed with several of them, shaking hands with the chiefs as they departed.

Luncheon was held at the N.W.M.P. barracks, after which the royal train left for the west.

Sunday Through the Rockies.

Revelstoke, B.C., Sept. 30. — The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall made yesterday through the Rocky and Selkirk Mountains, and by noon to-day will be at Vancouver.

Dragged to Death.

Frankville, Sept. 30.—Jerry Bullis of Plum Hollow was found dead on Brockville road, two miles south of here, on Saturday. He left here with two companions, who had got out of the buggy about one-quarter of a mile from where Bullis was found. Bullis' foot caught under the foot iron of the buggy, which just allowed his head and shoulders to drag on the stoney road. He evidently fell out of the buggy as soon as the others had got out.

School Teacher Disappeared.

London, Ont., Sept. 30.—A young man named Edgar Down, who taught school near Whalen, Osborne Township, has disappeared from that neighborhood, and his whereabouts have not since been learned.

WISHES TO HANG THEM.

How Rumor Say Lord Kitchener Would Treat the Rebels—Also Wants 25,000 More Men.

London, Sept. 30.—The Daily Express publishes a report that Lord Kitchener has asked for 25,000 more seasoned mounted men and power to hang rebels, traitors and murderers without reference to the home government.

The King and Lord Kitchener.

London, Sept. 30.—"Immediately on his return from the continent," says The Daily News, "the King summoned a meeting of the council to consider Lord Kitchener's position. It is understood His Majesty assumed a very strong attitude and closely questioned ministers upon their proposals."

KITCHENER'S PAMPHLET.

Says Imperial Government Reciprocates Schalk-Burger—Peace Desire.

Pretoria, Sept. 29.—A pamphlet has been published here under Lord Kitchener's authority containing a notice of the permanent banishment of several Boer leaders captured since Sept. 15, and also a long letter from Lord Kitchener replying to a communication from Acting President Schalk-Burger, received Sept. 5. Lord Kitchener promises to send the Schalk-Burger letter to the Imperial Government, which he says reciprocates the Boer statesman's desire for peace.

Lord Kitchener then proceeds to explain that the responsibility for the war rests with the burghers, "Whose invasion of unprotected British territory opened the saddest page in South African history." He quotes a letter from a member of the Volksraad to a member of the Cape Colony Assembly, declaring that "the time is ripe to drive the English from South Africa."

In conclusion, Lord Kitchener declares that, having annexed the two Republics to Great Britain he cannot break faith with the people, who have shown loyalty to the new regime, and so far as clemency to Cape Colony rebels is concerned, this is the prerogative of the ruler, which must be exercised with unfettered discretion.

A proclamation has been issued providing for the sale of properties of burghers still in the field in accordance with the terms of Lord Kitchener's previous proclamation.

Kitchener's Mobile Column.

London, Sept. 30.—The South African mail yesterday brought the text of an order issued by Lord Kitchener, which has not been published through the cables. It reads as follows:

"The Commander-in-Chief in South Africa desires to impress upon officers in command of mobile columns that the object of such commands is mobility. He has learned that such forces have carried about with them furniture, kitchen ranges, pianos and harmoniums, which nullify that object. He orders that these articles must be handed over at the nearest stores."

The Canadians Honored.

London, Sept. 30.—Twenty-eight pages of The Gazette were taken up Friday night with the names of officers and men decorated for distinguished service in South Africa. The list included the following 17 members of the Canadian contingent: Lieut.-Col. Cartwright, to be Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George; Major "Gat" Howard, since killed in action; Major Sanders, Capt. Stairs, Capt. Macdonnell, Lieut. Morrison and Lieut. Mason, Companions of the Distinguished Service Order; Sergt.-Major Hynes, Sergt.-Major Richards, Sergt. Nelles, Strathcona's Horse; Sergt.-Major Gimblett, Gunner Laidlaw, Canadian Artillery; Sergt. Miles, Corp. Callahap, Trooper Crawley, Canadian Mounted Rifles; Trooper Waite, Canadian Mounted Infantry, and Pte. Mulloy, who lost his sight, to have the distinguished conduct medal. The American Scout, Burnham, is appointed a Companion of the Distinguished Service Order.

Honor a Soldier's Memory.

Acton, Ont., Sept. 30.—An event unusual and unique to this community was successfully consummated Saturday afternoon, when the monument erected by the citizens, comrades and friends of the late Gunner Moore of "D" battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, who died in the military hospital at Pretoria on Nov. 9, 1900, was unveiled with impressive ceremonies.

Verdict Against the Herald.

Stratford, Sept. 30.—At the Assize Court on Saturday the jury in the case of Mayor Davis of Mitchell against The Herald newspaper gave a verdict for $100, with costs, in favor of the Mayor. The Herald had made use of the expression "Tammany Hall methods" in referring to the action of the Mayor in respect to the laying of a granite walk on Huron street, which was put down with the object of benefiting the property of W. R. Davis, while owners of vacant lots on the other side of the street were made to pay the greater part of the cost. Mr. Dingman of The Herald, in his examination, had said that he interpreted the expression to mean "bossism" or the tyrannical ruling of a clique.

Fought a Pitched Battle.

San Francisco, Sept. 30.— Seven men were wounded, one, William Miller, probably fatally, in a pitched battle between strikers and policemen yesterday morning. Fifty shots were fired.

Life is too short to read the whole story, so don't criticise the book before you have read it.—Boston Transcript.

FRUITS OF FORWARD POLICY

Hon. Messrs. Gibson and Stratton on New Ontario.

Settlers Filling up the Fertile Areas—Results of the Construction of the Rainy River Railway—The Stunted Poplar Thrives.

From the Toronto Globe.

After a fortnight's absence in touring the northwestern part of Ontario, where they saw much of our new growing regions, and delivered a number of speeches at meetings in the towns and settlements, Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. J. R. Stratton on Thursday returned to their respective offices. They looked the better for their trip and were high in their praise of the prosperity and development, as well as the rich promise for the future, which they found wherever they went.

HON. MR. GIBSON'S IMPRESSIONS.

On being interviewed as to his impressions regarding the country just visited, the Attorney-General remarked, that the subject, like the territory itself, was a large one, and could not be at all adequately discussed in a desultory interview. Ten years ago, in company with the late Hon. A. S. Hardy, he had visited the Rainy River section and the progress made in the meantime in many directions was most striking and gratifying. There had been a very considerable influx of settlers from the older parts of Ontario, and perhaps the most progressive and thriving parts of the farming districts were to be found several miles back from the river banks. They had spent a portion of a day in driving several miles into some of these new settlements, and had had a good opportunity of witnessing for themselves the pioneer operations being carried on in making clearings and gradually bringing the wilderness into a state of cultivation. They had had an object lesson as to the great advantages of a judicious expenditure on colonization roads, as well as the necessity of a continuance of the Government policy in that matter, with, if possible, increased liberality.

"The fertility of the soil is unsurpassed anywhere," said Mr. Gibson, "the climate is not severe, and no early frosts injure the crops. Now that the Canadian Northern runs through the centre of this district throughout its entire length, any objection to the want of transportation, whether eastward or westward, has been removed. Indeed, it would be difficult to imagine a more desirable field for immigration of farm settlers who are not afraid to grapple with the ordinary difficulties and hardships incidental to original settlement." He had been impressed with the progress made at Rat Portage and the immense possibilities of that town becoming a manufacturing centre, utilizing the already developed and enormous water power at that point. Fort Frances had not grown very much during the past ten years, but having direct railway connection with the east and with Winnipeg and the Northwest and being the head of the Rainy River and the foot of Rainy Lake navigation, and possessing a most desirable and easily developed water power, it should in the near future become a place of importance.

GREAT PINE AREAS.

The timber in the Rainy Lake district seemed more plentiful than he had supposed. There are large areas of excellent Norway pine, which can be sawn into lumber for the increasing and ever-ready market in Manitoba. He had no doubt but that in the near future the Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake and the numerous other waters in that part of the province would be resorted to by summer tourists from the United States as well as from older Ontario. All elements and conditions prevail to afford the holiday-seeker just the sort of outing he is likely to desire. They had had the best of opportunities of seeing for themselves the new railway, and of forming some idea of the enormous difficulties which had been encountered and were being successfully overcome in crossing the arms of Rainy Lake. These several crossings and the heavy rock cuttings between form the most expensive section of the line, but the heavy outlay there at the present time would be amply justified in the comparatively speaking, entire absence of grades on the line throughout its whole distance from Winnipeg to Port Arthur. They had come down to Port Arthur from the present end of the rails near Sturgeon Falls, and merely casual observation would satisfy anyone that the railway was being built for an immense carrying trade and forming a competing outlet for the province and the great northwest.

MINING A FUTURE INDUSTRY.

They had passed through the Atikokan and Mattawan iron ranges, which are being tested, and which, if the tests prove satisfactory, will furnish an extensive business for the Canadian Northern Railway. In fact, if, as is expected, these mountains of iron should yield in quantity the grades and qualities of ores which experts at the present time are eagerly seeking for, the carrying trade for the railways and the shipping out from Port Arthur and Fort William must be followed by a rapid and considerable growth of these towns, while having a very important and permanent bearing on the general business interests of the province.

"The gold-mining excitement has quieted down," said the Attorney-General, "and many partially developed properties are dormant for the time being. Not a few of these will again take on an active condition. In some instances the process of re-capitalization or reorganization has to be gone through, while, of course, numerous properties bear testimony to want of experience, bad management or worse on the part of the original promoters. The usual phases of booms in mining locations having passed away and wild speculation having given place to careful business methods, there is every reason to expect that both gold and silver mining in the western part of the province will become profitable and permanent industries of considerable extent."

MR. STRATTON'S VIEWS.

"My opinions respecting this district as a part of New Ontario are to a great extent unchanged," said Hon. Mr. Stratton, "and what change has been made is in very emphatically strengthening the faith I have long had in New Ontario and its great and varied capabilities of development. I had long felt that a vigorous policy of development applied to the great resources of Northern Ontario would be 'productive of important results to both New and Old Ontario, so that when Premier Ross formed his Government and formulated his great policy of advancement I was ready, as were all my colleagues, to co-operate heartily in its application; and in our visit to the north we saw ample evidence in vindication of this policy and the effect it has already produced, and in the promises afforded of greater good results in the future, I firmly believe, that in ten years, Premier Ross, if his life is spared, will have reason to regard with pride the tremendous results in improvement and advancement that have followed his policy of development of New Ontario. My previous visit to the Rainy River District had been confined to the towns and villages, and with all my faith in the value of this district I was hardly prepared for the revelation which a direct visit to the agricultural lands presented. On the river alone was found a broad belt of agricultural land equal to the area of the eight or ten counties in the Midland District, and capable of sustaining a population of perhaps half a million. This belt extends along the whole river front from the Lake of the Woods to Rainy Lake, and it extends back 70 miles from a splendid shore line, well elevated, yet capable of tillage to the water's edge. The waterfront is pretty well settled, and the farmer who gives attention to his business does well, the best evidance of the adaptability of the soil to successful farming being afforded by settlers from Old Ontario. Many of their farms and surroundings remind one of what can be seen in this line in old Ontario. With a good leaven of Ontario farmers other settlers will have a model of good methods, which will make this district one of the finest farming regions in Ontario, for its soil is unsurpassed in fertility on this continent; and as to its climate—I do not know what weather you have had here, but during our stay in the Rainy River District it was delightful.

RESULT OF THE NEW RAILWAY.

"Leaving this district and passing across Rainy Lake, a good mining region is reached, though little mining is now going on, business complications interfering with the working of some mines and the immense cost of transport of machinery and supplies creating generally unprofitable conditions. But the Ontario & Rainy River Railway, now nearly completed, will not only, it seems possible give new impetus to gold-mining, but also lead to the development of the Atikokan and Mattawan iron mines, or rather mountains, near which the line passes. The prospect of easy access and outlet by rail has greatly stimulated exploration, and we were told that the Lake Superior Mining Company has paid $30,000 bonus to secure an option on two lots at the figure of $360,000. Thus the railway will have a large share in producing development of these immense iron deposits to an extent difficult of computation. As another result of this railway there is the construction at Port Arthur of great wharves and an elevator with a capacity for a million and a half bushels, which it is expected will be filled with a part of this season's Manitoba wheat crop, thus realizing another needed outlet for the great northwest wheat fields. When one comes to consider the great development results certain to follow the operation of this line, the Liberal Government of Ontario has reason to feel proud of the share it has had in the construction of this railway.

THE "STUNTED POPLAR" THRIVES.

"Speaking of railways, one must not forget the Algoma Central and its connection with the tremendous industrial operations at the Sault, which gives tenfold justification to the liberal assistance given by the government to this railway, which is one of the best built roads on the continent, built to last, to meet the requirements of the great future before it and the great industries associated with it. One cannot describe the wealth of resources of our great north, and the vast works going on for their development—it is only by actual observation that one can have even an approximate realization of the extent and importance of both. If Mr. Whitney should visit what he calls the 'land of the stunted poplar,' if he could not realize the extent and value of the resources of new Ontario and the great success of the development operations in progress, he would realize the 'colossal' folly of his incomprehensible antagonism to the advance policy of the Government in this regard.

"Though Mr. Gibson and myself were prepared for seeing a great deal, we were delightfully surprised with the indications we met of growth and development and industrial activity in the beautiful regions of new Ontario we visited. To summarize the results of our observation; new Ontario is all right, and the Ross Government policy is working splendidly."

MR. MULOCK IS WELL

Postmaster-General Has No Intention of Resigning.

BIG CROP OF RUMORS SPOILED.

The Minister Characterizes More Than One of Them as Pure Fabrications—Mr. Wm. Smith, B.A., Who Entered the Post Office Department Service 25 Years Ago, to Be Appointed to Secretaryship.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The Citizen publishes a story to the effect that Hon. William Mulock is about to retire from the Government owing to ill-health, and that he will be succeeded by Hon. James Sutherland. The Citizen also says that Mr. Laschinger, Private Secretary to Mr. Mulock, will be appointed Secretary of the Department in succession to Mr. W. D. Lesueur, who has been superannuated.

A correspondent interviewed Mr. Mulock and found him up to his ears in work at the Postoffice Department and displaying all his old time vigor. Asked if there was any truth in The Citizen's statement that he was retiring from the Government on account of ill-health, Mr. Mulock replied: "No; there is no truth whatever in the statement that I contemplate retiring from the Government. It is not true that my health is in the faintest degree impaired. On the contrary, no man could be blessed with better health than I am at the present moment enjoying. Although I am troubled with the remaining traces of rheumatism, which I contracted when crossing the Atlantic in March last on my way to Australia, and which clung to me tenaciously until my return to Canada, on account, no doubt, of my constant traveling, which prevented recovery, as soon as I reached Canada an improvement began and today the inflammation, which at one time included the whole shoulder and right arm and hand, has wholly disappeared except from the hand and the wrist. All actual pain has gone. I intend, as soon as the weather gets a little colder to spend a few weeks at some springs outside of Canada—probably Arkansas—so as to drive out the last traces of rheumatism before winter sets in."

"The Citizen says that Hon. Jas. Sutherland is to be appointed Postmaster-General in your place?"

"This is a pure fabrication."

"The Citizen also says that, preparatory to your retirement, you are appointing your private secretary, Mr. Laschinger, as Secretary of the Department, in the place of Mr. Lesueur, who is retiring?"

"This is also a pure fabrication. With great regret, I yielded to Mr. Lesueur's retirement, and, accompanying the report to Council for its acceptance, I forwarded a recommendation for the appointment as his successor Mr. Wm. Smith, B. A., who entered the Postoffice Department twenty-five years ago, who has acquired great experience, both in the outside and inside service, and who has risen to the rank of first-class clerk. Mr. Smith has been promoted entirely on account of his fitness. In response to a request from the Newfoundland Government, he was sent to that island last July for a few months to assist in the re-organization of their postal service. I learn that his work there is giving the utmost satisfaction. Mr. Smith will probably have completed it in the course of a month or two, and on his return to the department he will receive a well-deserved promotion to the secretaryship. As to Mr. Laschinger, whom The Citizen says I intend to appoint secretary, his services in his present position as private secretary are too valuable to be parted with, and I hope he may for many years continue in that capacity."

Mr. Lesueur's connection with the department as secretary ceases on October 1.

"OIL OF GLADNESS"

South American Nervine has proved itself the "oil of gladness" to many a nerve-sick sufferer. It starts to work at the fountain-head of the trouble—the digestion. It tones the stomach, helps to assimilate the food, promotes healthy circulation, stimulates the flow of rich, red blood, accelerates the action of the organs.

South American Nervine cures nervousness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, nervous prostration, nervous choking, nervous twitchings, hot flushes, sick head-ache, dyspepsia, indigestion, and all kindred ailments. It is the very nectar of health. 36

Poor Girl, Pity Her.

Growing! Yes, into weakness, but not strength. Studies — plenty of them. Tired, of course she is, and weak, too. Does not eat enough, and digests far less than enough. This condition is so frequent, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferrozone, and then watch her appetite improve, herr cheeks and lips grow ruddy, her step elastic, her spirits buoyant. All this simply the result of eating and digesting enough, making blood, and thereby strengthening the nerve and brain power. Ferrozone gives a woman's strength to weak girls. Your daughter or wife needs Ferrozone. Get it to-day from Ormond & Walsh.

PRINCIPAL GRANT BETTER.

He Improved on Saturday and Sunday—Grateful for Kindness.

Kingston, Sept. 30.—Principal Grant's condition now does not cause anxiety. Saturday morning found him decidedly improved. There was a considerable rising in temperature during the middle of the day, but it dropped towards evening. On Sunday came the report that he had passed a comfortable night. "He slept splendidly," said the nurse. His general condition is satisfactory. There was some rise of temperature again yesterday afternoon, but it has subsided now. The Principal is much interested in his condition. He talks freely with his advisers about it. He sees no newspapers or telegrams, but having been told that he is remembered by friends and kindly references in the papers, he replied, "I am deeply moved by such great kindness." The nurses find him a model patient.

SUNDRIDGE ECHO INTERVIEWED HIM

William Doeg, a Farmer of Grey County, has a Word to say Regarding Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Local Paper Publishes a Column About His Case—Worst Form of Rheumatism—Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Proven a Blessing to Him.

Sundridge, Ont., Sept. 29, (Special)—The Echo of this place has published a signed statement which cannot fail to interest all who understand the full meaning of the word Rheumatism from personal experience. A representative of that paper interviewed Mr. William Doeg, a well known farmer of Strong Township, who was cured of rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills this spring, and he gave out the following statement for publication:—

"For four years I suffered excruciating torture, during which time I was scarcely an hour free from pain. The trouble commenced in my back where it often remained stationary for months, and so intense was the pain that I could not lie down or take a rest, but had to sit night and day in a chair. The pain would then remove to other parts of my body, and when in my knees, disabled me from walking, confining me constantly to my room.

"I was treated by several doctors and also tried many medicines, without receiving any benefit. Almost in despair I feared I would never again experience the pleasure of being free from pain.

"Early this spring my attention was called to some remarkable cures of Rheumatism effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I procured a box, and soon found they were doing me good, so I kept on, until now I can say I am a new man, entirely free from pain and have continued so ever since, being able to attend to my daily duties on the farm and feel strong and able to work. I verily believe this great change was effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills and I think it my duty to make this statement public for the benefit of all afflicted as I was."

"No; a girl old enough to have energy and perseverence and one who has had enough experience with the piano to make her think she knows how to play it. And if she also thinks she can sing, why, so much the better. I tell you, I am going to get even with the people in the next flat even if I have to adopt two musical prodigies."—Chicago Post.

Bronchitic Asthma

is now easily cured, not by pouring nauseous destructive drugs into the stomach, but by inhaling Catarrhozone. Drugs do more harm than good, but the soothing, healing, medicated air that Catarrhozone supplies to the lungs and bronchial tubes cannot fail to benefit. Catarrhozone prevents these smothering spasms and headaches, cures the cough, and makes breathing easy. Universally used; doctors recommend it; druggists sell it; 25c and $1.

SHOE SELLING

FOR FAIR WEEK.

Just breaking into the Fall and winter season comes a week of Shoe Selling during Fair week. For fair week buyers we point to the merits of the stock we have on view. Each line the best for its purpose. Each Shoe perfect in make, material, style and finish. To wear our shoes is to be convinced of their merits.

A list of prices is sometimes esteemed dry reading. It may be to some, but should not be to the buyer. It shows comparative values, it tells the kind of Shoe at a stated price. Our lists are interesting, for the Shoe, at the price, will be found of very superior value, our facilities enabling us to offer the equal of the largest departmental store. Our necessity, our whole trade, is Shoes. We share in the great advantage that arises from buying wholesale for Seven Stores. Hence lower prices, hence lower to customers. Scan this Fair Week List—fall and winter shoes are now seasonable. Let the list help you to decide.

ROBERT NEILL

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355.92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

Wall Paper.

Business is rushing with the Turnbull stock of wall paper, bought at a fraction on the dollar. The big sale at Turnbull's store and the Peterborough Bookstore have been drawing increasing crowds all week. The great problem with some people is to get time to come to look. The selling is easy. Prices so low for superior wall decorations cannot be wished. A. H. Stratton & Co.

Watches are Ruined.

Did it ever occur to you that more watches are ruined by incompetent workmen than by actual wear? There is no part of Frost's business that receives more care than the watch repairing department. Mr. Frost is an expert workman, who has spent his whole life time among watches. The whole family of Frosts are watchmakers and good ones too, and Mr. Frost of "Diamond Hall" is one of the best. Every watch that passes through his hands must be right before it leaves the store.

THE FALL ASSIZES OPENED

Before the Honourable Mr. Justice Falconbridge.

There are Civil Cases on the List—The Grand Jury—Morrison vs. Canadian General.

The Fall Sittings of the High Court of Justice for the County of Peterborough, opened at 1.30 o'clock today before his Honour Mr. Justice Falconbridge, Chief Justice of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice of Ontario.

The court was to have opened at 1 o'clock, but owing to the train from Toronto, on which His Lordship was, being somewhat late, the opening ceremonies were postponed for half an hour.

The following representatives of the bar were in attendance: A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., Frank Denton, K.C., G. L. Dunn and G. L. Smith, Toronto; J. P. Mabee, K. C., J. McPherson, Stratford; W. A. Stratton, K. C., E. B. Edwards, K.C., D. W. Dumble, Crown Attorney Wood, O. Leplante, E. B. Stone, D. O'Connell, W. J. Bennet, F. D. Kerr, R. R. Hall, G. M. Rogers, Peterborough; R. Ruddy, Millbrook, and A. O. Langley, Lakefield.

Mr. Denton is looking after the interests of the crown. The only criminal case is that of the Crown vs. Hull. However, there are nine civil actions put down for hearing, four of which are jury cases, and five non-jury.

The Grand Jury was empannelled as follows: Henry Best, merchant, Peterborough, foreman; Joseph Batten, blacksmith, Peterborough; C. N. Brown, merchant, Peterborough; F. N. Dela Fosse, gentleman, Lakefield; N. B. Elmhirst, farmer, Asphodel; Samuel Edwards, farmer, Dummer; Samuel Purser, merchant, Smith; G. A. Reid, farmer, Smith; E. R. Tate, farmer, Douro; Jas. Thompson, merchant, Havelock; Robert Telford, farmer, Smith; Henry Winch, gentleman, Peterborough; Francis Young, farmer, Smith.

His Lordship addressed the Grand Jury briefly as to their duties, after which they withdrew to pay their customary visits to the public institutions receiving Government aid.

The first case taken up was that of Morrison vs. the Canadian General Electric Company.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The Board of Education meets this evening for the regular monthly meeting, instead of to-morrow evening.

—There will be a drill for the members of the 57th Regt. this evening. To-morrow night the regular march out of the regiment will take place.

—The Lindsay Fair was a great success this year. Twelve thousand people were on the grounds Friday. Another thousand attended the night show.

—Two exhibits that were very very conspicuous this year by their absence at the Central Exhibition, were the cattle and vegetable exhibits of Mr. James Head. For years Mr. Head was a prominent figure at the annual exhibit of the Peterborough Central Agricultural Exhibition, and his handsome list of first prizes was always a feature of the prize winning list. The absence of his display this year was regretted by many.

—Mr. William Morgan, the well-known barber, boasts of being about the only business man in town, who had electric light in his shop on Friday night. The power that is obtained from the Auburn Power Co. to drive his electric fans, was transmitted to his incandescent lights. "Bill" has a long head. He wasn't going to run any chances of cutting people's throats through the insufficiency of light.

TWO YEARS IN CENTRAL.

Robert Smith's Sentence at the Police Court.

The Magistrate Gave a Short Review of the Case—Hopes That he may Mend His Ways.

At the police court this morning, Robert Smith, who pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of wire from the Canadian General Electric Company, was sentenced to two years, less one day, in the Central Prison. In delivering his judgment, Police Magistrate Dumble said:

"The prisoner is charged with the theft of a quantity of copper wire, the property of the General Electric Co. At the hearing he elected to be tried summarily, and pleaded guilty. It appears from the prisoner's evidence given in the prosecution of Stevenson and Doig for receiving this stolen wire, that the prisoner formerly worked at the Canadian General Electric Company's Works, and thus became familiar with the premises. After leaving the company's service he made a key by which he was enabled to enter the wire store house and that he entered it about eight times at night, always carefully timing his entry when the nightwatchman was out of sight; that on each occasion he removed from 400 to 1000 lbs. of new copper wire, worth about 20c per lb.

"This wire he sold to junk dealers, who destroyed the quality of the wire by passing it through fire and chopping it up. They paid the prisoner less than half its value, and then sold it to dealers in Toronto. The prisoner spent his share of the spoil in high living.

"The crime was cooly planned and carried out. The prisoner is young, only 19, and as far as I could judge he laments his being found out more than his offence. I do not think that it is a case which calls for suspended sentence. The offance was large, nearly $1000 being stolen deliberately, and I see nothing extenuating in the offence save the fact that the prisoner made a clean breast of the business, but only when the crime was brought home to him by those who got the wire from him, and who thus thought to clear himself.

"The judgment of the court is that the prisoner be confined in the Central Prison, at Toronto, for two years, less one day.

"The crime calls for seven years imprisonment, but I make this light sentence in the hope that prisoner may at the expiration of his sentence turn to honest and better ways."

DEDICATION SERVICE.

An Interesting Ceremony Which Took Place in Connection With the Y. W. C. A. Yesterday.

The dedication services held yesterday afternoon in the new Y.W.C.A. rooms on George street, will long be remembered by the many workers who have been so eagerly looking forward to the opening of the building.

Despite the unfavourable state of the weather, so many friends were present that it was found necessary to open the gymnasium to accomodate them.

After the opening hymn, a most appropriate Scripture lesson was read by Rev. G. Yule, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, (I Kings, 8; 22-30—Hebrews, 10; 19-25,) followed by a beautiful dedicatory prayer by Rev. J. Wilson, of George street Methodist church.

Rev. J. G. Potter acted as chairman and in the course of his remarks referred to the splendid opportunity affordod by the opening of the new rooms for the banding together of young women of varied talents, for mutual helpfulness, in every way. He referred to the friends who so generously provided the building and equipments, and also spoke in very complimentary terms of the cordial attitude of the town press towards the Association.

A hymn by the junior department, accompanied by little Miss Robertson, the pianist of the Victoria Club, was beautifully rendered.

Miss Carson, the Dominion Field Worker for the Young Women's Christian Association, addressed the gathering in her usual forceful, helpful way, basing her remarks upon Isa. 41; 20. She referred to the realization of the hopes of long months—which, was, as one of the ladies expressed it—"Like a dream come true." Speaking from personal experience she dwelt upon the helpfulness of the Association to thy and all young women. For the Association while aiding in their spiritual development, preeminently works along intellectual, physical and social lines as well, the spiritual pervading all.

"How firm a foundation" was sung as a closing hymn, followed by the Benediction.

Truly "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

There will be an open meeting and reception this evening to which all ladies and gentlemen are most cordially invited. Miss Carson will address this meeting also.

CHURCH CHIMES.

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

The choir of the George street Methodist church rendered a very pleasant service of song yesterday evening, the following numbers being given, "Gently Lead Us," by Hawley; "Holy Father, Great Creator,"—Lambilotte; solo, "Thy King," Mr. Mulligan; solo, Mrs. McCall, "Broken Hearts," solo and chorus, Mr. Walden and men of the choir. At the morning service the anthem, "Herald Angels" was sung in good form, Miss Metheral and Mrs. McCall taking the special parts.

ST. PAUL'S.

The anthem at St. Paul's church yesterday morning was "O, Lord, How Manifold." In the evening the anthem, "Dream of Paradise," was rendered. Mr. Jas. Dawson sang a solo, entitled, "In the Secret of His Presence."

IT'S FOOLISH.

The article of the Review in Saturday's issue is so foolish as to require little consideration. One can easy imagine what would become of a bylaw submitted to the people asking $100,000 or $200,000 to develop water power. No one is foolish enough to think that any Government will hand over privileges to any municipality, unless such municipality is prepared to go on and develop, giving undertakings to that effect. Other towns throughout the province would very properly object to any such action on the part of a Government. It is in the minds of the people of the town to consider favourably the taking over of the Water Works. In that case there will be available all the power which it will be immediately prudent for the town to undertake the development of. If the Water Works dam were dealt with by the town in a business way it could be made to develop from twelve hundred to fifteen hundred horse power, which would be ample for its needs and capacity for expenditure for some time to come. Seeing the unpopularity of the position it assumed in the first stages of the power discussion — the defence of a power monopoly — the Review has flopped over, and is prepared to advocate the tying up of the dams by the corporation, which no Government can permit and no other municipality would consent to.

THE FORTNIGHTLY CLUB.

Outline of the Season's Work—A Most Worthy Institution.

The general public will be pleased to know that the Fortnightly Club is beginning to show signs of activity in preparation for the coming season.

This winter the Club will endeavour to treat its members to a series of lectures, several of which will be given by well known Canadian orators. The Hon. George E. Foster has promised to address the Club and it is expected that October 29th will be the date of his visit to Peterborough. Hon. David Mills has also very kindly consented to lecture in December, and it is with great pleasure that the committee of the Club is able to announce that these two well known public men will be heard on non-political topics.

After Christmas there will be lectures by Dr. Symonds, Headmaster of Trinity College School, Professor Alexander of Toronto University, and Professor Short of Queen's University. Mr. Sheriff Hall and Mr. Daniel O'Connell will lecture before the Club in November and February respectively.

The membership fee is only 25c. It admits to the whole series of lectures, and as the expenses of the lecturers will be considerable it is absolutely necessary that there should be at least two hundred members this year in order to raise the necessary funds.

It is hoped that all our citizens will support this institution, which is doing a very useful work in the community.

MEAT MARKET.

Mr. Alex. Gordon has Bought out Mr. Letellier of the Arcade.

Mr. Alex. Gordon is one of Peterborough's youngest business men and a glance through his establishment will convince one that he is a hustler. Mr. Gordon has recently purchased the meat market business carried on by Mr. Letellier in the arcade. The Arcade Meat Market has always been a household word in Peterborough and there is reason to believe that it will continue to be such. A feature of the store is the very artistic manner in which the meats are displayed. The window of the establishment opening into the arcade was warmly admired Saturday morning. The meats are also decorated out with parsley and greens of other varieties, making a most appetising looking display. The work was done by Mr. Ed. Taylor, one of Mr. Gordon's able assistants. Then there is Teniece Guerin, who for many years has been Mr. Letellier's right hand man, who still swings the meat axe with his old time expertness. Mr. Gordon has a stylish looking establishment. He is a son of Mr. Clem. Gordon, of the Government dredge.

THE LATE MRS. DEYELL.

An Old Resident of Otonabee Passes Away—86 Years.

In the death of Mrs. Wm. Deyell, of Otonabee, which occurred yesterday, the township loses one of its oldest residents. Mrs. Deyell had been ailing for about a week from pneumonia which was the cause of her demise.

The deceased lady's maiden name was Mary Shannon, and she first saw the light of day in the year 1815, in the County of Monaghan, Ireland. She came to this country when about 10 years of age, settling in the township of Cavan. About 66 years ago she married her deceased husband who predeceased her about 18 years. She and her husband being amongst the very first settlers in these parts they could relate many interesting experiences of the hardships and privations endured by the early pioneers of the country. She was a very devoted member of the Methodist church and always lived an exemplary Christian life.

Five sons and two daughters are left to mourn her demise. The former are Messrs. John, Robert A. and Samuel, of Otonabee, and Wm. and Joseph, of Emily. The daughters are Mrs. James Ruth, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Robert Hanbridge, of Otonabee.

The funeral will take place from deceased's late residence, lot 19, in the 4th concession of the township of Otonabee, on Tuesday, Oct. 1st, at 2.30 o'clock, and will proceed to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

NO INTENT TO DO WRONG.

The Charge Against James K. Stabler Dismissed by Magistrate Edmison.

Saturday morning the case of Archibald Moore against James K. Stabler for procuring money under threats with intent to steal, was before George Edmison, Esq., County Police Magistrate for judgment. The magistrate found that there was no intent to do any wrong in the mind of Mr. Stabler—that he misunderstood his powers as a fishery guardian and that therefore he was not guilty of any criminal offence as charged. Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown. Mr. W. A. Stratton, K. C., for the defendant.

THE POWER QUESTION.

Tenders to be Asked for Dam No. 5—Otonabee Power Company to Proceed With Work in the Meantime.

By reference to advertisement in another column it will be observed that the Dominion Government has decided to take a course of action that will promote the immediate development of power for manufacturing purposes at No. 5 dam on the Otonabee River. In this advertisement tenders are invited for the purchase of power development at the dam mentioned, and the conditions of the lease, it is understood, will be such as to insure, what the manufacturing interests of the town pressingly require, the development of immediately available power. It is, indeed, satisfactory to know that the object of the Department is not to delay, but on the contrary, to hasten and facilitate the work. And the Otonabee Power Company is proceeding to carry out the work of developing power, and have notified the contractors for the necessary machinery, previously arranged for, to proceed with their share of the work.

The Otonabee Power Company have not objected to the course taken by the Government, in submitting the acquirement of dam No. 5 to open competition; on the contrary, they are perfectly satisfied that any person who chooses may assume their position and take over the work, and carry out the contracts undertaken.

What the Examiner is interested in is that the power should be developed. It is quite immaterial to us, from the public point of view, who develops the power. What the town, and the ratepayers, are concerned in is that there is power made available for manufacturing purposes. The work is being proceeded with at the dam and power will be developed by someone, and within a reasonable time. As to the charge of monopoly founded on political favouritism, there never was a monopoly, and there is none to-day, and it is quite an open question if all the opposition that has been, and is being shown, is not in the interest of a real monopoly, and that the desire for the manufacture of political capital quite overrides the desire of securing power to promote the industrial development of the town, represented by the development of power at No. 5 dam. If the Review, or any of its political friends, thinks there is a monopoly and a good thing in it, why does not it, or they, go in and take stock in the Otonabee Power Company? The stock books are open to them, and the company would welcome additional capital to enable them to carry out their plans for power development; or let them put in a bid for dam No. 5. Their chance is good, the tenders are open.

It is understood that the Government has fixed the minimum rental at $2.00 per horse power, the price which the Otonabee Power Company had agreed to pay, to be calculated upon the horse power that can be developed at the head of the dam, and the minimum flow of the river, after deducting the standard amount of water required for canal purposes. It is also understood that each tender must be accompanied with a marked cheque for $5,000, this to be forfeited if $25,000 is not expended in development operations by January 1st, next, and an additional $25,000 by July 1st 1902. Besides the Government reserves the right to cancel any lease in case of failure to at once proceed with development work, so as not to cause captious delay or block the progress of the work. Permission has been granted the Otonabee Power Company to proceed with the work and all any accepted tenderer will need to do will be to take its work off the hands of the Otonabee Power Company, and take over its contracts for work entered into.

The shareholders of the Cordage Company are determined to control their own power whether water or steam, as the Cereal Company, the Canadian General Electric Company, the Lakefield Cement Works and other concerns are doing, and if any other person desires to occupy No. 5 dam, the Company proposes to develop dam No. 4, which will not only give them the needed power but make available for general manufacturing purposes the power that may be developed at No. 5.

If the Review or its political friends who assert that there is political favouritism shown, desire to enter into the enterprise of developing power at No. 5 dam, let them take advantage of the opportunity presented by the advertisement for tenders; the field is open to them and all are placed on an equal footing. All they have to do is to put in their tender and deposit their cheque for $5,000 and if their tender is the most favourable they will get a chance to spend from $60,000 to $75,000 in developing power within the next six months, or if they prefer, they are at perfect liberty to apply for dam No. 4, No. 3 or No. 2. If they are honest in their contentions they will either take advantage of the opportunity presented or hold their peace regarding political favouritism and other such twaddle.

What Shall We Eat

To Keep Healthy and Strong?

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats, is undoubtedly the best in spite of the claims made by vegetarians and food cranks generally.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Ramusson on this subject says: Nervous people, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat plenty of meat. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent Tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs, or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods like potatoes, bread, etc., and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to perfect digestion and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use.

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stomach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures are useless for the relief or cure of indigestion, because they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe preparation which is endorsed by the medical profession, and which is known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All druggists throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain sell them at the uniform price of 50 cents for full treatment.

May Be a Disagreement.

London, Ont., Sept. 30.—The court room was filled again on the fifth day of the Sifton trial. Friday was the most disastrous for the defence since the trial opened. This is admitted by both sides. The conspiracy which the defence undertook to prove fell flat. The Mordens proved to be good witnesses, and the medical evidence in the case of Drs. Anderson and Bingham went further than the defence anticipated. Saturday both Crown and defence were confident, and the mass of people believe that there will be a disagreement. A verdict is not expected until Wednesday night.

Salt Lake, Sept. 30.—Jack Haverly, the famous minstrel leader, died at St. Martas Hospital on Saturday. Heart trouble was the immediate cause of death.

MORGAN'S YACHT--ONE

Shamrock Lost to Columbia by the Narrowest Margin.

NEVER A PISTOL SHOT APART.

Only Two Lengths Difference—Shamrock Should Win on Tuesday—The Challenger Best at Beating and in Good Winds—A Race That Strengthens Her Outlook—Vivid Description of Race.

New York, Sept. 30.—The Columbia has beaten Shamrock II. The first race goes to the American yacht. She finished on Saturday ahead of the challenger by 1m. 20s., after losing the first half of the struggle. The outer mark was turned by the Shamrock first, and the hopes of Britishers ran high, but they were dashed to the sea when the breeze lightened on the home run, and the Columbia overhauled and forged ahead of her rival. Altogether, however, it was a fine race, well fought from start to finish.

Description of the Struggle.

Blow up the yachts and sink the sea! For the racing world has seen the best of both — a boom-to-boom struggle around a 30-mile course, and at the finish only 35 hurrying seconds between the flying defender and the hard-driven challenger.

And throughout the deciding minutes of that driving finish on Saturday tens of thousands held their breath to give voice to the skies when the Columbia's jibboom went spearing across the line some three lengths ahead of the Shamrock II.

For a few breathless moments it looked as though she would not achieve that triumph. The following wind had freshened as the two neared the line, and the Shamrock, being slightly astern, and therefore first to catch it, shot forward with every stitch of her great spread of canvas suddenly swollen into convexities, rounded and still as carven marble.

But all too late the vantage came. The freshening gust only helped her to narrow the distance by a length or two, and to reduce the time of defeat to 35 seconds actual time and 1 minute 20 seconds corrected time, this last including the handicap of 46 seconds which the Shamrock allows the Columbia, minus the advantage the Columbia gained at the starting line.

The jockeying at the start was not quite so spectacular as was that of the first day's race, but it attracted equally as much attention by reason of the threat accredited to Captain Sycamore that he would ram the Columbia if Captain Barr attempted the same tactics.

So all eyes were strained upon the two yachts as they manoeuvred around the starting point. There was no ramming, but a deal of skilfull play, in which, according to some, Captain Barr got the better of it, and according to others Captain Sycamore outdid his rival.

There is good reason for both opinions. Captain Sycamore was first across; but he immediately "broke tacks" with the Columbia, which that vessel's adherents aver he never would have done if his position had been better than the Columbia's. The Columbia promptly followed, and the two stood away in company, but on the port tack, and both footing it so fast that the excursion fleet had difficulty in keeping the swift pace they had set.

Dashing along with "sloping masts and dipping prow," they each strove desperately to part company; but, strive as they might, neither could shake the other free.

Except on the two occasions when the Columbia attempted to cross the Shamrock's bow, only to be baffled in that ambition, the yachts were never more than pistol shot from each other, and for a time they were so near that the one was sailing in the other's shadow. This was around the noon hour, and when shadows and deep sea swells were nearly underfoot.

The challenger was clipping through the seas, when the defender, making another abortive effort to cross her bow, settled down to plain sailing along the challenger's lee beam. After another spell of jockeying the yachts settled down to plain sailing again, and kept starboard tacks aboard until the bobbing stake boat was reached and rounded.

The Shamrock at this time was a full three lengths ahead, and on every sun-dyed face shone eager anxious interest as to what that run down the wind would discover. For this was the first time the two had measured speed when running before a wind, and none knew which would foot it faster in that end-on tilt. It was soon apparent that there was no great difference between the yachts when going dead before a breeze.

Then the Columbia slowly and gradually forged ahead, and finally settled into a position between three and four lengths ahead. That she held to the finish, an ending so spectacular and so noisy that it seemed the wild tumult would never die.

To make the day complete several boats went in for ramming. The revenue cutter Gresham, flagship of the patrol fleet, bumped into Sir Thomas Lipton's steam yacht, the Erin, slightly damaging that vessel.

Raised Their Hopes.

London, Sept. 30.—To-day's papers are unanimous in their praise of the splendid handling of the Columbia and Shamrock II. Saturday in what all describe as a magnificeat race. The outcome has greatly raised the hopes of British yachtsmen generally.

DISASTER IN PHILIPPINES.

Only 24 of an American Company Rise From Breakfast.

Manila, Sept. 30.—A disastrous fight between United States troops and insurgents occurred Saturday in the Island of Samar, near Balangiga. A large body of insurgents attacked Company "C," Ninth Infantry, only 24 members of the company escaping.

All the others are reported to have been killed. The company was at breakfast when attacked and made a determined resistance, but the overwhelming numbers of the insurgents compelled them to retreat. Of the survivors who have arrived at Bassey, 11 are wounded.

According to the latest returns the strength of the company was 72. The survivors include Capt. Thomas W. Connell, First Lieut. Edward Bumpus, and Dr. R. S. Griswold, surgeon.

The insurgents captured all the stores and provisions of the company, and all the rifles except 26.

Captain Lawrence J. Hearn of the 21st Infantry reports a severe engagement with insurgents near Candelaria, the Americans losing one killed and two wounded. The insurgent loss has not been ascertained. The Americans captured 30,000 pounds of rice and several hundred rounds of ammunition.

CHINA'S PROMISED REFORMS.

They Are Practically a Re-affirmation of the Plan of 1898.

Pekin, Sept. 29.—The issuance of four edicts forbidding the sale of offices and providing for the abolition of the old style of examinations, the recognition of a monetary standard and the establishment of a university in each province and a college prefecture in each Public School district, has caused much gossip. These edicts, which have been issued within the last three weeks, in addition to the one in regard to the destruction of records, are sufficient to revolutionize the entire system of affairs in China, and have aroused much speculation, as they are practically a re-affirmation of the reforms of 1898, which were lacking in the same high purpose. The Emperor, it is said, has now determined that they shall be enforced, and the Conservatives who previously opposed the reforms, are now with the Emperor.

THE QUICK PACE OF DECLINING HEALTH

Wasted Nerves and Weakened Bodies Give way to Suffering and Disease—The Action of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

There are hosts of people who are susceptible to attack of various kinds of illness. Their systems are ever ready to take on disease. They bend under the slightest trial, and their health is jeopardized by every trivial exposure. They lack resisting power, and health declines because there is no nerve food to make good the waste by disease.

At first slight weakness, stomach annoyance, headache, heart fluttering, trembling of the hands and limbs, restless sleep, indicate something is lacking—that something is nerve force. Until the stock of nerve force is replenished the pace of declining health will increase, until lost vitality is expressed in every move.

Pale, languid, nerve-shattered people find exactly what they require in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It supplies the wants of wasted nerves, rebuilds the wasted cells, and renews the blood. Its wonderful cures are due to the fact that it restores natural nerve force; and it is lack of nerve force that causes most suffering these days. Brain nerves, heart nerves, stomach nerves give out, and all sorts of trouble follow.

Mrs. M. A. McCrea, Troy Hill, Ont., writes: "My system was all run down when I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was weak and very nervous, and felt so tired and worn out that I could scarcely drag myself about the house. It seemed impossible for me to get rest or sleep at night, and I felt that I was gradually growing weaker and more nervous and irritable. Since beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I feel altogether different. It has gradually strengthened my nerves and built up my system wonderfully. I sleep well now, and am being thoroughly restored to health and strength. I believe it is the best medicine to be had for the nerves."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 3 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

New Lord Mayor of London.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir Joseph Dimsdale, member of Parliament in the Conservative interest for the City of London, since 1900, who is engaged in the banking business, was on Saturday elected Lord Mayor of London for the ensuing year, to succeed Frank Green. The election was accompanied by the usual quaint customs.

A Sick Stomach

is always relieved, and its unpleasant consequences averted by taking 30 drops of Polson's Nerviline in a little sweetened water. It instantly relieves the nausea and by its soothing and stimulating powers, calms the stomach and enables it to complete the process of digestion. Nerviline has been proved more than a million times the best remedy for stomach and bowel troubles. Nerviline will cure you. 25c.

BAD COUGH CURED

It is absolutely necessary in treating lung trouble to get to the seat of the trouble. Generally speaking, lung trouble of any kind, if it hangs on is due to system weakness.

Put the system right—make the body healthy and you will get rid of the disease. Powley's Liquified Ozone makes the system healthy; forms healthy flesh, and gives you an enjoyment of the food you eat. But more than that its antiseptic effect destroys the germs of disease. Mme. Cherrier suffered for years from a most obstinate cough and bronchitis. This is her story:

THE OZONE COMPANY, Ltd., TORONTO, ONT.

Gentlemen: I have suffered for the past four years with Bronchitis; sometimes very bad. I could not sleep at nights and my cough was very severe. I tried many remedies, but to no effect, when about the 1st of June, I procured a bottle of "Powley's Liquified Ozone," and from the first I began to get relief. When I had taken nearly three bottles my cough was entirely cured and I was able to sleep all night. I can say I am now completely cured and feel like a new person.

I take pleasure in recommending your "Ozone" to all who suffer from Bronchitis as I did. (Signed) MRS. RIGUNALD CHERRIER,

A STUDY OF FACES.

THE HUMAN COUNTENANCE FROM A RACIAL POINT OF VIEW.

Caricaturists Do Little More Than Approximate Peculiarities — The American Face Is Not Distinctive In Any Sense of the Word.

"Faces present many interesting studies," said an observant citizen who had just scanned one of the comic papers, "and I have been conducting a quiet little autographic study with the human face as the basis. I have come to the conclusion that the American face is not distinctive in any sense of the word, or, if it has any distinctive feature, it is in the fact that there is no strong characteristic that would differentiate it from other faces of superior races. There is nothing that will call it up in the mind from the world's group of Caucasian faces. Yet this is not true of other white skinned races. The English face, the Jew face, the Irish face, the Italian face, the Chinese face, the Japanese face, the French face, the Indian face and even the negro face, all these have something about them which will call up a definite picture in one's mind.

"The English face is a trifle dim in the mind's eye, and yet one may think of the high forehead and the high cheek bones. The French face is distinctive. The Italian face, while not strongly portrayed in the mind's picture, is yet definite enough. The Jew face is easily differentiated, and one may say the same of the Irish face. Memory may slightly mix for the moment the Chinese and the Japanese face, but still the line of difference is clearly marked. There is Lo, the poor Indian, whose face one may never forget. The negro face is thoroughly distinctive.

"But what shall one say of the American face? Take this comic paper I have been scanning. And, by the way, there is one curious thing about the faces which one may find in comic papers, a thing which one may call a polite slander in caricaturing. The Jew face, the Irish face and the African face are the favorites with the men who grind out the alleged comical pictorials. They always make a clownish money grabber of the Jew, a representation as unjust as the old stage portrayal of Shylock or the Jew of Malta with his cap, his red fringe of whiskers, his wig and his cringing mien. They were equally unjust to Pat, for Erin's son is nearly always a ditcher, with his pick, his pipe and his overalls, and the only justice they do him is in preserving his inimitable wit. They fail to do even so much for the Jew. In both cases the pictures show signs of having been made with the meat ax on the butcher's block, for they preserve nothing but the grotesque abnormalities of the two races. And the negro—well, he is always hanging around the hen roost.

"But these faces stand out merely as types and not as serious portrayals of the facial characteristics of the races to which they belong. They are of course suggestive of certain peculiarities which are common to all members of the races represented. But they are horrible exaggerations, unjust and almost criminal exaggerations, for it cannot be said that they are accepted with indifference by persons who are prejudiced one way or the other.

"But I was speaking of the American face, with its lack of distinctiveness," the observant citizen continued. "The American face is probably peculiar in some ways. It is peculiar in its cosmopolitanism. It is in one sense a composite face. It is international in one sense, for here and there one may find the traces which suggest a relation to this, that or the other race. It may be a line or a ligament bequeathed by an early English ancestry or something suggestive of Teutonic origin or a sharp suggestion of the Frenchman's face or the Irishman's or the Italian's or the Scotchman's or some slight hint which would lead one back through the flood and tears of the ages to the sterling old forefathers who lived in foreign countries and died under different flags and in different climes long before the Mayflower touched her bow against the soil of the new western world. Of course the American may be picked out in the crowd.

"But when one must deal with the American abstractly one can scarcely call up the American face. Uncle Sam, with his striped trousers, his sharply cut coat, his plug hat, his whiskers and his bland, good natured face, is a happy conception, yet he may never hope to portray the matchless and indescribable cosmopolitanism of the American face. It is too unique in its likenesses and unlikenesses. The lines and ligaments, the muscular interlacements, the curves and arches of the forehead are still there, and yet they are too delicately traced to be remembered when the face has passed the memory.

"So I have reached the conclusion after these reflections that the American face is not distinctive in the sense that the mind may call it up at any time and separate it from the faces which are associated with other superior races. Among the home folk there are certain things which will enable one to call up a face which is probably distinctive in its Americanism, and yet it could not be accepted as the face which would correctly and adequately represent the whole race of Americans. For instance, there is what may be popularly called the Reuben face, the face which one may find in the rural sections of the United States, the face of the agriculturist and the farmer. There is a certain type in the remoter country sections which is probably peculiar to Uncle Sam's domain, and yet it would fall far short of representing the American face, just as far short as the grotesque portrayals referred to in connection with other races and other nationalities. It would only represent a small number of Americans, and, while the type is thoroughly American and substantial enough in its representation, it would give no idea of the facial appearance of the vast majority of American citizens.

"Thus it would be with every other class, or one might take all the classes and make a composite picture, copying from each the characteristic that was most marked in its Americanism, and yet the picture would fall much below a faithful portrayal of that infinite cosmopolitanism of the American face as it really is. And it would still lack that distinctiveness which would enable one to call it to mind as readily as one may call up the face of some representative of another race where the features are more strongly differentiated."

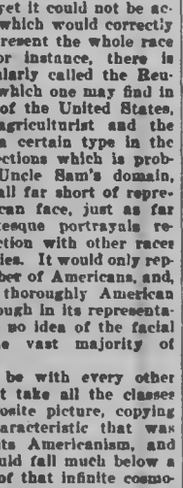
Exposure

To cold and stormy weather opens the way to an attack of bronchitis. The man on the wagon, be he farmer, milkman or truckman, needs to pay special heed to the first symptoms of weakness or disease of the organs of respiration.



The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure bronchitis, deep-seated coughs, bleeding of the lungs, and other conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated terminate fatally in consumption.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.

"For seven years I had been troubled with what the doctors called bronchitis," writes Mr. Arthur Menle (general merchant), of Millertown, Middlesex Co., Ontario. "A year ago, after I had been taken sick with a severe attack, I began taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I rapidly recovered from the attack and felt no more of it that fall. This season I began taking the 'Discovery' in August, and have so far been perfectly well. I can go out in all kinds of weather and not feel the bronchial trouble at all. Let me say to all who are suffering from such complaints as to give Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a fair trial, and I am convinced that good results will be obtained."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper-bound, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay expense of customs and mailing only; or 50 stamps for the book in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ENGLISH OF THE ENGLISH.

"London Is a Nice Place if You Know the Language."

That hackneyed American maiden who said London was a nice place if you knew the language was not a bit absurd. We speak English, but we have built up our forms of English expression upon the English of a few shires of the old country as it was spoken between two and three centuries ago, while they have been blending and changing the speech of all their home peoples during the same period. The result is that an American can hardly utter a sentence in England without calling attention to the difference between his speech and that of the people about him.

Only yesterday, after 18 months' residence in England, I rushed up to a conductor in Charing Cross station and asked, "Which car for Bromley?" He stared at me, and I knew I had spoken a foreign tongue to him, because street vehicles like omnibuses and horse cars are called road cars and tram cars, and there are no other cars in England.

If you ask a guest at your home in England whether he likes his meat rare, he asks what you said because he does not understand you. He calls meat underdone when it is not thoroughly cooked. If you tell him you fear the asparagus is canned, he is at a loss again, because he would have said it was tinned. To ask him to pass the powdered sugar will again set him to wondering, for he calls it icing sugar generally, though he knows that it is sometimes called caster or sifted sugar. And if you have candy on the table you may not call it so without betraying your foreign origin, for he calls candy "sweets," abbreviated from "sweetmeats," and used to designate all preserves, puddings, pies, candies and jams.

To go further along the eccentricities of English at the dining table most persons know, I suppose, that the beet is called beet root, cornstarch is corn flour, corned beef (or a particular cut of it) is called "silver sides of beef" and napkins are serviettes.

To Have Beautiful Skin.

Every one who would have a clear, soft, velvety skin free from pimples, blackheads, redness and disfiguring eruptions must use Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is a true food for the skin, does not clog the pores as do powders, and insures permanent benefit. There is not a single itching, burning skin disease of men, women or children that Dr. Chase's Ointment will not cure. Mothers find it invaluable for Baby Eczema, scald head and chafing on the little ones.

Polished Furniture.

When a polished table is stained by a hot dish, one restoring process is to use first wood alcohol and then linseed or olive oil. This treatment is excellent for keeping any polished furniture in order and is one of the few things for which wood alcohol may be used. The latter is cheaper than the pure and for certain domestic uses is quite as good.

Facts about your Liver

The liver is a large gland, the largest in the body. Its work is to secrete bile and also to destroy certain poisonous compounds in the blood as the blood passes through it. It stores the bile thus obtained in the gall bladder from where it is conducted by two ducts, one leading into the stomach and the other into the intestines. The bile thus made is the most important factor in the process of digestion, for without a certain definite proportion of it none of the solvents or digestive fluids are sufficiently active enough to do their work. The liver occasionally dries up, so to speak, and no bile is secreted. This soon becomes apparent by a feeling of torpor or laziness, yawning and a yellow appearance to the skin, and in bad cases a pain in the side. The liver being a gland requires an alterative medicine, as alteratives are medicines which promote glandular secretion. In Merrill's System Tonic is found a combination of the best mineral and vegetable alteratives known and when you take it the liver is quickly restored to its proper condition. Then, too, System Tonic purifies the blood of all accumulated poison and acts on the bowels, unloading the foul matter that has accumulated through lack of bile. The use of half a dozen bottles will give to those persons known as sallow complexioned, a clean, rosy skin.

Each 50c bottle contains 50 pleasant-to-take doses, and is sold

SPECIAL MUSIC

At St. John's Church Yesterday—Miss Cochrane's Splendid Work.

The services in St. John's church were marked by special music, which was of a festal character, the splendid vested choir being assisted by an orchestra of a dozen instruments. The decorations used at the Harvest Home Festival on Thursday were still in place, and were much admired. The altar presented a beautiful appearance with its white covering, surmounted by the brass cross—the symbol of our common redemption. At Evensong every seat in the church was occupied by devout worshippers. In his sermon, the Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, M.A., spoke of the ministry of the guardian angels—the nature of their service to God, their ministry to men. During the offertory an anthem was rendered. At the close of the service a very enjoyable recital was given, to which the majority of the congregation remained. Miss Cochrane, the talented organist, gave two exceedingly well-rendered organ selections with orchestral accompaniment — Tozier's "Magnificat," and "What Shall I Render," Mendelssohn. The feature of the recital was the singing of Miss Margaret McCarter, of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. This talented young lady possesses a voice of exceptional purity and sweetness, and of wide compass. It is hoped the people of Peterborough may have an other opportunity of hearing this gifted vocalist. A baritone solo "Enough" from "Elijah," was rendered in faultless style by Mr. Pope. It is some time since the congregation have enjoyed such a musical treat.

VICTORIA CHEESE BOARD.

1482 Boxes Offered—All Factories Sold at 9 1-8c. Except Palestine—Buyer Flavelle Secures First Selection.

Lindsay Post.

The Victoria County Cheese Board met in the Council Chamber, Lindsay, Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The buyers present were Messrs. Flavelle, Whitton and Fitzgerald.

Messrs. Staples and Hill, salesmen for Red Rock and Oakwood factories, complained about the inspector not inspecting the cans as well as other things.

Mr. Whitton stated that the inspector was a first class man, and gave satisfaction down east. It appeared to him that the factories here seem to have an axe to grind. If they had a better man he suggested that they bring him along.

Factories Represented.

The following factories boarded the number of cheese set opposite:

Star	85
Cameron	87
Dunsford	109
Mariposa	109
Jamestville	68
Omemee	115
Fenelon Falls	105
North Verulam	125
North Ops	75
Pine Grove	50
Reaboro	110
Bobcaygeon	160
Maple Leaf	100
Palestine	48
Red Rock	145
	1482

The Bidding and Sales.

Mr. Fitzgerald started the ball rolling with an offer of 9c, Mr. Whitton raised to 9 1-8c, Mr. Flavelle jumped to 9 1-4c, Mr. Fitzgerald made it 9 3-8c, and Mr. Flavelle called 9 1-2c. This price was not raised, and Cameron, Fenelon Falls, North Verulam, Red Rock, and Reaboro were named, and all accepted. Total 572 boxes.

Mr. Fitzgerald offered 9 1-2c for second selection, and named Bobcaygeon, Mariposa and Dunsford — all accepting. Total, 369 boxes.

Mr. Whitton called 9 1-2c for third selections, and secured Omemee, North Ops, Pine Grove, Star, Maple Leaf and Jamestville. Total, 493 boxes.

Palestine was the only factory not sold. Mr. Fitzgerald offered 9 3-8c, but was refused. The reason a lower price was offered was on account of Palestine being so far from Lindsay.

The Board adjourned to meet on Tuesday, October 15th.

MEETS NEXT MONTH.

Annual Convention Sabbath School Association of Ontario.

The Sabbath School Association of Ontario will hold its Annual Convention in the Metropolitan church, Toronto, on October 22nd, 23rd and 24th next. Every preparation necessary to insure a good convention has been made. In addition to some noted Canadian speakers, including the Hon. G. W. Ross, Premier of Ontario; Mrs. J. W. Barnes, of Philadelphia, a prominent Primary worker, and the Rev. Jos. Clark, D. D., general secretary of the State of Ohio, will be in attendance.

The Metropolitan church is one of the largest in Toronto, as large gatherings are anticipated. Every school in the province should be represented. Single fare rates will be issued to delegates, who at the railway station on starting obtain from the ticket agent a "Standard Certificate," which on being signed by the secretary of the convention, will entitle them to single fare.

Will Sabbath Schools who may not receive official notification accept of this as such and see that their schools are represented.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

On Saturday a team from the Canadian General Works ran up against the Bankers, but suffered defeat by eight holes. Every man in the Bankers' team defeated his opponent.

The return match with the ladies of the Port Hope Golf Club was held on Friday on the home links. A most enjoyable day was spent, the visitors being entertained at lunch and tea at the club house. The match resulted in a victory for the Port Hope ladies by two holes. The following were the teams playing:

RUGBY.

The Rugby men had another excellent match practice on the Nicholls oval on Saturday afternoon. They got into the game for all it was worth and promise to be into splendid shape for their first game against the St. Mary's team on Saturday next. Picard has been out for the last practice or two and will occupy his old place on Saturday. He is one of the fastest men on the team. Noble too is playing a very good game and should easily catch a place. The team committee have not intimated to any one yet who will be on the team for Saturday, and any rumours to the contrary are unfounded. The picking of the team is done at a meeting of the team committee and the names are then handed out and until this committee meets no one has any knowledge who will occupy the various positions.

LACROSSE.

The championship of the Big League was decided on Saturday when the Shamrocks won from the Cornwalls by four goals to two.

The Port Hope Guide says:—"The latest development in the Stratford-Port Hope play-off case is that the final will now be a "Sudden death" game at the Toronto Rosedale grounds on Wednesday or Thursday next, October 2nd or 3rd. The idea of home and home games was apparently a bluff on the part of Stratford, to get the Ontarios to go to Brampton, but it didn't work, and the local management was not very much surprised when President McMillan telephoned that if the Rosedale grounds could be secured, he would order the game to be played there. Upon inquiry, it was learned that the grounds were obtainable, and now all concerned should be satisfied."

Y. M. C. A. GYMNASTICS.

All young men of the town who will be joining the gymnasium classes at the Y.M.C.A. for the coming season, are reminded of the regulation suit to be worn as far as possible—sleeveless jersey, white knickers and running shoes. Orders can be left with the physical director for the entire outfit. The business men's class opens Monday afternoon at 5 p.m., and intermediates at 7.30 p.m. The seniors will commence operations Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. All intending men for this class are asked to be on hand for the opening night.

HASTINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. H. G. Buck, one of Hastings' leading merchants, has decided to build a steam yacht, which will be for private use only, and will have its headquarters here. Mr. Buck has purchased a piece of land centrally located, on which he will build a house for his new yacht.

The steam dredge "Trent," with a gang of men, has been engaged for the past few days in taking rocks out of the channel immediately below the locks. The dredge did a considerable amount of work in the few days it was at work here. The number and the size of rocks lifted out of the channel surprised even the men engaged on the dredge. Rocks that have been blasted when the locks at Hastings were first built, and weighing a ton or more were lifted to the canal bank. How the steamboats, previous to this work being done, were able to navigate the canal is a wonder, but now they can pass down into the river below without any fear of accident. The dredge is this week being taken to a point about three miles below Peterborough.

ON CRUTCHES.

Even if you are obliged to use crutches Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure can fix you up. This was the experience of John J. Peters, Sharbot Lake, Ont. Fortunately he tried Dr. Hall's remedy and it only took three bottles to cure him completely. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days treatment. PLACING TEACHERS.

MODERN PLAN OF BRINGING TUTOR AND SCHOOL INTO TOUCH.

The Business of Supplying Instructors For Institutions of Learning Is Now Largely In the Hands of Special Agencies.

We have advanced a long way beyond the day when ambitious young Nicholas Nickleby found his only opportunity of becoming a teacher in Wackford Squeers' famous advertisement, "N. B.—Assistant master wanted; £5 annual salary." The fitting of schools with teachers and teachers with schools is now a distinct business, one of the myriads of later day industries which flourish in the metropolis.

In the city are several agencies which do a large and remunerative business in furnishing institutions of learning with teachers. These agencies are in constant touch with colleges and normal schools on one hand and with the schools of the country on the other. The agency deals in teachers almost as a merchant does in dry goods. The agency studies its customers and knows the availability of the material it places on the market.

Providing a school with a teacher has come to be almost entirely a business transaction. The normal school or college is the factory which can be relied upon to turn out a certain number of teachers annually. The agency is the market place, and the agent is the salesman who disposes of the college product to the consumers, the ever increasing schools of the country.

One of the largest of the city agencies is on the second floor of a quiet old building not far from Union square. In the main office, which is carpeted and handsomely furnished, eight clerks are at work answering letters and applications from both prospective teachers and from schools. In an inner office the aspirant for the office of pedagogue is put through a series of questions to test his or her ability. On the result of this interview depends the classification in which his services are placed upon the market.

An idea of the modus operandi of the teachers' supply business as it is conducted was given to the writer a few days ago by the manager of this agency. It is usually in junior year at college that a young man decides upon his profession. If it be teaching, he opens a correspondence with the agency, of whose existence he is first informed by the college authorities. The return mail brings him a blank, which he fills out with answers to many questions. He has to tell all about himself, from his religion to his ability in athletics. He also furnishes references which the agency carefully investigates. If they are satisfactory, the young man is invited to visit the agency during his next vacation. On that occasion the questions put to him are verbal ones. His manners, his bearing, his conversation, are all carefully noted and recorded. He is then informed as to what sort of a teacher's position he is eligible for, and his name is in the market.

So much for the history of the applicant's side of the transaction, but all the time that his eligibility is being considered orders are coming in for teachers. Boards of education in various cities want teachers for public schools. City private schools need instructors. Rich men write for tutors for their sons, and there is a demand for governesses and kindergartners.

All the delicate questions of the adaptability of the applicant for the place must be decided by the agent. He brings to his task the result of years of experience, and on its successful performance depends the receipt of future orders for teachers. From both school and applicant the agent receives a commission as his profit on the transaction.

"I am not a teacher myself," said the manager of the agency spoken of, "and never have been one. In fact, I could never quite understand why any clever young person wants to be a teacher.

"I suppose it is because teaching is an intellectual pursuit, and the number of vocations of that kind is not on the increase nowadays. It is certainly a fact that the list of men and women who aspire to be teachers grows longer every year, although much more is required of a teacher now than formerly.

"There was a time when the scholarly attainments and good moral character of an applicant were the only things considered, but that time is past. A teacher to succeed nowadays must have good manners and address. He must have savoir faire and be able to set an example to his pupils in culture and refinement.

"The ordinary pay of a teacher at the beginning is $600 per year. By an exhibition of special excellence in his department he can rise in the profession to be a principal or even a college professor. Although the work of the primary school teacher is infinitely more exacting he is not paid nearly so well as one who labors in high or even intermediate grades.

"For reasons which are incomprehensible to me women teachers are never paid as much as men for the same work. It is not at all unusual for us to receive a letter from some school requesting a teacher for some particular department. It makes no difference to us, the letter will say, whether you send us a man or woman, but if a man the salary will be a third more than to a woman.

"Because a teacher fails to make a success in his first charge it does not at all follow that he is unfitted for the profession. In fact, I frequently send teachers to beginners' positions in the belief that the experience they will receive there will only fit them for the more serious work which will come later on.

"The one besetting sin of young inexperienced teachers is conceit. They think they know it all. To attempt to reason with them or to offer suggestions is worse than useless. The only thing to do is to place them under a year's contract as masters of a lot of boys, in some distant school, whose chief ambition is to make the teacher's life miserable. If they do not lose their conceit during that year's mauling and annoyance, we decide that they are impossible, but they usually do, and when they apply to us for a second engagement they are usually exceptionally competent."—New York Mail and Express.

Easy Lessons In City Life.

When Moses K. Armstrong was elected delegate to congress from the territory of Dakota, he made an experimental trip to Washington to accustom himself to metropolitan ways. In "The Early Empire Builders of the Great West" he humorously describes some of his first day's experiences in an eastern city:

Down at the corner of the next block I heard an auctioneer crying out, "Going for 50 cents!" I struck straight for his voice, and as I entered the room he caught my eye and nodded his head.

I returned the compliment. At that moment he cried out, "Sold and gone!" To my surprise, I found that by nodding my head I had bought a woman's headdress for 50 cents. I paid the money and left the prize on the counter. I skipped out and walked slowly down the street, muttering to myself, "Sold and gone!" and I have not nodded my head at a man since I made that bargain.

Being a single man, I felt a little blue over the purchase, so I pushed on through the rain up the avenue and soon met a bootblack who offered me a shine for 10 cents. I poked my foot out to him. He pulled his artist brush, looked at me and said:

"Boss, you looks like one o' dem congressmen. Chuck down de cash befo' I spit on your boots. We don't trust dem M. C. fellers."

I paid him the dime, and he blacked one boot, and then asked if I wanted the other polished, saying that his price was 10 cents a foot.

By this time I began to get mad, and I turned from Sambo and walked rapidly on with one boot black and the other bridle. My bridle foot at last attracted so much attention that I stepped the other into the mud to make a match.

An Ideal Ready-made Food.

Prof. Naumann, a most eminent authority on chemical and medical questions, says that cod liver oil is almost an ideal ready-made food. He says it is easy to digest, easily makes fat, and is also a medicine. Scott's Emulsion contains this oil so prepared that it is not at all unpleasant.

VANCOUVER VISITED.

Duke and Duchess of Cornwall Perform Many Functions.

WELCOMED RIGHT ROYALLY,

Beautiful City Seen to Best Advantage—New Drill Hall Opened—Duke Addresses Veterans and Schoolboys—A Splendid Marine Spectacle—Naval Decorations—Off for Victoria.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 1. — The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall completed their trans-continental tour westward yesterday, and are the guests of the people of Vancouver. Their special trains made the run down through the canyon and valley of the Fraser River yesterday morning, and at 11.30 o'clock pulled into the Canadian Pacific depot. On the terraced heights back of the depot a great crowd was gathered, and the royal special halted to a salvo of cheers. A guard of honor, composed of Bluejackets from the North Pacific Squadron, was drawn up at the depot platform, and back of them were a detachment of the Northwest Mounted Police, in their smart uniforms of scarlet and black.

Premier Laurier and the Countess of Minto, who had arrived by the pilot special, joined with the local reception committee in the formal welcome to the Duke and Duchess. The former wore his uniform of admiral of the navy, and after the committee had been introduced the officers of the North Pacific Squadron were presented.

The Duke inspected the guard of honor before he and the Duchess were escorted to the state carriage which awaited them. They were then driven through artistically decorated streets to the Court House. An attractive feature of the street decorations was a series of arches, one of which was erected by the Chinese residents of the city and another by the Japanese.

At the Court House Mayor Townley read an address of welcome, and the Duke, in reply, thanked him and the people of the city for their cordial reception. The Duke and Duchess then assisted in the formal opening of a new Drill Hall for the local militia.

The guard of honor at the Drill Hall comprised the Duke of Connaught's own rifles, 100 strong, under command of Lieut.-Col. Worsnop, and the Duke of Cornwall's own, 100 strong, under command of Lieut.-Col. Gregory. The Duke of Connaught's own rifles are veterans of the Fenian raids, and the Duke of Cornwall's own are schoolboys. The Duke addressed both corps, and was cheered to the echo by the veterans and schoolboys.

The Duke and Duchess then entered their carriages and were driven to the Hotel Vancouver, where they lunched with the members of the reception committee.

The afternoon was spent in a drive through Stanley Park, and in the evening the Duke and Duchess were entertained at dinner by the Governor-General.

The city was illuminated in honor of the royal visitors, and the harbor was the scene of a splendid marine spectacle. The warships were outlined in lines of electric lights, and the Duke and Duchess were given a salute of 21 guns as they passed in the royal yacht. The forts on the shore also fired salutes, and the warships in the harbor were manned and cheered the royal party as they passed.

The Duke and Duchess were entertained at dinner by the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, and after dinner they were driven to the wharf, where they boarded the royal yacht, which steamed out into the harbor, where the warships were anchored in two lines, a mile and a half long. The yacht passed between the lines of warships, and the Duke and Duchess were given a salute of 21 guns by each warship as they passed. The warships were illuminated from stem to stern, and the effect was magnificent. The yacht then returned to the wharf, and the Duke and Duchess retired for the night.

Yesterday morning the Duke and Duchess

THE OFFICERS ALSO FELL.

Further News of the Disaster at Balangiga, Philippine Islands.

Manila, Oct. 1.—Gen. Hughes, from the Island of Samar, reports the arrival of Sergeant Markley and one private at Tubnan from the fight at Balangiga, where over forty men of Company C, 9th Infantry, were killed by insurgents, who attacked the troops while at breakfast Saturday last. The men who have reached Tubnan say that the officers of the company, who were at first reported to have escaped, were killed with the majority of the company. The troops were attacked while unprepared by four hundred bolomen, of whom the Americans killed about 140. Many of the soldiers were killed in their quarters before they had time to grasp their rifles. Gen. Hughes is going to the scene of the disaster, and personally will command the troops.

The Czar's Peace Dream.

London, Oct. 1.—It is stated that the Czar is again working diligently upon his universal peace idea, and his plan for general disarmament, and that he means to spring another surprise as astounding as The Hague Peace Conference. He proposed to President Loubet that Alsace and Lorraine be converted into an independent buffer state, which would remove the chief obstacle to general disarmament.

Suicide on S.S. Montfort.

Quebec, Oct. 1.—Charles Miller, a cattleman on the Elder-Dempster steamer Montfort, committed suicide yesterday by swallowing a dose of Paris green. Members of the crew made the discovery about 3 o'clock in the morning, and the man was removed to the Hotel Dieu about 8 o'clock, where he died half an hour later. Miller was a German and was 46 years of age.

Czolgosz Silent.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Czolgosz's first Sunday in the condemned cell was unmarked by special incident. He is taciturn and his only conversation with the guards is concerning meats. His appetite is unimpaired, and he seems to have entirely recovered from his recent collapse. He has had no callers.

She Wanted to Die.

St. Thomas, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Pettit, a middle-aged woman inmate of the Elgin House of Industry, became violently insane Sunday and endeavored to cut her throat with a butcher knife and kill the other inmates. She was overpowered, one man only, Ezra Webb, receiving a gash from the knife.

BURNING COAL MINES

B. C. Shafts Closed and Several Miners Imprisoned.

FIFTEEN MEN LIKELY DEAD.

Nos. 2 and 3 Slopes of Extension Mines at Ladysmith, B.C., Are on Fire, and Little Hope is Entertained of Saving the Lives of the 15 Miners Who Are Entombed—Narrow Escapes Reported.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 1.—No. 2 and No. 3 slopes of the well known extension mines at Ladysmith are on fire and 15 men are down in the burning mine. Little hope is entertained for any of them, for the fire is still raging and clouds of smoke can be seen in the air for miles.

The 15 supposed to be dead in the mine are:

G. Southcombe, A. Pisteolo, Charles Noye, Edward Hazel, J. Patterson, —Reeves, — Watson, David Griffiths, Tony, an Italian, — Baikey, F. Mootishaw, Mike Dolan.

The fire started yesterday afternoon near where the workings of No. 2 slope tunnel of No. 3 converge, a miner's lamp coming in contact with the blanket being the cause.

Horses and appliances have been sent from nearby towns, and relief is on the way from many places.

Premier James Dunsmuir, head of owning company, left last night for the scene on a special train, which will prevent him from welcoming the royal party to-day as was expected.

A later report says the fire is still raging and gaining headway.

This report says that nearly all who were at the wrecked mines escaped, and those lost are members of a relief party that went down.

Some narrow escapes are reported.

One miner, who was running from No. 2 workings when the fire broke, fell exhausted by the gaseous matter, but in falling he knocked the door open leading to the other workings and escaped through them.

MR. HAYS' SUCCESSOR.

Mr. Edward H. Harriman Elected in New York.

New York, Oct. 1.—At the meeting of the Southern Pacific Railway directors yesterday Mr. Edward H. Harriman was elected President, to succeed Mr. Chas. M. Hays, who was formerly General Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway.

No Reductions Just Yet.

Winnipeg, Oct. 1. — "I am very sorry to say that the promised reductions on wheat rates on the Canadian Northern lines cannot be put was the reply of Premier Roblin to into effect on Oct. 1 as anticipated," an inquiry made yesterday afternoon.

"The reduction promised," he continued, "was two cents per hundred pounds from all points on the Canadian Northern to Lake Superior. I regret exceedingly that this cannot be complied with at present, for two reasons, only one of which I am able to disclose, viz.: That the Canadian Northern line to Port Arthur is not finished. This is owing partly to the scarcity of labor and partly to the present weather.

"The company have asked for an extension of time, which we have granted."

Guelph Contractor Dead.

Guelph, Oct. 1.—Thomas Dobbie, a well-known contractor, died suddenly in his bed Sunday night about 12 o'clock from heart disease, at the age of 71. He came from Stirlingshire, Scotland, to Guelph in 1861 and has resided here ever since. He was a first-class mason, and many fine structures remain as monuments of his handiwork, such as the Central School, postoffice, Cutten's block, addition to the main building Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph, the Court House and jail, Orangeville, etc. His last large contract was the Winter Fair building last year.

Found Dead by the Track.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 1.—Yesterday morning the crew of the westbound freight train found the body of a man apparently about thirty years of age, lying beside the Grand Trunk track about two miles west of Kingston. The back of the head was crushed in and the right foot was severed at the ankle. He was respectably dressed.

C.P.R. Land Sales.

Winnipeg, Oct. 1.—The C. P. R. land sales for the month of September were much heavier than usual. The aggregate will be in the neighborhood of 63,000 for $210,000. In September, 1900, the total sales amounted to 21,807 for $69,012.54. The land sold this year exceeds the sales up to the same period of last year by about 40,000 acres.

Negligent Letter-Writers.

London, Oct. 1.—Canadian correspondents must remember that two cents postage rate to the United Kingdom and the colonies is for half-ounce letters. Very little regard has been paid to the weight, and in consequence thousands of letters received here are surcharged double.

Fatal Railway Wreck.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 1.— Two freight trains on the Berkshire division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company collided head-on at Long Hill this morning. Three men were killed and two seriously injured.

What He Said.

"Oh, he swore so!" sobbed the young wife. "I think he must be getting some terrible mental trouble. Oh, my!"

"Tell me all about it," said her mother soothingly. "Did he really swear?"

"Indeed he did; frightfully. It was at the table. He had just started to eat a nice dessert I had made for him, when all of a sudden, for no apparent reason, he jumped up and yelled: "Jumping Jehoshaphat! What the deuce!"

CAPT. BERNIER'S FUND.

Strathcona Will Give $5,000—Government Will Subscribe $60,000 When a Like Amount Has Been Subscribed.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Capt. Bernier, who is anxious to get to the North Pole, made an interesting announcement yesterday.

"The hardest part of a polar expedition, I find," he said, "is getting started. Still I am receiving substantial encouragement. When I began asking the Canadian people for assistance in my polar project I wanted $120,000. Now I only want $35,000. So you see I have made progress. The latest addition to my list is Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, who seems always ready to lend a helping hand to any project that will redownd to the credit of Canada. I saw Lord Strathcona last week and laid my plans fully before him. He expressed a favorable opinion of the feasibility of my scheme, and promised me help on the same lines that the Dominion Government has."

"The Government, after examining and approving my project, promised me $60,000 when I should raise a like amount by private subscription. That is when I have $55,000 subscribed by the people of Canada. I can call upon Lord Strathcona for $5,000, which will give me $60,000, and with this $60,000 I can call upon the Government for another $60,000. The expedition will then start.

"Since the last list of subscribers was published, Senator Garneau of Quebec has promised me a contribution of $280, in bedding. Senator A. M. Dechene has subscribed $100. Mr. Mann of Mackenzie and Mann, has put his name down for $100. There have been several contributions of amounts of $50 or more. Mayor Prefontaine has promised $200.

A New Departure.

A New, Effectual and Convenient Cure for Catarrh.

Of catarrh remedies there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies to relieve, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water through the nose would often relieve and the washes, douches, powders and inhalers in common use are very little, if any, better than the old fashioned salt water douche.

The use of inhalers and the application of salves, washes and powders to the nose and throat to cure catarrh is no more reasonable than to rub the back to cure kidney disease. Catarrh is just as much a blood disease as kidney trouble or rheumatism and it cannot be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

To cure catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach an internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to drive the catarrhal poison out of the blood and system, and the new catarrh cure is designed on this plan and the remarkable success of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is because being used internally it drives out catarrhal infection through action upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman of St. Joseph, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrh sufferers everywhere. He says:—"I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchital tubes and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but as I was able to keep up and do a day's work I let it run along until my hearing began to fail me and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh or lose my position as I was clerk and my hearing was absolutely necessary.

"Some of my friends recommended an inhaler, another a catarrh salve but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and bought a package at my drug store. They benefitted me from the start and in less than four months I was completely cured of catarrh although I had suffered nearly all my life from it.

"They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies that I feel I cannot say enough in favour of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

A little book on cause and cure of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and the tablets are sold by all druggists in the United States and Canada.

"For three weeks I lay in bed suffering most terribly and utterly helpless from Inflammatory Rheumatism," says Mr. E. H. Norton, of Grimsby, Ont. "When all that the doctors could do failed me, I was induced to try South American Rheumatic Cure. After taking one bottle I was not only able to leave my bed, but surprised my friends by walking down town. I think it a wonder." 36

CROWN CLOSED. DEFENCE BEGINS

Expert Doctors Occupy Most of the Day in Giving Testimony—Dr. Caven's Evidence Not Finished.

London, Ont., Oct. 1.—At the Sifton trial yesterday morning the first witness was John Sifton, brother of the late Joseph Sifton, and uncle of the prisoner. He was introduced to give information about wills. He was called as a Crown witness. He said that Gerald Sifton did not, as far as he was aware, know of the contents of Joseph Sifton's will. He said further, he had never asked for an inquest.

In cross-examination Mr. Johnston got the facts about the famous butter-paper will, made on the night before the tragedy, before the jury, and all about Edgar Morden and his doings with it. John Sifton had entered suit against Morden and gained a verdict, having proved that the butter-paper will was a forgery.

By John Waters, registrar of Middlesex, it was attempted to prove that Gerald Sifton was financially involved, and in such circumstances that the death of his father would afford great relief and a great inheritance.

Mr. Johnston objected. He pointed out that there was no evidence that Sifton knew the contents of his father's will.

The court upheld the objection.

David Leckie identified the knife found in the straw in the Sifton barn mow as the one he had lent Joseph Sifton a few days before his death.

Martin Morden was recalled. He said that Gerald Sifton had told him that the late Joseph Sifton had in his will left an inheritance to him (Sifton). He would not swear to the day or month the conversation took place, nor anything more about it. Sifton had said to him, "Everything is willed to me." That he remembered distinctly.

"Why did you not tell of it when in the box the other day?" asked His Lordship.

"I did not think it was necessary," said Morden.

Edward Peters, a neighbor, said that there had been trouble between Joseph and Gerald Sifton, because of Joseph calling Mrs. Sifton names. He said he would have been mad, too, if his wife had been called such a name. Joseph Sifton was a quarrelsome man.

An adjournment was here taken to permit of consultation of Crown lawyers.

The adjournment made by the Crown was brief and the medical evidence was resumed.

Dr. Williams of London said he believed the bruises on Sifton's head might be made by a fall or a series of blows. He discredited Herbert's statement that 10 or 12 blows were poured on the head.

Dr. Williams stated that neither Sifton's skull nor Dr. MacNeil's evidence as to the conditions he found, told any such story as that told by Walter Herbert of the number of blows from two such powerful men delivered with intent to kill.

Dr. Roome told much the same story.

The Defence.

The Crown closed its case with the evidence of medical experts, and the defence was initiated with more expert testimony; so that it was a day spent with the doctors. The evidence summed up was that "it might and it might not."

The defence put Dr. A. J. Johnston and Dr. John Caven of Toronto in the box, and both gentlemen inclined in their statements to the theory that the injuries could not have been inflicted by an ax as described by the prisoner, Herbert.

The defence are understood to have decided not to put the prisoner in the box, as had been intended at one stage of the case.

During the afternoon Dr. Hossack of Lucan said he could not understand one impact causing the injuries. Dr. Morris of Delaware and Dr. W. T. Teasdell of London were strongly against the theory of the fracture and wounds being due to a fall. Dr. John Ferguson of Toronto did not believe in the theory of a fall. This closed the case for the Crown. The cross-examination of Dr. Caven was in progress when the court rose at 6 o'clock.

Paine's Celery Compound
Cures Chronic and Complicated Cases of Rheumatism.

IT BANISHES EVERY TRACE OF POISONOUS ACID FROM THE BLOOD.

Has Made More Permanent and Wonderful Cures Than All Other Medicines in The World.

All rheumatic sufferers dread the variable and trying weather of October and November. Sufferers from the various forms of rheumatism — articular, muscular, inflammatory, gout and lumbago — suffer more intensely in the autumn months. Chilling winds, damp air, cold rains and night frosts aggravate existing misery and agony.

Thousands of victims of rheumatism have come back from summer health resorts only to find themselves as badly tortured and crippled as they were before they started for their false Meccas of health. Mineral springs, baths and massage systems can never drive out the morbid principle of terrible rheumatism from the blood and joints.

Careful medical tests and a long experience prove that Paine's Celery Compound is the only agent and medicine for the cure of all forms of rheumatism, and succeeds when everything else fails. With a confidence created and strengthened by thousands of victories over rheumatism, we urge suffering men and women to use Paine's Celery Compound. Its marvellous virtues will meet your case, and do for you what it has done for others. Mrs. J. Vince, Barrie, Ont., says:

"I am happy to say I have taken Paine's Celery Compound with great results. I had sciatica so badly that I could not turn in bed or walk without help and for a period of three weeks was helplessly laid up and suffered pain that at times was almost unbearable.

"I tried many medicines, but all in vain. I was afterwards recommended to try Paine's Celery Compound. I used six bottles and was entirely cured and enjoy good health. I take great pleasure in recommending the valuable medicine that cured me."

TO LEAD SOCIAL CAMPAIGN.

Lord Roberts Has Leased Famous Old London House for Season.

London, Oct. 1.—Lord and Lady Roberts have leased one of the most noted old houses in London and intend to make it the headquarters of military society, which is now on top of the social heap.

It is the former homes of the Dukes of Richmond in Portland Place, notably that vigorous Duchess of Richmond, who gave the famous ball at Brussels the night before the battle of Waterloo. Wellington made Richmond House his favorite social resort, and Roberts intends to revive the military social regime of a century ago.

He has spent one-fifth of the £100,000 voted to him by Parliament in preparing to live up to the position of Commander-in-Chief, and Lady Roberts is engineering the campaign.

An Ideal Ready-made Food.

SHOE SELLING
FOR FAIR WEEK.

Just breaking into the Fall and winter season comes a week of Shoe Selling during Fair week. For fair week buyers we point to the merits of the stock we have on view. Each line the best for its purpose. Each Shoe perfect in make, material, style and finish. To wear our shoes is to be convinced of their merits.

A list of prices is sometimes esteemed dry reading. It may be to some, but should not be to the buyer. It shows comparative values, it tells the kind of Shoe at a stated price. Our lists are interesting, for the Shoe, at the price, will be found of very superior value, our facilities enabling us to offer the equal of the largest departmental store. Our necessity, our whole trade, is Shoes. We share in the great advantage that arises from buying wholesale for Seven Stores. Hence lower prices, hence lower to customers. Scan this Fair Week List—fall and winter shoes are now seasonable. Let the list help you to decide.

T. A. S. ENTERTAINMENT.

The First of a Series Held Last Night Very Successful.

The T. A. S. Rooms were crowded last night, it being the occasion of the first of a series of entertainments that will be held fortnightly during the fall and winter months under the auspices of the Total Abstinence Society of St. Peter's Cathedral. Every one will remember the success of last year's entertainments and the pleasure afforded to those who attended the same. Since then the membership of the society has increased, the enthusiasm of the members has increased as well, and besides the rooms of the Society have been put in much better condition, including electric light service. There is every reason, then, to believe that the series of entertainments this year will prove as enjoyable and successful as those in the past.

The rooms last night were crowded, and extra chairs had to be provided to accommodate those who desired to hear the programme.

The chair was occupied by Mr. J. J. Hickey, who opened the programme without any preliminaries.

The programme opened with an instrumental duet by Misses McCabe and Doherty, which was well received. The feature of the evening was the recitations given by little Carrie White, who displayed great versatility for one so young. This little lady had to respond to repeated encores throughout the evening, and has a bright future before her as an elocutionist. A couple of well rendered vocal solos were given by Mr. John King. The Misses Hallihan gave "The Holy City," and in response to an encore another song, both of which were deservedly applauded. Miss Gertie McClellan delighted the audience with a Highland dance in costume, which must have warmed the heart of every Scotchman present. Later in the evening she executed a skirt dance with much skill. Six young ladies of the choir, Misses Hurley, Hallihan, Begley, Simons and Mahoney, rendered "The Honeysuckle and the Bee" in good style. Mr. James Browne sustained his reputation as a vocalist in two well rendered and difficult selections, which displayed his clear tenor voice to advantage.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. J. Phelan were present, and spoke of the pleasure it gave them to see such a large and enthusiastic gathering.

The chairman made a few remarks concerning his duties, and spoke of the pleasure he felt at being so heartily co-operated with in the work they were doing.

The Misses Hurley as usual presided at the piano in their usual excellent manner.

AT THE FALL ASSIZES.

The Grand Jury Makes the Presentment.

Jury Return Verdict for Plaintiff in Morrison vs. Canadian General Electric Co.

The Fall Assizes, now in session before the Hon. Mr. Justice Falconbridge, are dragging along rather slowly. Only one case has so far been disposed of, being that of Morrison vs. the Canadian General Electric Co. It was a case in which Jas. Morrison, now of Toronto, sought to recover from the C.G.E. Co. damages for injuries alleged to have been received while at work on the company's new building in Peterborough, such injuries having occurred through alleged defective scaffolding on which the plaintiff was working at the time of the accident.

The case occupied all yesterday afternoon, when the jury returned a verdict of $350 in favour of the plaintiff.

Frank Denton, K.C., Toronto, for plaintiff; A. B. Aylsworth, K. C., Toronto, for defendants.

This morning the Grand Jury brought in the following presentment:

To the Honourable Chief Justice Falconbridge;

May It Please Your Lordship.—We, the Grand Jurors, beg leave to present as follows.—

We are pleased to note the absence of crime in this country, as shown by the fact that there is no criminal case for us to investigate, and we congratulate the county on the fact.

We examined the County Jail, and found everything in good order and well kept. There are two men confined in the goal to whose cases we wish to direct attention. One is a man suffering from pralysis, and the other a man seriously afflicted with St. Vitus Dance. These men are unable to support themselves owing to their afflictions, and we believe some provision should be made for them in some other place than the county goal, and there is also a young woman known as Bertha Freeburn now confined in the goal afflicted with fits and partial insanity, who should be removed to some institution better suited for one so afflicted.

We visited St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence in Ashburnham, and were pleasantly surprised with the capacity of the new House of Providence, and the accommodation it affords for old and infirm persons. It and the Hospital are good institutions, and well kept by the Sisters in charge. Also visited the Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough, and found every evidence of careful management.

We would direct the attention of the County Council to necessary repairs to the Court House building.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Chairman.

The street closed ran through the property recently acquired by the American Cereal Co. and the new street will be opened on the site of the present raceway.

Ald. Edgcumbe introduced a bylaw regulating and licensing junk shops. The bylaw provides that all junk shops shall be licensed on payment of a fee of $10.00 to the clerk, that a book shall be kept for recording the purchase of all goods and description of person selling the same, that goods shall be kept two days at least before resold; that no article shall be purchased which is suspected of being stolen and the police shall be notified of goods of this class brought for sale; that any constable or detective may search the premises, without producing a search-warrant, that any minor selling goods, authority must be produced for so doing from a parent or guardian. The penalty for a first offence against the provisions of the bylaw may be from $5.00 to $50.00, and in case of a second offence, the license may be revoked.—The bylaw was passed.

On motion of Ald. Rush and Edgcumbe, Ald. Shortly will meet the County Council and ask that a similiar bylaw be passed by that body.

The council will be a deputation to attend the opening of the new Chemong Lake Bridge on Thursday.

On motion of Ald. Best and Corkery, a grant of $25.00 was made to the Township of Douro, as per agreement, for road improvement, and also that $35.50 be paid to E. Archambault for gravel drawn for the street.

Ald. Best and Corkery moved that the whole council be a committee to investigate the question of the municipality acquiring and developing water power for industrial purposes. —Carried.

Mr. Cunningham was heard in reference to the construction of a granolithic sidewalk on the west side of Reid street. He asked that a four foot walk be laid instead of the usual width of five feet, as entailing less expense on a portion of the street which is not greatly used.

On motion of Ald. Shortly and Batten it was decided to proceed with the work.

The council then adjourned.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

The Committee on Appointments reported as follows:

Gentlemen, — Your Committee on pointments beg leave to report and recommend that Miss Donnell be appointed first assistant at the Central School Kindergarten at a salary of $10 a month; and Mrs. Harding second assistant at a salary of $5.

In reference to the communication from Miss Fife and Mr. McPherson, asking for an increase of salary, the matter was referred to a special committee consisting of Messrs. Hartley, Langford, McBain, Eastwood, Caldwell, Burnham and Hayes, and the mover, to report at the next meeting of the Board, and that information be obtained as to the amount of salary paid in other places similarly located.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Eastwood moved, seconded by Mr. Langford, that Lieut. A. W. McPherson and Lieut. D. Walker be allowed three days leave of absence to accompany the 57th Regiment to Toronto. The motion was carried.

Mr. Eastwood brought up the matter of truancy, and upon motion of that gentlemen, seconded by Dr. Caldwell, the principal was asked to keep a sharp lookout for truants, then suspend the same, and report to the Board for further action.

Mr. McBain introduced the matter of making an addition to the present school library. He moved, seconded by Mr. Stevenson, that $25 worth of books be added to the present library.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

Rev. J. C. Davidson appeared before the Board on behalf of the Ministerial Association, of the town. He first expressed the pleasure it gave him at being present on this his first occasion at a meeting of the Board, and proceeding, told what his mission was. He had come to discuss the matter of having religious instruction taught in the school.

What was proposed was that in view of the fact that the Government had set aside the last half hour of Friday of each week for religious instruction, that the ministers of the town should between now and Christmas visit each of the school rooms of the town at least once. This would be a sort of start in the right direction and then they could arrange further. Of course any such arrangement should be approved of by the inspector, Mr. Walker and the Board. The whole idea was to get the clergy of the town into closer touch with the children.

Chairman Hill felt that in the past the ministers had not taken advantage of all the opportunities afforded them in this respect, but it was a matter that should be thoroughly dealt with in committee before taking any definite step. They would have to look into the law on the matter.

Mr. Bamford—What constitutes the Ministeral Association? Do the Christian Science, Christian Alliance and other such bodies belong to it?

In reply to Mr. Bamford, Mr. Davidson said that he was a comparatively young member of the Association himself and could not just say who could belong to it, but at the present time its membership includes only the church of England, Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches of the town.

Inspector Walker addressed the Board, giving much information as to the privileges granted under the Act to the ministers of the town. During such religious instruction no child need stay, whose parents do not care to have them do so.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the matter referred to by Rev. J. C. Davidson, on behalf of the Ministerial Association, be referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Eastwood, Ferguson, Bamford, Dr. Burnham, Mr. Walker and the mover, with power to act, and report to this Board.

The Board then adjourned.

RESPECTED HIS RULE.

Why Andrew Carnegie Refused a Position to a Friend—"Influence" and "Pull" Are Nowhere.

The conspicuous part played by the Carnegie Steel Company in the news recently calls attention to an important condition that has helped to bring about the wonderful development of this concern. The company is probably the only one in the world in which "influence" and "pull" are not permitted to affect promotions. A hard and fast rule is laid down that all promotions must come from the ranks, and that everybody in the employ of the concern must stand on his own merits. Neither relationship nor any other claim is recognized, either in obtaining employment or in getting ahead after a place is won. That this is not mere idle talk was forcibly brought home not a great while ago, to a Pittsburger.

This man, after a successful business career, recently met with a series of commercial reverses that left him practically without a dollar in the world. There was, however, nothing to reflect on his probity or on his business acumen, his misfortunes being due to circumstances over which he had no control. As he was in excellent health, looking and feeling at least ten years younger than he really was, the disaster did not break his spirit. He determined that he would begin all over again, and make a new fortune. As a preliminary he went to Andrew Carnegie, whom he had known intimately all his life, having been with him a member of the Duquesne Club and of other organizations. He explained his situation and asked for a position in the works commensurate with his position and training.

"I cannot give you a position," said Mr. Carnegie.

"You cannot—why?"

"Simply because I haven't the power."

"But you are the chief owner!"

"Yes, I am, but it is a rule in the Carnegie Company that everybody must begin at the bottom and work up, and neither I nor anyone else can change that rule. If I should give an order to put you in such a position as you ask, even if there were a vacancy, no attention would be paid to it—not the slightest. In fact, if I should give you any sort of a letter of recommendation it would only do you more harm than good. In the first place, it would not get you a place such as you ask, and in the second place, if you did succeed in getting in at the bottom, the very fact that I had recommended you would make everybody in the establishment watch you like a hawk. That is the way influence works in our concern."

The Pittsburger went away and got work elsewhere, but he regrets that he did not start earlier in life in an enterprise where merit is so absolutely the test. Whether the same rule will be maintained under the great consolidation is a question that interests many people.

THE MACKENZIE MONUMENT.

Pose Is Characteristic and the Features Are Lifelike.

The site occupied by the monument of the late Alexander Mackenzie, shown in the cut, is a little north of the Cartier monument at Ottawa, a very appropriate one. The figure is a fine tribute to the genius of Mr. Hebert, the French-Canadian sculptor, who was assisted by Mr. Hamilton McCarthy. The pose of the figure is a characteristic one, and the features have been wrought with life-like fidelity. It has not yet been decided when the monument will be unveiled, but the hope is expressed that it may be made the occasion of a great demonstration.

THE MACKENZIE MONUMENT.

Carlyle and Joachim.

Joachim, the famous violinist, relates the following story of his first meeting with Carlyle: "Early in the seventies," he writes, "Brookfield, a friend of mine and Thackeray's, took me to Carlyle's house at Chelsea and introduced me to him as the well known musician and then left us, pleading an engagement elsewhere. Carlyle, who was just starting for his constitutional, begged me to accompany him, which I did. During our long walk in Hyde Park the sage of Chelsea poured forth a stream of conversation about Germany, the King of Prussia, Bismarck, Moltke, the war, etc. At last I thought I ought to say something and innocently asked the irascible gentleman if he knew Sterndale Bennett, the English composer. 'No,' he answered abruptly, and added after a pause: 'I can't bear musicians as a rule. They are such an empty headed, windbaggy set of people!'"

THEIR PARTING.

Mournful Farewell Heard Only by the Mermaids.

"Our time is almost up," he said regretfully as he looked rather gloomily across the wide subdued blue of ocean that stretched far away in front of them.

"Yes," she said, with a slight sigh, "only a few hours more and we shall be as far apart from each other as ever."

It was late in July, and they were sitting on the quiet little piazza of the admirable hotel to which they had drifted together a fortnight before. The water lapped on the beach at their feet and the sea gulls flattened their wings against the sky above them as if in full harmony with the beating of their own hearts. Two weeks together! And now they were to be separated for no one knew how long. All romance must end some time.

"Tomorrow," she said, "you will go back to your work in town. You will attend those important directors' meetings that you have told me of. Then there are stocks to buy and sell, political friends to meet, campaigns to arrange and speeches to think over. Your horses, too, will claim your attention, and of course there are your club and the dinners and all the other things for a man to do."

"And you," he said half playfully, "you, too, will be busy. You have your life work, you know. There is the church with its round of social duties. There are the societies to which you belong, the papers you are to prepare, the charities you are interested in and the literary events which claim you."

Yet there was a ray of hope that glistened in her woman's eye as she laid her hand on his arm.

"Never mind, dear," she said. "Some day we may learn better how to economize our time. Perhaps when we have been married another seven years we shall be able to see more of each other."

Complicated Ailments.

A Remarkable Case of Kidney and Liver Disorders and Extreme Nervousness Cured by the Combined Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food.

The strongest combination in medicines that one can well imagine is the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The kidney-liver pills regulate and invigorate the liver, kidneys and bowels, while the Nerve Food enriches the blood and thoroughly builds up the system.

Mr. Walter Booth, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for some years with kidney and liver disease, and pains in my back, and my stomach was so bad I could not eat hearty food, and had difficulty in keeping any food on my stomach. I was so nervous that I could scarcely take a drink of water without spilling much of it, my hand trembled so, and I lost flesh until my weight fell from 155 to 138 pounds.

"Hearing of a similar case that was cured by Dr. Chase's Remedies, I commenced by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Pills, six boxes of which entirely cured my kidney and liver troubles. I then began Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for my nervousness. It strengthened my stomach and whole system, and I gained in flesh. I cannot speak in terms of too great praise for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food, for besides curing me, they did my father, who is an old man, a great deal of good. I have every confidence in recommending these remedies."

Mr. J. Ward, J .P., certifies that he knows Mr. Walter Booth, and that this statement of his cure is perfectly correct.

As a spring restorative Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivalled. If the bowels are constipated and the kidneys and liver sluggish and inactive, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills can be used to advantage, along with the Nerve Food. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Useful Old Calendars.

It has been discovered that it would be possible to use the same calendars every 20 years, when the dates of the months fall on the same days of the week, thereby avoiding the expense of five almanacs for the present century. But here is something even better than that: Those persons who might be able to get hold of calendars for the twelfth century would find the days and dates coincident with the present century. Again, those with a frugal mind who have preserved the almanacs of the nineteenth century will avoid an outlay for calendars of the century commencing Jan. 1, 2201, as the dates for the 100 years following will be like those of the last century.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distasts for food oftens follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

VOICES.

When bloodroot blooms and trillium flowers
Unclasp their stars to sun and rain,
My heart strikes hands with winds and showers
And wanders in the woods again.

Oh, urging impulse, born of spring,
That makes glad April of my soul,
No bird, however wild of wing,
Is more impatient of control!

Impetuous of pulse it beats
Within my blood and bears me hence;
Above the house tops and the streets
I hear its happy eloquence.

It tells me all that I would know,
Of birds and buds, of blooms and bees;
I seem to hear the blossoms blow
And leaves unfolding on the trees.

I seem to hear the bluebells ring
Faint purple peals of fragrance and
The honey throated poppies fling
Their golden laughter o'er the land.

It calls to me; it sings to me;
I hear its far voice night and day;
I cannot choose but go when free
And flower clamor, "Come away!"

Hunted Down

BY M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

I was putting in a month in a Swiss town, and as I was strolling along the highway in the suburbs one day a vehicle containing a single traveler appeared. The driver pulled up that the traveler might ask if he could find accommodations at some chalet instead of at the hotel, as he was not in good health and wanted quietness. I was lodging at a private house, and there was room for another guest. The stranger was driven on, and I sat down on a rock to sum him up. Having come from the west in a country vehicle, he must have come from beyond the railroad station. The horse looked weary, the hour was 4 in the afternoon, and I settled it that he must have come from Thalia, 15 miles away. The man wore a hat which did not fit him and had the collar of his coat turned up. He had on goggles, though it was a dark day. A person who wears goggles for weak eyes will carry a finger to one of the glasses every two or three minutes, even if he does not remove them occasionally. On this man's face was a newly grown beard about an inch long. Every 30 seconds up went his hand to scratch. He was not used to a beard, but had grown one for an object. He thickened his voice when he spoke to me, and it was easy to detect the unnatural intonation. Why did he do it? Travelers searching for health are seldom to be met with in the mountains except in early summer, and this was late in the season. He might explain, however. Mr. Braceby, as he had given his name, probably had more reasons for seclusion than he had stated, and I had a curiosity to observe him further.

He was taken in at the chalet, and that night we ate supper together. I saw from his table manners that he had been used to the quick lunches of a restaurant. He claimed to be an Englishman, but his American idioms would have given him away to a child.

WAS SMOKING ON THE VERANDA.

The heels of his boots, as I observed, were very true. He was therefore a man who did little walking. He had the curve of shoulders and neck which come to one who sits a great deal. Now and then he leaned back and locked his fingers, as most public officials do when a caller enters. He claimed to have nervous trouble. That was or was not a good excuse for his presence. A door slammed, and he jumped. That showed nerves. The diligence rattled past on its way from the railroad station to the big hotel, and Mr. Braceby slyly and furtively peered out of the window. That was the action of a fugitive from justice.

In the course of four or five days I had the stranger sized up to a dot and would have bet five to one that my diagnosis was positively correct. He was a straight haired American. He was a public official. It was his first time abroad. He was in disguise and a fugitive. Whatever boodle he had with him was in his undershirt pocket. I knew this because he was constantly raising his hand to the spot. That boodle was probably in drafts, as he made cautious inquiries about bankers. Mr. Braceby removed his goggles and turned down his coat collar and spoke in natural tones after he got installed, but he did not wander far from the house and sought no other company. He asked for no papers, but when I bought copies of a New York daily at the hotel and took them home to read he could scarcely control his impatience until he had his hands on them.

I am no man hunter. I did not go to the police or drop a hint to any one. Of whatever crime he was guilty, he was safe from me. I knew it wasn't murder unless done in the heat of passion, for he was sentimental and tender hearted. I think it was on the fifth day of his stay that he became feverish and called in a doctor and went to bed, much [illegible] sorry you see. I had [illegible]

LINCOLN'S LOGIC.

How Old Abe Learned to Tell When a Thing Is Proved.

A man who heard Abraham Lincoln speak in Norwich, Conn., some time before he was nominated for president, was greatly impressed by the closely knit logic of the speech. Meeting him next day on a train he asked him how he acquired his wonderful logical powers and such acuteness in analysis.

Lincoln replied: "It was my terrible discouragement which did that for me. When I was a young man, I went into an office to study law. I saw that a lawyer's business is largely to prove things. I said to myself, 'Lincoln, when is a thing proved?' That was a poser. What constitutes proof? Not evidence; that was not the point. There may be evidence enough, but wherein consists the proof? I groaned over the question, and finally said to myself, 'Ah, Lincoln, you can't tell.' Then I thought what use is it for me to be in a law office if I can't tell when a thing is proved?

"So I gave it up and went back home. Soon after I returned to the old log cabin I fell in with a copy of Euclid. I had not the slightest notion of what Euclid was, and I thought I would find out. I therefore began at the beginning, and before spring I had gone through the old Euclid's geometry and could demonstrate every proposition in the book. Then in the spring, when I had got through with it, I said to myself one day, 'Ah, do you know when a thing is proved?' and I answered, 'Yes, sir, I do. Then you may go back to the law shop;' and I went."

What to Read.

Read the good old books that have lived and held their own by the vitality of matter and style that makes them standards. Don't read a lot of new books about the Bible. Read the Bible, and then you will understand what you may afterward read about the Bible. Read Shakespeare, not controversies on Shakespeare; read Scott and Thackeray and Dickens and George Eliot. Do not be content with a short history of literature that tells you their best works and makes a few disconnected extracts and tells you their standing and what you should think of them.

Read intelligently and with interest, and every book you read will guide you to the next that is good for you personally far better than a strange mentor can do, who is often full of theories and prejudices or perhaps has got up a course of study as a "pot boiler" and has no real love of his subject.

Horses' Sunbonnets.

The wearing of sunbonnets by horses in hot weather is by no means a modern invention. In an old Italian print, dated 1542, a gentleman is shown riding on horseback with an umbrella fixed over his own head and another over that of his horse. In Mexico horses are often protected by a small parasol rising over the head, and a horse similarly accommodated has lately been seen in Regent street. Unfortunately this headdress annoyed the conventional "horse in the street," and it came very near causing more than one disaster on the way to Langham place.

Not Needed.

According to the London Vanity Fair a celebrated surgeon met a young officer in Piccadilly one day and greeted him with surprise. "Well, I am pleased to see you! I am surprised! Do you know I have a portion of your brain in a jar at home?"

"Ah, well," laughed the other, "I can easily spare that. I have got a berth in the war office."

St. Vitus's

Dance, or chorea, is one of the most pitiable afflictions humanity is called on to endure. That this disease can be cured, however, is proven by the fact that it has been cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The tranquilizing effect upon the nerves exercised by this remarkable medicine is witnessed to by thousands who have found healing and strength in its use. It not only cures womanly diseases, but it promotes the health of the whole body. It is a nerve-feeding, strength-giving, sleep-inducing medicine. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics. It cannot disagree with the weakest or most delicate constitution.

"When our daughter Lizzie had St. Vitus's dance, I happened to get one of your small books and read it," writes Henry L. Miller, Esq., of 1016 North 7th St., Burlington, Iowa. "Among other things I found that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cured patients suffering from that trouble, so I went out and got a bottle. She was very bad at that time and could hardly talk. When I read about your medicine in that small book, I said to myself, with the help of God and that medicine we can cure our daughter. We did so. Four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' cured her, and I did not have to take her to the doctor any more. She is well, thank God and the 'Favorite Prescription' for it."

CHEERED THE CENSOR.

How a Gallant Irish Regiment Took an After Battle Scolding.

The leading regiment of our column was the Fifty-third, commanded that day by Major Payn, afterward General Sir William Payn, K. C. B., a very fine regiment, who, being mostly Irishmen, were eager to meet their enemy. Meanwhile I received orders to cross the river by a ford and get round the enemy's right flank, and I had gone for this purpose and was crossing about a quarter of a mile lower down, when suddenly I heard loud cheering and a heavy musketry fire, and then I saw our troops gallantly advancing across the bridge to the assault.

It turned out to be the Fifty-third, who, tired of the delay under fire and, it was whispered, hearing that Sir Colin had sent for his pet highlanders to take the bridge, took their bits between their teeth and without any further orders determined to rush the bridge themselves, which they accordingly did, and with great success. The enemy, once forced out of their position, showed but a poor, desultory fight and, as at Cawnpur, fell an easy prey to the cavalry, who, having crossed, some by the bridge and others, including myself, by the ford, fell on them and pursued them with such success that we captured every gun they had.

The Fifty-third were well pleased with themselves and the result of the fight they had so suddenly initiated, but we heard that Sir Colin was greatly annoyed with them and after the action rated them soundly for their insubordination. But little did these wild Irishmen care. They had had their fight, and a real good one, so far as they were concerned, and as Sir Colin concluded his speech of rebuke they gave him three cheers, and giving three cheers more for General Mansfield, Sir Colin's chief of staff, who had formerly commanded their regiment, they quite upset the chief's equanimity, but at the same time cleared away his wrath.

Digestion Without a Stomach.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy active, and vigorous, and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

The Chief Difference.

"The superstition which prevailed in the middle ages is hard to understand in this enlightened era," remarked the optimist.

"Yes," replied the man who prides himself on being a chilly proposition, "it does seem surprising that the palmists and astrologers and other fortune tellers of those days shouldn't have been wise enough to advertise their business as they do now."

History of Merrill's System Tonic

This now famous remedy is not a hap hazard mixture. On the contrary it is the result of years of careful thought and experiment, having always the definite object in view of combining alterative herbs with a definite tonic for each organ in the body. Alteratives are medicines which assist the glands of the body to throw off waste and poisonous matter and absorb the nourishment provided by the food eaten. These glands are found in the stomach, kidneys, bowels, bladder and lungs. Besides these glands, each of these important organs is composed of more or less muscular matter, and it is upon this that tonic medicines act. A different tonic is required in almost each of these sets of muscles. After much observation the alterative mixture originated and prescribed by Walter S. McDade, of Philadelphia, and highly indorsed by Edwin F. Rush, of the Bellevue Medical College, of New York, and J. Marion Sims, of the Chicago University of Medicine, all medical men of the highest standing on the continent, was chosen. To this compound was added the different tonics above described. Merrill's System Tonic cannot be called a quack medicine, as knowledge and skill are behind it. It accomplishes four great purposes, on which ninety per cent. of disease hinges, viz., purifies the blood, builds up the glandular and muscular system, strengthens and soothes the nerves and cures constipation. It thus guarantees you a permanent cure for dyspepsia, skin disease, kidney troubles, general debility, nervousness and female troubles.

MINISTERS IN NEW ONTARIO.

Interesting Visit to the Rainy River District.

HELD SEVERAL MEETINGS.

Many Signs of Prosperity in Progress—Government's Policy Means. Gibson and Stratton Discuss it Before Numerous Audiences.

(From the Globe.)

Fort Frances, Sept. 20.—The touring Ontario Ministers, Hon. Messrs. Gibson and Stratton, accompanied by Mr. James Conmee, M.P.P., left Rat Portage on Wednesday at midnight and proceeded by steamer Keenova southward through the picturesque Lake of the Woods to Beaver Mills, the first stopping place being reached at 7 o'clock a.m. Beaver Mills is the point where the Rainy River is crossbyra fine steel bridge connecting the Ontario section of the Ontario & Rainy River Railway with the short section that passes through a corner of the State of Minnesota and on to Manitoba. Beaver Mills, before the building of this railway line, was little more than a mere designation, consisting of a saw mill and one or two associated buildings. The result of the construction of this road, still in an uncompleted condition, has been to give a great impetus to local interests. A large number of new dwellings and stores have been put up, including churches, the denominations represented being the Anglican, Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, the latter having just completed a neat, new church. There are two good hotels and a customs house and other evidences of civilization; even an advertising card of a Toronto pianoforte firm ornamenting a building practically under the shadow of the original trees of the forest. The railway does much to promote settlement, hundreds of settlers having located in the vicinity of the track even before more than a few miles were completed. One of the inducements promoting settlement brought about by the Rainy River Railway is that it promises a ready and profitable local market for timber products of settlers' holding, either pulpwood or tamarac or other timber, railway ties, etc.

TIMBER FOR MANITOBA.

To-day two or three cars on a river front siding were being loaded with tamarac timber for Emerson, Manitoba, to which the people of Beaver Mills look as a valuable market for their timber and lumber, especially the latter. To the existing sawmill there, with a capacity of from 75,000 to 100,000 feet per day, will be added another one at an early date, and it is said locally two other new mills with large capacity. There is abundance of raw material, a large system of booms in the Rainy River, admitting of the storing of millions of feet of logs at one time. The new settlers in this part and in other parts of the Rainy River District are largely from old Ontario and bring to bear upon the exploitation of the agricultural resources of this district, with its fertile soil, the advanced farming methods and methods of combined thrift and enterprise which have made old Ontario so conspicuous in successful cultivation of the soil. The Ministers and Mr. Conmee went over the village and were very greatly impressed with the remarkable growth it had shown in so short a space of time, and with the possibilities of future growth and importance which were sure to result from the building of a railway contributing so directly to the advance of settlement and the development of natural resources.

AN EARLY MORNING MEETING.

At 10 o'clock a large audience assembled and listened with great attention to addresses given by the Ministers and Mr. Conmee. The remarks of the speakers necessarily had more particular reference to the growth and requirements of the district and their relation to the policy of the Ross Government, which aimed to bring about the conditions that will lead to as full development and as great prosperity in new Ontario as has resulted in old Ontario from past administration. They were also necessarily brief, for Mr. Conmee, the energetic conductor of the tour, had arranged for four other meetings to be addressed that day. This programme was faithfully carried out, and three addresses each were given at Pinewood, Boucherville and Emo. There was also sure to be delay at every calling place, arising from the numerous demands made upon Mr. Conmee's attention by his constituents, who were as anxious to avail themselves of his services as he was anxious to give them, in the hundred and one ways in which a live representative can be useful to his constituents, especially in a riding largely composed of new country. While the meetings were addressed things took something of the form of a conference, the settlers being invited to say in what way the Government or their representative could promote their interests. In regard to timber dues payable by settlers, Hon. Mr. Gibson said payment should not be insisted upon in the case of bona fide settlers. The Government was prepared to help bona fide settlers in this regard, but it had no sympathy with a man who settled on a lot, built a shanty, cleared a small patch or was only interested in getting off the timber, and showed no intention of becoming a bona fide farmer. The policy of the Government was to favour in every reasonable and legitimate way the bona fide settler.

THE MEETING AT EMO.

The last meeting of the day was held in the evening at Emo. Mr. Thomas Lundy occupied the chair, and the first item was the presentation of an address to the Ministers and Mr. Conmee, read by Mr. Alex. Lockie. It set forth that on the occasion of a visit by Sir Oliver Mowat and Hon. John Dryden, they had at the request of the people, promised to use their influence to secure a railway. Their promise had been kept. They placed the matter before Parliament, and the result was that the three gentlemen addressed arrived by a happy coincidence practically at the same time as the first shipment of cattle direct by rail had been delivered in the village. The address reminded the Ministers that the pioneers had settled here only twelve years ago, and the change effected was not only represented by improved and well-stocked farms, but also by the fact that on November 1st there would be held in the village the first agricultural exhibition of the whole district, the membership being 150 and the membership fee $1.50. Appropriate replies were made by the speakers during their addresses.

Mr. Conmee was the first speaker, and as usual gave a vigorous address, touching incidentally upon the course and record of the Government, as furnishing reasons why they should be sustained and retained in power. It would be a great mistake to bring about a change of Government, greater now than at any other time, when the Government had matured and begun the application of a policy that meant so much for the advancement of the interests of the province. He spoke of the importance of the pulp industry fostered by the Government, one of the chief advantages to the settler being a home market for his spruce. Referring to the Rainy River Railway, which would do so much for this district, Mr. Conmee remarked that if Mr. Whitney and the Opposition had had their way the railway would not have been built, for they were opposed to it, and their policy would have resulted in depriving the Rainy River District of the advantages the railway presented, among which not the least was the great cheapening of freight rates the railway has already brought about. Mr. Conmee, after dealing with several other matters, spoke of the grants to colonization roads. He held that they were not large enough for the needs of Algoma and other parts of his constituency, although he had been fairly successful in inducing the Government to do them justice, for of the $130,000 granted annually for colonization roads Algoma had got a very large proportion, and in 1897 an extra large share, of which the lion's part came to the Rainy River District. He hoped during the visit of the Ministers to bring them to his way of thinking in regard to the needs of the Rainy River District.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Hon. Mr. Gibson owing to the lateness of the hour at which the steamer had arrived, spoke briefly. He referred to the ways of allocating expenditures of colonization road money. It seemed better to expend it to give settlers in the rear a chance to get an outlet, rather than spend it upon other roads in sections which had not similar disadvantages to contend with. As to the details of the expenditure, the Government necessarily depended upon the advice received from local officers, as well as recommendations from the member, but in so wide a district as Algoma it was not to be expected that the representative should be familiar with every locality, and even if he devoted 365 days in the year he could not cover the ground. Mr. Gibson referred to the fact that both himself and Mr. Stratton had visited the district and passed up the river, and on this occasion they were most impressed with the progress that had been made. There were many signs of great improvement to farms, and better buildings, a gratifying evidence of thrift. But there was ground for disappointment in the fact that on some farms along the river greater progress had not been made in adding to the area of cleared land, evidently exclusive attention not being given to farming. But he was happy to be told that further back from the river there had been much greater progress and improvement. Adverting to more general matters, Mr. Gibson met and refuted Mr. Whitney's charge that we had direct taxation, and that the Government had been too long in power. It was inconceivable, though it was a fact, that the Liberals had been in power for a period of thirty years. Mr. Whitney says, and has repeatedly said, that it is time for a change, but has been unable to show any good reasons why a change should take place. He had resorted to special cries, unworthy appeals and side issues. There was no direct taxation, but it was said we were selling our capital, that is, disposing of our timber in the same way all other provinces did. Thus it was saved from destruction by fire, and the results of sales were largely applied to capital expenditure, in the form of public buildings, railway aid and other public purposes. Reference was made to the unique fact that, contrary to the practice of any known country, the Parliament buildings of the province had been constructed without borrowing money, not to speak of the fact that the old Parliament buildings, valued at half a million dollars, and not included in any statement of our assets, remained to us.

MR. WHITNEY'S GENERALITIES.

Mr. Whitney, who claimed the suffrages of the people of Ontario, in dealing with the school question dealt only in vague generalities. While he found fault, he suggested no specific improvements. Mr. Whitney professed to be a special advocate of university interests, as well as of the high school system. But inasmuch as the great majority of the people were either exclusively or more particularly interested in public schools, he was in the habit of attacking the present public school system. He had demanded that the pupils' course of study in the public school should be rounded off in that school, complete in itself, and such as would fit the pupil for the duties of life. He had always failed, however, to show in what way the course of study could be improved, and what better ending of a public school education could be suggested than the preparation for the examination for entrance into the high school afforded. As a matter of fact, to tamper with the present system would simply disarrange it. Mr. Whitney knows that there is no subject with which people generally have some familiarity. Every man in the country who has ever acted as school trustees, indeed, every parent of children who attend public schools, takes a more or less special interest in school matters, and frequently it is the case that when anything connected with a particular school is wrong the whole system of school education in denounced as wrong. It is for the purpose of capturing a certain percentage of a large class that Mr. Whitney persists in a sort of general declamation as to our public schools, which has no practical point or meaning. He goes on the principle that people will believe that where there is a constant clamour, in some way or other there must be something wrong. But we must view our system in a broad and comprehensive spirit. So viewed, according to the testimony of the most experienced and advanced educationists, our school system is not surpassed by that of any other country in the world.

THE AGRICUULTURAL COLLEGE.

For many years the Agricultural College at Guelph has been the subject of most unfriendly and unreasonable criticism by the Opposition in the House. Their course has been calculated to interfere with and impair the efficiency of that institution, but under the management and control of our excellent Minister of Agriculture, the College had outlived these attacks, and to-day no more popular institution exists in the country. The Conservative party feel this, and the farming class being a very large element of our population, Mr. Whitney holds out the prospect of four or five additional colleges being established by him, if he should come into office. It takes very little discernment for people of ordinary intelligence to see that nothing more than a mere bid for votes is meant by this paragraph of the Opposition Leader's recent deliverance in Toronto.

After a passing reference to Mr. Whitney's inconsistency in omitting to apply to the more culpable acts of corruption committed by his friends, the denunciations he bestowed upon the irregular acts of his opponents, Hon. Mr. Gibson concluded by referring to Mr. Conmee's ability and prominence as a member of the Legislature, and by asserting that Mr. Conmee's vigilance and persistence in behalf of his constituents in obtaining large grants was something the Government found it hard to resist.

MR. STRATTON'S SPEECH.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, in opening his brief address, paid a tribute to the persistence and energy of Mr. Conmee, in endeavouring to promote the benefit and interest of his constituents. His exertions were entitled to all the more praise, for no man could hope to successfully cover such an immense constituency as Mr. Conmee had, to give due attention to all the demands made upon him. The Government undertook a similar formidable task when it set itself seriously and earnestly to the work of providing for the wants and requirements of this great and growing province. The immense area of the province to be covered and attended to made it impossible for the Government to do as much as it wished to do to develop the great resources of the country. To give some idea of how Mr. Conmee's efforts in behalf of Algoma had resulted, Mr. Stratton gave some interesting figures of the growth and agricultural possibilities of the Algoma District: In 1899 the number of acres assessed was 408,360; Rainy River, 28,131; Thunder Bay, 249,595; and this assessed value applied only to the organized district, the unorganized districts, as a matter of fact, containing much more area under settlement and more wealth of various kinds, but for which figures were obviously not obtainable. The average yield of winter wheat in Algoma District was 27 bushels per acre, while the average for the whole province was 20; the average yield of spring wheat in this district was 20 bushels, while in the rest of the province the yield was 15 bushels per acre. The value of lands in Algoma alone, not including Rainy River or Thunder Bay, assessed was $2,077,306, an amount in excess of the same figures in any of the other great districts, Muskoka, Parry Sound or Nipissing, which have been much longer under favourable settlement conditions. The assessed value of the buildings of Algoma in organized municipalities was $538,684; implements, $179,613; live stock, $408,570; a total assessed value of $3,204,182. To show the improvement in pulp development, of which Algoma was the principal centre, Mr. Stratton mentioned that our export of pulp in 1890 was of the value of $168,180, and in 1900 its value had risen to $1,816000. Our exports of minerals from Ontario, of which Algoma furnished a large proportion, were in 1896 of the value of seven and a quarter millions, and in 1898 the figures had risen to nine and a quarter millions, an increase of a million dollars per year. Mr. Stratton spoke of our timber as a valuable asset and source of wealth, and indicated how important results might come from having such wealth available. The financial position of the province enabled the Government to entertain and begin to carry out a policy of development represented by such enterprises as the Rainy River Railway, for which Mr. Stratton claimed the highest credit for the Government. Mr. Stratton briefly dealt with the timber policy of the Ontario Government and compared it with the policy of the Conservative party in the Dominion, which gave away 50,000 square miles of timber now comprised in New Ontario to party friends at $5 a square mile, or about one cent an acre. In contrasting the timber sales of Ontario and Quebec Mr. Stratton accounted to this extent for Ontario's finances being in so good a position. Quebec received in total bonus from 1843 to 1890 for the whole of the upper Ottawa district 21,520 square miles, $418,804, or less than $20 per square mile. Take in comparison the timber berth sales of the Ontario Government in 1892, when 618 square miles were sold for $2,308,475, or an average of $3,700 per square mile, as against Quebec's $20 per square mile. To extend the comparison, one berth of 111-4 square miles was sold by the Ontario Government for $205,625, or $17,500 per square mile, or nearly half of what the Quebec Government obtained for 21,520 square miles of the finest white pine timber in the world. The Ontario Government sold one berth, Township of Morgan, 351-4 square miles, for $373,650, or nearly as much as Quebec got for her 21,520 square miles of the best white pine that grows. The Ontario Government at the sale of 1892 only sold the pine, reserving the spruce, cedar, tamarac and all other woods, while the Quebec sale included every tree of any kind. The ground rent in both provinces was the same; the Crown dues on the timber sold in 1892 were $125 per thousand. Quebec Crown dues were $1.30. This accounted to a considerable extent for the more favourable financial condition of the Province of Ontario. This province has no favourites; the Township of Morgan, which was sold by the Ontario Government for $376,650, was held by the purchaser for 7 years and then sold for $250,000, a circumstance which showed that Ontario got the highest available price for her Crown timber. Other instances could be given if time permitted.

The meeting separated with the usual cheers. Hon. Messrs. Gibson and Stratton and Mr. Conmee addressed meetings at Box Alder at 10 a.m., at Big Forks at 1 p.m., and at Fort Frances at 8 p.m.

THE TOUR ENDED.

The meeting at Fort Frances completed the Ministerial tour of the Rainy River District. In two days the Ministers and Mr. Conmee addressed eight meetings and met scores of settlers, with whose needs and aspirations in relation to the development of this rich new region the Government was brought into more direct contact and sympathy. The Rainy River Agricultural District, as can be seen by the excellent literature published by the Department of Crown Lands, extends a distance of eighty miles on the northern shores of the Rainy River from the Lake of the Woods to Fort Frances. Any description of the phenomenal fertility of the soil falls far short of conveying the vivid conception conveyed by personal observation. This belt of land stretches along the whole water front of eighty miles, which is of generally uniform character — high banks sloping down to the river, dotted nearly the whole length of the river with farmsteads more or less thrifty, conforming in this respect to the average conditions found along a few miles of Ontario's highways. The clearings on the front are not, however, large as a rule, though some farms with buildings and houses equal to many a prosperous Ontario farm, are to be seen occasionally. The temptation to those on the front to utilize the timber resources of their holdings causes a diversion of energy that tends to keep clearings down to the most pressing requirements of sustenance. This condition does not obtain farther back, and we have consequently the excellent results to be obtained in this district by intelligent and undivided attention to farming. Wide fields of excellent grain and roots, and fine, if not large herds of cattle that would compare favourably with those of the best part of the east arouse the admiration of the visitor, and suggest the great possibilities of agricultural development in this million acre tract of rich alluvial soil.

A WARSHIPS ESCORT

The Empress, with Royal Party, Attended by Five.

A WARM WELCOME AT VICTORIA.

Extreme Western Point of Ducal Journey Reached—The Day's Program—Civic Address and the Duke's Reply—Many Stately Functions Occupy the Royal Visitors—Enthusiastically Cheered.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 2.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York completed their westward tour through Canada yesterday, and today set their faces eastward and toward home. They arrived here yesterday morning and were given one of the most enthusiastic receptions of their trip.

Perfect weather prevailed throughout the day, and the city was in an attractive dress of flags and bunting.

The last stage of the westward trip from Vancouver to Victoria was made on the steamship Empress of India, which was accompanied by the cruisers Warspite, Amphion, Phaeton and Condor; the destroyers Sparrowhawk and Virago, and the Dominion steamer Quadra. As the fleet neared Victoria, the cruisers ran ahead, dropped anchor and dressed ship, and when the Empress of India steamed in their guns roared out a royal salute and the bluejackets manned the yards. A shore battery at Work Point took up the refrain of the guns, firing another salute.

Great crowds filled the shore, driveway and the streets radiating from the outer wharf, and when the royal party landed there was a long cheer of welcome. Sir Wilfrid Laurier presented Lieut.-Gov. Sir Henri Joly and the members of the local Reception Committee, who showed the Duke and Duchess to their carriage. The drive to the Parliament Buildings, where the formal welcome was extended, was through crowded streets decorated with flags and streamers.

The civic address was read by Mayor Hayward, after which addresses from the Presbytery of British Columbia and the American-British League of Seattle were offered.

The Duke, in his reply, said in part: "I desire to assure you of the gratitude which the Duchess and I feel for the kind words of welcome and good wishes which are expressed in the addresses you have presented on behalf of the citizens of Victoria, the residents of Seattle and other parts of the State of Washington, and of the British Columbia Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. I shall have much pleasure in informing my dear father, the King, with what especial satisfaction I have noticed your strong declaration of loyalty to the constitution and pride in the heritage of British citizenship, and your unfaltering resolution to share in the responsibilities of upholding the glory and integrity of that heritage. I know what proof of this you have already given in the blood of your sons, which has been shed on the South African veldt. I am confident that the sacrifices you have made will not be in vain. They have forged another link in the golden chain which binds together the brotherhood of the Empire."

The Duke then presented medals to the Victorians who served in South Africa, after which he and the Duchess went among the school children, who were all marshaled in front of the Parliament Buildings.

The royal party drove to Esquimalt and were entertained at luncheon by Admiral Bickford on the Warspite. When the Duke and Duchess reached Esquimalt the ships fired a royal salute and the yards were manned.

Late in the afternoon the Duke and Duchess returned to the city and drove to the Exhibition grounds, passing en route through the Chinese quarter, which was fantastically decorated in their honor.

The Duke spoke briefly in opening the Exhibition, and, with the Duchess, looked at many of the exhibits.

Last night the Ducal party were entertained at dinner at Government House, and in turn gave a reception at the Parliament Buildings. The latter was brilliantly illuminated, and the reception made one of the prettiest affairs of the day.

The Duke and Duchess rest to-day and start eastward to-night.

Election Case Postponed.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—In the Terrebonne election case yesterday the former solicitor for the respondent charged collusion between the parties, but the court ordered postponement until next term of court, which will be rescinded if collusion charge is proved.

The Beauharnois election case was heard, and judgment reserved.

Brakeman Seriously Hurt.

St. Thomas, Oct. 2.—Daniel Handley, brakeman, M. C. R., of this city, fell under an engine at Inwood yesterday, receiving, it is thought, fatal injuries. His right leg was taken off below the knee, while he sustained a double fracture of the left leg, his back, head and arms also being badly injured.

TECHNICAL EVIDENCE

Doctors Oppose Walter Herbert's Story of Sifton Murder.

PROMINENT TORONTO DOCTORS

Although Medical Men Who Testified for the Defence Differed as to Details Their Evidence in Main Was More or Less Strongly in Favor of "Fall" Theory—Trial May Last Till Friday.

London, Ont., Oct. 2.—At the opening of the court yesterday morning Mr. Justice MacMahon said that he feared that it would be necessary to have evening sessions in order to finish the trial by Friday.

The examination of Dr. Caven amounted to this: The death of Joseph Sifton might have been due to a fall or to blow. He was inclined to the fall theory. A series of blows would have separated the periosteum from the skull. A single blow from an ax at right angles would not have produced the skull fracture. A fall would have produced all of the wounds found.

Dr. McCallum of London said that the wounds were consistent with a fall, or two or three blows from an ax, but not consistent with a dozen hard blows. He favored the fall theory.

Dr. Wishart of London was of the same opinion.

Mr. Johnston—"Could a man," he asked, "who wished to conceal a crime, so gauge the blows with an ax to produce these wounds?"

Dr. Wishart declined to answer.

Dr. Balfour, superintendent of Victoria Hospital, London, laid stress on the fact that there was not much blood about. If an ax had been used in the mow there would have been blood.

To Mr. Riddell he said that blood might have been spilt on the chaff and never reached the floor.

The medical evidence continues to pour in. Dr. Routledge of Lambeth, and Dr. Neu corroborated what had already been said by other doctors. They said the injury to the skull might have been caused by an ax, but the blows must be very light ones. A fall was more consistent.

Dr. Shaw of London went further and said he would recognize an ax wound and this was not of that kind.

Dr. J. D. Wilson, London, based his evidence of a fall on the fact that there was blood in the bladder, which means a sudden shock.

Provincial Analyst Ellis said there were no traces of strychnine in the body, there was a trace of mammalian blood on the ax and also hair, probably cow's hair, though he would not be certain.

Dr. Peter Graham of Lobo, a witness for the defence, admitted at the Sifton trial yesterday afternoon that it looked as if there had been foul play, but that Walter Herbert had not rightly described the blows given.

The admission created a sensation.

His Lordship objected to the number of medical witnesses the defence were calling.

"Is this the same thing over and over again?" the judge asked.

The defence refused to forego any of the medical experts, however.

Dr. Gunn of Ailsa Craig, Dr. McWilliam of Thamesford, Dr. H. J. Stevens of London, Dr. Elliott of Napier, Dr. Hugh Lang of Granton, Dr. Bertram Spencer of Toronto University and Dr. Irving Cameron of Toronto were each called.

They favored the theory of a fall—some with greater emphasis than others. They would expect to have found blood in the barn if the Herbert story was correct.

Quebec as a Winter Port.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The feasibility of navigation through the channel of the St. Lawrence to the Gulf during the winter months will, it is believed, be put to a practical test this winter by Mr. F. H. Clergue, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Mr. Clergue has just purchased the ice-crusher Algoma, which was used last year in Green Bay, Michigan, and for some time previous in the Straits of Mackinaw. He will make the tests for the present between Quebec and the Gulf.

Hon. N. C. Wallace's Condition.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—According to the physicians in attendance upon Hon. N. Clarke Wallace, he is still in a precarious condition. The following notice was given out by the patient's brother, T. F. Wallace, last night: "Last night very restless and this morning very weak. This evening somewhat easier, but is still in a very critical condition. Took considerable nourishment to-day."

Pope Lee Failing.

Rome, Oct. 2.—While the Pope shows no special signs of illness, his physicians note a decrease in his vitality, and his failure to rally quickly after any special exertion, is causing alarm as to his condition.

THANKSGIVING.

It seems very difficult to find a day for thanksgiving to God for His constant kindness in supplying us with overflowing abundance of the kindly fruits of the earth, and for the blessing of unbroken peace and safety and to acknowledge our utter dependence on Him for them. When it is proclaimed just before the close of navigation our merchants complain greatly at being thus interrupted at the moment of their most anxious rush in getting their ships to sea before the days of peril. This objection is accentuated on our exchanges by the fact that their business is brought largely to a standstill by the United States thanksgiving day, and it is held unnecessary to double the inconvenience. When the appointment is made to coincide with the American thanksgiving, as it has been this year, people say what a pity to choose so dreary and inappropriate a time and one so near to Christmas, even if that time of year was chosen by the Puritans of New England who counted it a sin to observe Christmas, and practically appointed this as a substitute. How much more suitable for thanksgiving say they, would be one of our gorgeous October days than a bleak day in November. Frequently the last Thursday in November finds a mantle of snow hiding from view the fertile soil that has yielded the bountiful harvest for which we as Canadians are called upon on that day to offer thanks to the God of the harvest. The experiment of a Thanksgiving Day in the end of October was tried for several years and seemed to be a success. At that time all nature is gorgeous with beauty and the roads are then far more favourable than later to family intercourse. The difficulty then is, that the farmers are at their busiest with their root crops. Besides, they cannot then get the highest value out of their turkeys. Moreover as they take holiday in September at the county fair a later date suits them better. When Thanksgiving Day was first appointed it was placed early in November which, but for those engaged in forwarding the harvest to the seaboard and the many whose business becomes sympathetically more intense at that time, is probably the most convenient season, and it has this advantage that the King's birthday, the ninth of November, of the Thursday nearest it, might now be appropriated for that purpose. In favour of the time chosen of late years is the fact that it is that which is observed all over the continent and there is something grand in the whole of the English-speaking folk on this side of the world giving thanks on the same day.

The Toronto Telegram seems to be very much exercised over Mr. Anderson in East Peterborough. The Telegram may possess its soul in patience. Mr. Anderson will be returned to represent East Peterborough in the next Provincial Parliament, in spite of the desperate efforts of the desperate Opposition to draw a red herring across the trail.

CHALLENGER BEHIND AT START.

Shamrock II. Half a Mile Ahead When the Race Was Called Off—A Drifting Match More Than a Race—The Course Was an Equilateral Triangle—Less Than 15 Miles Were Covered.

New York, Oct. 2.—Yesterday's attempt to sail the second of the present series of international yacht races for the blue ribbon of the sea proved a dismal failure. Between 25,000 and 30,000 people who crowded the pleasure fleet off Sandy Hook lightship in the hope of seeing a repetition of the thrilling sport of last Saturday, witnessed, instead, more of a drifting match than a race. The wind was light and variable, at times falling so low that the Gossamer wind pennants which were as light as the thistle down, rung limp against the masts of the big single-tickers. The wind, with crews lined up on lee rails, was not sufficient at any time to make a racing machine heel to their lines. At the end of four and one-half hours' racing the two yachts had covered less than one-half of the prescribed course of 30 miles, and as there was no possibility of their finishing within the time limit, the Regatta Committee declared the race off.

When the gun was fired announcing this decision the challenger was about half a mile ahead of the defender and to that extent yesterday's trial was a victory for Shamrock II. But the fluke yesterday demonstrated little as to the question of supremacy between the two boats, except, perhaps, that Sir Thomas new champion is more dangerous in light airs than was supposed, after her two former meetings with the white flyer, to which the patriots are pinning their faith. In fluky winds of variable strength, shifting as they did to-day, through six points of the compass, luck cuts almost as much figure as model and seamanship and yesterday fortune unmistakably favored the foreigner.

The course was an equilateral triangle, 10 miles to the leg, the first leg being a beat due east into the wind. The Yankee skipper at the start outgeneralled his adversary in a splendid piece of jockeying, crossing the line in the windward berth 12 seconds ahead of the Englishman. This advantage Columbia held for two hours, while both yachts steered far off their course to the southward looking for a streak of wind that would profit them. Finally Barr declined longer to continue the vainless quest. He put his helm down and headed inshore on the starboard tack.

The Shamrock at this time, after both boats had been sailing in the same airs, was a beaten boat and her skipper could afford to take a gambler's chance with fortune. He held doggedly on, and fortune smiled upon him. Within five minutes she got a breeze out of the south which ruffled the creatless seas and wafted him like a ghost, through the Columbia's weather. But this was not his best piece of good fortune. After this reverse the Columbia, slipping through the seas at an astonishing pace considering the lightness of the breeze, had worked out ahead of the Shamrock but to the leeward.

When the two yachts were in this position about two miles from the first turn a cant of the wind threatened to blanket the Columbia, and to avoid such a possibility Capt. Barr went under Shamrock's stern. Just as he did so, the wind hauled round more to the south, knocking the Columbia head off until to the astonished spectators, she seemed, headed almost for the lightship at the starting line. The golden boat, favored by the same breeze, was headed in exactly the opposite direction. When the shifting wind backed up again and Barr got the Columbia straightened out he was a third of a mile astern. In this position the two boats rounded the first mark, the Shamrock three minutes and eight seconds before Columbia or a gain for the Shamrock in the beat to windward, adding the 12 seconds, which Columbia beat her over the line, of three minutes and 20 seconds.

During the next hour in a close reach for the second mark, the yachts were able to cover about four or five miles of the remaining 20, and as only 50 minutes then remained before the expiration of time limit the race was declared off. After turning the mark the experts thought the Shamrock increased her lead slightly. This gain may, however, be accounted for by the fact that she carried a large reaching jibtopsail, while the Columbia was working close to the wind with a small baby jibtopsail, a mere handkerchief compared to Shamrock's larger sail.

The yachts tacked around the first mark as follows: Shamrock, 2.41.36; Columbia, 2.44.44.

The Shamrock had beaten the defender 3 minutes and 20 seconds in the first 10 miles, and, try as the Columbia would, she was unable to lessen the wide gap that separated her from her antagonist. She held her luff hunting for wind, but, failing to find it, dropped slowly astern, until the gun from the committee boat brought the contest to an end, with nearly half a mile of blue water between her and the golden boat of Lipton.

When the excursion fleet headed back for home the only realties of the day occurred. It was the race for New York. Last night both the Yankees and foreigners were praying for a good stiff breeze on Thursday, when yesterday's race will be resailed.

What Shall We Eat

To Keep Healthy and Strong?

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats, is undoubtedly the best in spite of the claims made by vegetarians and food cranks generally.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Remusson on this subject says: Nervous people, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat plenty of meat. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent Tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs, or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods like potatoes, bread, etc., and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to perfect digestion and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use.

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stomach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures are useless for the relief or cure of indigestion, because they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe preparation which is endorsed by the medical profession, and which is known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All druggists throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain sell them at the uniform price of 50 cents for full treatment.

SIR LOUIS DAVIES SWORN IN.

Supreme Court Opening a Brilliant Affair —Many Ministers Present—Congratulations and Sir Louis' Reply.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—The swearing in of Sir Louis Davies as a Judge of the Supreme Court bench yesterday morning was made a brilliant social function. Many ladies and gentlemen, representative of Ottawa's four hundred, were present, and the occasion was honored by the presence of all the Cabinet Ministers in town, viz., Hon. Wm. Mulock, Hon. A. G. Blair, Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Hon. Wm. Paterson, Hon. D. Mills, Hon. R. W. Scott, Lieut.-Col. Gourdeau, Deputy Minister of Marine; Prof. Prince, Commissioner of Fisheries, and several leading officials of the department over which Sir Louis Davies has presided for five years were present. The demand for accommodation was so great that the ushers had to bring in several additional seats and place them in the aisles. Among the ladies were Lady Davies, Misses Davies, Miss Hyndman, the Misses Blair, Madame Taschereau, Mrs. Sedgewick, Miss Coutlee and the Misses Cameron. Rev. Henry Kitson, rector of Christ Church Cathedral, at which Sir Louis Davies is a worshipper, represented the Anglican clergy of the city. Rev. A. A. Cameron of the First Baptist Church was also among the spectators.

In Scarlet and Ermine.

The Supreme Court Judges, consisting of Sir Henry Strong, Judge Gwynne, Judge Girouard, Judge Taschereau, Judge Sedgewick, and Sir Louis Davies, in their robes of scarlet and ermine, took their seats on the bench shortly after 11 o'clock. The audience stood as the Judges filed in, and remained standing while the Registrar, Mr. Cameron, read the commission appointing Sir Louis a member of the court. Then the Chief Justice asked the Registrar to enter in the minutes the fact that the new Judge had been duly sworn in before him in the morning.

Congratulations of the Bar.

Mr. W. D. Hogg, K. C., as leader of the local bar, begged leave to tender Sir Louis hearty congratulations upon his elevation to the bench. In view of Sir Louis' long and honorable career in another sphere of public usefulness, the members of the bar were all satisfied that Sir Louis would adorn the high position to which he had been called. This was a high position of the judicial world, but the members of the bar felt proud that one who had always been a warm friend of his legal brethren had attained to such eminence, and they hoped he would long adorn the office with much value to the country.

Sir Louis' Reply.

In reply, Sir Louis Davies said: Your address is quite unexpected. I can only say that I will endeavor to discharge the duties of the high office to which I have been called, with due regard to the importance of the position and the cases which may be brought before me. I trust I shall always discharge those duties with impartiality and with fairness to all parties.

ON CRUTCHES.

Even if you are obliged to use crutches Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure can fix you up. This was the experience of John J. Peters, Sharbot Lake, Ont. He suffered with rheumatism in his legs (sciatica) for a year and had to creep about on crutches all the time. Fortunately he tried Dr. Hall's remedy and it only took three bottles to cure him completely. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days treatment. Price 50 cents at all drug stores or The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

Venezuelans Defeated.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The following cablegram was received at the Colombian Legation in this city last night:

Bogota, Oct. 1.—Colombian Minister, Washington: We have obtained a signal victory over Venezuelans that invaded the Goajira, under Venezuelan officers and under the Venezuelan flag without previous declaration of war.
Abdia Mendez, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Ontario Cheese Wins Gold Medals.

Buffalo, Oct. 2.—Ontario cheesemen have done splendidly at the Pan-American Exposition. They have won the only gold medal awarded for the best exhibit of cheese. The Ontario exhibit consisted of 140 packages chosen by a committee of the Western Dairymen's Association from samples shown from all over the provinces.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

Our necessity, our whole trade, is Shoes. We share in the great advantage that arises from buying wholesale for Seven Stores. Hence lower prices, hence lower to customers. Digestion Without a Stomach.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy active, and vigorous, and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355.92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

Saw the Race.

Mr. W. C. Ackerman arrived home on Monday from New York, where he had the pleasure of witnessing the first and second races between the Columbian and Shamrock for the American Cup. Mr. Ackerman says the excitement in New York is something wonderful and a pleasing feature in connection with the race is that there is a fair share of applause for the Shamrock, particularly, as might be imagined, from the Irish people. Mr. Ackerman occupied a position on one of the boats that remained a very short distance from the racing yachts, and had therefore an excellent view of the event. He was in New York from Tuesday until Sunday.

D. W. Dumble and O. Laplante for plaintiff. Mabee, K. C., Stratford, for defendant.

The case of Fitzgerald vs. Fitzgerald was then taken up, but as it is a non-jury case, an adjournment of it was made until the jury list was completed.

To-day the seduction case of Scriver vs. Richardson is occupying the attention of the court. The parties come from near Hastings.

YOUNG MEN'S GUILD.

An Interesting Debate at Last Night's Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church, was held last night. After business, a debate, "Resolved, that environment has more to do with a man's success in life than ability," was held, the affirmative being supported by Mr. T. G. Anderson and Mr. Chas. Anderson, and the negative by Messrs. P. A. Kerr and Wm. Campbell. Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil was appointed critic and the meeting was to decide the debate. The points brought out by both sides were excellent, and showed the participants to have given much attention to the matter. One of the most pleasing features of the evening was Mr. Sorsoleil's criticism of the debate, which will be of distinct benefit to all present. Refreshments were served.
al Ipresent. The decision was given in favour of the negative side of the question. Refreshments were served.

MORE VANDALISM.

The Flower Beds in Victoria Park Destroyed and Plants Stolen.

The beauty of Victoria Park was wantonly destroyed to-day at noon when a horde of pupils from the Central School swept across the grassy sward scattering destruction on every side.

Mr. Blade was the only florist to save his plants. He cleared out his beds this morning and at noon the children destroyed hundreds of dollars worth of beautiful plants belonging to Messrs. Jordan Bros. and Frank Mason. Valuable cannas and other exquisite foliage plants were torn up by the roots and tossed out on the paths, the handsome urns were upset and their contents scattered far and wide. A magnificent specimen of rubber plant, belonging to Mr. Benj. Cooney, was stripped of its handsome foliage, and the tub in which it stood smashed to pieces. A bed of dahlias, also belonging to Mr. Cooney, shared the general fate, the bulbs being actually rooted out of the ground, in a spirit of general destructiveness which seemed to pervade the atmosphere.

Naturally, the directors of the Horticultural Society are more than disheartened at the spoliation of the park. They do not, however, intend to pass the affair over, and unless many of the stolen plants, etc., (for there were many removed) are returned, half the school children will be before the Magistrate to-morrow.

MUST HAVE NEW RINK

Or Stay out of the Ontario Hockey Association.

What Mr. A. H. Beaton Says in a Letter to the Local Club—Have Been Complaints.

The matter of a new hockey rink in Peterborough is not altogether a new idea, but while such a proposition has for years been discussed, the town appears to be as far from seeing a new rink as ever. But while there may have been need of a new rink, the Hockey Club managed to squeeze through by reason of their long established connection with the Ontario Hockey Association. Complaints of a very bitter nature have been going in to the Association from other clubs that have been required to play on Peterborough's ice until the matter has about reached a climax. Believing this to be the case the secretary of the local club a few days ago wrote up to Mr. A. H. Beaton, the secretary of the O.H.A., regarding the matter and the following reply was received this morning:

Dear Sir.—Replying to yours of the 21st ult., I beg to say that the Peterborough rink has, for many years, been a source of annoyance to visiting teams; that this year it is proposed to bring in a regulation defining the minimum size rink which would be admitted. I think the minimum would be larger than your rink. There are very few rinks in Ontario as small as yours and there has scarcely been an occasion when visiting teams have been in Peterborough that complaint has not been made as to the size of your rink. We consider Peterborough one of the best hockey towns in Ontario and there is no reason why you should not have one of the very best rinks instead of one of the very worst, as at present. With the matches that would be played on a first-class rink in Peterborough, I am convinced that there would be a dividend at the end of every season for the shareholders in such a property. Kingston, Guelph, Paris, Woodstock, Barrie, Brantford and many other places even smaller than Peterborough make money every winter out of their hockey and none of these are better hockey towns than Peterborough.

I trust we will see a new rink in your town during the next few months.

Yours truly,
A. H. BEATON.

PERSONALS.

Dr. Berry, of Hastings, is in town to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, of Newport, R.I., are visiting with Mr. Wood's parents, Ashburnham.

Mr. Robert Collins, of the Molson's Bank, is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collins.

Mayor White, of Port Hope, and Mayor Huyck, of Cobourg, are both in town attending the assizes.

Mr and Mrs. Rupert H. Bradburn have taken up residence on the corner of Downie and McDonel streets.

Mr. A. W. Spence and his little daughter, Miss Jessie, have returned from a two weeks' holiday at the "Soo."

Rev. W. L. Armitage was in Bailieboro, yesterday evening, and delivered an address at the Harvest Home Festival. He preached Thanksgiving services in Norwood on Sunday last.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

RUGBY.

A meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Rugby Club will be held in the Y.M.C.A. parlours this evening at 7.30 o'clock. A full attendance is requested, as matters of importance will be discussed. A telegram was received from the secretary of the O.R.F.U. yesterday stating that St. Mary's had defaulted, and as Deseronto has done the same Peterborough may be required to play Ottawa.

Kingston citizens are raising $800 for the Granite Rugby players. They should be able to get a good team together with that amount as a starter. If the Peterborough boys raise a tenth of this sum they will be in luck.

HOCKEY.

The Toronto Telegram says: "The people of Peterborough are very handy with the coin when the hockey season is going, and tell you that without doubt they will have a new rink the succeeding winter. This has gone on for some time, but yet there is nothing in sight. Why do they not build a decent rink like that of Stratford, instead of forcing teams to go down to Peterborough and play on that soup plate? Port Hope is just as bad."

YACHTING.

Sir Thomas Lipton hopes that the present day ridiculous racing machines—they are not yachts, he claims—will be done away with. Here's what he says: "There is not a day that I do not feel thankful there are no accidents. These huge, light spars of the singlestickers, together with their absurd build, have made the handling of these machines one of considerable danger. They are no longer yachts, and can be used for nothing but the purpose for which they are built. If we could only get to using legitimate models there would be much more sport and safety and the vessels would be yachts. They would stand for something. As it it, they mean nothing at all."

AN OCTOBER WEDDING.

Harvest Thanksgiving Decorations Left in Position in All Saints in Honour of the Bride.

An exceedingly pretty church wedding took place this afternoon at All Saint's, the contracting parties being Miss Aileen Howard, daughter of Mrs. Isaac Robinson and niece of Miss Chamberlen, to Mr. Harold Brooks Rye, of Toronto, son of Mr. Louis Rye, of town.

The Harvest Thanksgiving decorations had been allowed to remain in position in honour of the event and the interior of the church presented an even prettier appearance than usual. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, and Miss Robinson was given away by her uncle, Mr. H. C. Winch.

The bride was most becomingly costumed in a gown of white tucked silk with garniture of cream passementrie. She wore a veil and carried a very handsome bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary McFadden and Miss Rye. Both wore frocks of flowered pink muslin and large black velvet Gainsborough hats with white Ostrich plumes. Their bouquets were of pink roses.

The groomsmen were Messrs. Arthur Robinson, brother of the bride, and Dickson Best. Master Winch, prettily attired in white, officiated as page.

The bride has been a great favourite in church circles and a large number of her friends witnessed the ceremony.

The wedding dejeuner was served at the residence of Miss Chamberlen and Mr. and Mrs. Rye left on the afternoon train for the west.

They will take up residence in Toronto.

REGIMENTAL NOTES.

Lack of Light a Great Hardship to the Volunteers.

The absence of the electric light service at the drill shed, on the streets and on Central Park, has been a severe draw-back to the drill of the 57th Regiment for the past week. Last night there was no march out, but the both bands took up their positions on the parade ground on the park and pealed forth a number of selections while the men engaged chiefly in Company drill. The light was poor and the officers drilled their men to great disadvantage. The men are urged to turn out to the special drills during the week as the trip to Toronto is drawing near.

The following orders were read:—

Headquarters, Peterborough
October 1, 1901.

Orders by Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, Commandant 57th Regiment, P.R.

No. 3. The annual company inspection will take place as follows: Thursday, October 3rd, A, B and C Companies; Friday, October 4th, D, E and F Companies. Companies will parade in drill order at 8 p.m.

No. 4. The Regiment will parade for drill on Monday, October 7th, at 8 p.m.

No. 5. The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions: A Co. to be Sergt., Corp. E. H. Mowry, vice Sergt. Davis, discharged. To be Corporal, Pte. W. H. G. Armstrong.

A PETERBOROUGH PEAT INDUSTRY.

Visit to Works of Trent Valley Peat Fuel Co.

MR. A. L. DAVIS AS HOST.

Half a Hundred Prominent Peterborough Citizens as Guests—A Combined Rail and Water Run to Kirkfield—Some Jottings of the Journey—Pleasant and Instructive Day's Outing.

It was a delightful excursion, and Mr. A. L. Davis received the grateful thanks of the large company of Peterborough citizens who enjoyed his hospitality yesterday. As president of the Trent Valley Peat Fuel Company, he carried out the idea of showing to a large number of citizens of the town, and of Lindsay, what was being done in the far north in developing, or rather creating, an entirely new manufacturing industry.

Yesterday at 8.20 o'clock, on the invitation of Mr. Davis, the following gentlemen boarded a special car at the Grand Trunk station, for Lindsay: Messrs. A. L. Davis, Jas. Kendry, M.P., Jas. Stevenson, ex-M.P., Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rev. D. O. Crossley, Mayor Denne and his guest, Dr. Bucke, of Hamilton, Alderman Rush, ex-Alderman Dawson, Judge Weller, Judge Edmison, Alex. Elliott, H. LeBrun, P. Campbell, W. D. Parker, R. C. McHarrie, R. E. Wood, T. E. Bradburn, E. B. Stone, W. H. Meldrum, S. Belcher, T. P. Attrill, F. J. Jameson, R. M. Dennistoun, A. H. Strattou, J. E. Belcher, W. H. Moore, Col. H. C. Rogers, Harry Long, W. H. Hill, Richard Hall, A. J. Gough, Dr. Gray, R. Innes, J. J. Lundy, A. G. Dickson, J. M. Kilbourn, Lakefield, A. A. Cox, T. H. Fortye, R. Winch, Adam Hall, H. T. Strickland, W. G. Ferguson, W. G. Morrow, T. F. Matthews, John M. White, R. B. McKee, C. Stanley, Thos. Main, W. J. Thompson, J. J. McBain, W. H. Wrighton, F. J. Bell, F. H. Dobbin, W. H. Robertson, F. R. Yokome.

The party was in personal charge of Mr. W. Bunton, whose physical capacity for his duties was fully equalled by his kindness and activity in making both the outward bound and inward bound journey pleasant.

At Lindsay the party was joined by Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, W. Flavelle, Judge Dean, F. C. Taylor and Rev. Thos. Manning, and at Fenelon Falls Mr. J. H. Brandon joined the party.

The weather was all that could be desired, and the sail by the Steamer Manita of the Trent Valley Navigation Company, was greatly enjoyed. While at Fenelon Falls the delay of locking permitted an inspection of this bustling little village. A visit to the electric power house that supplies Lindsay, at a distance of sixteen miles with electricity for lighting, and, to a certain extent, power, revealed an enormous generator bearing the name plate of the Canadian General Electric Company. The solidity of the locks at the village was much admired by those who had not before seem them, and were in pretty sharp contrast to the primeval wooden locks at Rosedale, which lifted the steamer and party from Cameron Lake into the broad expanse of Balsam Lake.

On the voyage up refreshments were served, and the fresh ozone of the stirring breeze had developed appetites that permitted of full justice being done to the splendid lunch provided by Mr. Davis. Messrs. Long Bros. were the caterers, and blessings on the excellence of their cuisine mingled with the mastication of the capital viands provided.

Soon the "Fort" that marks the entrance of the rock-hewn canal that connects Balsam Lake with the works of the Trent Valley Peat Fuel Company, was reached. All who had not seen this section of the canal were more than surprised at its extent and importance. The banks are piled high with a barricade of rocks, blasted from the solid strata of limestone, and as the works were neared the rock formation gives place to the bog formation, and there were to be seen wide, branching canals burrowed out by the dredge of the company. These canals represent many tons of peat that had been taken out of the about 60 square miles of tamarac and cedar swamp, under which lie deep deposits of decomposed vegetable and ligneous matter, containing an almost inexhaustible supply of raw material for the works. There are a number of large buildings covered with corrugated iron, and the scene of a busy industry, and an hour or two was spent by the visitors in seeing the various processes that were being employed in the conversion of the sodden, brown pulp of the swamp into hard cylinders of fuel. The ingenuity that had been shown in overcoming the entirely new conditions associated with an entirely new enterprise, were much admired, and after a most interesting visit the company again boarded the steamer greatly impressed with the importance, both present and future, of the great works of the Trent Valley Peat Fuel Company.

On the return voyage, the pleasures of the steam upward were repeated, and when Fenelon Falls was reached there was a rush for the daily papers and for the telephone office to learn something of the great yacht race. When it was learned that the race was off from lack of wind, it was remarked that we could have spared enough Balsam Lake breeze to have won the cup twice over.

Mr. Davis was the recipient of many personal compliments upon the work accomplished, and as Lindsay was reached a little informal gathering of the guests was had, and more formal expression of appreciation extended:

The following resolution was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted to the ringing strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Moved by W. H. Hill, and seconded by Judge Edmison: That this delighted company of excursionists who have so greatly enjoyed the liberal hospitality of A. L. Davis, Esq., on this perfectly enjoyable trip to the works of the Trent Valley Peat Fuel Company, desire to very heartily recognize the kindness and public spirit of Mr. Davis in affording in so handsome a way the opportunity which is so thoroughly appreciated, and has been so thoroughly enjoyed. And we also desire to express our appreciation of the ingenuity, ability, energy and perseverance exhibited in combatting and successfully overcoming, unique and adverse conditions, and in bringing so much skill and enterprise to bear upon a new industry, which, from what we have seen to-day, has not only a great future before it, but an important bearing upon the profitable utilization of great areas of what has been regarded as, and actually has been, waste resources.

Judge Weller and Mr. J. E. Belcher, C.E., in speaking to the sentiment of the resolution, spoke very warmly in favour of the kindness of Mr. Davis, and of the energy and perseverance of himself and his associates.

In reply Mr. Davis gave a brief but most interesting account of the inception and progress of the work, and of the many difficulties, incidental to the establishment of a new industry, which had to be combatted, and had been met and conquered. He paid a very hearty and stirring tribute to the loyalty of Mr. W. J. Sims, the superintendent to the enterprise. He had made great sacrifices to bring about the success that had been achieved. No discouraging sequence of failures and disappointments daunted him, but he worked bravely on, overcoming difficulties, and it was largely due to his energy, persistence and faith in the enterprise that so much had been, as they had seen, accomplished.

Rev. Mr. Davidson proposed the corporation of the town of Peterborough, and Mayor Denne in the course of an optimistic little speech, also paid his tribute of thanks and appreciation of Mr. Davis.

The Corporation of Lindsay was not forgotten, and Judge Dean's remarks of acknowledgment and eulogy of Mr. Davis, were unfortunately cut short by the bumping of the Manita on the home wharf.

Farewells were soon exchanged with the Lindsay contingent, and the Peterborough party entrained and reached home on schedule time, all thoroughly delighted with not only the pleasure of the day's outing in a meteorological and especially social way, but with what they had seen of the success achieved in the development of an important new industry.

REGIMENTAL NOTES.

Lack of Light a Great Hardship to the Volunteers.

The absence of the electric light service at the drill shed, on the streets and on Central Park, has been a severe draw-back to the drill of the 57th Regiment for the past week. Last night there was no march out, but the both bands took up their positions on the parade ground on the park and pealed forth a number of selections while the men engaged chiefly in Company drill. The light was poor and the officers drilled their men to great disadvantage. The men are urged to turn out to the special drills during the week as the trip to Toronto is drawing near.

The following orders were read:—

Headquarters, Peterborough
October 1, 1901.

Orders by Lieut.-Colonel R. B. Edwards, Commandant 57th Regiment, P.R.

No. 1. Detail of duty for the week ending October 5th—Captain for the week, Captain Hounsell; next for duty Captain Hayes. Subaltern for the week, 2nd Lt. McLean; next for duty, Lt. Matthews.

No. 2. Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Major Stevenson, Lt. Layfield and Lt. Bradburn.

No. 3. The annual company inspection will take place as follows: Thursday, October 3rd, A, B and C Companies; Friday, October 4th, D, E and F Companies. Companies will parade in drill order at 8 p.m.

No. 4. The Regiment will parade for drill on Monday, October 7th, at 8 p.m.

No. 5. The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions: A Co. to be Sergt., Corp. E. H. Mowry, vice Sergt. Davis, discharged. To be Corporal, Pte. W. H. G. Armstrong.

By order,

A PETERBOROUGH PEAT INDUSTRY.

Visit to Works of Trent Valley Peat Fuel Co.

MR. A. L. DAVIS AS HOST.

Half a Hundred Prominent Peterborough Citizens as Guests—A Combined Rail and Water Run to Kirkfield—Some Jottings of the Journey—Pleasant and Instructive Day's Outing.

It was a delightful excursion, and Mr. A. L. Davis received the grateful thanks of the large company of Peterborough citizens who enjoyed his hospitality yesterday. As president of the Trent Valley Peat Fuel Company, he carried out the idea of showing to a large number of citizens of the town, and of Lindsay, what was being done in the far north in developing, or rather creating, an entirely new manufacturing industry.

Yesterday at 8.20 o'clock, on the invitation of Mr. Davis, the following gentlemen boarded a special car at the Grand Trunk station, for Lindsay: Messrs. A. L. Davis, Jas. Kendry, M.P., Jas. Stevenson, ex-M.P., Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rev. D. O. Crossley, Mayor Denne and his guest, Dr. Bucke, of Hamilton, Alderman Rush, ex-Alderman Dawson, Judge Weller, Judge Edmison, Alex. Elliott, H. LeBrun, P. Campbell, W. D. Parker, R. C. McHarrie, R. E. Wood, T. E. Bradburn, E. B. Stone, W. H. Meldrum, S. Belcher, T. P. Attrill, F. J. Jameson, R. M. Dennistoun, A. H. Strattoe, J. E. Belcher, W. H. Moore, Col. H. C. Rogers, Harry Long, W. H. The party was in personal charge of Mr. W. Bunton, whose physical capacity for his duties was fully equalled by his kindness and activity in making both the outward bound and inward bound journey pleasant.

TJARDT KRUGER DEAD

Youngest of Oom Paul's Family —Recently Surrendered.

THE REPULSE OF GEN. BOTHA

Losses on Both Sides at Fort Itala Were Heavy—Commandant Opperman Among Boer Killed—Sixty-three of the Garrison Reported Missing—President Roosevelt Will Not Interfere.

Pretoria, Sept. 30.—Tjardt Kruger, son of the former President, who recently surrendered to the British, has just died after a short illness.

Botha Repulsed.

Durban, Natal, Sept. 30.—A force of 1,500 Boers, commanded by Gen. Botha, made an attack which lasted all day long on Sept. 26 on Portitala on the border of Zululand. The burghers were repulsed, but at a heavy cost to the garrison, whose losses were an officer and eleven men killed and five officers and 38 men wounded. In addition 63 men are missing, of which number many are believed to have been killed or wounded. The Boer commandant Opperman and nineteen burghers are known to have been killed.

ROOSEVELT, NON-INTERVENER.

Kruger Will Not Send a Delegation to See Him.

London, Oct. 1.—"Mr. Kruger," says a despatch to The Daily Mail from Brussels, "has abandoned the idea of sending a delegation to the President of the United States, having ascertained that Mr. Roosevelt will pursue the policy of non-intervention."

BURNED IN FOREST FIRE.

One Man Dead and a Second Badly Injured.

St. Jerome, Lake St. John, Quebec, Oct. 1.—For the last few days forest fires have been raging all over the country around here, burning houses, barns, and crops. The farmers are obliged to sell their cattle on account of having lost all their feed. Saturday the wind blew a gale and the fire extended from Lac Bouchette to St. Jerome, a distance of thirty miles in length and many miles in width. At St. Andre de Lepouvante, 12 miles from here, the Presbytery, Metabetchouan Pulp Company's store and ten houses and dependencies were destroyed. The church and four houses are all that are left standing in that village. Two men named Panne and Boudreault, on their way here for relief, were caught in the flames. Panne died on the spot. Boudreault is still alive, but badly burnt. The fire came very near here, and it was feared this village would become a prey to the flames, but a heavy fall of rain set in which lasted all night, and the danger is now past, although the fire is still burning in the woods, covering a space of about ten square miles.

The Guard Deceived Himself.

Canton, Ohio, Oct. 1.—Captain Biddle, commanding the guard at West Lawn Cemetery, said yesterday, after a careful investigation:

"I think the sentinel deceived himself in the occurrence. I don't think it probable that an attack such as he stated actually occurred. When daylight came we could find no evidence of a struggle."

King and Queen in Venice.

Venice, Oct. 1.—For the first time since their accession to the throne, the King and Queen of Italy have paid a visit to Venice, arriving here last evening shortly before 6 o'clock. A grandiose and picturesque reception was given by the Queen of the Adriatic to the young Sovereigns.

Light Winds Predicted.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Weather Bureau issued the following forecast for to-day's yacht race at Sandy Hook:

The winds will be light to fresh northerly in the morning, but they probably will decrease toward noon and become variable and light.

Customs Receipts.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 1.—The Canadian Customs receipts for the three months of the current fiscal year to the end of September, amount to $8,035,094, an increase over the same period of 1900 of $488,924. The increase for the month ending yesterday has been $282,810.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distaste for food often follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

Quick Death at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Thomas Moore, wife of a keeper in the Kingston Penitentiary, dropped dead Sunday evening. After supper she went to her room, toppled over on the bed and expired almost immediately, death being due to heart disease. She was aged about 60.

MR. WALLACE CRITICALLY ILL.

Five Days Will See Him Around or on Verge of Total Collapse.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Hon. N. Clarke Wallace was resting easily last night. There was no perceptible change in his condition from the day previously, but he was so weak as not to be able to raise himself up in bed.

Dr. McPhedron held a consultation with the local physician, Dr. King, yesterday afternoon, and they express the opinion that his condition is extremely grave, yes, even critical. There is a possibility, however, that Mr. Wallace may be able to be around in a few days, and whilst this is the hope of his friends, it should not be built upon too hopefully, in view of his present very low condition. From a reliable source it is learned that five days will find the patient improved or on the verge of total collapse.

A Surgeon's Blunder.

Artery Severed While Undergoing an Operation—No Longer Necessary to Use the Knife for Piles.

Saturday's paper contains the account of an accident whereby a young lady lost her life. While undergoing an operation, the surgeon's knife slipped, an artery was severed, and before the surgeon knew the result of his error the patient was in a dying condition.

Every surgical operation is attended with great risk to life as well as being a severe strain on the nervous system and an expensive method of treatment. Doctors formerly recommended an operation as the only cure for piles but that day is past, since Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven its absolute control over every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Physicians who are considerate of the well being of their patients do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and only those having a mania for operations claim that cruel method as the proper treatment. By promptly stopping the distressing itching and burning Dr. Chase's Ointment bring's quick and lasting relief.

Rev. S. A. Duprau, Methodist minister, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states, "I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years, and they ultimately attained to a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed so that it was with great difficulty and considerable pain that I was able to stool. At this very severe crisis I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but had little or no faith in it, as I had tried various remedies before and to no purpose.

"Now imagine how great and joyous was my surprise to find that just the one box cured me, so that the lumps disappeared, and also the external swelling. I feel like a different man to-day and have not the least doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation and many years of suffering. It is with the greatest pleasure and with a thankful heart that I give this testimonial, knowing that Dr. Chase's Ointment has done so much for me. You are at perfect liberty to use this testimonial as you see fit for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has been endorsed by more people, including doctors and professional men, than any similar preparation the world has ever known. It is the standard ointment the world over, and positively the only actual cure for piles. 60 cts. a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

SUNDRIDGE ECHO INTERVIEWED HIM

William Doeg, a Farmer of Grey County, has a Word to say Regarding Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Local Paper Publishes a Column About His Case—Worst Form of Rheumatism—Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Proven a Blessing to Him.

Sundridge, Ont., Sept. 29, (Special)—The Echo of this place has published a signed statement which cannot fail to interest all who understand the full meaning of the word Rheumatism from personal experience. A representative of that paper interviewed Mr. William Doeg, a well known farmer of Strong Township, who was cured of rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills this spring, and he gave out the following statement for publication:—

"For four years I suffered excruciating torture, during which time I was scarcely an hour free from pain. The trouble commenced in my back where it often remained stationary for months, and so intense was the pain that I could not lie down or take a rest, but had to sit night and day in a chair. The pain would then remove to other parts of my body, and when in my knees, disabled me from walking, confining me constantly to my room.

"I was treated by several doctors and also tried many medicines, without receiving any benefit. Almost in despair I feared I would never again experience the pleasure of being free from pain.

"Early this spring my attention was called to some remarkable cures of Rheumatism effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I procured a box, and soon found they were doing me good. So I kept on, until now I can say I am a new man, entirely free from pain and have continued so ever since, being able to attend to my daily duties on the farm and feel strong and able to work. I verily believe this great change was effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills and I think it my duty to make this statement public for the benefit of all afflicted as I was."

A DREARY EXISTENCE

THE LONELINESS OF THE ENGLISH LIGHTHOUSE KEEPERS.

At the Bishop Station the Sentinel That Lights the Waves Lives In Almost Utter Isolation—A Service With Few Enlivening Features.

During the storms that rage intermittently around the English coast in winter the landsman's mind turns in sympathy toward those who in ship or lifeboat are fighting the waves for dear life. But how often does he give one thought to the men who immure themselves in the lighthouses that stud the coast?

"I would rather spend my life in a penal settlement than be a lighthouse keeper," declared a man to the writer after a visit to the Bishop lighthouse, off the Cornish coast. "A convict does see a little of the world he lives in, but a lighthouse keeper sees nothing but a dreary expanse of water. I am not surprised that many of them should lose their mental balance."

The visitor to the Bishop lighthouse did not overcolor the picture. It was only the other day that one read of the Longships lighthouse, also off the coast of Cornwall, having been completely isolated for many weeks in consequence of fearful storms. The keepers had been reduced to smoking coffee, hops and tea leaves, though, fortunately, they had not wanted for food.

The keepers of the famous Eddystone lighthouse not infrequently find themselves in a similar predicament. In a gale the waves that buffet themselves against this wonderful monument to the engineering skill of the country are of such stupendous magnitude that they rise to a height of 200 feet and sweep right over the lantern. To those cooped up inside the sound of these waves is like that of a battery of guns at close quarters. "At such times the house shakes like a tree with a man on the top of it," was the graphic description of one who spent many years of his life there.

The new Eddystone is the strongest and most comfortable of all our rock lighthouses. A sectional view of it shows the various compartments, commencing at the bottom with the water tank; then the entrance, the two oil receptacles, the storeroom, the crane, the living apartment, the low light, the bedroom and the service room in the order named. Formerly only two keepers were employed in the lighthouse, but a grim incident resulted in their number being increased. One of the two men died. So fierce ran the seas that the remaining keeper could not get the body of his late comrade to the shore. For a month the tempestuous weather continued, and for a month the surviving keeper lived alone with the body as his only companion. He was afraid to cast it into the waves, for he might be accused of murder.

Keepers of rock lighthouses do not last long. The incessant pounding of the waves against the building, the loneliness, the want of fresh air and exercise reduce the men to a state of nervousness that is sometimes pitiful to behold. They require a fortnight's leave every six weeks, but this liberal allowance does little to improve their physical state. A medical man whose duty it is to pay periodical visits to one of these lighthouses confesses that there is no remedy for the ills peculiar to the keepers except retirement.

The utter isolation of the silent sentinels of our coast is well illustrated by the case of the Bishop lighthouse aforementioned, which stands right out in the Atlantic. Not once in a year is it calm enough for the superintendent to land his stores at the lighthouse steps. They have to be hauled up by means of a windlass from above. A visitor bold enough to visit the place is "admitted" in a similar way. He places one fot in a noose at the end of a rope, which is thrown down to his boat, and, gripping the rope firmly above his head, he is drawn up to the "see off." As the month around the lighthouse is called. Thence he climbs up a perpendicular ladder to the door of the house.

Superstition adds a terror to the life of the men in this lighthouse, for the first structure was washed away bodily, and the keepers believe that the rock is haunted. A fear of a different kind keeps the men of Muckle Flugga lighthouse, the most northern point of Scotland, on the tenterhooks of a terrible suspense. On three occasions the huge black rock on which the lighthouse stands has been shaken by an earthquake.

There is something comical, though characteristic of the stiff necked Scot, in a story which comes from a neighboring lighthouse which is the charge of two families. They live on a desert island. From year end to year end they never see a visitor except the man who brings their stores. Eighteen months ago the heads of the two families quarreled, and ever since they have ceased to speak.

At the shore lighthouse of Ushinish the keeper's family has to travel 46 miles to "kirk." It is no reflection on their piety to add that they are not regular attendants.

A lighthouse keeper receives a maximum wage of £75 a year, out of which he has to supply his own rations. These consist of such unappetizing edibles as tinned beef and hard biscuits, usually washed down with weak tea and condensed milk. No intoxicating liquors are allowed.—London Mail.

The children of different countries have different tastes, but tin swords are wanted all over the world.

"The pitcher that goes often to the well is broken at last." There's a world of wisdom in that familiar proverb, and a sound application of it to disease, especially to such familiar forms of disease as coughs and colds. Singularly enough the very thing that ought to cause alarm is given as excuse for a feeling of safety. "It's nothing; only a cough. I've had it before." The fact that a cough recurs periodically should be warning enough to take it in time, for the most serious and disastrous of all maladies begins with a cough.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery not only stops the cough but cures the cause. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, weak lungs, hemorrhages, diseases which if neglected or unskilfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is no other medicine "just as good" for weak lungs.

"I was very sick indeed," writes Mrs. Mollie Jacobs, of Felton, Kent Co., Delaware, "and our family doctor said I had consumption. I thought I must die soon for I felt so bad. Had a bad cough, spit blood, was very short of breath, in fact could hardly get my breath at all some times. I had pains in my chest and right lung, also had dyspepsia. Before I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' I was so weak I could not sweep a room, and now I can do a small washing. I worked in the canning factory this fall, and I feel like a new person. I believe that the Lord and your medicine have saved my life. I was sick over two years. I took thirteen bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets."

WAVES OF WATER.

The average depth of the Pacific is 2,500 fathoms, of the Atlantic 2,200 fathoms.

The Rhine is only 900 miles long, but drains a territory nearly double the area of Texas.

The Igish river in Siberia is 2,200 miles in length and drains 600,000 miles of territory.

The Potomac river is only 500 miles long and in its lower course is rather an estuary than a stream.

Even at the equator the average temperature of the sea at the depth of a mile is but 4 degrees above freezing point.

The Paraguay river, so called from the republic of the same name on its banks, is 1,800 miles in length. At points in its lower course it is from 5 to 15 miles wide.

The greatest river is the Amazon. It is navigable for ocean steamers for 2,000 miles from its mouth. At parts of its course one bank cannot be seen from the other. The observer seems to be looking out upon a sea of fresh water.

Gathering Cloves.

Cloves are now cultivated in many of the tropical regions of the earth A clove tree begins to bear at the age of 10 years and continues until it reaches the age of 75 years. There are two crops a year, one in June and one in December.

The tree is an evergreen and grows from 40 to 50 feet high, with large oblong leaves and crimson flowers at the end of small branches in clusters of from 10 to 20. The tree belongs to the same botanical order as the guava. The cloves, which are the undeveloped buds, are at first white, then light green and at the time of gathering bright red.

Pieces of white cloth are spread under the trees at harvesting time, and the branches are beaten gently with bamboo sticks until the cloves drop. They are dried in the sun, being tossed about daily until they attain the rich dark color which proclaims them ready for shipment.

How Gold Beaters Work.

It is interesting to watch gold beaters at work in a gold leaf factory. These men, whose skins are sallow from the stains of gold, take up ingots first of the virgin metal, pass them between steel rollers, whence they come forth like pie crust, and pass them through closer and closer rollers, until they are but little thicker than paper. The sheets of gold are next placed between pieces of leather that are called gold beaters' skins, and men beat them through the skins with mallets until they are reduced to an unimaginable tenuity. It has often been proved that a skilled gold beater can turn out gold leaves so thin that it would take 282,000 of them to make the thickness of an inch; so thin that if formed in a book 1,500 of them would only occupy the space of a single leaf of paper.

Of Course.

"How did you get this injury?" asked the doctor as he was dressing a scalp wound on a man's head.

"She broke a dinner plate over my head," was the reply.

"Your wife?"

"Of course. You don't think I'd let any strange woman come into my house and knock me around this way, do you?"

A Contrast to Avoid.

"I don't want to see Lydia when she comes back from that summer school."

"Why not?"

"Oh, she will be bursting with knowledge while the rest of us have been sitting around here in the heat forgetting what little we know."—Detroit Free Press.

As Usual.

"Has Spicer heard from his daughter since she eloped?"

"Oh, yes. The young couple telegraphed the next day that they were willing to come home and be forgiven."

THERMOMETER TUBES.

Process of Their Manufacture at Jena, in Germany.

A most interesting account is given in The Idler of the wonderful state aided industry at Jena where glass and lenses are made for scientists. The industry has been built up by Professor Abbe and Dr. Schott, and has throughout been conducted by scientists whose efforts have made Jena famous among scientific men the world over. One of the most picturesque features of the Jena glassworks is the great corridor where the thermometer tubes are blown and drawn, says a correspondent.

We saw this glass in process of manufacture. A boy workman caught a bit of molten glass from the furnace on the end of a blowpipe. It was hardly larger than a walnut, but by twirling and blowing and molding it grew to the size of an orange, with the shape of an orange. More glass was then added, and there was more rolling and blowing, and when the proper stage was reached the blowpipe was passed quickly to the brawny master workman.

He, in his turn, added glass, blowing from time to time with cheeks outpuffed until it seemed as though they must burst, and then rolling the great ball of glass on his iron kneading board until it looked like a huge yellow gourd. Faster and faster he worked, keeping the ball always symmetrical and yet white hot. At length he lifted the glowing mass quickly in the air, and a second workman attached the blowpipe at the bottom. Then the two men ran in opposite directions, twirling the pipes and blowing lustily from time to time. From a thick, partly yellow globe the glass thinned out quickly as the men ran apart, until it became a dull red tube not larger than a man's little finger and nearly 300 feet long. Sometimes in drawing these tubes one of the blowers would not only run the length of the corridor, but far outside on the hill.

Wagner and the Player.

When Richard Wagner was conductor of the Royal Opera in Dresden, the orchestra of that institution, though one of the best in Germany, was far from being as good as it is now, and Wagner had a good deal of trouble in making it follow his intentions. Some years later, when he was living as an exile in Zurich, he undertook to train the local orchestra. After a few attempts he exclaimed, "Gentlemen, you have just given me a great pleasure; you have played exactly as badly as the Dresden orchestra."

The Zurich players laughed, and the idea that they might play better than the royal musicians in Dresden so fired their zeal that they actually succeeded in doing it.

A MARTYR TO HEADACHES

Mrs. W. Cameron of Toronto, suffered intensely with headache and stomach sickness, she gives us a very interesting statement as to the result of her taking Powley's Liquified Ozone. Just read her story:—

THE OZONE CO., Limited, TORONTO, ONT.

Gentlemen: For years I have been a martyr to headaches, neuralgia, asthma and other troubles, I treated with a number of physicians, and was also in the hospital for some time, but all these means, which were of the best, did not help me. I was advised to try "Ozone," which I did, and I am pleased to say to you that my headaches are gone and I can walk miles now, where I could scarcely walk around the house. I have great faith in "Ozone" and advise my friends to try it, as it has done me so much good.

(Signed) MRS. W. CAMERON, 3 Golden Avenue, Toronto.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is the new oxygen preparation. It cures disease by antidoting the toxins of disease germs. It is not unpleasant taking; can be taken as readily by children as adults. EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

The Annual Convention was Held in Fairmount Yesterday.

The Peterborough District Convention of Epworth Leagues was held at Fairmount, yesterday.

All parts of the district, including Peterborough, were well represented.

The sessions proved intensly interesting. At the afternoon session, the president, Mr. F. E. Walden, occupied the chair. An exceedingly clever address was delivered by Rev. H. B. Kenny, of Millbrook, on "The 20th Century Epworth League." An interesting discussion followed in which Rev. Messrs. Barry, White and Gardner, of Millbrook, and others took part.

Reports from different societies indicated increased interest in the work, and predicted a prosperous future for the League in Peterborough District.

At the evening session addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. White, and Rev. Mr. Barry, of Beaverton, on the subjects "The church as a social force," and "Doctor Smith in China."

An interesting paper was read on the subject "The Model Society," by Miss Maude Datcher, of Peterborough.

Excellent solos were rendered at the sessions by Miss Clara Belleghem, of Peterborough, Miss Hendren, of Lakefield, and Mr. C. Parks, of Peterborough.

Mr. Parks, the president-elect, occupied the chair at the evening session. Miss Laura Brown, of Lakefield, was appointed as secretary.

CEREAL COMPANY NOTES.

The Big Concern Will now be Known as the Quaker Oats Company.

Some idea of the height which may be reached through a small beginning, and in a line of business which, until recent years, was practically overlooked, may be formed by a glance at the figures showing the capital of a United States concern—practically young — which has been developing the field of package cereal breakfast foods. We learn from Trenton, N. J., that articles of incorporation were filed on the 21st inst for the Quaker Oats Company, with a capital stock of $12,000,000, divided into $6,000,000 preferred, entitled to 6 per cent. cumulative dividend, and $4,000,000 common stock. The new company is to deal in cereals and cereal products of all kinds. It was rumoured that the new company represented a consolidation of the Great Western Cereal Company with the American Cereal Company, such a deal having been previously mentioned. It was learned, however, on authority that this is not the case. The new company is in effect a reorganization of the American Cereal Co., as a result of which the name of the latter, as above indicated, is to be changed, while the stock and cash capital are to be increased. The present company is capitalized at $3,341,700, all in common stock, and had outstanding on Dec. 31, last, $1,600,000 bonds. The American Cereal Company has been expending large amounts of money in improvements recently, particularly in the erection of a large mill at Peterborough, Ont., and the Peterborough Hydraulic Company will be acquired by the new corporation along with the American Cereal Company. The principal plants of the company are at Akron, Ohio, and Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The former, it is understood, handles about 100 cars each of oats and finished product per day. The Cedar Rapids plant handles about 6,000 barrels daily. The company has for some time paid dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. In October, 1900, an offer of $175 per share for the stock was made by an English syndicate but was refused.

TO BE HELD AT APSLEY.

Programme Arranged for the Sunday School Convention.

An interesting meeting was held in the Temperance Hall, in Apsley, on the 28th of Sept., to decide on a plan for the Sunday School convention. The date to be fixed later.

The President, Vice-President and Executive Committee were present, and the pastors of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, Rev. Mr. Shearer, and Rev. Mr. Roadhouse.

The meeting opened with reading, singing and prayer, followed by a discussion on the spiritual life and work of the Sunday School and the duties of teachers, pupils and parents. After a solo by Rev. Mr. Roadhouse, the question of Sunday School visiting was taken up, and it then devolved on the Rev. Mr. Shearer to answer the question drawer. Then a sentence prayer by all, and the question of the best way of making the convention most profitable to all concerned, was taken up, and the following programme was laid before the meeting:—

Miss Payne, Mr. Howson and Miss Julia Eastland to choose subjects for discussion, and Mr. David Campbell, Miss Hattie Eastland, Miss Payne, Mrs. I. D. Church and Rev. Mr. Roadhouse to each take one of the subjects chosen. The subjects to embrace such topics as, "The Sunday School worker's reward;" "How we can accomplish the most effectual work;" "The relation of pastors to Sunday Schools;" "The missionary work of the Sunday School, etc."

The meeting closed with singing and the benediction.

Mrs. Charles Lauder and Miss Payne attended the meeting in the interests of Eden church Sunday School, South Burleigh.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—At the regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid, of Charlotte street church, held yesterday afternoon it was unanimously decided to hold the annual Thanksgiving Dinner on Thanksgiving Day. Further particulars later.

Obituary.

Lindsay Post.—Friends in town and district, and in Peterborough, his old home, will learn with regret of the death of William Morgan, office clerk at the Simpson House. The deceased, who had made his home with his cousin, Mr. W. H. Simpson, for a number of years, had been in poor health for a long time, and on two occasions was not expected to recover, but each time his indomitable will power pulled him through the crisis. The body was taken to Peterborough this morning for interment, Rev. Mr. Marsh conducting a short service at the hotel previous to departure. Messrs. Geo. and Arthur Simpson and Mrs. W. H. Simpson accompanied the body to Peterborough.

The bidding opened at 9c, by Mr. Whitton. Mr. Wrighton went 9 1-8, Mr. Cook went 9 1-4, and Mr. Whitton 9 5-16.

At this juncture the President announced that there had been some talk of adjournment, unless fair prices in the opinion of the salesman were offered. Mr. Blezard said he did not know when they could hold their cheese better than at the present time. Speaking for himself, he would not sell unless he received a price something near the figure that he wanted, and the present bid was not near the mark.

Mr. Whitton claimed that they offered a price higher than was paid on the market at Montreal on Monday. Mr. Whitton made a reference to the feeding of turnips, which he said, must be stopped.

Mr. Bailey said that the price offered was quite high, considering what cheese was going at down east. He, himself, did not want to buy any cheese at the price offered —if they were going to adjourn they had better adjourn for two weeks.

Mr. Rollins said it was immaterial to him whether they adjourned or not.

Mr. Stewart Payne moved, seconded by Mr. Smith, that the board adjourn for two weeks. This was carried.

FIRST FRUITS.

Exodus 23; 19. 11. Cor. 9; 7.

When Israel's hosts by God's own hand
Were placed in Canaan's favoured land,
A royal race to be,
He said to them in terms most plain
Of gardens, trees and ripened grain
The first fruits are for Me.

Pomegranates, barley, olives, wheat,
The fig, the grape, the loaf complete,
The people learned to bring.
And wondrous were the triumphs wrought
So long as they with gladness brought
The first fruits to their King.

He made the earth her fruit to yield,
Enriching those who tilled the field
In heart and mind and limb;
He made them healthy, strong and brave
While they in glad obedience gave
The first fruits unto Him.

But days of utter darkness came,
With famine, pestilence and shame
And hatred's bitter sting;
No longer were they brave and bold
When they had ventured to withhold
Their first fruits from their King.

Far brighter prospects meet our view
Than ancient Israel ever knew
Or saw in visions dim.
And He in whom we move and live
Demands that we shall gladly give
The first fruits unto Him.

The stewards of the Lord perceive
The tithe of all that they receive
Is called for by His word;
And those who to His promise cling
Besides the tithe must gladly bring
Their first fruits to the Lord.

If thus to Him our lives we link,
Beyond what we can ask or think,
He will on us bestow;
And in that life that is to be
A boundless harvest we shall see
From first fruits here below.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Changes Which are Being Made in the Programme for This Season.

The valuable character of the work done by the Farmer's Institutes in raising the standard of agriculture, and encouraging improved methods of farming is generally recognized. The report of Superintendant Creelman for the last year has just been issued by the Department of Agriculture, and contains a great deal of valuable matter, embodying the latest conclusions of specialists in every department of farm work. It comprises, in addition to a record of the progress of the movement, a number of addresses and papers read at Institute meetings, with explanatory diagrams and illustrations.

Among the changes made in the system, with excellent results so far, is the transference of the lecture work, heretofore carried on by the Horticultural Societies, to the Departments of Farmer's Institutes. A number of the local bodies will in future hold their annual meetings at the nearest Fruit Experiment Station, where they will have the benefit of practical instruction in grafting, spraying, etc.

The subject of poultry has received much attention. Special poultry meetings have been held at which leading poultry specialists gave demonstrations as to the best methods of killing and dressing poultry in accordance with the requirements of the market. Among the speakers at these gatherings were W. R. Graham, Prof. A. G. Gilbert, J. E. Meyer, and G. R. Cottrell, well known as poultry experts.

A notable feature of the year is the striking increase in the number of Women's Institutes, of which there are now 33 in operation, some of them having a membership of over one hundred.

As in previous years, excursions have been run to the Agricultural College, giving many thousand farmers an opportunity to become familiar with the most modern process of scientific agriculture.

Action was also taken to promote the attendance at the Provincial Winter Fair, with the result that 1518 members, representing 34 Institutes, were in attendance. A special programme was vided for Institute workers, and addresses delivered by a large number of prominent agriculturists and instructors.

Seed Fairs have been established in connection with four Institutes, viz., East York, South Wellington, West Wellington, and South Grey. These are held annually in March, and the farmers bring their best samples of grain for sale or exchange.

A leading topic at Institute meetings was that of cold storage, regarding which a good deal of valuable information has been furnished. During the meeting of the Experimental Union the delegates visited the cold storage at the Agricultural College, and received an insight into the process of refrigeration.

An important step in the interests of the work was taken by the appointment of Superintendent Creelman to the position of assistant secretary and editor of the Canadian Fairs and Exhibitions, which will give additional opportunity for advancing the movement.

Very substantial progress was made during the year covered by the report. Later information gives the total membership of the Farmer's Institutes in June last as 20,387, as compared with 18,058 for the previous year. The banner local Institute is that of Halton, with a membership of 748.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Many Attended a Meeting Held at Bobcaygeon Last Night.

A carriage load of Christian Scientists drove to Bobcaygeon, yesterday afternoon, to listen to a lecture on Christian Science, delivered by Rev. Arthur Vosburg, of Rochester, N. Y., and a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston, Mass.

The visiting party were delighted with the lecture, which seemed to be appreciated by all. A very pleasant trip was enjoyed. The town hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, the platform as well as the aisles being filled and it is said many had to be turned away.

The lecturer received perfect attention throughout.

At the Change of Life.

This trying period in women's life usually comes between the ages of forty and fifty years and is marked by irrita, headache, dizziness, irregular monthlies, fitful appetite, forebodings of evil, palpitation of the heart and constipation. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is above all a woman's medicine because it helps her safely through this trying period. It enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves, regulates the functions of the feminine organs and tones and invigorates the whole body.

TWAS DEARLY BOUGHT

The Victory at Moedwill was Somewhat Dearly Bought.

ALTHO' BOERS WERE REPULSED

Heavy Casualties Reported on Both Sides—At Itala the Boers Lost 250 Killed and 300 Wounded—Col. Kekewich Was Wounded in Two Places—Lord Kitchener's Report on Moedwill.

London, Oct. 3.—Lord Kitchener yesterday reports that two officers and thirty-one men have been killed in an attack made on Col. Kekewich's camp at Moedwill. The Boers, who were under Commandants Delarey and Kemp, had 14 officers and 114 men wounded or killed, after two hours' night fighting, when the Boers were driven off. Col. Kekewich was among the wounded.

Repelled the Attack With Vigor.

London, Oct. 3.—The Boer reverse at Moedwill occurred Sept. 29. The Boers are reported to have been 1,000 strong.

Lord Kitchener, in his despatch, says the British repelled the attack with great vigor. After the close of the fighting Col. Kekewich was found to be slightly wounded in two places.

He says that all ranks behaved extremely well. The wounded were taken to Rustenburg, half way between Pretoria and Mafeking.

Lord Kitchener confirms the heavy losses of the Boers, about 250 killed and 300 wounded, during their attack on the forces at Itala.

There is a prospect, he says, of the guns recently captured at Vlakfontein, being recovered from the Boers.

Boer Refugees Recaptured.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 3.—Fresh attempts at escape have been made by some of the Boer prisoners of war. Last Saturday night, under cover of darkness and a rainstorm, as one of the Boers asserts, with the electric lights playing upon them all the time, three men, a nephew of the late Commandant Joubert, Alfred Martinus Joubert, and two brothers, George and Hendrick Indemaur, made good their escape from the prisoners' pen at Darrell's Island and swam over to the Princess Hotel, where they landed, dressed themselves in the clothing which they had carried over, tied in bundles, on a plank, and, making their way to a livery stable in Hamilton, hired a trap and directed the driver to take them to the residence of Dr. Outerbridge, at Bailey's Bay, and then repaired to a place of concealment in the neighborhood. One prisoner was retaken on Monday morning, and the other two were recaptured late that evening.

Five Hundred Meetings.

London, Oct. 3.—Five hundred public meetings, arranged by the extreme wing of the Opposition, to protest against the Government's South African policy, will take place throughout Great Britain during October and November. The specific purpose of the movement is to fight the Government's proposition to subject the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies to the Crown colony system following the war.

Filipinos Burned the Bodies.

Manila, Oct. 3.—The advices from the Island of Samar give harrowing details of the slaughter of the members of Company C, 9th United States Infantry, last Saturday at Balangiga. It seems that the president of the town, claiming to be friendly, led the assault in person. The body of Capt. Connell had been tied by the hands, saturated with kerosene and partly burned. Forty-five bodies had been burned in a trench, leaving seven unaccounted for. The charred remains of many were recovered. In numerous instances the bodies had been badly mutilated.

Indian Blew His Head Off.

Portage la Prairie, Oct. 3. — A Sioux Indian was found dead in the village east of this town Tuesday night. His head had been blown off and suspicion was directed against one of his companions, but it was learned yesterday morning that it was a case of suicide.

Deceased had been drinking and was despondent. In the afternoon he took the gun, expressing his intention of going shooting. He went into the bush and pulled off his boots, placed the muzzle against his jaw and pulled the trigger with his foot. Death was instantaneous.

Goldman Lecture Called Off.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Mayor Harrison yesterday ordered the police to prevent Emma Goldman's lecture here to-night. The Anarchist organ Free Society, was issued yesterday for the first time since the President was shot. In it neither the memory of the dead President nor the grief of the public is respected, or even considered. The leading article, a review of Czolgosz's crime, is by Emma Goldman.

TWO IN OPPOSITION

Nova Scotia Liberals Again Sweep All Before Them.

SOME MAJORITIES ARE LARGE

Three Liberals Elected in the City of Halifax—Some Deposits Were Lost—One Conservative Returned for Cumberland, and Perhaps a Second in Pictou County—Blow to Borden.

Halifax, Oct. 3.—The Province of Nova Scotia stands by the Liberal Government, and Premier Murray has won one of the most decisive victories in the history of Canadian politics.

As the result of yesterday's polling, the Liberals have 36 of 38 seats in the House of Assembly of the Province.

One Conservative was elected in Cumberland, one seat, Pictou, is doubtful, and another Conservative, Tanner, may squeeze in.

Nearly all the Liberal candidates were elected by large majorities, and in at least five counties the Conservative candidates will lose their deposits.

Premier Murray, Attorney-General Longley and Hon. Arthur Drysdale, Commissioner of Works and Means, had majorities rising from four to six hundred.

The Liberal victory is a sore blow to Mr. R. L. Borden, the Opposition leader in the Dominion Parliament, who organized and conducted the campaign against the Government.

A signal victory was the election of B. F. Pearson over John F. Stairs, ex-M. P., Colchester. All three Liberals were elected in Halifax, Keefe, the lowest Liberal, having a majority of 90 over Crosby, the highest Conservative.

IN RAINY RIVER DISTRICT.

Messrs. Gibson and Stratton in New Ontario.

Meetings at Fort Frances and Mine Centre—The New Line Opening up a Fine Country.

(From the Globe.)

Fort William, Sept. 28.—As briefly intimated in a despatch, Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. J. R. Stratton, accompanied by Mr. James Conmee, concluded their fortnight's tour of the Rainy River district, northern Ontario, on Monday night last. There are some features of the latter stages of their itinerary which deserve a little attention in detail. During their tour the Ministers have, as became the representatives of a live and progressive Government, kept moving, and at no leisurely pace. During their tour of the Rainy River District from the 23rd to the 27th of September — five days — they have travelled nearly nine hundred miles, by all sorts of conveyances, in Mr. Conmee's constituency of West Algoma, equivalent in area to double that of many a German principality, using no less than seven steamers on their journeyings, and delivered between thirty and forty adresses, besides holding numberless personal conferences with the people with whom they came in contact. To the record of the trip already transmitted to The Globe may be added some further references to Fort Frances, which they reached on Friday evening.

MEETING AT FORT FRANCES.

The Ministers and Mr. Conmee were met by prominent local Liberals and escorted to the fine and commodious school house of this beautiful little village, where a large and enthusiastic meeting was adressed, there having been not even standing room for many who wished to be present. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. A. Osborne of The Fort Frances Times, who in his prefatory remarks, spoke of the great benefits the village expected to derive from the completion of the Ontario & Rainy River Railway. Mr. J. E. Saunders, secretary of the local Liberal Association, read an address of welcome to the Ministers, which stated that the people of Fort Frances were glad that the Liberal Government of Ontario had nailed "New Ontario" to the mast-head. In reply, after Mr. Conmee had spoken in the course of their addresses, the Ministers, in adverting to the address presented, said that the same vigorous policy which had resulted in giving good administration, a prosperous condition and a prominent position to older Ontario would be applied even more vigourously and energetically to the development of the resources and the advancement of the interests of northern Ontario, in which the Rainy River district and Fort Frances were included. In further response to the address, in which certain requests were contained the people were assured that if the village developed that progress which it was pretty certainly felt it would do, the requests mentioned would meet with favourable considerations at the hands of the Government. In the morning the Ministers were shown about the village. The immense water-power, represented in a drop in the level of Rainy River of between twenty-five and thirty feet at this point was inspected with interest and its important bearing upon the industrial and civic future of Fort Frances recognized. Local authorities state that these falls are capable of being made to develop 65,000 horse-power, which in this respect, and coupled with railway communication, makes the future of Fort Frances one of importance, for great things are locally expected of the Ontario & Rainy River Railway, now nearly completed, not only to this point, but over its whole length. The day before the visit of the Ministers the first agricultural exhibiton of the district was held at Fort Frances. It was most successful, and the fine character of the exhibits indicated the great fertility of the soil and the maturing quality of the climate even at this high latitude, pumpkins weighing seventy-five pounds and measuring five feet and a half in circumference and wheat four feet six inches in length being fair samples of the exhibits of soil productiveness. In this district all small fruits thrive especially well in the rich soil, and yesterday in woods carpeted with strawbery vines the second bloom of this plant was to be frequently seen, and a reliable gentleman stated that the day before he had plucked ripe wild strawberries, the second crop. With a fine, new hotel, unsurpassable summer resort environments and with railway communication, the villagers expect to attract a large number of Winnipeg tourists.

AT MINE CENTRE.

On Saturday morning the Ministers, accompanied by Mr. Conmee and several prominent Fort Frances citizens, took steamer for Mine Centre, passing, enroute, through island-studded Rainy Lake. This lake, entered at the Long Sault Rapids (a modest model of the big hydraulic jump of that ilk in the St. Lawrence,) two miles above the village, is said to contain 5,000 islands and have a coast line of 3,000 miles. The scenery, like, where not more beautiful, as it is in many ways, that of the Thousand Islands, is surpassingly charming, and a considerable steamboat traffic—small craft—seems destined soon to give way to the railway, which crosses an arm of the lake by a series of leaps from island to island. Passengers on the little steamers pointed with pride to thousands of feet of substantial trestle work which spans the frequent interinsular isthmi. This railway promises to have a beneficial effect in more than one way. Its construction has brought to knowledge and made accessible considerable stretches of good agricultural land not known of before, and will, it is expected, greatly stimulate the gold mining industry of which Rainy Lake is a centre, almost every island in the vicinity of Seine Bay having been "located" as a prospective or prospectors' "Klondike." This was the time of the "boom" of former days, but now the industry, which has very largely fallen away, promises to assume a permanent and profitable character. The cost of transportation of machinery and supplies for mining purposes was almost prohibitory before the advent of the railway, which runs within easy distance of several important mines, more or less developed, and one or two of which are profitably operated even under present conditions. The party, after a delightful steam through the beauties of Rainy Lake, arrived at Mine Centre, so named as having been surrounded with mines. The place contains a commodious and, for the situation, palatial hotel, excellently conducted and doing a fair business. On the occasion of the visit an English bridal pair were spending a section of their honeymoon there. During the evening the Ministers were banquetted, and in the morning embarked upon a little bathtub of a steamer, which, however, was a "good un to go," and took them eastward through the Seine River, Wild Potato Lake, Partridge Crop Lake, and waters with other wild forms of lacunar nomenclature to Sturgeon Falls, the head of navigation eastward. There the Ministers met from the little settlement a reception characteristic in cordiality of that which has been accorded them at every stage of their tour. They were entertained at an informal banquet, and, after paying a visit to the railway construction camp hospital at this point, the party was able, through the courtesy of Mr. T. H. White, chief engineer of the eastern section of the railway, to resume the journey eastward. He placed a train at their disposal, the line being completed and in running order from Port Arthur to a point near Sturgeon Falls. The cul de sac, represented by the falls and the unfinished terminus of the railway, a distance of some three miles, was escaped from by means of saddle horses. Mr. White accompanied the party and also Mr. W. H. Grant, superintendent of construction, and the attentions of these gentlemen made pleasant the final stages of their journey, which fine weather, beautiful scenery, cordial receptions and innumerable courtesies, had made as pleasant as it was profitable, and that is saying much. The railway line runs with exceedingly smoothness for a new line, which circumstance is no surprise, for although it has been constructed rapidly — the fifty odd miles from Sturgeon Falls to the Atikokan River, having been untouched even by an axe eight months ago — the line is solidly and substantially built, nearly all the conditions being better than the Government requirements. The maximum grade from the west — the heavy haul — is one-half per cent., and to the west one per cent. The first run of the rail journey was to Atikokan, which is a divisional point, with a roundhouse, and stalls for ten locomotives. Near this point the train was halted for the night, the Ministers not being due at Stanley Junction, near Port Arthur, till the following day. The fact that a year ago the bear and whatever beasts of prey the region affords, had undisturbed "right of way" in the unbroken wilderness, one could, after a dinner equal to the menu of a metropolitan hotel, retire to a sleeper of orthodox luxury, demonstrates the possibilities of enterprise energetically applied.

FINE COUNTRY OPENING UP.

This line, of which only sixty miles of track remains to be laid, passes through a country of considerable interest. It passes through and opens to settlement fairly large and good stretches of agricultural land, extending to more or less distance on either side of the track. It opens to view and to transportation facilities no inconsiderable areas of spruce, tamarac and jack pins. But for a distance of forty miles in length at a certain point and on each side of the track for twenty or thiry miles spread out dreary stretches of brule, the disastrous work of forest fires. The blackened trunks of trees were evidence of the danger, always present, of destruction of timber by fire. But it was also observed that a thick growth of jack pine, spruce, tamarac and other trees indigenous to the soil and locality was springing up, and the Ministers in discussing this latter fact were of the opinion that the public interests would be well subserved by the setting apart of these, and other similar areas, as forest reserves. But the interest grows when the course of the journey brings one in contact with the Atikokan and Mattawan iron ranges, and the undoubted richness of these deposits will have its value greatly enhanced by the fact of proximity to a railway in case development demands ready and convenient access and outlet. Port Arthur expects much from the completion of this line, which would have been completed by Oct. 1, instead of November 1, as will be now the case, if the contractors could have secured as much labour as they desired. As it is, however, it is expected that the Canadian Northern will be filling the million-bushel elevator, now under rapid construction at Port Arthur, with this season's growth of Manitoba wheat. At Kakabeka Falls, on the Kaministiquia River, about twenty miles from Port Arthur and Fort William, and about ten minutes walk from the railway line, Mr. White, at the request of the Ministers, halted the train to permit of a visit to these waterfalls, which form the argument for a great scheme of water power development. They plunge down about a hundred feet into a gorge eaten out of strata of slate rock, black as iron. These falls are not only of interest for their great beauty, but also because of their exploitation as a water power for the purposes of the twin towns, which has long been a subject of much theoretical discussion and more or less practical business negotiations.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE TOUR.

The Ministers were much impressed, not only with what they saw in connection with the O. & R. R. R. R., but with all they had seen during their fortnight's tour. They saw much to confirm by ocular demonstration, their faith in the resources, and if these are rightly developed the future of New Ontario, and to strengthen them in the works of advancing the policy of the Government to give it the fullest and most speedy development possible.

At Stanley Junction the Ministers took carriages and drove to Oliver Township, where a largely attended and successful meeting was addressed by them and by Mr. Conmee.

In the evening largely attended meetings were addressed in both Port Arthur and Fort William, Hon. Mr. Gibson making the opening and closing speech in the two places respectively, Hon. Mr. Stratton doing the same, and Mr. Conmee also speaking at both meetings.

This morning the Ministers, accompanied by Mayor Hogarth and Mr. Allan McDougall, Chairman of the School Board, and Councillor Dyke, paid a visit to the public and high schools, quartered in excellent buildings, and evidently doing good work. Subsequently the visiting Ministers were waited upon by the council of Fort William and a large delegation of Liberals and citizens of the two towns were at the station to give the departing Ministers bon voyage.

THE QUICK PACE OF DECLINING HEALTH

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

There are hosts of people who are susceptible to attack of various kinds of illness. Their systems are ever ready to take on disease. They bend under the slightest trial, and their health is jeopardized by every trivial exposure. They lack resisting power, and health declines because there is no nerve food to make good the waste by disease.

At first slight weakness, stomach annoyance, headache, heart fluttering, trembling of the hands and limbs, restless sleep, indicate something is lacking—that something is nerve force. Until the stock of nerve force is replenished the pace of declining health will increase, until lost vitality is expressed in every move.

Pale, languid, nerve-shattered people find exactly what they require in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It supplies the wants of wasted nerves, rebuilds the wasted cells, and renews the blood. Its wonderful cures are due to the fact that it restores natural nerve force; and it is lack of nerve force that causes most suffering these days. Brain nerves, heart nerves, stomach nerves give out, and all sorts of trouble follow.

Mrs. M. A. McCrea, Troy Hill, Ont., writes: "My system was all run down when I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was weak and very nervous, and felt so tired and worn out that I could scarcely drag myself about the house. It seemed impossible for me to get rest or sleep at night, and I felt that I was gradually growing weaker and more nervous and irritable. Since beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I feel altogether different. It has gradually strengthened my nerves and built up my system wonderfully. I sleep well now, and am being thoroughly restored to health and strength. I believe it is the best medicine to be had for the nerves."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACHACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appitite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

C. P. R. ANNUAL MEETING.

An Employes' Pension Fund Nucleus Set Apart—Election of Directors—$2,500,000 Set Apart to Buy Ships

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The twentieth annual meeting of the shareholders of the C.P.R. was held yesterday, there being a large attendance of shareholders. Sir William Van Horne, chairman of the Board of Directors, presided.

The annual report, which was published some time ago, was taken as read. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy moved the adoption of the report, which was carried.

Then the chairman read a resolution setting apart $250,000 for a pension fund nucleus, and providing for the creation of a new department, which shall have charge of the administration of the fund, shall decide under what conditions, and find to what employes of the company pensions should be granted. The resolution was adopted.

The Board of Directors for the ensuing year was then elected, as follows: Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, Sir William C. Van Horne, K.C.M.G., Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy, Richard B. Angus, Montreal; Edmund B. Osler, M. P., Toronto; Sir Sandford Fleming, K. C.M.G., Ottawa; George R. Harris, Boston; Wilmot D. Matthews, Toronto; Thomas Skinner, London; John MacKay, New York; General Samuel Thomas, New York; Charles R. Hosmer, Montreal.

After the election of directors, the meeting was changed from an annual one to a special meeting to vote on a proposed bond issue for an extension of the steamship line. A resolution was adopted authorizing the issue of bonds to the extent of $2,500,000 for the acquisition of steamships and their equipment.

Nervous and Sleepless.

Two horrors crowded into one life, the product of poor digestion, and the poisons that are thereby formed within the body. There's just one method of cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food, but mind, food properly digested. That's the difficulty—the digestive power of the stomach must be improved. Rich, red blood formed, strength given to the organs to drive out poisons; then comes strength, vigor and endurance. Ferrozone does all this and more: it makes sick people well; weak people strong. Sow Ferrozone and you reap health. Sold by Ormond and Walsh

EVIDENCE ALL IN.

Crown and Prisoner's Counsel Addressed the Sifton Jury, Which Will Get the Judge's Charge Next.

London, Ont., Oct. 3.—At the Sifton trial yesterday morning Dr. John D. Wilson of London swore that he had examined Mary McFarlane after Joseph Sifton's death to ascertain if she was pregnant. He found that she was not in that condition, nor had been, as far as he could find out.

The defence, in explanation of blood stains found in the barn, offered the evidence of H. L. Smith, a butcher of London, who testified to having bought sheep-skins on several occasions, and to having hung two skins with blood on them a few feet from the trap door, and it would be possible for blood to drop on the floor.

William Rutledge, inspector of sheep-killing cases, substantiated this statement, and added that he had seen sheep bleeding from dog bites in the barn.

Peter Lewis, a hotelkeeper, swore to having met Edgar and Martin Morden at the Ross House, outside of London, about two weeks after Joseph Siftonis death, and he saw the former with a peculiar knife that looked like the one found later by Constable McLeod.

Richard Trivell and J. L. McIntosh swore that the prisoner was left-handed, and could not use an ax right-handed. In his evidence, Herbert swore that Gerald delivered right-hand blows when he was striking his father with the ax.

T. F. Hellmuth, counsel for the prisoner, gave evidence on his client's behalf. He said that he was asked on July 26 by Mr. Scandrett to act for Herbert. He saw him in jail and heard from him a circumstantial story of the affair. The next day a confession was published, and then Mr. Hellmuth told Herbert he could not act for him. He also asked him which story was correct, and Herbert said: "Whatever may have appeared or whatever I may have said, the story that I told you was correct."

The Sifton murder trail is almost at an end. Only His Lordship's charge to the jury remains to be given. The defence cut their case shorter than had been anticipated, and are depending almost solely upon the medical testimony to clear their client.

Yesterday afternoon the defence called two witnesses, who claimed to have seen the deceased Sifton on the way to the barn on the morning of the tragedy, carrying an ax on his shoulder. This was calculated to disprove Walter Herbert's story that Gerald Sifton had taken the ax to the barn himself.

The addresses of counsel to the jury occupied four hours and forty minutes, of which Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, for the prisoner, used up three. The learned counsel devoted much of his opportunity to fiercely criticize the three Mordens, who were Crown witnesses.

The prisoner is showing marked evidences of the terrible strain which is upon him, and the whole afternoon his young wife sat close to the dock, where she wept almost continuously.

THE RETURN JOURNEY

Duke and Duchess Leave Victoria for Vancouver, B. C.

A QUIET DAY AT VICTORIA.

Miners of Atlin Present the Duchess With an Odd and Handsome Bracelet Made of Nuggets—From a Navy Launch They Viewed the Scenery of the Pacific Coast of Canada.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 3.—Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York left by R.M.S. Empress of India at 10 o'clock last night for Vancouver, having again turned their faces to the east for their homeward trip, which will occupy exactly a month, including stops at all the large cities of Canada and a short one on the prairies to enjoy a hunting trip.

Yesterday was spent in an informal way, the party enjoying a trip in the admiral's launch through the pretty island waters, known as Victoria Arm, and then taking a drive around the roads which have made Victoria famous. The hospital was also visited. In fact, the only formal affair of the day was the presentation of a nugget bracelet, sent down by the miners of Atlin.

The party embarked on the steamer shortly after six o'clock. The Mayor and aldermen were on hand to bid them good-bye.

Their Royal Highnesses requested the Mayor to convey to the citizens of Victoria their appreciation of the kind treatment they had received from the people of the city. They had enjoyed their stay very much, indeed; particularly yesterday, when they had a good opportunity of seeing the beauties of the city and its surroundings.

The Duke wired to Hon. James Dunsmuir at Extension an expression of his regret at the sad accident which had taken place in the mines.

Will Meet Coast Indians.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 3.—The royal party will not visit New Westminster, the announcement made that they would having been unauthorized.

When the Empress of India arrives in port Thursday morning the Duke will meet the chiefs of the British Columbia Coast Indians and will reply to their addresses.

Through a newspaper correspondent the Indians happened to hear that the Duchess is very fond of Indian relics. The chiefs accordingly met, and, as they expressed it to your correspondent, decided to give "the daughter of the King the best we have got — the kite-um-shamorget, or the 'hat of the chiefs.'" This headdress, belonging to Fort Simpson Indians, is equivalent to the royal crown, and has been used by the chiefs for many generations, so long, indeed, that they have no record of its origin. It is very highly prized among Indians, and Rev. A. E. Green, interpreter, expressed surprise that they were willing to part with it, but they are so pleased at the Duke's kindly reception of them and at his graciousness at meeting them again, that they say, "We can only give the best we have to our King's daughter."

MINES ARE SEALED.

Will Take Months to Smother the Flames in Extension Shafts.

Nanaimo, B. C., Oct. 3.—The Extension mine situation remains practically unchanged. Seventeen men are known to be entombed in No. 2 slope. The mines are sealed to smother the flames. This is the only possible way of extinguishing the fire, and it will take months to effect the result desired. Air has leaked in once or twice and caused explosions which have blown out the stoppings. Such an explosion on a large scale would utterly wreck the mines, and, it is feared, that it may happen at any moment.

How the Accident Happened.

Quebec, Oct. 3.—The official inquiry into the grounding of H.M.S. Indefatigable was opened here yesterday: Pilot Alfred Bouille, the pilot in charge of the man-of-war, when she struck, was called, and unhesitatingly told his story of the accident. He had never been in charge of a man-of-war before, but it had been explained to him and he fully understood that men-of-war were steered by degrees, or rather the orders for steering were given by degrees. He explained the course the vessel was pursuing. He could not account for the accident except on the theory that the vessel was struck suddenly by a current and did not answer quickly enough to her helm.

Other witnesses were examined, but nothing new was elicited.

An Ideal Ready made Food.

Prof. Naumann, a most eminent authority on chemical and medical questions, says that cod liver oil is almost an ideal ready-made food. He says it is easy to digest, easily makes fat, and is also a medicine. Scott's Emulsion contains this oil so prepared that it is not at all unpleasant.

Dr. Borden's Condition.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—Col. Hon. F. W. Borden was able to leave his room yesterday. He hopes to be able to attend the Toronto review on Oct. 11, but will have to use crutches, as his fractured ankle will not be well by that time.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

Our lists are interesting, for the Shoe, at the price, will be found of very superior value, our facilities enabling us to offer the equal of the largest departmental store. Our necessity, our whole trade, is Shoes. We share in the great advantage that arises from buying wholesale for Seven Stores. Hence lower prices, hence lower to customers. ROBERT NEILL

The Richelieu Went Down.

Kingston, Oct. 3.—The steamer Richelieu, owned by the R. & O. Navigation Company, and under charter by the Lake Ontario Navigation Company, and engaged on the route between Kingston and Belleville, foundered at noon yesterday while bound for Kingston. She was within three miles of the city, in what is known as the lower gap, when she took a header and sank. A fairly heavy sea was running, which caused her cargo to shift, and before she could be righted she filled and went down in about sixty feet of water. The crew and the one passenger got ashore safely, but had a narrow escape.

"SCARRED. FOR LIFE"

Skin diseases in many cases may need the "inward" application to remove the taint from the blood.

But many a once handsome countenance is "scarred for life" for lack of using such a healing agent as Dr. Agnew's Ointment. Only needs a few applications of this magic healer to any skin disease to clear away all signs of outward disorder and leave the affected part as smooth and soft as an infant's cheek. 39

Swallowed a Hornet.

Mr. Alex. Edmison of Roseneath, had quite an exciting experience the other day. He had taken a drink of milk, and being well satisfied with it, thought he would take another. One of those hornets that are so friendly, thought it would be sociable, and so dropped into the glass of milk, and hornet and all went down Mr. Edmison's throat. The hornet stung him as it went down, necessitating the attendance of a doctor.

The minutes of the last meeting of the council were read and on motion adopted.

Councillor Anderson, chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, mentioned that he had notified the clerk to prepare a statement of the expenses in detail of the bridge to date.

Upon motion of Councillor J. B. Pearce seconded by Councillor Crowe, council went into Committee of the Whole. The council also decided to visit Mud Lake bridge, which is being done this afternoon.

AT THE FALL ASSIZES.

Plaintiff Gets Damages in Seduction Case.

The Starr vs. Dickson Company and the Poussette vs. Dickson Company, Assigned to Non-jury Sittings.

A case that took up all day yesterday at the assizes, and around which much interest centred was that of Scriver vs. Richardson. This was an action in which the plaintiff, John B. Scriver, of Hastings, sought to recover damages to the extent of $2,000, of Thomas Richardson, of the Township of Asphodel, for the seduction of the plaintiff's daughter, Margaret Amelia Scriver. The plaintiff's daughter at the time of the act complained of was not 21 years of age. There were about 17 witnesses in all examined, nine of whom were for the defence. The defence made a formidable attack upon the girl's character, but the plaintiff had witnesses to prove as to the girl's good character. The jury after being out for several hours returned a verdict of $600 and costs for the plaintiff.

The address of Mr. Huycke to the jury on behalf of the plaintiff was a grand effort, being eloquent and convincing, for which he received the hearty congratulations of the representatives of the bar present.

E. C. S. Huycke, Cobourg, and L. Fred Clarry, Hastings, for plaintiff. Geo. J. Sherry for defendant.

Jenkins vs. Jenkins. — This was an action brought by Mr. Paul Jenkins, Jr., against his father, Mr. Paul Jenkins, Sr., for specific performance of a contract to convey to the former a farm in Asphodel. After the contract had been entered into, Paul Jenkins, Sr., gave a mortgage on the farm and owing to the defective registration of the agreement, the mortgagee received notice of the agreement and the plaintiff asked that his claim take priority over the mortgage. The action was settled by consent according to the minutes of judgment filed.

W. A. F. Campbell for plaintiff; W. A. Stratton, K. C., and E. B. Stone for defendant.

The case of Fitzgerald vs. Fitzgerald was concluded this morning and judgment was reserved.

A. B. Aylesworth, K. C., and Roger & Bennett for plaintiff; G. H. Watson, K. C., and E. B. Edwards, K. C., for defendant.

When the Fitzgerald vs. Fitzgerald case was concluded this morning, His Lordship Mr. Justice Falconbridge intimated to the Court that he would like to see the finish of the present sittings. He said that the Court must close by to-morrow night as he had a public engagement on Saturday and he did not know when he could get a day to finish the remaining cases between now and the first of the year. If the Thorndyke vs. Thorndyke case would not take up any more than to-day and to-morrow they had better proceed with it. As for the Wynn vs. Ontario Bank, Starr vs. Dickson Company, and Poussette vs. Dickson Company cases they would have to stand over.

Mr. Clark speaking for Mr. Poussette, Solicitor for the Ontario Bank, asked that the Wynn vs. Ontario Bank case be left over to the non-jury sittings on Dec. 3rd. This was consented to.

"How long will the Starr vs. Dickson Company and Poussette vs. Dickson Company cases likely last?" inquired His Lordship.

After Mr. Watson for the Company, Mr. Aylesworth, for the individual members of the Company, Mr. Leitch, for Mr. Starr and Mr. Clark for Mr. Poussette had decided that the two cases might be tried in one, Mr. Clark intimated that the matter might be disposed of in two days. Mr. Watson said three, whereupon His Lordship said that the way he usually figured such matters was to take the estimate of the two counsels, add them together and mulitply by two, whereat a smile passed over the faces of everyone in the court room. Continuing Mr. Justice Falconbridge said that he considered from what he had already learned of the case that it would take at least 10 days. He therefore put the case down for hearing at the non-jury sittings commencing Dec. 3rd. without prejudice, however, to application being made for the matter being tried in another Court.

In these actions, Messrs. W. H. Watson, K.C., and Messrs. Hall & Hayes are acting for the Dickson Company; Messrs. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., and Roger & Bennett for the individual members of the Company; Mr. Leitch, Cornwall, for Starr, and Clark, K.C., for Messrs. Poussette & McWilliams.

WAS WELL PLEASED.

Prof. Torrington was Down in Peterborough Last Night.

Prof. Torrington, of Toronto, was in town last night. He came down to hear the Royal chorus and criticize the work being done if possible. However, there was not much criticism poured forth; it was all an eulogy on the manner in which the vocalists acquitted themselves. Prof. Torrington expressed himself as delighted and paid a great compliment to the basso and tenor singers. There was a splendid turn out, and the Peterborough section of the chorus is in fine shape.

COLUMBIA WON AGAIN.

The American Boat too Much for the Britisher Once More—Misfortune Overtakes the Shamrock.

With reports of a 16 knot breeze hopes ran high to-day that the Shamrock II. would win the second of the series of races for the America Cup from the Columbia.

Everything seemed in the challenger's favour and on rounding the first buoy she was 1 min. and 13 sec. in the lead. This lead was increased to 4 minutes on the second leg, but unfortunately something went wrong with the Shamrock's sails on the home beat, and the Columbia overhauled and passed her winning by 1 minute and 18 seconds.

CANNON BALL EXPRESS.

An Accident Occurred to the Lakefield Train Yesterday.

An accident occurred yesterday to the Lakefield mixed train which leaves here at noon. When about a mile this side of Lakefield Engineer Pilling noticed his train pulling somewhat heavy. Something went wrong with one of the wheels of a box car and it was necessary to leave the train where it was. The passengers or at least the greater portion of them walked to the station while the remainder came in on the engine and tender.

The damage was repaired in time to make the trip home at the regular time.

LIVE LAKEFIELD'S ANNUAL FAIR.

It Passed Off Most Successfully as Usual.

HEAVY ENTRY OF HORSES.

The Attendance was up to the Average —Those Who Entered Horses and Cattle.

The annual exhibition of the Smith, Ennismore and Lakefield Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week at Lakefield, and passed off quite successfully.

The first day was of course taken up with placing the exhibits, etc., and the second day proved, as usual, to be the attractive day of the show. The attendance was about up to that of last year, and this is saying a great deal, as never in the history of the Association was there a more successful show than that of last year. The very threatening weather throughout the morning had, no doubt, a damaging effect upon the attendance, which but for this would have eclipsed that of last year in every particular. However, the affair was a grand success. The entries were up to the average, and the people of the three municipalities turned out in large numbers, while many from Peterborough took in the event, as well as hundreds from Douro and Dummer.

In every department, with perhaps the single exception of fruit, the exhibits were up to the mark, and the competition keen.

The inside exhibit, particularly the ladies' work, was much admired, which, together with the special exhibits, combined to make up a most presentable inside attraction.

NATIONAL HOME READING UNION.

Annual Meeting Held Last Evening in Y. W. C. A. Parlours.

Rev. Dr. Symonds Re-elected President —A Most Interesting Report Submitted by the Secretary.

The sixth annual meeting of the National Home Reading Union was held in the Y.W.C.A. Parlour last evening, Oct. 2nd, the president, Rev. Dr. Symonds, occupying the chair.

The following report was presented and adopted.

The year of 1900-1901 has been for the branch of the N.H.R.U. in Peterborough one of success, but only in a moderate degree. The number of the circles is the same as last year, but the membership is slightly less.

The number of books ordered by the secretary was not equal to former years, this is accounted for by the fact that some of the circles did not adhere strictly to the Union book list: but procured their own books.

In March we had a Union meeting of the circles at which our president gave a most interesting address on the Protestant Reformation. The secretaries of the different circles presented reports of the winter's work all most encouraging, showing that great interest had been taken in the course of reading and good work been done.

In May we had another Union meeting when Miss Hill, of Toronto, very kindly gave her lecture on Italy, which was illustrated with lime light views. Her kindness was much appreciated.

During this year we have experienced a great loss in the removal from Peterborough of Dr. Symonds, who had been the president and also the guiding hand and chief supporter of this branch of the Union during the five years of its existence. In June, on the eve of his departure for Port Hope, the members made him a presentation of books, accompanied by an address expressing their sorrow at his departure and good wishes for the future, with the hope that he would still continue to take an active interest in this society.

JESSIE DENNISTOUN.
Sec.-Treas.

The officers for the ensuing year were then elected as appended:

Pres.—Rev. Dr. Symonds.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. Sheriff Hall.
Sec.-Treas.—Miss Fife.

A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered the retiring officers, Mrs. Rogers and Miss Jessie Dennistoun, for their capable and painstaking work.

The members of the Union are looking forward to a most successful year, on account of the number present, and the great interest taken in the work and in the means by which it may be done most efficiently.

WEAKNESS

OF MEN AND WOMEN

Could we read the hearts of every man we meet, what a load of sorrow and despair would be disclosed. Indiscretions and Blood Diseases have caused more physical and mental wrecks than all other causes combined. They strike at the foundation of manhood; they sap the vital forces; they undermine the system, and not only do they often disrupt the family circle, but they may even extend their poisonous fangs into the next generation. If you have been a victim of early sinful habits, remember the seed is sown, and sooner or later you will reap a harvest. If your blood has been diseased from any cause do not risk a return later on. Our New Method Treatment will positively cure you and you need never fear any return of the disease. We will give you a guarantee bond to that effect. We would warn you sincerely against the promiscuous use of mercury, which does not cure blood poison but simply suppresses the symptoms.

WE CURE OR NO PAY.

Don't Let your Life be Drained Away, which weakens the intellect as well as the body. There is no room in this world for mental, physical or sexual dwarfs. Our New Method Treatment will Stop all Unnatural Losses, Purify the Blood, Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Vitality, and make a man of you. If you are in trouble, call and consult us. Consultation is Free. We treat and cure Drains, Blood Diseases, Varicocele, Stricture, Unnatural Discharges, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. No cutting or operations. No detention from business. Everything confidential. Consultation Free. Books Free. Question Blank Free for Home Treatment.

THE MINE DISASTER.

Flames and Explosions Kill Seventeen Men in the Dunsmuir Shaft No. 2 in British Columbia.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 2.—Seventeen men are dead as a result of a fire and explosion in Extension Mine No. 2, belonging to the Wellington Colliery Company. The flames started from a curtain which caught fire from a miner's lamp.

A despatch from Extension, B. C., giving details of the fire in No. 2 slope of the Dunsmuir mine, says:

Fire broke out at the bottom of Level No. 3 and was communicated across the slope by one of the curtains. In half an hour the whole slope was on fire. Rescuers flocked to the mine and reached the place where the miners had been at work, but the men had gone. They had run with the fresh air instead of against it, in an attempt to get out by the accustomed route, thus meeting death half way.

While the rescuers were at work several explosions occurred. When it was realized that the men could not be saved, a strong force started to choke the mine, but their work was undone by a terrific explosion which blew down the barricade. A little later the fan house was burned. Hundreds of men will be thrown out of work.

THOUSANDS OF REBELS.

Chinese Attacked German Mission and Hin Nan City.

London, Oct. 2.—"Thousands of rebels," says a despatch to The Daily Mail from Hong Kong, "after sacking the German mission at Piang Thong, attacked Hin Nan, a city near Canton. They were repulsed, but they then attacked Shakma, where they were again repulsed. Two thousand Chinese troops have been sent to suppress them."

Another Chinese Revolt.

London, Oct. 2.—"Disorders have arisen in Yangtse Province, owing to the ravages of the floods and the diversion of the relief funds by corrupt officials," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Standard. "They threaten to culminate in rebellion. The situation is very grave, and the local authorities have been ordered to raise troops and to prepare to put down any revolt."

Two Workmen Killed.

St. John, Oct. 2. — Yesterday Thomas Coram was working in Cushing's mill, about one of the large belts, when his clothing caught in the belt, and with great force the unfortunate man was hurled round and round. He was instantly killed.

Charles McFrederick of the West End, died at the hospital, as a result of injuries sustained at Sand Point. He was struck by a sling of deals on a steamer and crushed to the deck. His head was literally crushed in.

George Armstrong fell between cars at Sand Point, and his arm was so badly injured that it had to be amputated at the shoulder.

10,000 Sovereigns Recovered.

Bennington, Vt., Oct. 2. — Ten thousand English sovereigns, after lying for nearly a century and a quarter in an old hulk at the bottom of East Bay, Lake Champlain, have been recovered and are now deposited in the Allen National Bank in Fair Haven. The money was intended to pay off the troops of Gen. Burgoyne in 1777. Its recovery clears the reputation of Capt. Johnson of Quebec, who, it was supposed, had run away with the treasure.

Two Months For Manslaughter.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—"Guilty of manslaughter, with a very strong recommendation to mercy," was the verdict rendered yesterday afternoon in the case of Mary Egan, wife of Patrick Bulger, who was indicted for the murder of her brother-in-law, Timothy Corbett, Aug. 1 last. She had nothing to say when the court pronounced sentence of two months' imprisonment.

Drowned at Perth.

Perth, Ont., Oct. 2.—A boy of 8 years of age, eldest son of Mr. A. Gibson of this town, was drowned in the Tay Canal Monday night. He was seen starting home from a pasture, but that was the last time he was seen alive. It is supposed that in some unaccountable manner he must have fallen into the water. His body was found the same night about 11 o'clock.

Foundered at Play.

Copenhagen, Oct. 2.—The Danish gunboat Moen, while at gun practice yesterday with Prisant shells, foundered to the eastward of the middle ground. Her masthead can be seen a few yards above the water. The crew of the vessel was saved.

Miner Drowned.

Halifax, Oct. 2.—Henry Brooks, a miner, was drowned at Sydney Mines yesterday by the upsetting of a boat. His two companions were rescued. Brooks leaves a widow and one child.

Stop Thief!

Would be a justifiable cry directed against the countless humbugs that offer a cure for Catarrh. There is only one scientific method of treatment for Catarrh. Make the air you breathe the carrier of healing, balsamic, curative agents. It bathes every inch of mucous membranes with its healing, soothing properties. That's Catarrhosone. Your druggist or doctor will tell you it's the only effective method of treatment and that it is sure—prompt — permanent. Remember the name Catarrhosone. All dealers, 25c. and $1.00

AFTER TEDIOUS EXILE.

Arabi Pacha Welcomed Home to Cairo By Fellow Countrymen.

Cairo, Oct. 2.—Arabi Pacha arrived last evening. He was met by a large crowd of natives at the station.

The papers of the National party attack him bitterly. His praise and gratitude to the English have no limit.

The commander of the Egyptian army which revolted against the Khedive of Egypt and was dispersed at Tel-el-Kebir, in 1882, by Lord Wolseley, was banished from Egypt for life. He had spent 18 years and a half in Ceylon, until he received pardon from the Khedive last May. He is now over 60 years of age, and has expressed the desire to live as quietly and privately as possible, accepting the present condition of things in his native country.

A New Departure.

A New, Effectual and Convenient Cure for Catarrh.

Of catarrh remedies there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies to relieve, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water through the nose would often relieve and the washes, douches, powders and inhalers in common use are very little, if any, better than the old fashioned salt water douche.

The use of inhalers and the application of salves, washes and powders to the nose and throat to cure catarrh is no more reasonable than to rub the back to cure kidney disease. Catarrh is just as much a blood disease as kidney trouble or rheumatism and it cannot be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

To cure catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach an internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to drive the catarrhal poison out of the blood and system, and the new catarrh cure is designed on this plan and the remarkable success of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is because being used internally it drives out catarrhal infection through action upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman of St. Joseph, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrh sufferers, everywhere. He says:—"I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchital tubes and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but as I was able to keep up and do a day's work I let it run along until my hearing began to fail me and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh or lose my position as I was clerk and my hearing was absolutely necessary.

"Some of my friends recommended an inhaler, another a catarrh salve but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and bought a package at my drug store. They benefitted me from the start and in less than four months I was completely cured of catarrh although I had suffered nearly all my life from it.

"They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies that I feel I cannot say enough in favour of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

A little book on cause and cure of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and the tablets are sold by all druggists in the United States and Canada.

Thrown From his Buggy.

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 2.— Rev. Father O'Neil, an aged Roman Catholic priest, stationed at Kinkora, near here, was driving into this city when he was thrown from his buggy and sustained serious injuries, his body being severely bruised and one rib broken. As the reverend gentleman is well advanced in years the consequences may be serious.

Manitoba Wheat.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—Mr. G. V. Hastings, manager of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Winnipeg, who arrived in the city yesterday morning, said: "Roughly speaking, we estimate the wheat crop in Manitoba and the Territories at 46,000,000 bushels. This will leave a surplus to be disposed of of over 40,000,000 bushels."

Heavy Damages Awarded.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—The jury in the Civil Assize Court action of Hugh McCaugherty against the Gutta Percha Rubber Manufacturing Company yesterday afternoon returned a verdict awarding the plaintiff $2,000 damages. Young McCaugherty lost his left hand and part of his right hand in a roller machine, while working for the company.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distasts for food often follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

Six Hundred on Strike.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 2.—A strike of the employes of the Scranton Railroad Company, covering the entire Lackawanna Valley from Pittston to Forest City, began yesterday morning. Not a car started. The men refused to accept the offer of General Manager Sillman to leave the question involved in the discharge of the two Carbondale conductors to the arbitration of Bishop Hoban, or one of the priests of the diocese whom he might name, because the offer did not give the employes the representation they demanded. Six hundred are on strike.

Demand Searching Inquiry.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The Harbor Board held a special meeting yesterday to consider the statement circulated that Hon. J. Israel Tarte had said that Mr. J. A. Jamieson, the lowest tenderer for the new elevator, had offered $20,000 to get the contract. It was called at the instance of all members of the board, who signed a letter denying that they were the parties to any such transaction, and demanding a searching inquiry. The meeting was held behind closed doors.

"Cure-Alls" Didn't Cure

Only a Kidney Specific of the genuine merit of South American Kidney Cure can ever hope to cope with insidious kidney diseases in all its forms.

"For two years I was greatly troubled with an affection of the kidneys—frequently unfitting me for work. I tried many patent medicines and "cure-alls," without getting any relief, for I had intense pain almost constantly. South American Kidney Cure was recommended to me. A few hours after commencing its use I got great relief. Four bottles cured. It is worth its weight in gold."—Frank S. Emerick, Alvinston, Ont. 38

THE MAIDEN OF THE SMILE.

In that fair land where slope and plain
Shine back to sun and sky
And olives shield the sprouting grain
When wintry arrows fly,
Where snow fed streams seek sun warmed vale,
Through vineyard scarped defile,
The world we enter with a wail
She greeted with a smile.

Slumbering, she smiled and, smiling, woke,
And when she felt the smart
Of grave, and life smiles still bespoke
Her tenderness of heart,
And nightly when she knelt and prayed
Beside her snow white bed
Her face was one pure smile that made
A heaven about her head.

When love first trembled in her ear
The heart throbs that beguile,
She listened with answering tear,
Then chased it with a smile.
Sorrow and pain with smiles she bore
Unto her latest breath,
But the sweetest smile she ever wore
Was the smile she wore in death.
—Alfred Austin in Independent.

SELF FLAME OF JEWELS.

The Glow the Diamond Shows When Under Pressure.

A traveler for a diamond house was talking shop the other evening and, speaking of gems, said:

"The most overworked expression used by the unsophisticated and deeply impressed diamond purchaser is, 'It actually looks as if it glows of itself.' Now, it is not generally known that such is actually the case, although not, of course, in the way the public intends. The beauty of the gem in light is, of course, in its remarkable refractive power, but under certain conditions the diamond has more, for it may gleam even in the night with a pale but extremely beautiful light. In short, it becomes phosphorescent. Heated to a certain temperature the internal fire shows itself, and under pressure the same is true.

"Some years ago I went to Amsterdam to purchase some special stones for a California millionaire who had ordered them through our New York house, and while there I was shown the inside workings of the famous diamond cutting establishments of that city. Of all that I saw, however, the 'self flame' of the stones under pressure most surprised me. The manager placed a large rose cut gem between the jaws of a vise and carefully applied a certain amount of pressure. He then extinguished all the light in the shop, and as soon as my eyes had become accustomed to the darkness I saw the diamond emitting a soft radiance of its own like a very pale glowworm. As I remember it, he said that the yellower diamonds were slightly more phosphorescent than the first water stones.

"By the way, you would be really astonished to know the number of jewels which also possess 'self flame' to a more or less extent, and I have often wondered if the alchemists who performed such apparently well authenticated wonders in the middle ages did not know something of phosphorescence and its oddities."

Henry's Retort.

"Come over here, Henry. No. I shall not spare you. You know what Solomon said, 'Spare the rod and spoil the child.'"

"Yes—boohoo—but when Solomon said that he was a great big strong man, not a little boy!"

A Serious Case.

"The sexton digging over there looks like a healthy man, doesn't he?"

"Sure. Nothing wrong with him."

"No, but I notice he has one foot in the grave."—Denver Times.

"But that's not much consolation
When the dear girl turns you down."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and perseverance in its use will work wonders for the most hopeless woman. If Mrs. Newton, whose letter is given below, had not persisted in its use, she might never have known the happiness of perfect health. Perhaps the reason for her persistence was because she used "Favorite Prescription" as a "last resort." Physicians had failed. If "Favorite Prescription" could not help there was nothing to hope for. It did help. It always helps and almost always cures. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It imparts strength and elasticity to the organs of maternity and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

"When I consulted you in April, 1899, I was in poor health," writes Mrs. E. H. Newton, of Vanburen, Aroostook Co., Maine. "Had been sick all winter, and, to add to my trouble, was on the road to maternity, which the doctor said would end my days. I was almost discouraged; did not expect any help, but thought the end was only a matter of time, and—oh! my two poor, little, motherless children.

"It was in this condition that I began the use of your valuable medicine. On receipt of your letter of April 6th my husband purchased six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I used it as you directed. When you wrote me words of encouragement on April 27th I had received no benefit from the medicine, but determined as a last resort to give it a fair trial. I am now taking the thirteenth and last bottle. I have a lovely baby girl three weeks old, that weighed 11¾ pounds at birth. My baby and I are enjoying perfect health, thanks to your wonderful medicine, to which I believe I owe my life."

THE HARPOON GUN.

A Formidable Weapon That Is Used on the Blue Whale.

To pursue the blue whale successfully a boat is required that can steam 12 knots an hour and which is furnished with a formidable weapon known as the harpoon gun.

The harpoon gun is a ponderous piece of apparatus placed on a raised platform on the prow of the whaler and consists of a short, stout cannon, mounted on a broad pedestal, on which it can rotate horizontally. The gun has also a vertical motion and can be turned quickly in whatever direction the prow of the ship dominates. On the top of the gun are "sights" for aiming, just as in a rifle. Behind is the stock, which is grasped in the hand when firing the gun, and beneath it the trigger. The breech is a boxlike arrangement situated just where the stock is fastened to the gun proper. The gun is loaded in the ordinary way from the muzzle, and the harpoon is tightly rammed into it. To discharge the gun a small cartridge, with a wire attached, is first put into the breech. Pressure on the trigger causes a pull on the wire, which ignites the cartridge and discharges the gun simultaneously.

The harpoon is about six feet in length and very massive. It consists essentially of three parts—the anterior conical portion, the movable barbs and the shaft. The anterior conical piece is an explosive shell filled with gunpowder and screws on to the rest of the harpoon. The explosive shell is fired with a time fuse after the harpoon is imbedded in the whale.

Behind the explosive conical piece lie the four barbs, situated at right angles to each other. These barbs are always bound down tightly together with thin rope when the harpoon is going to be discharged. As the harpoon penetrates the flesh of the whale this rope gets brushed off the barbs and in doing so pulls a wire, which sets fire to the fuse and it explodes the shell in a few seconds. The shell gets blown to pieces and makes a terrific wound in the whale's interior, and the explosion causes the four barbs to stand out so that it becomes impossible for the harpoon to be withdrawn. The rest of the harpoon consists of a long shaft with a slot in it, in which a ring moves freely with the rope attached.

If the whale is at all well hit, the harpoon gets imbedded about five feet, and unless the rope breaks the animal cannot escape. The rope, which is a very stout one, passes from the harpoon on to a round tray in front of the gun, where a coil of 50 feet or so lies. It then passes backward over a pulley on to the drum of a double steam winch supplied with an immensely powerful brake.

Taken all in all the harpoon gun is about the most exquisitely cruel instrument of destruction devised by the ingenuity of man. But it is only when one sees and knows the prodigious brute it is meant to destroy that one realizes that it is nevertheless none too effective. The gun is never discharged at a greater distance than 50 feet and seldom, indeed, at more than 30 from the whale. To be able to get so near requires not only very fine seamanship, but a very intimate knowledge of the habits of the animal

LITTLE WILLIE'S SCHEME.

How He Succeeded In Getting Pocket Money.

The parents and friends of little Willie Jones are thoroughly convinced that he is destined to be a multimillionaire. They base their conviction on a recent occurrence.

Until a month ago little Willie was in the habit of going to his mother when he wanted money and asking her for a nickel or a dime, according to his needs. One day when his requests for money had been unusually frequent she made up her mind that it would be well to teach the young man a lesson in thrift.

"You are old enough to earn your own money, Willie," she said, "or at least a part of it. Let's see if you can't find a way to earn some without always asking mother."

For the next three weeks Willie made not a single demand for money, and finally his mother concluded that something must be the matter with the boy. Possibly she had been too severe with him.

"What's the matter with you, Willie?" she said. "Why don't you ever ask for any money? I didn't mean to cut you off entirely when I spoke to you the other day."

"I don't need to ask, mother," said the young financier. "I am earning more money now than I really need."

"How do you do it, Willie?" asked the mother.

Willie was reluctant to disclose the secret, but finally consented to do so. The Joneses live in a big house which stands in an acre of ground. Behind the house the yard is covered with a thick growth of trees and shrubbery. To the rear of the yard behind a thick clump of bushes Willie led his wondering parent. There in a spot entirely concealed from view from the house he had arranged a dozen small boxes in the shape of the seats at a theater. In the center stood a post, and on the post was tacked a placard. On this placard little Willie had printed in scrawling letters the following list of attractions:

WHAT WILLIE JONES WILL DO.
For 1 cent.....Eat an angleworm
For 2 cents.....Eat a grasshopper
For 3 cents.....Eat a June bug

Little Willie has now been put on a regular allowance, and at the slightest suggestion his mother stands ready to increase it with contributions from her own purse.

Digestion Without a Stomach.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy active, and vigorous, and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

Admirable Self Restraint.

Teacher—Johnny, Johnny! It is very wrong for you to say such a thing about one of your young playmates.

Johnny Thicknock—Huh! That ain't half as bad as what I ain't sayin about him.—Smart Set.

A Matter of Environment.

"Pa, is it true that whisky will cure a snake bite?"

"Well, it depends a good deal on whether a person is living in a prohibition district or not."

HEADACHES AND HAPPINESS

are like oil and water—they won't mix. The pleasure of many a day's outing has been spoiled by a bad headache. Headache is not a disease but only a sympton. The aching nerves serve as nature's signal to direct you to look inside for the trouble. Perhaps its the stomach, perhaps the liver, perhaps the kidneys and more likely than either from a general weakness of the system. It is this vague uncertainty that directs you to Merrill's System Tonic as the one remedy that is absolutely sure of permanently curing any kind of a headache from any cause. System tonic cures headache because it is an alterative or blood purifying medicine rendering the glands of the body sufficiently strong to eliminate through the bowels, kidneys, lungs, and pores of the skin, all accumulated poisons and to absorb into the circulation all the nourishment from the food eaten. System Tonic is also a valuable tonic for the stomach, nerves and bowels and from it's combined alterative and tonic properties cures dyspepsia, constipation and liver troubles. After you have taken Merrill's System Tonic awhile each organ in the body, namely, the stomach, bowels, liver, heart and kidneys become strong, healthy and active and nature is then able to throw off all diseases that are ravishing or annoying the body on account of a deranged condition of any of these important organs. As ninety nine per cent. of all diseases hinge on a lack of these conditions you are sure to find a cure in Merrill's System Tonic.

HIS TROUBLES ENDED.

Toronto Man Happy Through the Aid of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

William Carveth, of 179 George street, Toronto, is a happy man. He is a healthy man, which is but another way of saying the same thing.

On a man with a perfect digestion and enough to eat, trouble sits lightly. His appetite is good, he relishes his food, and the pure, bounding blood of well digested nourishment that feeds his muscles and his nerves, keeps him in a natural state of buoyancy and good spirits. Happy is the man with a good digestion.

On the other hand, miserable indeed is the lot of the sufferer from Dyspepsia. He looks at everything with smoked glasses. Life is dark, gloomy, unhappy. Not only is he actually in wretched health, but his mind is affected. He becomes morbid, nervous, sour, irritable, unable to find pleasure in anything, a dissatisfaction to himself and his friends.

To such people this advice is earnestly tendered — use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets do away with all troubles of digestion. They attend to the duty of digesting the food themselves thus saving the stomach, which is thus enabled to rest and get well. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proved successful wherever introduced, and they are now known all over the world. Here is a letter from Toronto, the place where Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were first put on the market, and where they have been for years almost universally used.

"I have been troubled for a year," writes William Carveth, 179 George street, Toronto, "with Dyspepsia and Headache. I could get nothing to help me. I was told of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets by a friend who persuaded me to try them. I have since used two boxes and I am now cured of this miserable disease. I can eat any kind of food and never feel anything of the disease coming back."

SPECIAL EXHIBITS.

There was quite a gratifying increase in the number of special exhibits at the Lakefield Show this year, especially of such displays of the business of local manufacturers and agents as could be shown inthe skating rink.

Singer Sewing Machines.

Inside the main entrance, Mr. W. Stuart, the popular local agent for the Singer Sewing Machine Company, made a very interesting display, which was constantly surrounded by the fair sex. He exhibited a handsome drop cabinet Singer, so much admired for its numerous extra attachments for fine sewing, as well as for its compactness when not in use. He also showed a drop-head five drawer machine, the best selling of the many styles made by the Company. Mr. Stuart entertained the ladies with exhibitions of the work these machines are capable of doing. He closed a number of good sales during the day and secured gilt-edge prospects for a number of others. Mr. Stuart's office is in Lakefield, but his territory extends north of Peterborough and as far back as Coehill. He gave away a large number of prettily trimmed and untrimmed Duke and Duchess fans.

George Hendren's Furniture.

One of the most attractive exhibits in the building was the collection of fine furniture shown by Mr. George G. Hendron, son of Mr. Thos. Hendren, the founder of the present prosperous business over forty years ago. This was his son's first display of furniture at the Lakefield Fair, and it may be said to his credit that it was the best ever made by this old and reliable firm. The exhibit, which was well arranged, consisted of a handsome bedroom set in quartered oak, a dining room set in quartered oak, showing large British plate mirrors; a luxurious couch covered with a rich pattern of velors, a settee made to open up for packing away clothing, an elaborate hall rack in oak, a fancy Rattan chair, a plush upholstered rocker with button wood back, and a well framed picture of King Edward displayed on an easel. The display deserved all the praise it received, as it reflected credit upon the business enterprise of one of Lakefield's young merchants, who not long ago returned to his native village after fighting with the Canadian contingent in South Africa.

Charley Bickell's Furniture Display.

This was another excellent collection of artistic furniture which added much interest to the interior displays. The exhibit was distinguished for its advanced ideas and attractive styles, showing superior workmanship and finishes of the finest. Mr. Bickell is acquiring of late a reputation for high class and medium grade furniture, especially in sideboards, dining tables and parlour suits. He showed some artistic reed and rattan chairs and rockers, an oak bedroom set, calculated to make any prospective bride eager for its possession; a dining room set showing a handsome chiffonier in polished birch with French plate mirror, a number of swell back chairs in oak, a magnificent velors-covered lounge, a handy sofa to open up, and a number of children's chairs. The furniture was the pick of the market. Whoever wants a strictly first-class article at a reasonable price, should be well satisfied with the selections to be made at Charlie Bickell's furniture store.

Grafton & Co's Display of Fine Clothing.

The enterprising clothing firm of Grafton & Co., Peterborough, made another well arranged display of their fine clothing. It was in charge of Mr. Joseph Maher, of the Peterborough branch, assisted by Chill Turner. It was a representative display of up-to-date styles of men and boys ready-to-wear high-grade garments, and occupied the very best position in the building. It was tastefully decorated with fancy show cards and well dressed wax figures. Throughout the building, the show grounds, and the precincts of the Fair, the large coloured lithographs of this firm were displayed, and every pains was taken to placard the town effectively. This firm offered three special prizes for the best teams of general purpose horses in harness and wagon. The following are the names of the lucky winners: 1st prize, Joseph Roxborough, Smith; 2nd prize, Fred McKee, Selwyn; 3rd prize, Albert Darling, Douro.

Shadgett's Buggy and Waggon Display.

Mr. J. Shadgett made a creditable display of stylish top buggies and farm wagons. These makes of rigs possess advantages which were highly spoken of by farmers and others who inspected them carefully. Mr. Shadgett has the agency for several first-class makers of buggies, carriages, sleighs, and wagons, and deserves credit for introducing them to the public of this neighbourhood. He also represents Messrs. Frost & Wood, the great agricultural implement makers of Smith's Falls; as well as other concerns. Mr. Shadgett's headquarters is over Fitzgerald's blacksmith shop, near the bridge, where he is kept busy with his paint brush, in the use of which he has earned quite a name. He was well repaid for the fine display he made by the orders and prospects he secured during the Fair.

Gough Bros. on Deck.

The advertising staff of the Wonderful Cheap Clothiers of Peterborough, were on deck at this Fair, as usual. Their plan of campaign always contains a lot of attractive features, which gives them a strong hold upon the attention of the community. A conspicuous member of their advertising contingent at this Fair, was the irrepressible coloured coon, Walter Goulding, whose specialty is to keep Gough Bros. before the eyes of the crowds. He wore a nifty blue uniform, with a bold, clear white label on his back bearing the words, "Gough Bros.' Clothing." He kept the crowds amused with his funny speeches and humourous antics while he handed out fancy printed cards with the firm's announcements of their new fall and winter styles of clothing, hats, shoes and furnishings. While Walter was perched on a stove regaling in one of his heartiest fits of laughter, the editor of the Lakefield News caught him with his Kodak, before Walter had time to close his bread trap. Gough Bros. are in fullest swing now in their busy double stores in Peterborough, where gigantic stocks of highest class clothing, boots, shoes, hats, and furnishings, have been prepared for their hosts of customers. It seems that they have no trouble convincing buyers that their money goes farthest at their stores.

W. H. Casement's.

Down in the village the post office corner was a busy centre during the Fair. Mr. Casement made an extensive exhibition of stoves, etc., which attracted many visitors. His store is well stocked with stoves of all kinds, of reliable makers, at very reasonable prices, as well as other lines of goods, which gave a good indication of the large assortment kept on hand. Mr. Casement also shows a fine general stock of hardware, tinware, etc., for the fall and winter trade.

METHODIST WOMEN TALK ON MISSIONS.

Eighth Annual Convention in Session at Belleville.

Very Large Attendance at the Opening Meeting—Inspiring Addresses—Mission Bands Discussed.

The eighth annual convention of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was opened in Bridge street church, Belleville, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Mrs. G.D. Platt, of Picton, the President, being in the chair.

On the platform were seated, besides the President, Mrs. (Rev.) Wilson, of Brighton; Mrs. L. Massey, of Wallbridge, and Mrs. (Rev.) Copeland, of Port Perry, the two former ladies being vice-presidents and the latter lady being recording secretary.

Devotional exercises were conducted by the two vice-presidents, the prayers being fitting in every way to the occasion.

The roll call of delegates showed a large number already in attendance.

Reports were read from the organizers of the Napanee, Campbellford, Madoc and Tweed districts, which were very satisfactory in their nature.

A letter of greeting was read from the Epworth League of Bridge street Church extending to the delegates a hearty welcome, and also a cordial invitation to all to avail themselves of the privileges of the reading room.

The greeting and invitation was cordially received.

After devotional exercises, the Treasurer, Mrs. (Rev.) A.R. Campbell, gave her report for the year, which was in every respect satisfactory and encouraging, showing that the Missionary work is increasing in every branch. The total receipts for the year were $6,770, an increase of $806.52 over that of last year. The sum of $2,715 was received for membership fees.

On motion the report was unanimously adopted.

The next business taken up was the memorial service, conducted by Mrs. (Rev.) J.C. Wilson, of Kingston. During the past year 22 members have died, and as the name of each was read out some friend present spoke words of eulogy and kindness in reference to the departed.

A consecration service followed, conducted by the President. A number took part in this service.

The President gave an interesting paper on mission work generally, which was much appreciated by all.

EVENING SESSION.

The attendance in the evening was very large, and the proceedings were most interesting in their character.

Rev. Dr. Galbraith was chairman, and was assisted in the devotional exercises by Rev. Dr. Crothers. The chairman in his address referred to the good work being accomplished by the Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. C.H. Elliott, representing the local branches, extended words of greeting to the delegates.

Miss Holden, on behalf of the W. C.T.U., and Mrs. (Rev.) M.W. MacLean on behalf of St. Andrew's Church Women's Auxiliary, spoke words of greeting and wished the convention every success.

These words of greeting were most appropriately responded to by Mrs. (Dr.) Fife, of Peterborough, and Mrs. S. Gibson, of Napanee.

Miss Gardener, of Albert College, gave an interesting paper on Missionary work, and Miss Munro, of Peterborough, a returned missionary from Japan, gave an interesting account of Sunday School work in connection with missionary work in that country.

THE SIFTON MURDER

The Jury Disagreed and Rendered No Verdict.

CHARGE OF JUDGE MACMAHON

The Jury Stood Eight to Four in Favor of Conviction, and There Were No Conversions in the Jury Room—The Judge Said Jury Might Ignore the Medical Evidence—His Lordship's Charge.

London, Ont., Oct. 4. — The great battle that has been waged during the past ten days for the life of Gerald Sifton will have to be fought all over again, for the twelve men to whom the duty of deciding upon the guilt or innocence of the accused was intrusted have been unable to return a verdict, and the trial has had an abortive ending. After six hours of deliberation upon the evidence yesterday afternoon, the jurors, who had no hope of reconciling their different views, were recalled by His Lordship and dismissed. When they were called into court eight of them were ready to deliver a verdict of guilty, and four were still unable to believe that the evidence produced has been sufficient to warrant such a finding. The foreman, it is stated, was with the majority, and it is also given out on good authority that the opinion of no man was changed in the jury room, and that when the discussion of the evidence began it was seen that the jury was divided in the way stated.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Justice MacMahon began his address to the jury. After warning the jury of their duty he spoke of the motive of the crime, which, according to the Crown, was formed on the evening before the tragedy, when Sifton learned of the approaching wedding of his father.

"The motive is established," said the judge, "by evidence not very reliable." The case was an unusual one in the fact that, according to the Crown, Sifton had gone about here and there offering rewards to people to kill the old man. He went to James Morden, who directed him to Martin Morden.

Here His Lordship commented very severely on the conduct of the Mordens for not at once informing the authorities and telling Sifton that they intended to inform.

Following up the story His Lordship spoke of Herbert's evidence regarding a bargain with the prisoner on the morning of that day. He pointed out that both Rogers and Mrs. Sifton contradicted the statements made, and showed the impossibility of such a bargain being made.

The butter-paper will was touched on to show that the Mordens had some inducement to give evidence against Sifton. They got an offer of $1,000 for that will from Gerald Sifton. Did the Mordens go further and offer an inducement? If Herbert's evidence is untrue, there is no evidence upon which a conviction can be made.

The judge seemed to make much of Dr. McNeill's evidence. To him Gerald Sifton suggested giving the old man, when about to die, strychnine. "That was incomprehensible, but people are sometimes incomprehensible."

"To sum up in a word or two," said His Lordship, "Walter Herbert was an accomplice, and although the jury may convict on the evidence of an accomplice alone, the law says the judge is to warn the jury, as I now warn you, that it is unsafe to convict on such evidence without some corroboration, for it is very easy for an accomplice to shift the blame from his own shoulders to those of the man he accuses.

"The corroboration you have is the fact of prisoner's going to James Morden and Martin Morden, and the statements made by Dr. McNeil. This evidence may or may not afford corroboration. That is left to you to say. Most of the medical evidence was to the effect that if the blows were administered as described the skull would be crushed, and that the theory of a fall is more consistent. But if Walter Herbert struck the first blow, as he says, the medical evidence must be eliminated. If you have any doubt, give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt."

The charge was completed at 11.40 and the jury retired. It was slightly in favor of the prisoner.

The jury was out from 11.40 till 6 p. m., when the disagreement was announced and the jurors dismissed. It is understood that eight jurors were for conviction and four for acquittal. The trial lasted from Sept. 24 till last night—nine days.

SUPPORTS KOCH'S THEORY.

Result of Investigation of Butter for Tuberculosis Bacilli.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—An analytical investigation completed by the Hygienic Institute of the University of Breslau is considered as giving additional proof of the correctness of Prof. Koch's theory that the danger of the infection of human beings by bovine tuberculosis is very slight. The institute collected samples of fresh butter from 444 dairies in various parts of Germany, and found that only 60, or 13 per cent., contained tuberculosis bacilli.

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

Mr. W. E. H. Massey is ill with typhoid fever of a mild type.

Robert Durand of Lanark was killed by a St. Paul train while walking on the track at Savanna, Ill.

William Hiltz, Richard Waldron, Edward Culbert and Joseph C. Wilkins were drowned in Behring Sea, near Port Safety, early in August.

Five men were seriously injured, one fatally, in a wreck on the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway at McManus siding, three miles south of Boyne Falls, Mich., on Thursday.

The schooner Sea Queen, from Hanisport, which arrived at St. John, N. B., on Thursday, brought two sailors, whom she picked up on a raft in the Bay of Fundy on Monday. They had deserted from a vessel at Avenport.

The body of Moses A. Abbey of Preston, Ont., was found floating in a slip at the foot of Grange street, Buffalo, on Thursday. Mr. Abbey was a license inspector of the south riding of Waterloo, Ont. At one time he had been worth $30,000, but lost it all through speculation.

The Brooklyn's Loop.

Washington, Oct. 4.—After Lieut. Doyle, formerly of Commodore Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, had completed his testimony before the Schley Court of Inquiry yesterday, Captain William C. Dawson of the Marine Corps was called and was followed by Lieut. Charles W. Dyson of the Bureau of Steam Engineering of the Navy Department.

Captain Dawson was signal officer on board the battleship Indiana during the naval engagement off Santiago, and he gave an account from recollection of the behavior of the various ships of the American fleet during that battle. He said the Brooklyn had gone about 2,000 yards to the southward before joining in the pursuit of Cervera's ships.

Coal Miners Threaten to Strike.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 4.—A strike of the men employed in all the mines of the New York and Scranton Coal Company, controlled by the New York, Ontario and Western railroad, is threatened, by which 6,000 employes would be made idle. On Tuesday 700 men struck at the Pine Brook shaft against workingmen who could not show their union cards. When these men obtained cards the committee reported all ready for work, but General Superintendent Breedin kept the mine closed, locking the men out.

TWO FOR COLUMBIA

The Shamrock Led Until the Final Windward Leg.

SHE WAS BEATEN IN THE BEAT

The Wind Strong—Columbia Badly Behind at the Start—She Steadily Drew Up and Passed Shamrock About an Hour from the Finish—Fastest Race on Record—Another Race To-Day.

New York, Oct. 4.—Here is the official log of the second race between the Shamrock II. and the Columbia for the America's Cup:

Start—Shamrock, 11.00.13; Columbia, 11.01.47.
First mark—Shamrock, 11.51.10; Columbia, 11.52.22.
Second mark—Shamrock, 12.45.57; Columbia, 12.46.39.
Finish—Shamrock, 2.16.23; Columbia, 2.15.05.
Elapsed time—Shamrock, 3.16.10; Columbia, 3.13.18.
Corrected time—Shamrock, 3.16.10; Columbia, 3.12.35.
Course—Triangular.
First leg—East ½ south, 10 miles.
Second leg—Southwest ½ south, 10 miles.
Third leg—North northwest, 10 miles, to finish.

Weather—Fresh breeze from north northwest, which remained true and maintained its strength throughout the day.

In a glorious wholesale breeze, which heeled the big cup contestants down till their lee rails were awash in the foaming seas, Herreshoff's white wonder, the Columbia, yesterday beat Watson's plucky British creation over a triangular course of 30 miles by two minutes and 52 seconds actual time. With the 43 seconds which the Irish sloop must allow the American boat on account of her larger sail plan, the Columbia won the second race of the series by three minutes and thirty-five seconds. It was the fastest race ever sailed in a cup contest. It was not a royal struggle from a spectacular point of view.

The wind was strong and true, blowing around 18 knots out of the northwest. From the time she crossed the starting line, one minute and forty-five seconds behind the mug-hunter, until she picked up and passed the Irish boat three miles after rounding the second mark, Columbia's pace was faster and she seemed to behave better than her rival. Reaching for the first mark, ten miles down Long Island shore, with the wind abaft the beam, she gained 22 seconds. In the closer reach for the second stake she gained 30 seconds, and in the thresh to windward on the leg home she gained exactly two minutes.

The tall, clouded-canvas racers heeled as the wind smote them, until their crews could with difficulty keep their footing on the slippery, sloping decks and the spurting spray was tossed thirty feet high as they shot their lean noses free of the foam crests. On the reach to windward their decks were a smother of white and fountains of foam curled away from their graceful bows.

Captain Sycamore rushed his boat into position and sent her away almost in the smoke of the gun. Thereupon Capt. Barr tacked back of the line and held off for more than a minute. Then, with a flying start, he went over just before the handicap gun was fired. For the first 15 miles no human eye could tell which ship, if either, was gaining, so closely were they matched.

But gradually it became apparent that the Columbia was overhauling the flying challenger. Slowly, inch by inch and foot by foot, the white boat gained. Both were going at a terrific pace. The patrol fleet to leeward, steaming ahead at intervals of four hundred yards, had no difficulty in keeping the excursion fleet clear of the winged giants. Everything in the fleet had to crowd on steam to keep the racers in sight, and the gait at which they were going left the tugboats and some of the steam yachts astern. The guide boat, which started fifteen minutes before the racers, dug out at full speed, but she was hardly able to log off the distance, and get the float overboard before the racers were upon her.

As the yachts approached the outer mark a stream of signal flags were set on the revenue cutter Dresham, the flagship of the patrol fleet, instructing them in the universal language of the sea, to change direction by the right flank. The patrol boats swung round to line of west, and charged down upon the excursion fleet. The latter, with bells clanging in the engine-rooms for more speed, turned tail, and the

A LITTLE GENERAL ELECTION.

The recent appointments to the bench have added three to the list of vacancies in the Dominion Parliament, making, in all, twelve. They are pretty well spread over the country, and the result of the voting, which will probably take place in the course of a month or two, will be a pretty good indication of the state of public feeling. Five of the vacant constituencies are in the Province of Quebec, four in Ontario, one in Manitoba, one in New Brunswick and one in Prince Edward Island. Of the twelve, eight returned Liberals at the general election, three Conservatives and one an Independent. In Prince Edward Island, the seat is vacant by the elevation of Sir Louis Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to the Supreme Court Bench. The New Brunswick seat is King's, which used to elect Hon. George E. Foster by over 1,000 majority, but which at the general election last year selected a former supporter of Mr. Foster who now supports the Liberals. The vacancy is caused by his unseating for irregularities by agents, but he is again a candidate, with a good prospect of success. In Manitoba, the vacancy is in Lisgar, where Mr. Richardson, who was also unseated because of irregularities, was elected as an Independent. At the general election he ran against the Liberal nominee, with no Conservative in the field. On this occasion, if he enters the field, the Conservatives threaten not to back him though urged to do so by Hon. Clarke Wallace while recently in the West, and if so, there will be a triangular fight. Mayor Prefontaine, of Montreal, was elected to represent both Maisonneuve and Terebonne, and he has not as yet chosen which of these two constituencies he will represent. There will be a contest in one, and Laval is vacant by the elevation of Mr. Fortin to the Superior Court Bench of Quebec, and for a like reason St. James' Division, Montreal, is without a representative, Mr. Desmarais, its talented representative, having been appointed judge last summer. The representatives of L'Islet and Beauce having been called to the Senate, their places in the House of Commons have also to be filled. Coming nearer home, we have West Durham, which has not been represented in the new Parliament owing to the fact that the returning officer refused to declare anyone returned because of an irregularity in connection with the nomination paper. The point never came to trial, as both parties agreed to avoid the expense of an election court, and to try it over again, with the electors as umpires. West Hastings is vacant by the resignation of Mr. Corby, the Conservative member elected at the last general election, and Addington is without a representative, through the death of Mr. Bell, who for several years has held the seat in the Conservative interest. Then we have Kingston City, which has been honoured in having its representative selected to a seat on the High Court Bench. We can hardly belive that the electors of Kingston will vote disapproval of that act by selecting a successor to Mr. Britton to sit in Opposition.

Digestion Without a Stomach.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy active, and vigorous, and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

THE NORWOOD BUDGET.

What is Going on in Our Eastern Village—The Fall Show.

Mr. J. B. Waddell is spending a few days at Toronto visiting with friends.

Mr. W. R. Howson was in Buffalo last week taking in the Pan-American.

Mr. Gerald Roxburgh left on Monday for Toronto, to enter the School of Practical Science.

Mr. W. H. Stephenson of Cos Hill was in the village last week.

Mr. R. Stewart spent a few days at the Pan-American.

Mr. L. A. Morrison, inspector for the Crown Corundum Co., was in town last week.

Mrs. W. E. Roxburgh spent Friday and Saturday of last week in Peterborough.

Mr. Ben Fife has returned to Toronto to complete his studies in dentistry.

Rev. Mr. Armitage of Peterborough, occupied the pulpit of the English church here and in Westwood on Sunday last.

Mr. R. Alpix, a stone mason from Trent Bridge, has moved to town.

Mr. Jas. Calder, village clerk, has moved into his new house on King' street.

Mr. D. M. Hunter and Mr. D. Pettigrew, left for Toronto on Monday to study medicine.

Mr. A. Torrie, who has had charge of the Baptist church for the past year and a half, has returned to Toronto to complete his studies at McMaster University.

Sunday was "Children's Day" in the Presbyterian church here, and the morning's service was given up to them. In the evening Mr. Howard, of Toronto, occupied the pulpit, and delivered a very able address on Phil. iv, 8th verse, dwelling especially on the last clause.

Mr. Stewart Scott of South Dummer, is selling off all his stock, implements ,etc., and intends to move to Toronto, where he will go into the butcher business.

Mr. Ed. H. Scott who has been in the book and stationary business here for some years, is selling out by auction this week, and intends to go into the egg-buying business.

The Secretary reports that the entries for the fall exhibition are coming in fast and that the prospects are that we will have a great show, far ahead of anything before.

BENSFORT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rev. Joseph Kilgour, by special invitation, delivered a stirring address to the Bensfort Sunday school on "Life — Where am I Now, Where Am I Going?"

The wedding took place on Friday, at the residence of the bride's father ,of Ella, eldest daughter of Mr. Freeman Thompson, Bensfort, to Mr. George F. Cowling, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. P. Steele, of Fraserville. A pleasant reception was held during the evening.

The output of the cheese factory for the late season is good on account of the recent rains giving an extra supply of grass. The quality of the cheese is A1.

South Monaghan is raising some magnificent specimens of water melons this year, many of them running as high as 25 pounds in weight.

Nova Scotia may boast of her Valley of the Evangeline, but there is no township in Canada that will produce better water melons and plums, as well as fruits generally, as South Monaghan. Taking the township all through its land is as arable and its fruit (what is grown) is as good as that in any part of the Dominion, and its people, of course, are above the average in thrift and intelligence.

HIS TROUBLES ENDED.

Toronto Man Happy Through the Aid of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

William Carveth, of 179 George street, Toronto, is a happy man. He is a healthy man, which is but another way of saying the same thing.

On a man with a perfect digestion and enough to eat, trouble sits lightly. His appetite is good, he relishes his food, and the pure, bounding blood of well digested nourishment that feeds his muscles and his nerves, keeps him in a natural state of buoyancy and good spirits. Happy is the man with a good digestion.

On the other hand, miserable indeed is the lot of the sufferer from Dyspepsia. He looks at everything with smoked glasses. Life is dark, gloomy, unhappy. Not only is he actually in wretched health, but his mind is affected. He becomes morbid, nervous, sour, irritable, unable to find pleasure in anything, a dissatisfaction to himself and his friends.

To such people this advice is earnestly tendered — use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets do away with all troubles of digestion. They attend to the duty of digesting the food themselves thus saving the stomach, which is thus enabled to rest and get well. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proved successful wherever introduced, and they are now known all over the world. Here is a letter from Toronto, the place where Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were first put on the market, and where they have been for years almost universally used.

"I have been troubled for a year," writes William Carveth, 179 George street, Toronto, "with Dyspepsia and Headache. I could get nothing to help me. I was told of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets by a friend who persuaded me to try them. I have since used two boxes and I am now cured of this miserable disease. I can eat any kind of food and never feel anything of the disease coming back."

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Messrs. Frank and P. Young are taking in the Pan-American.

Messrs. Frank Walsh and Robert Young are at the Fair at Buffalo this week.

The weather has been delightful of late, more like summer than autumn.

The work is still going on at the power housse, and large numbers of men are employed. Mr. R. Baptie is the foreman, and deserves credit for the manner in which the work is progressing.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

ENNISMORE.

A serious accident took place on Monday last, while Mr. Jas. Flaherty was coming home from John Gannon's with a threshing tank. His team became frightened and ran away, throwing Mr. Flaherty off the tank, breaking his arm, and causing other serious injuries. He was carried in Mr. J. Shannon's, and medical aid was at once summoned.

Mr. Eugene and James Murphy have just returned home after spending a couple of weeks at the Pan-American.

ON CRUTCHES.

Even if you are obliged to use crutches Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure can fix you up. This was the experience of John J. Peters, Sharbot Lake, Ont. He suffered with rheumatism in his legs (sciatica) for a year and had to creep about on crutches all the time. Fortunately he tried Dr. Hall's remedy and it only took three bottles to cure him completely. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing ten days treatment. BRIDGENORTH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Hannah Nichols, widow of the late Mr. Thos. Mann, the subject of this sketch, was born near Bridgenorth, July 10th, 1843, and in 1871 was married to Mr. Thos. Mann, who died seven years afterwards. She has been in poor health for some time, but has been able to do her work. On Sunday, Sept. 22nd she was out to class meeting in the morning and to church in the evening in apparently better health than usual. Before retiring she had a light lunch and, as usual, conducted family prayers. Monday morning the villagers were shocked to hear that she had been foound dead in bed. Evidently she passed away without a struggle. Mrs. Mann was converted about seven years ago during the pastorate of Rev. G. R. Clare, of whom she delighted to speak of as being so much help to her in her Christian life. Since that time she has lived an earnest Christian. She delighted in the House of God, and was never absent from morning class or church when she could reasonably be present. The practical Christian life was her first concern, both for herself and her children. A letter written to her son Charles, the week before her death, breathes the spirit of a devoted Christian mother. She was laid to rest in the Lakefield cemetery, and leaves two children, Charles H. and Maggie H., to mourn a mother beloved.

Mrs. Morrison, who has been sick for several weeks, does not improve very much.

Everybody is talking about the wedding that is coming off on Wednesday, when Father McColl will officiate.

The Methodist people are about to put some much needed improvements on their parsonage property. Work begins on Thursday and Messrs. P. T. Udy and Smith Kelly are the committee to look after the work.

A song service is being arranged for in the Methodist church in two or three weeks. We learn that a song service is to be given in each of the Methodist churches in the circuit.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Takermeasures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Teu years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355,-92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

KITE-TIM-SHAMORGAT

Coast Indians Present Duchess With Hat of the Chiefs.

MOST GRACIOUSLY RECEIVED.

The Return of the Royal Party to Vancouver From Victoria Was Impressive—Conveyed by Five Warships They Were Greeted at the Dock by a Gathering of the Nations.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 4.—The reception of the royal party here yesterday morning on their return from Victoria was impressive. At dawn H. M.S. Warspite and Amphion arrived at port, and as H.M.S. Empress of India, with the Duke and Duchess aboard, convoyed by five warships, entered the harbor at 8 o'clock they fired a royal salute. On the dock to greet the royal party was an immense crowd, and one that might almost be called a gathering of nations.

Chiefs, people and bands of three Indian tribes were there, also military, naval and Italian bands, Scotch pipers. In the crowds were a large number of Americans, Chinese and Japanese. Many of the Indians, who had met the royal command to receive the reply of the Duke to their loyal address, appeared in the grotesque habiliments of barbarism, the groups presenting a most interesting and picturesque scene.

Several photographs were taken of the Indians by the Duchess and the members of the suite.

His Royal Highness received the chiefs of Port Simpson, Squimish and and Mission tribes, both the Duke and the Duchess shaking hands with them.

An interpreter then read the Duke's reply, and Chief Nelson presented the "Kite-tim-shamorgat" hat of the chiefs, or the crown of the Tlomphsian Indians to the Duchess. To the delight of the Indians Her Royal Highness received the gift in her own hands and asked many questions about it.

The Port Simpson Indians had traveled 800 miles to see the Duke and Duchess, and their gracious reception by royalty has caused a most wonderful feeling of loyalty among them.

The royal train left for Banff at 10 o'clock, amid salutes from cannon and warships, and the roar of cheers from citizens.

On to the East.

Yale, B. C., Oct. 4.—The return of the royal train to the east is being marked by quite as enthusiastic greetings at the various stations as during the trip to the coast. The weather was delightful yesterday and the royal party found new beauties in the mountain scenery.

Divide at Banff.

Ashcroft, B.C., Oct. 4.— Several members of the Duke's party went to Fraser Canyon yesterday afternoon on an engine, and moving pictures of them was taken as they emerged from the tunnel. They greatly enjoyed the ride through the deep cut defiles and along the ledges high above the swift running river.

The royal special will reach Banff this afternoon, and the party will divide there.

The Duchess, with a majority of the party, remain at Banff, while the Duke continues on to Poplar Point, Manitoba, for a few days' shooting. The Duke and Duchess will meet again at Poplar Point and go directly to Toronto, where they are due on Oct. 10.

On to Popular Point.

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—Lord Minto, the Governor-General, will arrive here on this morning's train from the east on the private car "Metapedia," on his way to Popular Point, where he will engage in shooting with the Duke's party.

TEST THE PINE-APPLE CURE

In the Storehouse of Providence there's an Antidote for every bodily ill. Medical Science has found Nature's Stomach Panacea in that most delicious of fruits—the Pineapple.

And medical science has given to mankind that pure and pleasant formula Dr. Von Stan's Pine-apple Tablets, to be an everlasting and never-failing healer to suffering humanity—a treatment quick and effective, and so inexpensive that the poorest sufferer in the land may use it almost as "free as water." One dose gives relief to stomach distresses in any form.

Complicated Ailments.

A Remarkable Case of Kidney and Liver Disorders and Extreme Nervousness Cured by the Combined Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food.

The strongest combination in medicines that one can well imagine is the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The kidney-liver pills regulate and invigorate the liver, kidneys and bowels, while the Nerve Food enriches the blood and thoroughly builds up the system.

Mr. Walter Booth, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for some years with kidney and liver disease, and pains in my back, and my stomach was so bad I could not eat hearty food, and had difficulty in keeping any food on my stomach. I was so nervous that I could scarcely take a drink of water without spilling much of it, my hand trembled so, and I lost flesh until my weight fell from 155 to 138 pounds.

"Hearing of a similar case that was cured by Dr. Chase's Remedies, I commenced by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Pills, six boxes of which entirely cured my kidney and liver troubles. I then began Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for my nervousness. It strengthened my stomach and whole system, and I gained in flesh. I cannot speak in terms of too great praise for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food, for besides curing me, they did my father, who is an old man, a great deal of good. I have every confidence in recommending these remedies."

Mr. J. J. Ward, J.P., certifies that he knows Mr. Walter Booth, and that this statement of his cure is perfectly correct.

As a spring restorative Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivalled. If the bowels are constipated and the kidneys and liver sluggish and inactive, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills can be used to advantage, along with the Nerve Food. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To Strike on Ocean Liners.

Havre, Oct. 4.—The engine room workers of the transatlantic and other lines have decided to go out on strike to-day. Among the reasons given for this is the intention of the companies to reduce the number of men employed on their vessels.

A wire from Leige, Belgium, says: The coal strike is rapidly extending to all the coal pits on the left bank of the Meuse, and has involved 10,000 strikers.

TWO FOR COLUMBIA.

whole fleet rushed madly to leeward of the last leg of the course.

Leaving the first mark on the starboard hand, Shamrock in the lead, gibed over their big booms and went careening for the second mark, the Columbia gaining slowly. They had covered the first ten miles in a little over 50 minutes. When they swung around the second stake they took in their baby jibtopsails and hauled their wind for the beat home. Both yachts heeled until their underbodies were lifted high over the water and their lee rails dipped a foot into the swirling billows.

The rush of the leviathans on the final tack was magnificent. The excursion boats, black with people from gunwale to pilot house, gathered about the finish in a great horseshoe. As the white flyer swept across the finish the din was soul-destroying. Whistles split the ear, and steam sirens wailed. Until after the gallant Shamrock, beaten but not disgraced, crossed a minute and 18 seconds later, whistles and sirens were kept going.

Sir Thomas on the Erin, like a good game sportsman, after the Columbia went over the line, ran the Stars and Stripes to the forepeak and fired a salute in its honor. The rival crews cheered each other as they were towed home behind their tenders, escorted by the whole excursion fleet.

Within half an hour after the conclusion of the race the committee boat, in accordance with the agreement to race daily from now on, set the signal for a race to-day.

Sir Thomas Lipton, although plainly depressed at the result of the race, stood bravely at the gangway of the Erin and bid a cordial adieu to his guests. He also entertained a large party of yachtsmen and ladies who visited the Erin after the day's guests had departed.

CAPT. SYCAMORE.

When asked what he thought of the race he said: "I admit frankly that I got licked by the best boat in a fair and square race and I maintain this before there is not a better skipper afloat than Captain Sycamore nor a better crew than mine. I have as much esteem for my captain and crew as when I came to this side, but they can't do impossibilities. They took as much out of the boat as could be taken.

"I am very much disappointed at the result," continued Sir Thomas. "I know that the wind was true, and that the Columbia won without any fluke."

When asked by a visiting yachtsman if he felt despondent, Sir Thomas cheerily replied: "As long as the Shamrock flag flies there is just as much fight in me, and unless I'm beaten in the third race I'm just as hopeful."

Speaking of Designer Watson, Sir Thomas said: "I feel very much for Mr. Watson. He has done his best and if he does not succeed it is simply because he has a more able man to meet on this side in Mr. Herreschoff. He has worked hard for two years on this boat and he has neglected nothing that he thought would help her."

Sir Thomas said that what he was most disappointed about was the defeat of the Shamrock in the windward work.

"We were all so sure she would do well in that, and in such a breeze, but she seemed to 'pound' too much."

10 to 12 Mile Breeze To-Day.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The Weather Bureau last night issued the following special forecast of the weather for to-day's yacht race off Sandy Hook:

Present conditions indicate prevalence of 10 to 12 mile breeze off Sandy Hook and fair weather Friday. Winds will hold from north to northwest.

Nickel in British Columbia.

Grand Forks, B. C., Oct. 4.—Word reached here to-day that the Dominion Government has accepted the plans of the V., V. and E. Railway for the proposed Phoenix branch. Construction work cannot start until the right of way is approved of by the Provincial Government. The delay in securing this formal permission has created an unfavorable impression here, as the plans were transmitted to Victoria over six weeks ago.

J. A. Leckie, M. E., and James Shaw of Greenwood, have just returned from a trip to the headwaters of the Tulameen River, where they located a nickel claim. The deposit is believed to be very extensive, but no work has been done in the way od development.

Nervous and Sleepless.

Two horrors crowded into one life, the product of poor digestion, and the poisons that are thereby formed within the body. There's just one method of cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food, but mind, food properly digested. That's the difficulty—the digestive power of the stomach must be improved. Rich, red blood formed, strength given to the organs to drive out poisons; then comes strength, vigor and endurance. Ferrozone does all this and more; it makes sick people well; weak people strong. Sow Ferrozone and you reap health. Sold by Ormond and Walsh.

Three Men Killed.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 4.—Yesterday morning an accident occurred to two trains on the I. C. R., Nos. 2 and 15. The former left here at 7 a. m. The engineer of No. 15 had been given a mistaken order to cross No. 2 at Robinson, a mile and a half beyond Thetford. They met the train on a deep curve, and so suddenly that there was no time to jump. Engineer Atto and Fireman Dean were buried beneath their engine and killed, and Mail Clerk Michael Roy was also killed. Another mail clerk and the express messenger were injured. All passengers escaped. The killed and injured have been brought to Sherbrooke.

Latest Casualty List.

London, Oct. 4.—The latest South African casualty list shows that the fighting in the attack on Col. Kekewich's camp at Moedwill, Sept. 29, put 26 British officers out of action. Four were killed outright or died of wounds, and twenty-two were wounded. Col. Kekewich was wounded severely, but he is doing well.

Mr. Wallace's Condition.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Mr. T. C. Wallace reported no improvement in the condition of his brother, Hon. N. Clarke Wallace last night. The physicians in attendance said that their patient had held his own during the day, but no improvement was apparent.

Stop Thief!

Would be a justifiable cry directed against the countless humbugs that offer a cure for Catarrh. There is only one scientific method of treatment for Catarrh. Make the air you breathe the carrier of healing, balsamic, curative agents. It bathes every inch of mucous membranes with its healing, soothing properties. That's Catarrhosone. Your druggist or doctor will tell you it's the only effective method of treatment and that it is sure—prompt — permanent. Remember the name Catarrhosone. All dealers, 25c. and $1.00

The C. E. Convention.

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 4.—Yesterday was the last day of the Christian Endeavor Convention, and was without doubt one of the most enjoyable sessions at this or any other convention. Mr. Tarte Refuses to Investigate the Montreal Elevator Charges.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—Hon. J. Israel Tarte Wednesday sent the following letter to the secretary of the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal in reply to an application for an investigation into the charges connected with the Jamieson tender for the new elevator at Montreal:

"Ottawa, Oct. 2.

"David Seath, Esq., Secretary Montreal Harbor Commissioners:

"My Dear Sir,—Permit me to acknowledge the receipt of your communication, dated Oct. 1, forwarding to me copy of a resolution unanimously adopted by the Harbor Commissioners at a special meeting held on Sept. 30, 1901, and to say in reply that I am too busy a man to lose any time in holding investigations in reference to 'what purported to be a report of a special meeting of the commissioners held on the 23rd inst.' Your board very truly stated that the said report was 'exaggerated and misleading.' The meeting to which I was invited was of a private nature. Somebody who was present gave out to a newspaper an inaccurate, 'exaggerated and misleading report.' It is not my business and my duty to investigate erroneous and misleading statements published in newspapers. I have not done so, and do not intend to do so in this case. Believe me, truly yours,

"(Signed), J. Israel Tarte."

OPENED WITH DUE CEREMONY

And in the Name of King Edward the Seventh.

THE NEW MUD LAKE BRIDGE.

The County Councillors, the Town Councillors and Others Pay a Visit to Bridgenorth—Some Facts About the Bridge.

With genuine October weather, with a stiff, cool breeze blowing across the broad, murky stretch of water, and with ceremonial honours in keeping with the nature of the occasion, the new Mud Lake bridge was, by Warden Fitzgerald, and in the name of King Edward VII, formally declared open for traffic yesterday afternoon, and, legally speaking, taken off the contractor's hands. It will be a memorable little occasion to those who were present, most of whom will have passed over to the great and silent majority, no doubt, before another such structure need be built at the same point, and formally declared open, surely not in King Edward VII's name, but perhaps in some other monarch's name not yet heard of. This seemingly extraordinary calculation is arrived at by the fact that the old floating bridge at Mud Lake was in service thirty years, and the present structure is at least ten times as substantial a piece of architecture.

Yesterday was a real fall day. The sun peeped through the clouds for rather lengthy periods, the air was bracing, and the stiff little breeze was just sufficient to make one feel comfortably with an ordinary heavy overcoat. It was under these climatic conditions that the members of the County Council, the members of the Town Council, and a few others left town yesterday in several busses to take part in the Mud Lake bridge opening ceremonies. The trip out to Chemong was most enjoyable, and soon the assemblage gathered at the eastern terminus of the new structure. They were met at this point by several of the Ennismore Township Council, and altogether the party was made up as follows—Mr. Geo. W. Fitzgerald, Warden, County Councillors J. B. Pearce, Dr. Jeffs, Wm. Anderson, E. A. Peck, and Robt. Shaw, Aldermen H. Rush, R. Clinkscale, Joseph Batten, John Corkery, James Edgcumbe, and B. Shortly, Reeve M. Doran, and Councillor Crough, of Ennismore, County Engineer John Belcher, Superintending Engineer Trent Valley Canal R. B. Rogers, Contractor McDiarmid, and Messrs. W. A. Stratton, K.C., F. D. McKay and E. S. Clarry.

The swing of the bridge was open to prevent any one from passing over in vehicles, but with an order from Chairman of Bridge Committee Anderson, endorsed by the Warden, the County Engineer and the Contractor, the steel swing was swung slowly into place, and Bob Leary's boys dashed across the bridge at a brisk trot with their load of human freight. Everyone was at once struck with the steadiness of the structure, firmness of the floor, or whatever one might call it, and the neatness of the workmanship. It was an exciting sensation. Councillors looked approvingly at one another, the engineers looked for defects, if any, the contractor looked proud while the newspaper men looked half frozen as the bleak, chill wind from Ennismore churned up the waters of Mud Lake. After visiting the Ennismore shore and viewing the bridge from a short distance off, the return trip was made on foot, every one examing the structure very minutely. Upon arriving at the swing, which is near the south shore, the party gathered around Warden Fitzgerald, who declared the bridge formally open. "Gentlemen," said the Warden, and every one listened attentively, not even the hum of Kelly's saw mill causing any interruption, "I declare this bridge open for public traffic, in the name of King Edward VII." Then the crowd gave three cheers, three real loud and enthusiastic cheers at that, and the ceremony was over. Every one expressed themselves as delighted with the new bridge, and before the party left for home the traffic had commenced across it in real earnest.

HOW IT IS BUILT.

The new Mud Lake bridge, which has just been completed, and which has cost in the neighborhood of $2200 is one of the most substantial, one of the most original in its style, and one of the neatest looking structures one would care to see in the form of a bridge. The work was undertaken by the County of Peterborough, with assistance of a substantial financial nature from the Dominion Government; the Ontario Government and town of Peterborough. The contractors were Messrs. Donald McDermid, of Toronto, and Mr. J. Boque, and the structure was designed and the work carried out under the direction of Mr. John Belcher, C. E., County Engineer; Mr. Wm. Anderson, Chairman of the Roads and Bridge Committee of the County Council, being commissioners.

For years the matter of a new bridge at Mud Lake was a leading question in municipal matters, and it was not until the old bridge, which for 33 years had served an industrious people, became in an irrepairable condition, and condemned for traffic, that the task of connecting the two townships of Smith and Ennismore was entered into in earnest. Once the work was commenced, however, it was pushed forward with energy, and Contractor McDermid has the proud record of having had his work completed in a shorter time than that called for in the contract, a feature not frequently heard of in connection with public works. Mostly everybody is familiar with location of the new bridge. It is some distance below the old one, and is in actual length 1000 feet shorter, therefore having this much less structure to maintain. Commencing at the eastern end of the bridge there is an approach of 513 feet of well banked stone gravel and earth, which runs out to the swing, a steel structure, made by the Hamilton Bridge Works Company, and being 75 feet, 3 inches and a half in length, with an opening for boats of 40 feet. This rests on a pivot pier, 25 x 40 feet, built of cedar, cribbed and packed with stone, making a most substantial piece of work. The swing on its western end rests on a pier 36x40 feet, also of cedar and packed with stone in a like manner. The sides of this pier are well banked up, forming a nice slope, most desirable as a guard against ice, etc. From this is attached an apron, as it is called, 20 feet in length, hinged to the superstructure and sliding on rollers on the floating portion of the bridge. This then adjusts itself to the rising and falling of the water. The apron is 12 ft. wide. The float-bridge is made up of a series of floats 18 feet in width, which floats are constructed of heavy timber, made flat at the top to receive the planking, and are made continuous by an overlap of the joint of every float, at which part a traverse of sound timber, 12 inches wide and 6 inches thick, is sunk into the float and securely pinned there. This system of floats is continued throughout the entire length of 2620 feet from east to west, the floor consisting of a planking of pine 3 inches thick and 18 feet wide. The planks in their turn are pinned to every float they cross at several selected points in their length. On this a three inch planking is laid, longitudinally on the under transverse planks, all the planks being pinned with oak tree-nails to the floats. A number of "turns out" are provided for with an increase of 6 feet in the width, for which purpose extra floats are brought into use at the several points. At the western end, as at the eastern end, the float is attached to a pier, this one being 32x32, on which another apron like that on the eastern end is attached, and operates in a like manner with the rise and fall of the water.

The entire bridge has a substantial guard rail, supported by posts 4 feet in height. Provision is made therein for the undulations of the bridge during rough weather. The anchoring is not the least satisfactory part of the bridge, for at about every 100 feet it is anchored by heavy chains secured to rock boulders of about two tons each. The anchor chains are so arranged that they may be so adjusted to the rise and fall of the water as to allow play during stormy weather. In addition to this the bridge is anchored in the centre of the float of 2620 feet to a pier that is provided and sunk. It is 50 feet square, and is of pine, filled with stone, having a height of some 40 feet. To this the bridge is anchored on a wrought iron dog on which a ring is fixed to slide up and down as the bridge rises and falls with the water.

The western approach was a portion of the work that proved to be quite a contract, and many cords of stone were used in its construction. It is filled in with stone work from top to bottom. The contractor, as well as many others, was surprised at the amount of stone consumed. Teams upon teams drew for many days before the grade was reached, but now it stands a permanent job. From the approach a 20 foot roadway connects with the new roadway formed with a covering of clay and 6 inches of gravel on top. This meets the concession line.

Altogether it is a beautiful and substantial structure, and one that will give satisfaction without a doubt. It was almost the unanimous opinion of the councillors that the bridge should be planked across lengthwise, in addition to the cross planking, and at a special meeting of the council to-day it was decided to do this. The expense will be an additional $1000 to the cost of the bridge.

THE OLD BRIDGE.

The old bridge has been almost entirely torn away. A small portion of it was used in the construction of the new bridge, and the remainder of it will be pulled out of the water, most likely. There is a quantity of good timber in it yet. The bridge did noble service in its day, and was always kept in as good condition as possible, under County Engineer Belcher. Caretaker Kelly, who has kept a careful eye on the bridge for years, says that there never was anyone drowned off it during the 33 years of its existence.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

The 57th Regimental Band Entertains a Large Audience.

Under the above heading the Campbellford Herald says:

"Peterborough may justly look with pride upon that fine musical organization, the band of the 57th Regiment. Their appearance in Campbellford on Friday last, under engagement of the Seymour Agricultural Society, was a great drawing card, and the concert given by them in the evening was said by many to have been enjoyed fully as well as that given here last spring, by the famous band of the 48th Highlanders.

"The 57th has a fine combination of clarionets and piccolo, their cornet players are skilled musicians, while the trombone players and tenors and bass certainly rank among the best on the continent.

"Twelve numbers comprised the programme, every one of which was a rich musical treat, which people outside the largest cities seldom enjoy. The harmony running through the various selections was charming to the musical ear, while the rich melody was fascinating.

"Two of the numbers were vocal solos with band accompaniment, one by Mr. Herbert Morphet, and the other of a humorous strain by Mr. Joseph Halpany. They were well received with a hearty encore, to which the singers readily responded, the latter having received a greeting to appear a third time. The descriptive fantasia, "the Forge in the Forest," was a beautiful piece of music, the notes of the birds and the striking of the bell in the steeple being quite real, while a novel feature was the beating upon two anvils by four members of the band, in charming unison with the reed and brass instruments, giving very fine effect to that part of the selection. "My Old Kentucky Home," with variations on the different instruments, was another excellent production, the rich melody produced in the well-known song having in it a charm that touched every heart. The opening march was admirable, as was indeed everything that the 57th presented—it was a concert of the highest order of musical merit. The band was greeted with a large and most appreciative audience. Mr. Gilbert Gliddon, the bandmaster, shows great ability as a musical director, and he may pride himself on having won the praise of everyone who had the pleasure of listening to the sweet music."

THE CUP RACERS.

Fresh Northwest Winds and Fair Weather Predicted by Weather Bureau—Will Now Race Daily.

New York, Oct. 3.—Yachting enthusiasts and the general public last night expected a most exciting race to-day between the cup defender, Columbia, and the challenger, Shamrock II. They based their high hopes on the strong wind blowing last night, and which the local weather prophets assert is likely to keep up for 24 hours or more. The Washington Weather Bureau adds to the expectations, which it is hoped will be realized by holding out a promise of a strong breeze off Sandy Hook. The bureau says:

"Fresh northwest winds and fair weather for to-day. The winds ought to hold good throughout the day."

The contest between the two yachts to-day will be over a 30-mile triangular course, the same as that attempted on Tuesday.

The agreement as to the days for the races was modified so that it now reads the races shall be sailed on the following dates, until the series be completed: Oct. 3, and on each following day except Sunday, provided, however, that immediately on the conclusion of the race of Oct. 3, and each subsequent race, the Regatta Committee shall enquire of each contestant whether he is willing to start the next day; and, should either contestant reply in the negative, one day shall intervene before starting the next race. Sunday shall not count as such intervening day.

Trade With China.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Lord Minto has received the following cable from Hon. Joseph Chamberlain:

"By protocol, signed Sept. 7, the powers have consented to Chinese import duties being placed on a treaty basis of an effective 5 per cent. on all goods brought into China by sea, including articles hitherto free, with the exception of rice, cereals and flour of foreign origin. The reduced tariff will come into force two months after Sept. 7, and exception has only been made in case of merchandise on route ten days at latest after Sept. 7. Duties will be levied ad valorem, pending conclusion of specific duties."

All duties in China are specific, but from above it is evident they will be fixed so as to equal 5 per cent. ad valorem.

Canadian Cattle at Buffalo.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—The Department of Agriculture has received a report of the winnings of Canadian cattle at the Pan-American. Canadian cattle made a very good showing, especially shorthorns. Galloways, $197.50 — $247.50. Fat cattle—Canadian, $110. Guernseys, $130 — $710. French-Canadian, $402.50 — $157. Ayrshires, $430 — $130. Holsteins, $412 — $930.

Burrard Election Case.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—The appeal of Duval v. Maxwell was heard in the Supreme Court yesterday morning. In the lower court the objection to the petition against Mr. Maxwell, the sitting member of Burrard, B. C., was sustained, and the petition dismissed. The rule of practice required a copy of the petition to be left with the clerk of the court when it is filed, and the objection was that such a copy was deposited on a later day. The court below held that the rule was imperative that the copy should be left contemporaneously with the petition. J. Travers Lewis, for the appellant petitioner, and J. Lorne McDougall, for the respondent, Mr. Maxwell. Judgment was reserved.

A Sarnia Jail Delivery.

Sarnia, Oct. 3.—Robert Thompson, who had only late Tuesday afternoon received a sentence of ten years at Kingston for burglary, made a daring escape from the jail here, sawing through an inch and a half bar and climbing a twenty foot wall. Himself and a pal had robbed one of the cottages at Sarnia Beach, for which each was given a ten-year sentence. Shortly after being returned to jail Thompson, who was confined in the lower ward, was at liberty. The escape was discovered when the prisoner was to be given his supper.

Nearly $200,000 a Day.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Billion-Dollar Steel Trust launched last spring by J. Pierpont Morgan completed its first six months yesterday, and judging by the meagre statement vouchsafed the public it has been a great success from the viewpoint of the $200,000,000 syndicate which floated it. The net earnings for the first six months were close to $5,000,000.

THE SCHLEY ENQUIRY.

The Accused Admiral's First Witness on the Stand on Wednesday.

Washington, Oct. 3.—An interesting turn was given to the Schley Court of Inquiry yesterday by the introduction of the first witness in Admiral Schley's behalf. He was Lieut. James J. Doyle, who was a watch officer on board the flagship Brooklyn during the war with Spain. The fact that Lieut. Doyle was put on the stand does not mean that the Navy Department has concluded the presentation of its side of the case. Mr. Doyle was called by the department, but, as it had also been the purpose of Admiral Schley to summon him, advantage was taken of his presence on the stand to question him as an original witness for "the applicant." He was under examination by Mr. Rayner in the interest of the admiral when the court adjourned for the day.

What Shall We Eat

To Keep Healthy and Strong?

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats, is undoubtedly the best in spite of the claims made by vegetarians and food cranks generally.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Remusson on this subject says: Nervous people, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat plenty of meat. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent Tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs, or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods like potatoes, bread, etc., and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to perfect digestion and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use.

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stomach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures are useless for the relief or cure of indigestion, because they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe preparation which is endorsed by the medical profession, and which is known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All druggists throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain sell them at the uniform price of 50 cents for full treatment.

AWFUL DREAMS.

Haunted the Stenographer Upon His Return to Work.

The young stenographer with the heavy rings under his eyes, as of much sleeplessness, and with the general tucked up, drawn fine look, as of one who had been doing quite a great deal of board walking, gazed around his basement office disgustedly. It was the first day of his return to work after his month down by the moanful surge.

"Cave of gloom—cave of gloom," he muttered mournfully. "Say, if there's anything worse than this thing of coming back to work after having mixed it up elsewhere for 30 days show it to me, that's all. Let's see, it's now 10 o'clock in the morning. The bunch down at the beach are all about through with their breakfast and are now spraddling around on the chairs of the hotel veranda picking their teeth and smoking and knocking and waiting contentedly for the bathing hour. The girls—yumee!—are scattered all over the waiting rooms in their No. 1 rigs for the day, and I'm not there! In about half an hour the bunch'll be strolling down to the board walk, and about half an hour later the girls'll be tripping to the verge of the salt wet and moistening their tootsies and screaming about how cold it is, and then they'll be plumping themselves on the beach for awhile, just to look pretty, and me back here taking measly shorthand notes about cog-wheels and bevel gear and ratchets and cylinder heads and things like that! Then after they duck themselves a little they'll be sitting on the sand for half an hour drying their hair, and look at me here, more'n 200 miles away! And then lunch, and the googoo eyes around the parlors after lunch, and then the snooze, and the togging out for dinner, and after dinner more googoo eyes, and the board walk, and the blue grottoes, and the woozy music, and the tall ones in the thin glasses, and the merry, burbling titters of the girls in their glad rags, and the"—

"Get your notebook and take this letter for me," interrupted the 10K Level Chief of division just then, and the gloomy shorthand writer grabbed the despised pencil and pad and glared at his surroundings with the gaze of one who considers this life a hash.

Not the Same Story.

"Prisoner," said the oriental judge, "your life is justly forfeit as a punishment for the horrible crimes you have committed, but here is a woman who offers to marry you to save your worthless life, and from time immemorial it has been the practice in this court to give the condemned his choice in such cases. Will you take her or shall the death sentence be carried out?"

"Illustrious judge," replied the doomed wretch, gazing with emotion at the bent figure and skinny face of the woman, "life is sweet. I'll marry her. But I ought to have some boot."

Motioned Too Much.

Citizen (angrily)—Why didn't you stop the car for me?

Conductor—How was I ter know you wanted ter git on?

"Didn't you see me swinging my arms and jumping up and down and waving my umbrella?"

"Of course. Couldn't any one help seein ye. The hull street was lookin at ye."

"Then why didn't you stop?"

"I thought you had the jimjams."—New York Weekly.

The Roll Call.

"What's Bill a-t in of?"

"Hoein cotton."

"An Dick—whar's he?"

"Splittin rails."

"An whar's Mundy?"

"Milkin the cows."

"Well, whar's yer daddy?"

"Straddle of the fence a-talkin politics an a-doin of nothin."—Atlanta Constitution.

Usually Depends on the Woman.

"She's going to marry him, I guess," suggested the wise gossip as the couple went by.

"He doesn't expect it," returned the casual acquaintance.

"Oh, that's quite immaterial so long as she does," answered the wise gossip.—Chicago Post.

Johnny—Perhaps if you had, papa, you might be able to answer some of mine.

Risking Life

To make a living! And we stand and stare up at the man in the clouds, wondering that any man can be so foolhardy. But what of the business man; who has barely time to snatch a hasty meal, and gulps down a lunch of pie and milk in a few minutes? He too, is risking his life to make a living. Life is sustained by food properly digested and assimilated. The result of hasty eating and irregular meals is "weak" stomach, and a "weak" stomach means a weak man. When the stomach is "weak" the food eaten is not properly digested and cannot be perfectly assimilated, so that there is a daily loss of nutrition, which in time will result in physical collapse.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the assimilation of all the nutritive values of the food eaten, and so builds up the body into sound health and strength.

Mr. Ned Nelson, the celebrated Irish Comedian and Mimic, of 577 Royden Street, Camden, N. J., writes: "We fulfilled an engagement of twelve weeks and the constant traveling gave me a bad touch of that dreaded disease called dyspepsia. I had tried everything possible to cure it till last week, while playing at B. F. Keith's Bijou Theater, Philadelphia, in the Nelson Trio, a professional friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I tried it, and, thank God, with good results."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HIS VACATION.

How a Brooklyn Lawyer Avoided Telling All About It.

There was a knowing smile on the lawyer's face as he stepped back and surveyed the placard he had just tacked on the outside of his office door. It read:

"Yes, I've been on a vacation."
"Gone two weeks."
"Gained five pounds."
"Didn't go fishing."
"Sure I feel better."
"Had no adventures to speak of."
"Scenery was all right."
"Weather was nice and cool."
"Family went and returned with me."
"Found everything all right when we got home."
"We went to the seashore."

"Yes, I guess that will do," mused the vacationist as he entered his office, but he had scarcely seated himself when Jones opened the door and called out:

"Say, but I've been reading your sign out here."
"Yes?"
"Mighty cute of you."
"Yes?"
"But why didn't you go to the mountains instead of the seashore?"—Brooklyn Citizen.

Thoughtful.

"And how are ye the day, Mistress Gordon?"

"Oh, I'm quite well noo, thank ye."

"Quite well! Aifter me walkin four miles tae see hoo ye wir."

What Worried Him.

He was scratching his head with his penholder and seemed to be in considerable doubt about something.

"My wife's at the seashore, and I'm writing to her," he explained.

"Well?" returned the caller inquiringly.

"I don't know just what to say. If I tell her I am lonely and all that, she may be sympathetic and come home on the first train."

"Then why don't you tell her you're getting along very nicely considering the circumstances?"

"I thought of that, but it's likely to make her suspicious, and then she'll come back on the first train sure."—Chicago Post.

His First Order.

For several minutes he had been gazing in the window admiring a lobster that reposed on a cake of ice. Then he went in and beckoned the waiter.

"What kind of a critter is that?" he asked.

"A lobster, sir," responded the waiter.

"Well, I've heard so much about them things I'm going to try one. Cook that one up."

In due time the steaming crustacean was served. But the patron shook his head.

"What is the trouble, sir?" asked the waiter.

"Why, it ain't the same lobster. The one in the window was green, and this is red."

Happy Thought.

Aunt Hannah—What makes you look so sad tonight, Frederick?

Frederick—Only think of it, auntie! I came away from Carrie tonight without asking if she loved me.

Aunt Hannah—But she has told you she loves you time and time again.

Frederick—Oh, yes, and she told me so tonight the first of the evening, but I always ask her when I come away. There's one thing I can do. I'll write her a long letter before I go to bed.—Boston Transcript.

An Interesting Slander Case.

Owen Sound, Oct. 3.—Mr. G. M. Boyd, M. P. P. for North Grey, has instructed his solicitor, Mr. H. G. Tucker, to issue a writ in the High Court against Mr. A. J. Creighton, manager of the local branch of the Queen City Oil Works, asking damages for slander in certain alleged statements of the latter reflecting upon the character of the member. The case will probably be tried in December, and will excite much interest in both town and country, as the parties to the suit are so well known.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distaste for food often follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

Lost an Arm.

Whitby, Oct. 3.—While working a cutting box on the farm of Henry Souley, Mr. Hall, a young man 23 years of age, had his arm caught in the knives. Medical aid was at once summoned, but it was found necessary to amputate the arm above the elbow.

An Acetylene Gas Explosion.

Indian Head, Oct. 3.—A terrible acetylene gas explosion occurred here last night in the block occupied by Benson & Co., as a result of which two men were injured and the firm's stock was damaged to the extent of $7,000.

SKIN DISEASES.
BOILS AND PIMPLES.

These conditions, although seldom causing death, are not only annoying but loathsome. They indicate either an impure or else a vitiated or weak condition of the blood. Some cases are easily cured but others resist the action of all treatment except Merrill's System Tonic. This medicine has never failed to cure the worst cases when used according to directions. System Tonic cures because it is not only a blood purifier eliminating all poisons through the bowels and kidneys, but a blood builder and tonic as well. Thus after a course of this medicine the blood is pure, rich and healthy. This is the scientific and correct way of curing these diseases. Salves, ointments and washes have only a passing effect but the cures made by Merrill's System Tonic are lasting and permanent. If you have eczema, dry, itching and scaly, or scrofula indicated by sores in the head and dry, scaly skin on the face, or bleeding cracks indicating saltrheum, or boils and pimples of any kind, you will get a cure more rapidly and economically by using Merrill's System Tonic than any other medicine known. By this same combined blood purifying, blood building and muscle toning action Merrill's System Tonic cures all female troubles such as whites, leucorrhœa, falling of the womb and menstrual troubles.

METHODIST WOMEN TALK ON MISSIONS.

Eighth Annual Convention in Session at Belleville.

Very Large Attendance at the Opening Meeting—Inspiring Addresses—Mission Bands Discussed.

WEDNESDAY MORNING SESSION.

Devotional exercises on Wednesday morning were conducted by Mrs. W.J. Jeffers, Lindsay, and Mrs. T.M. Manning, Lindsay.

Organizers' reports were received from Brighton, Picton, Belleville, Whitby, Lindsay, Peterborough and Cobourg districts.

All the reports were encouraging, numerically, financially and spiritually.

A few of the features calling for special mention were the use of mite boxes and birthday boxes, and the 1c a day band.

Mrs. Massey, of Wallbridge, gave a terse and comprehensive paper on Proportionate and Systematic Giving, setting forth the obligations of the Christian to render unto God a part of the increase of the "land and of the flock," which belongs to him and which we only hold as stewards. Recognizing this obligation, the question comes, how much rent or interest shall we pay God for the use of His property? In the Jewish dispensation, one-tenth was required by law, but in addition there were many special gifts called for, as well as voluntary gifts. Christ gave his approval of the giving of the tithe. Not only must the giving be proportionate, but it should be systematic. All may not be able to follow the rule laid down by Paul to lay by on the first day of the week, but all may have some system.

Rev. Amos Campbell then made a few very appropriate remarks on this subject. He told them he, as a young young man had opened his book with one column headed O.P.J.R.—Old Patriarch Jacob's Rule, and he had through out his lifetime adhered to it, with the result that God had prospered him. He thought that if the church would adopt this rule it would not have to go begging.

On account of other business, this question was laid over till another time.

Miss Annie Wilson, Brighton, gave the report of the 1st session of the Mission Band Conference.

Reports were received from Belleville, Hilton, Brighton and Picton Bands and Circles.

The following resolutions were adopted,—"That, whereas there is no rule in this constitution bearing on this point, resolved, that we recommend to our circles and bands that the older members each in turn, be made responsible for the programme, and that this member preside at the meeting.

"Whereas we regret the fact of so many of our Mission Bands being merged into Junior Leagues, it is resolved that where there are Junior Leagues but no Mission Bands, the members of the Auxiliary be asked to bring the subject of our missionary work before the members of the League at least once a quarter, and urge them to contribute to the funds of the society."

NOTES.

The President requires no gavel to keep order. The attention to business is remarkable. The President's little finger has as much authority in it as the proverbial London policeman's uplifted hand.

The motto of the gathering evidently is "Attend to business, then go about your business."

To touch on a tender subject as lightly as possible, it is manifest that the great majority of the ladies are, at least, past "sweet sixteen."

Perhaps these "elect" women of the church will excuse another criticism. We note the absence of cheerfulness. A funeral could not be more solemn.

The visiting delegates are billeted with members of Bridge street, the Tabernacle and Holloway street churches.

The conference opened auspiciously, and much good is expected to accrue.

Some of the ladies look sleepy. No wonder, they were in the cars all night, having been on the trains from the west, which were delayed owing to a run-off at Darlington.

The singing, it may be remarked, had not in it much of the heartiness that one is accustomed to hear in Methodist gatherings.

One lady has her baby with her. That's one way to "train up a child in the way it should go." It may be a lady missionary yet.

Mrs. James Kendry is the wife of the Member of Parliament for the West Riding of Peterborough. She is one of the District Organizers.

The number of minister's wives who are delegates is remarkable. It speaks well for the popularity and zeal of these ladies, to be the free will choice of the churches of which there husbands are pastors.

Mrs. Crossley, wife of the Rev. D. C. Crossley, another former pastor of the Tabernacle, represents the Charlotte Street Church, Peterborough.

OTONABEE'S GOOD ANNUAL FAIR.

A Generally Successful Fall Show.

GENERAL FINE FEATURES.

A Large Attendance—Splendid Exhibit of Live Stock—Horses as Usual Exceptionally Excellent—A Fine Show of Cattle.

Otonabee generally scores a success in its annual exhibitions. It is the finest township in the county and it is natural that the annual agricultural exhibition should be of the best. Yesterday's show in general result was no exception to the rule, weather was fine, and though cool, was perfectly dustless. The attendance was quite up to the mark, the thrifty farmers, their sons and daughters turning out in fine style. The steamer North Star, it is said, brought up between 400 and 500 visitors to the exhibition. In some departments the exhibits were not up to the standard, but the superiority of other departments maintained the average of excellence. One could not expect to find at a country exhibition a liner show of fine horses in harness, saddle or halter. If one on entering the grounds first came upon a horse wearing the blue card, the badge of the second prize, he was inclined to wonder whether a better, more shapely clean-limbed animal could be produced, but when he came to a horse with the red ribbon, he sympathised with the judgment of the judges, as lo, a better, more shapely clean-limbed animal. There was also a fine show of stock, though not as large as it might have been or as the township could have turned out, it was conspicuous for good quality and bore testimony to the excellent qualities of the rolling meadows that billow in luxurous verdure through the township. The show of grains was very meagure for a rural envoirnment of such rare fertility, but the roots and mammoth squash and pumpkins were a tribute to the richness if not the extent of the tillable soil of Otonabee.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

The directors had secured quite a number of special prizes to be competed for. These were principally offered by business men of Peterborough, and formed a very interesting feature of the prize list. The following are the names of the donors of the prizes and the winners:—

Grafton & Co. offered three special prizes for the best pair of farm horses, for agricultural purposes, in wagon. The horses, harness and wagon to be considered in awarding the prizes. The 1st prize was a tweed suit valued at $6.00, won by A. Nelson; 2nd prize, pair of worsted trousers valued at $2.50, won by Jas. Drummond; 3rd prize, pair of tweed pants valued at $1.50, won by R. Humphries.

Gough Bros. offered a special prize of a $10.00 suit of clothes for the best pair of heavy draught horses, over 2700 lbs. Won by J. Miller.

A. E. Micks & Co. offered a special prize of a hanging lamp valued at $3.00 for the best single horse in buggy, 15 1-2 hands and over. Won by H. Nelson.

B. Shortly offered a special prize of a carriage rug valued at $2.00 for the best single horse in buggy, under 15 1-2 hands. Won by James Elmhirst, and a $1.00 prize in cash added by the secretary.

The Peterborough Hardware Co. offerred a special prize of a whip valued at $1.50 for the best lady driver. Won by Miss Jennie Elmhirst.

W. J. Devlin also offered a special prize of a whip to be awarded to the lady driver taking the second prize. Won by Mrs. Thos. Tully.

Thos. Howard, harness maker of Hastings, offered a special prize of goods to the value of $5.00 for the best single driver in buggy. Won by James Elmhirst.

Kingan & Co. offered a special prize of a pair of household scales for the best grade cow in milk or in calf. Won by Mr. J. Miller.

Drummond & Duffies offered a special prize of a wheelbarrow for the best collection of potatoes. Won by Adam Humphries, of Asphodel.

H. LeBrun & Co. offered a special prize of a pair of $3.00 trousers for the best saddle horse. Won by Chas. Fox.

T. Barrie offered a special prize of a $1.00 hat for the second best saddle horse. Won by Hugh Nelson.

The Fine Arts was represented by a number of oil paintings of landscapes, fruit and flowers, painting on bolting cloth, collections of photographs, etc. The small piece of painting on bolting cloth was an exquisite little gem by Miss Kennedy. The display of ladies' work was smaller than last year, but by no means deficit in merit. A rag floor rug by Miss Mary Drummond was much admired. A pair of sofa pillows by Miss Maggie Miller was awarded first prize. Mrs. Martin Kennealy received second prize for a unique sofa pillow, the cover of which was made from the gay coloured printed ribbons off cigar packages.

The Grain display was a dismal looking one, only two bags of wheat and five of oats being shown. It was stated as a reason that the crop was so poor that the farmers were ashamed to exhibit it. In fact a number of entries in wheat had been made but after the grain was cleaned up the entries were withdrawn as the samples were not fit to show. It is to be regretted that the grain crop in Otonabee is so far below the average.

Roots was a fairly good showing, and what was shown was excellent, potatoes especially. Four monster specimen of the squash family were the largest ever seen at a Keene Fair. Two grown by John Throop won the red ticket, and two by G. A. Humphries, the blue.

HORSES.

The exhibitors of horses were numerous and in nearly all classes the competition was keen and made the office of judge no sinecure. To give details:—

NOTES.

There was an absence of special exhibits, such as buggies, machinery, harness, etc.

The Colonial Motor Company, of Peterborough, made an exhibit of one of their four horse-power gasoline engines, which attracted the attention of farmers looking for cheap power. Mr. Richardson, one of the firm's skilled mechanics, was in charge.

The press is indebted to Mr. A. Shearer, the obliging Sect.-Treas., and others of the directors for special favours and assistance.

The Fair passed off without accidents of any kind.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The two enterprising clothing dealers of Peterborough, Messrs. Gough Bros. and Grafton & Co., whose presence are always looked for at the Keene Fair, were special features of the second day.

Enterprise of Gough's Bros.

The agricultural fairs are never forgotten by the Gough Bros., the royal providers of clothing of Provincial fame. The persistence shown by this wide-awake firm in advertising the claims of their clothing and their lowest water mark prices throughout the district must be productive of good results. There wasn't a corner of Keene that didn't have the name of "The wonderful cheap men" proclaimed through the medium of their attractive advertising. The firm made no general exhibit of their clothing in the building, but they took a novel way of leaving an impression on the crowds of farmers present. One of their advertising features was the coloured comedian and vocalist, Walter Goulden, whose performances were crowd-pullers, and frequently caused the temporary stoppage of other events going on. When he took the stump, the people flocked round to listen to his clever mouth organ imitations, humourous speeches and vocal warblings. Others of the firm's light infantry advertising couriers distributed cards and hand bills to the crowds in profusion.

Grafton & Co's Special Exhibit.

At sunrise, Keene's hilly territory was invaded by a strong contingent from the Peterborough store of Messrs. Grafton & Co., well known clothiers. It had travelled from town in the firm's attractive advertising wagon, ignoring the discomforts of the heavy early morning frost and chilling breeze, as it rattled over the Otonabee highways, from kopje to kopje. On arriving in Keene, Mr. Jos. Magher, who was in charge, proceeded to the main building and erected an indoor display of Grafton's high-grade clothing, which was the most prominent indoor attraction during the second day. It occupied the same preferred position always accorded to Grafton & Co. — just the spot where the crowds mostly congregate. There was an effective display of fine clothing suitable for all ages, made from a judicious selection of the most seasonable styles of garments contained in their regular Peterborough stock. It was arranged in a methodical and artistic manner, and elicited frequent compliments from visitors who inspected the display.

Grafton & Co. take a lively interest in township fairs, and offer generous prizes to encourage some special competitions. Their three special prizes, given at nearly all the fairs, for the best team of agricultural or general purpose horses, the horses, wagon and harness to be considered, was hotly contested for, and was won as follows:—1st prize, best tweed suit, value $6, A. Nelson; 2nd prize, pair worsted pants, value $2.50, James Drummond; 3rd prize, pair tweed pants, value, $1.50, Robert Humphries.

This firm's handsome illuminated fashion plates of the fall styles were hung up on all the village bill boards, and occupied special positions in the fair grounds. Their large coloured signs were well displayed on every building and formed the sides of the judges' stand, where they made effective advertising.

Accident in Douro.

A sad accident happened in Douro on Monday while Mr. Mark Manley was going back to plough on a farm recently bought. It seems that when he was going down a hill the end came off the neckyoke when the team took fright and started to run, throwing him against the fence and hurting him badly. The horses only got a short distance before they were caught.

THE AMERICA'S CUP

Friday's Race Decides That It Remains for the Present.

COLUMBIA WON BY 41 SECONDS

The Shamrock Crossed the Finish Line Two Seconds Ahead of the Cup Defender—An Unsteady Breeze—Shamrock Lost in Starting—Was Again Beaten on Boat—Sir Thomas' Remarks.

New York, Oct. 5.—With victory flags flowing from her towering mastheads, and the ends of her spreaders in honor of her concluding triumph, in the cup races of 1901, the sloop Columbia returned to her anchorage last night under the escort of the entire excursion fleet. She yesterday completed her defence of the honored trophy in a stirring race with the

THE COLUMBIA.

Shamrock II. over a leeward and windward course of 30 miles, crossing the finishing line two seconds behind her antagonist, but winning on the time allowance conceded by Lipton's boat by 41 seconds.

For the second time she has now successfully foiled the attempt of the Irish Knight to wrest the cup that means the yachting supremacy of the world. And plucky Sir Thomas Lipton, standing on the bridge of the Erin, led his guests in three hearty huzzahs for the successful defender.

"She is the better boat," he said, "and she deserves to be cheered."

The series of races just closed will always be memorable, as the cleverest ever sailed for the cup, and Sir Thomas, although defeated, will go home with the satisfaction of knowing that his golden yacht is the ablest foreign boat that ever crossed the ocean. During both series of races not an untoward incident has occurred, and Sir Thomas will return to Europe most popular.

Yesterday's race was the closest of the series, and the Columbia indeed had a narrow escape.

The conditions at the start yesterday were very similar to those of the day before: The wind was strong and from the shore, embroidering the sea with foam, but piling up no swell.

The racers were sent away before the wind each carrying a penalty for crossing the line after the handicap gun. No official record is kept of the time after that gun is fired, but the experts with stop watches estimated the Columbia's handicap at 15 seconds and Shamrock's at 30 seconds. The contest of the yachts fleeing before the wind was picturesque, but not exciting. The big racers, like gulls with outstretched pinions, had every inch of canvas spread, and all their light sails, including bulging spinnakers and balloon jib top sails. Their crews were gathered aft to keep the heads of the boats up, and therefore until the outer mark was reached, it was merely a question of holding to all the canvas and letting the wind do the rest.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Columbia beat Shamrock before the wind last Saturday, the challenger yesterday gained slowly but steadily all the way out and rounded 49 seconds before the defender, having actually gained one minute and four seconds. Immediately after the yachts turned their noses into the wind for the beat home the breeze moderated and turned fluky. The skippers split tacks, each searching for wind, with the result that first one would get a lift and then the other. At one time Columbia seemed a mile ahead, when a sudden slant of the wind allowed the Shamrock to point nearer the mark, and a mile from home the challenger appeared to be leading by fully half a mile. The home talent began to feel nervous, but as the yachts approached the finish the canny Scotchman, Barr, by some miraculous legerdemain, shoved his Yankee boat into the light air like a phantom ship, and 100 yards from home the two racers were almost on even terms. It was a pretty sight, and one seldom witnessed, when they crossed, rail to rail, the white yacht's bowsprit just lapping the golden boat's mast.

While taking his defeat gamely, Sir Thomas Lipton made no attempt to conceal his honest disappointment when he talked about the race last night on the Erin.

"I am very much disapointed," he said. "I can't hide that. I thought within 15 minutes of the finish that MUST GO TO SCHOOL.

A Mother Who was up in the Police Court This Morning.

According to Police Magistrate Dumble there is no excuse other than sickness for parents keeping their children home from school and he endeavoured very hard to instill this theory into a woman who wore the garb of a Salvationist at the Police Court this morning and who was charged with not permitting her children to attend school. The mother pleaded as an excuse that she had not clothes fit enough to send her youngsters to mingle with the other scholars, but she was told by the court that any one would be glad to give her clothing for her children, and the advantages of education were made plain to her. She was given to understand that she was a foolish woman towards her children, for without education they would become demoralized and she would rue it later on. Then the accused offered to start her children up to school on Monday. "But they must go Tuesday as well, and go regularly every day," said his Worship. He thereupon enlarged the case for one week in order to see if the mother lived up to her promise.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S SPECIAL SESSION.

Discussion on the Matter of Road Improvement.

THE GOVERNMENT GRANT.

Offer of the Ontario Legislature Will in all Probability be Taken Advantage of by the County Council.

FRIDAY'S SESSION.

The Council went into session at half-past two, a very representative deputation being present from the Township Councils of the County, for the purpose of discussing with the members of the County Council the matter of taking advantage of the Ontario Government's munificent offer concerning the financial assistance to be given in aid of the establishment of good roads.

The County Councillors were anxious to hear what the representatives of the Township Councils thought concerning the distribution, which should be made of the Government grant, the sum allotted to Peterborough County being $30,000 to be spent in conjunction with an appropriation of $60,000 additional by the county.

Some clauses of the Act seemed obscure in their meaning to the members of the deputation, and many of the speakers stated that in coming to the Council they were in attendance to have certain sections made clear to them, and when they were invited to place their interpretation on the reading were inclined to think that the County Councillors were endeavouring to shift their duties and responsibilities on the shoulders of the Township Councils. As the discussion proceeded, however, the visitors saw that the idea was rather to seek co-operation, and bring the fact home to the ratepayers, through the medium of the Township Councils, that in taking advantage of the Government's offer an entire change was involved in the manner of keeping up the roads, it being necessary, if the County undertook to handle the money, that certain roads now maintained by the Townships, be assumed as a charge by the County Council. And if the County Council did not see fit to handle the money, then the other alternative was to divide the amount of the grant amongst the various townships in a ratio proportionate to the assessed acreage, and allow the Township Councils to control the expenditure independent one of the other.

Messrs. Bradburn, of Monaghan; Adams, of Ashburnham; Andrews, of Asphodel; Doran, of Ennismore; Moloney, of Douro; Garbutt, of Smith; and Deyell, of Otonabee, all spoke in the first part of the discussion, and all asked that the members of the County Council give an opinion on the question first, the statement being made by each that they came to learn rather than to express an opinion offhand.

At the solicitation of the deputation, Mr. W. A. Stratton, K.C., County Solicitor, read the Act over carefully, and explained a number of the clauses, pointing out that the County Council could pass a bylaw, as required by the Act, which would result in the acquisition of the grant. The expenditure of the money would then be vested in the County Council. If the members, however, did not see fit to do this, or the Township Councils objected to the method of distribution, then another method was necessary in order to obtain the benefit of the Government grant, and this was to allow the ratepayers of the different municipalities to vote on the question of expending sufficient money on the roads to meet the requirements of the Act, and to place themselves in a position to demand reimbursement to the amount of one third of the total expenditure.

Reeve Adams, of Ashburnham, was in favour of having the County Council control the expenditure. The county would then assume the care of the principal roads and the system of county roads was a step in the right direction for the general improvement of the highways. He urged that the county go into the matter as a county and expend the money on the leading roads. If it was found that the Act was not workable, then the best method of making the expenditure could be pointed out to the Legislature. Cold water should not be thrown on the Government's proposition to assist the municipalities in road making. As he read the Act himself, he was of the opinion that there could be no expenditure in the villages. He would like to be enlightened on this point.

County Councillor Peck pointed out that if the county assumed the responsibility of controlling the expenditure, then the villages could benefit as much as any of the other municipalities, but on the other hand if the townships took the matter up, then the villages, apparently, could not derive any benefit from the grant.

Councillor Elliott, of Smith, thought that the idea of county roads was a splendid idea. The leading roads, as those coming into town from Norwood, Chemong, etc., could then be kept in a thorough state of repair throughout their length by the county, the townships having plenty to do in looking after the side lines.

Councillor Sherin, of Lakefield, did not think that the villages could derive much benefit from the grant, but Reeve Garbutt, of Smith, thought different, pointing out that if the county took charge of the leading roads, there must necessarily pass through the villages and would be, of course, kept in the same state of SATURDAY'S SESSION.

EAST DURHAM'S SPLENDID FAIR.

It Passed off at Millbrook Most Successfully.

THE SPEEDING IN THE RING.

The Exhibits Were of an Excellent Quality—The Attendance was Very Large—Many From Peterborough Took it in.

The officers of the East Durham and Cavan Agricultural Societies pride themselves on having the banner show of the district, and judging from the annual affair which took place in Millbrook yesterday, they were not far out in their estimate. For years the annual fall fairs at Millbrook have passed off most successfully, and no event of the year round is awaited with more pride than it is, not only by the farming public of the riding, but by the people of the entire district. Encouraged by such success each year the directors have devoted a considerable amount of their surplus finances and their untiring energy towards placing the grounds and the buildings of the Society on an equal with those possessed by any agricultural society outside the cities of the province. This they have undoubtedly accomplished. The beautiful large grounds, with its excellent one-third mile track, its numerous stock pens, its commodious buildings and general up-to-date equipment has also been improved this year by having a handsome new grand stand erected across the track from the judges' stand, capable of seating several hundred persons, and further by having a complete system of waterworks, with hydrants at convenient points. A smaller track inside the race track has been made, on which the judging of the horses was carried out most expeditiously. In the centre of this smaller ring a beautiful new flag pole has been erected from the mast of which an elegant new Union Jack fluttered proudly in the breeze. The grounds yesterday presented a very pretty appearance. Although the weather for a while looked rather threatening, and throughout the day co it nued somewhat chilly, still the attendance was satisfactory. The beautiful track, securely wired on either side to prevent the crowds from going where they should not go, was lined with a dense mass of humanity. Everyone in fact was there that was supposed to be there at all. The hired man had a day off, the young man brought in his best girl, the politician wore his best smile, and the small boy wore his best clothes. There was the usual programme of side attractions, an abundance of organ grinders and wandering minstrels of various kinds, a conglomeration of fakirs and peanut men together with the usual number of special exhibits by the more enterprising business houses. The special railway accommodation brought many from out of town points, and fully two hundred persons went down from Peterborough. The Welcome band occupied a prominent place on the grand stand and furnished music throughout the afternoon.

The exhibition in point of attendance was about up to that of last year, which was perhaps the best in the history of the association. The entry list came within about one hundred of the number of entries made last year, and the falling off was in the fruit class, which has been a characteristic feature of every fall show so far this this season. The inside exhibits consisting of grain, dairy produce and bread, root crop, garden vegetables, fine arts, ladies' work, domestic manufactures and fruit were quite up to that of former years, with perhaps the exception of the latter. The live stock was excellent and the entries of horses was a record breaker.

In the carriage and saddle class there was an exceptionally large entry list, amongst the exhibitors being:—James Powers, single horse; W. B. Stewart, 2 year old colt; Richard Matchett, 2 year old colt; A. J. Henderson, single horse; R. Vance & Sons., single horse, single horse 3 years old; John Fallis, single horse 3 years old; H. B. Allan, brood mare and foal; Edward Richardson, foal of 1901; S. J. Henry, single horse; C. H. Winslow, 1 year old colt; Maxwell Henry, single horse; Wm. Campbell, 2 year old colt; J. W. Lowes, single horse 3 years old; James C. Grey, one year old colt; L. H. Winslow, 2 single horses; George Martin, one year old colt; T. H. Richardson, one year old entire colt; Henry Hales, single horse; E. A. Armstrong, 2 year old colt; Fred Anderson, single horse; Wm. O'Brien, single horse; T. H. Clemence, pair horses; John Hutchinson, brood mare and foal, one year old colt, foal of 1901; Thomas Williamson, single horse; N. M. Breckinbridge, year old colt and single horse; Wm. Shaw, saddle horse; Josiah Ball, single horse; David Sutton, single horse; L. F. Staples, single horse; J. D. Armstrong, year old entire colt; Herbert Ball, single horse; W. T. Donaldson, brood mare, foal of 1901; Thos. Weir, foal of 1901; G. A. Wallace, saddle horse; J. Walker, single horse 3 years old, year old colt, saddle horse, 1 year old entire colt; Harry Patterson, saddle horse; Jno. C. Burnham, year old colt; W. L. Taylor, saddle horse; James H. Symons, mare with foal, foal of 1901; W. Rutherford, brood mare with foal, foal of 1901; Cecil Glass, pair horses; H. Caldwell, pair horses; Jno. Gordon, saddle horse; J. P. Martin, 3 year old colt, single horse; W. Tinney, single horse; Henry Fallis, single horse, single horse, 3 years old; Ed Thorndyke, brood mare, year old colt, foal of 1901; Isaiah McGee, single horse.

There was also a very heavy entry list in the roadster and heavy draught horses.

The speeding in the ring has always proved to be a leading feature at the Millbrook fall show, and the excellent 1-3 mile track (it is really a little more than the 1-3 mile) affords splendid facilities for fast work. There were three races, all of which had their exciting features. They were as follows:

Open Trot.

In this race a prize of $60 was given to the first horse, $35 to the second, and $15 to the third.

"Kva Wilkes," A J Bowen	1	1	1
"Ladysmith," Ira Nattrass	2	2	2
"Grey Ned," G Caldwell...	3	3	3

The 2.40 Trot.

This was for a purse of $50.

"Village Boy," W Leith	2	1	1
"Fred S," Elmhirst...	3	2	2
"Little Duke," Laidley...	1	3	3

The Running Race.

The running race was one of the best events of the day. It resulted as follows:

"Cheatham," P Cunan...	1	1
"Bob Miller," W Taylor... ...	2	2

THE CONCERT.

In the evening a grand concert took place in the town hall, at which Toronto talent was the chief attraction. A nice little sum was realized towards the funds of the Society.

The president of the East Durham Society is Mr. W. T. Donaldson, of South Monaghan; the president of the Cavan Society is Mr. J. A. Tate, South Monaghan, whilst Mr. Wm. Vance of Millbrook, has been the energetic secretary of both societies for some years.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS.

Messrs. Grafton & Co. as usual occupied a very prominent place on the grounds, with their complete little exhibit. Mr. W. E. Conway, local representative of the firm, was down, as was also Mr. Jos. Maher, who had charge of the exhibit. They distributed many hundred circulars and lithographs, and their large signs were conspicuous from all parts of the grounds. As is always the case at exhibitions of the kind, Grafton & Company were decidedly to the front.

PAIR OF FATAL SHOTS

Gun Accidents in Toronto City and Trafalgar Township.

CHILD SHOT IN MOTHER'S ARMS

Fred. Wortley, Aged 9 Years, "Didn't Know It Was Loaded"—A Revolver in the Hands of Gilbey Hardy Kills Frank Fisher While Both Were Hunting a Cat Under a Building.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—A particularly sad shooting fatality occurred yesterday morning at 304 Lippincott street, when nine-year-old Fred Wortley accidentally discharged a rifle, killing Grace Chater, his niece, but 19 months old. The little girl was in her mother's arms when wounded and died at Grace Hospital, where she was hurriedly taken.

Last night an inquest was held, and the jury's verdict was as folowt: "We find that Grace Chater came to her death at Grace Hospital from the effects of a rifle shot accidentally fired by Fred Wortley, at 304 Lippincott steeet, and that no blame can be attached to the boy Wortley.

"We strongly censure the father, Ernest Wortley, for gross negligence in leaving the rifle loaded in reach of the boy Wortley."

Boy Mistaken for Cat.

Oakville, Oct. 5.—The funeral of Frank T. Fisher, the 12-year-old boy, who was accidentally shot through the head on Thursday by Gilbey Hardy, will take place this afternoon. The details of the affair are particularly sad. Hardy, who is 22 years of age, and who was for a time a school teacher, started out with the lad to shoot a cat. The animal escaped to a hole underneath a barn, and young Fisher went in to chase it out. A moment or two later he emerged head first, and, Hardy, thinking it was the cat, fired without looking. The bullet took effect in the head, and death resulted an hour or so later.

Two Boys Probably Drowned.

Port Rowan, Ont., Oct. 5.— Two boys, Clarence Rockefellow and Arthur Bantum, went out in a small clinker during a heavy gale on Wednesday morning to shoot ducks, and have not been seen since. Their boat was found filled with water about two miles out from the shore, anchored, with a vest and pair of shoes in it. Thursday a party spent all day dragging the bay and failed to recover the bodies. A pair of pants, a pair of shoes and a gun were brought up from the bottom of the bay near where the boat was found. The boys ages respectively were 16 and 14.

No One to Blame.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 4.— The three seriously injured men as a result of the railway accident Thursday, Baggageman Niles has a broken rib and leg with internal injuries. His case is considered serious. Fireman Dodds, whose face is burned and an arm dislocated, is in a favorable condition; also is Mail Clerk LaChance. The coroner's jury's verdict yesterday afternoon was that the deaths were accidental and no one to blame.

HIS TROUBLES ENDED.

Toronto Man Happy Through the Aid of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

William Carveth, of 179 George street, Toronto, is a happy man. He is a healthy man, which is but another way of saying the same thing.

On a man with a perfect digestion and enough to eat, trouble sits lightly. His appetite is good, he relishes his food, and the pure, bounding blood of well digested nourishment that feeds his muscles and his nerves, keeps him in a natural state of buoyancy and good spirits. Happy is the man with a good digestion.

On the other hand, miserable indeed is the lot of the sufferer from Dyspepsia. He looks at everything with smoked glasses. Life is dark, gloomy, unhappy. Not only is he actually in wretched health, but his mind is affected. He becomes morbid, nervous, sour, irritable, unable to find pleasure in anything, a dissatisfaction to himself and his friends.

To such people this advice is earnestly tendered — use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets do away with all troubles of digestion. They attend to the duty of digesting the food themselves thus saving the stomach, which is thus enabled to rest and get well. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have proved successful wherever introduced, and they are now known all over the world. Here is a letter from Toronto, the place where Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were first put on the market, and where they have been for years almost universally used.

"I have been troubled for a year," writes William Carveth, 179 George street, Toronto, "with Dyspepsia and Headache. I could get nothing to help me. I was told of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets by a friend who persuaded me to try them. I have since used two boxes and I am now cured of this miserable disease. I can eat any kind of food and never feel anything of the disease coming back."

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

DRIVES FOR THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY.

If you can only get your stomach to assimilate the food you eat; if you can only relish your food, when you have consumption, you are on a fair way to recovery. This is a practical demonstration of the way Powley's Liquified Ozone builds the system. John Britton, a driver for the Bell Telephone Co. had lung trouble, he tells how he was cured:

THE OZONE COMPANY, Ltd.

Gentlemen: I have been troubled for over five years with bronchitis; sometimes so severe I was forced to leave off work. I coughed so badly I could not sleep at nights. During the five years I had been treated by several doctors, but I could get no relief.

About the first of June, 1901, I saw your remedy, Ozone, advertized and I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before I had finished it I began to feel better. I have now taken three bottles, and my cough is all gone and I am entirely cured. I can perform my labor with greater ease than for years.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

we had won. I was sure as my life that we had won. When I looked around the situation had changed and we had lost. It was a hard blow to be winning and then lose. I should like to get one race just by way of consolation. It is a very hard thing to be beaten by a breath, by a few beats of the pulse. It has been a severe strain on me. I have worked so hard for many months now, and I am glad it is over. To have won would have been a joy greater than to-day's disappointment. Columbia's win to-day was fair and square and honorable. There is nothing to protest, if I wanted to protest. In fact, I have a feeling in my heart that, if there had been any error in judgment at all, it would have been in my failure. If there had been any possibility of choice in the matter, I believe the New York Yacht Club would have given me the race. Sometimes a man may have the better boat, but even having it must have a wee bit of luck to win. I am very grieved, indeed, very grieved, and," he added, "I should like to have won one race."

Hardly had the Erin's anchors touched bottom, when a launch from the Corsair came alongside, bearing the Regatta Committee of the New York Yacht Club. Sir Thomas met them at the head of the gangway, and as he shook hands with them individually, he said: "Gentlemen, it was a fair beat. I want to say again that you have treated me with the utmost fairness and courtesy. You have met every wish of mine, and from my heart I thank you."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

Commodore Lewis Cass Ledyard, chairman of the New York Yacht Club Regatta Committee, replied: "Sir Thomas, we have never had a truer sportsman to deal with."

Many of Sir Thomas' guests on board the Erin crowded around to express their sympathy at his defeat, and assured him of the high place he had won in the hearts of all Americans.

"When a man wins a heart he has won more than a cup," said one of them.

There were tears in the Irish baronet's eyes when he thanked them for their kind words. Said he: "The words you have spoken touch me far more than my defeat to-day. I tried to win the cup, and I have done my best. But, better than all that, I have the good wishes of this country."

When asked about his plans for the future, Sir Thomas said: "It is too early to talk about any plans. About the Shamrock, I cannot decide yet what I shall do, and, as to challenging again, it is too soon to think about it."

Columbia Behind at First Turn.

The official time of turning the outer mark was as follows:

Shamrock	12.48.46
Columbia	12.49.35

Shamrock Ahead at the Finish.

The official time of the finish was as follows:

Shamrock	3.33.38
Columbia	3.38.40

Time allowance to Columbia 43 seconds.

Corrected Time.

Shamrock	4.33.38
Columbia	4.32.57

Columbia wins by 41 seconds.

SWAP YACHT CREWS.

Suggestion That an Interesting Question May Be Solved.

London, Oct. 5.—There is feeling of supreme disappointment in London over the failure of the Shamrock II. to win even a single race. Those who denounced Sir Thomas Lipton's ambition asserting that he was using his yacht to advance his business interests, now realize that his sportsmanlike efforts deserved a better result. The question is much debated here as to whether the defeat of the challenger was due to the superiority of American seamanship or the better constructive abilities of the American. With a view of settling the question the Daily Express has cabled Commodore Morgan and Sir Thomas Lipton suggesting they should arrange a race with the Columbia's crew on board the Shamrock II. and the crew of the challenger on board the defender.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distaste for food often follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

Succumbed to the Gale.

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 4.—The propeller M. M. Drake and its tow, the barge Michigan, Wednesday afternoon succumbed to the fury of a gale off Vermilion Point.

It was when off the point the captain of the steamer saw that it would be impossible to save the boats, and he began whistling for assistance. The steamers Northern Wave and Superior City ran to their assistance and rescued the sailors, who were brought to this port. The rescue was fraught with much danger, but was accomplished without mishap.

CURED TOTAL PARALYSIS!

It puzzles the Doctors and astonishes his patients how South American Nervine cures so many who are "given up to die"—it never fails.

"My wife was stricken with nervous prostration, which developed into total paralysis. We had hardly any hope of her recovery, but had heard of the great cures made by South American Nervine in cases of nervous troubles. We decided to try the treatment, and it was astonishing the results that followed the taking of three bottles—it worked wonders indeed. I feel I cannot speak too highly of this great remedy." —Edward Parr, Surrey Centre, B.C. 42

ATLANTIC FAST LINE.

Lord Strathcona Confers With Dominion Ministers About It.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—Lord Strathcona has conferred with several of the Ministers in Ottawa with a view to the establishment of a fast line of steamers between Canada and England. He strongly urges that the vessels be of a capacity equal to the best now afloat — say 21-knot steamers — and that the Canadian port be Sydney, Cape Breton, or vicinity. Such steamers will make the passage from Queenstown to Sydney in less than four days, and land passengers and mails in Montreal and New York in less than five days. A service of this kind would also bring Toronto within five and a half days of an English port. Lord Strathcona thinks the time has arrived when the people of Great Britain should know, by such proof as this line would afford, how much nearer England is to Canada than to the United States. At present many people in the Mother Country know so little of our geography that they think Canada is a country lying beyond the United States, that can only be touched by first passing through United States territory. His Lordship is of opinion that a steamship service of the character proposed, if accompanied by an improved passenger line between Canada and Australia, would divert a great amount of the passenger train business between Australia and Europe through Canada, thus advertising our country with a most desirable class of travelers, and supplying traffic to Canadian railways and all who cater to the traveling public. Whilst the enterprise might for a short time cost the country a considerable sum, Lord Strathcona is strongly of opinion that as a national undertaking it will, by way of indirect advantages, pay the country for the outlay incurred in its establishment.

A Surgeon's Blunder.

Artery Severed While Undergoing an Operation—No Longer Necessary to Use the Knife for Piles.

Saturday's paper contains the account of an accident whereby a young lady lost her life. While undergoing an operation, the surgeon's knife slipped, an artery was severed, and before the surgeon knew the result of his error the patient was in a dying condition.

Every surgical operation is attended with great risk to life as well as being a severe strain on the nervous system and an expensive method of treatment. Doctors formerly recommended an operation as the only cure for piles but that day is past, since Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven its absolute control over every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Physicians who are considerate of the well being of their patients do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and only those having a mania for operations claim that cruel method as the proper treatment. By promptly stopping the distressing itching and burning Dr. Chase's Ointment brings quick and lasting relief.

Rev. S. A. Duprau, Methodist minister, Consecon, Prince Edward County, Ont., states, "I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years, and they ultimately attained to a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed so that it was with great difficulty and considerable pain that I was able to stool. At this very severe crisis I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but had little or no faith in it, as I had tried various remedies before and to no purpose.

"Now imagine how great and joyous was my surprise to find that just the one box cured me, so that the lumps disappeared, and also the external swelling. I feel like a different man to-day and have not the least doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation and many years of suffering. It is with the greatest pleasure and with a thankful heart that I give this testimonial, knowing that Dr. Chase's Ointment has done so much for me. You are at perfect liberty to use this testimonial as you see fit for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has been endorsed by more people, including doctors and professional men than any similar preparation the world has ever known. It is the standard ointment the world over, and positively the only actual cure for piles. 60 cts. a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

What the Eye Tells.

Eyes are very treacherous, and those who meddle in amorous matters should know all about them.

When the upper lid covers half or more of the pupil, the indication is of cool deliberation. An eye the upper lid of which passes horizontally across the pupil indicates mental ability. Unsteady eyes, rapidly jerking from side to side, are frequently indicative of an unsettled mind. It is said that the prevailing color of eyes among the patients of lunatic asylums are brown and black. Eyes of any color with weak brows and long, concave lashes are indicative of a weak constitution. Eyes that are wide apart are said to indicate great intelligence and a tenacious memory. Eyes of which the whole iris is visible belong to erratic persons, even with a tendency toward insanity. Wide open, staring eyes in weak countenances indicate jealousy, bigotry, intolerance and pertinacity without firmness.

The Landlord Didn't Worry.

"Some of your guests," remarked the friend of the summer hotel proprietor, "positively make themselves ill from overeating, seeming to think that otherwise they are not getting their money's worth."

"Oh, don't let that worry you," replied the hotel man. "I stand in with the only doctor in the neighborhood and get a rebate."—Philadelphia Record.

KRUGER'S MIND TOTTERING.

His Slowness in Reaching a Decision Hinders the Boers' Cause.

The Hague, Oct. 5.—A. D. W. Wolmarans, one of the Boer envoys, who has been visiting Mr. Kruger at Hilversum, found the mental condition of the former President of the Transvaal to be by no means satisfactory. Mr. Kruger is slowly growing weaker physically and mentally. His slowness in reaching a decision on important questions is found to be a serious hindrance to those working in Europe in behalf of the Boer cause. At the slightest question regarding his health, Mr. Kruger exhibits intense irritation and vehemently denies that anything is wrong. The approach of winter causes anxiety, as Mr. Kruger refuses to leave Holland.

According to a remark made by a prominent Boer, the former President's condition would long ago have been worse if hatred of Great Britain did not nerve him to continue.

Casualty List Greater.

London, Oct. 5.—The casualty list shows that the total British losses in the attack on Col. Kekewich's camp at Moedwill were four officers killed and 23 wounded, and 51 men killed and 115 wounded, numbers much greater than those heretofore reported.

Another Canadian Wounded.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—The Militia Department yesterday received a cable announcing that Trooper Christopher of Glen Adelaide, Man., a member of the South African Constabulary, had been slightly wounded in an engagement with Boers.

The other survivor of the Asia was Miss Morrison of Meaford, a passenger.

Sampson to Be Summoned.

Washington, Oct. 5.—In the Schley naval court of inquiry yesterday, Mr. Rayner, chief counsel for Admiral Schley, asked Judge Advocate Lemley to summon Admiral Sampson as a witness in the case. The request grew out of a difference in the construction of a sentence in Admiral Sampson's letter to Commodore Schley, written from Key West, May 20, while Commodore Schley was with the flying squadron lying off Cienfuegos.

This is known as the "Dear Schley" letter and in it, as printed in the Navy Department documents, supplied to the Senate, the Admiral said, after expressing his opinion that, notwithstanding the report that the Spanish squadron was in Santiago, it were better to continue to blockade Cienfuegos and Havana. "We shall continue to hold Havana and Santiago until we receive more positive information."

At the Change of Life.

This trying period in women's life usually comes between the ages of forty and fifty years and is marked by irrita, headache, dizziness, irregular monthlies, fitful appetite, forebodings of evil, palpitation of the heart and constipation. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is above all a woman's medicine because it helps her safely through this trying period. It enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves, regulates the functions of the feminine organs and tones and invigorates the whole body.

Mangled by Hogs.

Sunfield, Mich., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Ansel Green, of Sebwai Township, was attacked by hogs and so frightfully mangled she will die. Mrs. Green was hunting for eggs in the barnyard, when three hogs suddenly turned upon her and knocked her down. The flesh was stripped from her right arm, and it had to be amputated. Her left arm and hand was also terribly tore. One side of her face was torn to shreds. The unfortunate woman's body was also shockingly mutilated. There is no hope for her recovery.

Narrowly Escaped Death.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wigle of Maidstone Township drove their horse in front of an eastbound Sandwich car about 8.30 o'clock Thursday night and were almost crushed to death. The buggy was smashed into fragments and the harness torn into shreds. The horse escaped injury. The occupants were carried to Dr. Reaume's residence, where their injuries were dressed. Mrs. Wigle was severely cut about the head and body, her scalp being torn open in a number of places, and one rib was fractured.

BAGGAGEMAN'S BACKACHE.

A Berlin Baggageman Recommend Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

Hauling heavy trucks and lifting heavy trunks strains the back and injures the delicate fibres of the kidneys.

No wonder so many baggagemen complain of backache and kidney troubles.

For baggagemen's backache, as well as for all kinds of backache, kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, there is no remedy equal to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

Read what Mr. Geo. Brenner, baggageman, G.T.R. station, Berlin, Ont., has to say about them:—"For three or four years I have suffered from a severe backache due to Kidney trouble. I have tried all kinds of kidney remedies, but am forced to say until I procured a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets off A. J. Ross, druggist, I never had much relief. The Tablets, however, soon took hold and the result is comfort again. I am only too pleased to recommend them as easy, safe and sure."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

ASSIZES CLOSED.

The Thorndyk vs. Thorndyke Case Concluded Yesterday Afternoon.

The fall assizes for the County of Peterborough concluded yesterday before Hon. Mr. Justice Falconbridge, after a week of exceptionally hard work on the part of His Lordship, the court officials and the several prominent counsel.

The docket during the present assizes has been not only heavy but interesting as well, and had not two of the more important cases been transferred to the non-jury sittings, the court would most likely have lasted to the end of next week. During the present sittings there was as exceptionally large array of outside legal talent.

The last case disposed of was that of Thorndyke vs. Thorndyke, the plaintiff being Joseph Thorndyke, and the defendant being Wm. Thorndyke, a brother of the plaintiff, both of whom come from East Durham. The action was an effort on the part of the plaintiff to have set aside a certain document executed by the late Mrs. Thorndyke, mother of the parties, on the ground that she was not in a fit state of mind for the transaction of business, at the time of the execution of the same. Judgment was reserved.

WALL PAPER CLEARANCE.

Great Double Sale of a Great Double Stock.

Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Co. have been unable to display a large portion of their recent purchase of the Turnbull stock of wall paper, bought at so great a sacrifice. Now, thanks to the past fortnight's great business the way is clear, and a practically new sale begins on Monday. The bulk of the patterns now removed from Turnbull's store, are fully on a par with their own regular stock. But what is of more importance to buyers is the fact that just about half prices is all you'll be asked to pay. With this great double stock to pick from, there is practically everything to suit the needs of everybody.

MUCH ADMIRED.

The Gasoline Motors of the Colonial Motor Company.

At the East Durham Fall Show at Millbrook yesterday, a special exhibit that attracted much attention was that of the Colonial Motor Company, Limited. Mr. Grant Richardson of the firm was in charge and he was kept very busy throughout the day explaining the details of his four horse power gasoline engine.

These engines are the invention of Mr. W. J. Hamilton, of town.

Their application as a motive power includes pumping, pulping, straw and ensilage cutting, grinding, sawing, threshing, running electric light dynamos, launches, yachts, planing and other mill or shop machinery, and anything to which motive power is usually attached. A test of these engines, extending over a period of twenty-eight days was recently made on the premises of the Colonial Motor Company, 212 Hunter street, Peterborough, by the superintendent, Mr. W. J. Hamilton, when the company's plant was run for the above named period at the low cost, for gasoline, of twenty-eight and a half cents per day for a four h. p. engine, which supplied all the motive power required to run the plant.

The Colonial Motor Company has now thirty of their gasoline engines either completed or nearing completion, and a number of others in various stages of construction. The horse power ranges from one and a half to sixteen, and those in contemplation will run from sixteen to thirty horse power. The smaller ones are now installed and working with splendid results in launches, machine shops, and as power in running farm machinery. An important factor in the handling of these gasoline engines is the moderate cost price to bona fide purchasers, and the low cost and simplicity of their operation.

Marks Bros. again demonstrated their drawing powers by packing the house on their return visit. To-night will be the last appearance of the company. There will be a big contest for a purse of $2.50. The play will be "His Atonement."

"ALL FOR THE BOYS."

Splendid Opening of Boys' Department Last Night.

How They Enjoyed Themselves—There was a Very Large Turn Out.

Yesterday afternoon the Boys' Department new rooms at the Y.M.C.A. were formally opened with a reception and tea tendered by the officers and Boys Committee, to the members of that department and their chums. Never in the history of the work for boys in the new building have so many of them been gathered together at one time, and never perhaps has an event been so thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed. It will always be remembered as a red letter day in the history of the Peterborough Association, when at the opening of a new season's work for boys in the first year of a new century, they were enabled to take possession of a suite of rooms set apart and beautifully furnished for themselves.

The fact that in the Association membership there are over 125 school boys, and nearly as many more under 18 years of age, who are employed during the day, together with the expression of interest as shown in the large assembly of the "coming men," must convince the trustees and directors of the association that their action in completing the rooms has met a great need in the development of the work.

The Ladies Auxiliary are to be congratulated, too, on the attractive manner in which they furnished the new rooms. Their contribution to the work, indicated too the value they place on the work of the Y.M.C.A. in the all-round development of the boy, of saving the boy in order to save the man.

The Boys' Committee, of which Mr. Sandford Hall is chairman, had full charge of all the arrangements for the opening, and discharged the very difficult task with great credit to themselves and to the satisfaction of the boys who attended the opening function.

The mothers of the boys very kindly provided the eatables for the occasion and this they did without stint either as to quality or quantity.

Shortly after four o'clock the building was crowded with boys, and they were first introduced to the gymnasium by the physical instructor, Mr. Horace E. Ayers. Here for an hour they romped and played, producing a picture which, for animation, could scarcely be eclipsed.

Promptly at five-thirty all filed into the banquet hall, where the laden tables were spread and tastefully decorated with plants and flowers.

It is needless to say the boys all did their duty by the repast placed before them, and it is worthy to note that there was no ungentlemanly conduct throughout the whole proceedings.

After dinner, speeches followed, the general secretary, Mr. Williamson, presiding. He said this was a historic day in the history of the department, and prophesied a bright future for the work in the new rooms.

Mr. Ayers received a tremendous ovation when his name was called, and replied in a brief forcible speech. Mr. E. A. Froude, the new boys' department secretary, also spoke, which was followed by Messrs. S. Hall, A. Pearson and J. Lang, for the Boys' Committee, and Stewart Lang, H. Daly, W. MacDonald, A. Hodgson, F. Richardson and Robert Hall on behalf of the boys.

At the close Mr. Fred Roy photographed the group.

Mr. Williamson made a few closing remarks, following which the pleasant opening was brought to a close with prayer.

ELECTRIC LIGHT QUESTION.

Citizens Will Have to Use Lamps for Another Week.

Mr. William Scott, local manager of the Cereal Works, when seen this morning in reference to the electric light question stated that the water could not be let into the raceway to provide the necessary power before the middle of next week, with the possibility that it might take until the end of the week to complete the contemplated repairs.

The break in the side of the raceway has been repaired, but the damage done by the anchor ice in the spring to the flume at the power house is far more extensive than was ever imagined. It seems that when the ice clogged the grating across the intake of the flume, the water forced itself beneath the timber supporting the grating, and after undermining the concrete flooring of the flume to a considerable extent, finally burst up through it.

A concrete wall five feet deep is now being constructed to support the grating and a new concrete flooring will be put in the flume. In accordance with the general rule of the Cereal Company the work is to be most substantially done.

A SMASH-UP

On the Main Line of the Grand Trunk Railway.

A smash-up occurred on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway a short distance west of Port Hope, this morning. The damage done is reported to be considerable and the road was badly blocked. The passenger trains going west this morning on the main line were sent via Millbrook, Bethany, Lindsay, and then down to Whitby on the main line again, necessitating their being about 6 hours late.

VISITED THE LIFT LOCK.

Many of Those Who Were in Town at the Recent Assizes.

During the past week the lift lock saw more visitors than perhaps it has in any one week for some time. It proved to be a great attraction for visitors to town during the recent assizes. The assizes this week were attended by a great many from out of town, including grand jurors, petit jurors, solicitors and witnesses. They were in town for a considerable time and there were very few of them, not even excepting the prominent counsel present that did not climb Armour's Hill. They were all, of course, greatly struck with the magnitude of the work, many of whom previous to their visit to the scene had not the slightest conception of what a lift lock was like.

BAY OF QUINTE EARLY SETTLERS.

The Rogers Family Among the Pioneer Settlers.

COLONEL JAMES ROGERS.

His Descendants Well Represented in Peterborough—Interesting Details of Early Settlement.

The following interesting sketch, written by Mr. T. W. Casey, Napanee, is taken from the Napanee Beaver. The Col. James Rogers, whose history is dealt with, was great grandfather of Col. H. C. Rogers, Postmaster, Col. J. Z. Rogers and Mr. R. B. Rogers, and the David McGregor Rogers mentioned was their great grandfather. The district referred to as the Bay of Quinte District, generally includes the present townships of Adolphustown and North and South Fredericksburgh.

The most prominent man among the pioneer settlers in the Township of Fredericksburg, in 1784, was Col. Jas. Rogers, who was in reality the leader of those who first settled in West Township. Just on what lot he located we do not know. If any reader of these lines can supply the information, it will be gladly received. He has no descendants now remaining in this county that we are aware of, and any facts in regard to him and his family are difficult to obtain here. It does not seem just, however, to the memory of one who occupied a position as prominent as his, that more should not be known of him. Col. Rogers and Col. Crawford were the prominent officers during the war of men of the King's and Queen's Rangers, who principally were the first settlers of Fredericksburg.

Among the memorial tablets on the walls of St. Alban's U.E.L. church at Adolphustown are two with the following inscriptions;

"Col. Jas. Rogers, of King's Rangers, died in Fredericksburgh, in Sept. 1790, aged 63 years."

"Col. Wm. Crawford, of Royal Rangers, died in Third Town, U.E.L."

It will be seen that, by the date of Col. Roger's death, he did not live long—about six years—after his settlement in this county. That fact may largely account for it that so little appears to be known of him in the early records of the township.

In the old U.E.L. list preserved in the Crown Lands Department, in Toronto, are the following brief records;

"Rogers, Col. James, Marysburgh and Sophiasburgh, S.G. Major, Commandant, P o is on List, (Government) 1783."

"Rogers, James, Marysburgh and Sophiasburgh. Son of Major James, King's Rangers, P.L., 1786."

"Rogers, David M., Marysburgh and Sophiasburgh, son of Major James, King's Rangers, P.L., 1786."

The David M. referred to here was

DAVID McGREGOR ROGERS

Who was for many years a member of the old Upper Canada Legislature, of whom reference has several times been made in these columns at previous times. He was first elected to represent Adolphustown and Prince Edward county—then one electoral district—in the Second Parliament, in 1797. In the Third Parliament he was elected for Prince Edward, a part of Hastings and Northumberland; Adolphustown having by that time been united to Lennox and Addington for political purposes. He continued to be a member of the Legislature until the time of his death, in 1824. He was therefore twenty-seven years a member, the longest of any one person of the old Upper Canada Parliament. In connection with him may be given the following verbatum extract from the official records of the Votes and Proceedings of the House of Assembly in 1801. It shows somewhat the quaint and formal manner in which the business was transacted at that time. After the report of the Lieut.-Governor's Speech from the throne, the report is as follows;

"David M. Rogers, Esquire, Knight, representing the counties of Hastings and Northumberland, stood up, and addressing himself to the Clerk, (who standing up, pointed to him and then sat down) proposed to the House, for their Speaker, the Honourable D.W. Smith, Esquire, in which motion he was seconded by the Hon. Henry Allcock, Esquire, one of the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, Knight, representing the Counties of Durham, Simcoe, and the East Riding of York." The motion was carried and the Speaker made the usual speech of "gratitude for the honour and thereon sat down in the chair."

David McGregor Rogers first lived at what was then known as "Little Lake," perhaps the Consecon Lake of to-day. Later he moved into Northumberland county, near Grafton, where we understand that a number of his descendents are among the well known residents of to-day. It is said that Col Rogers, being an officer, was entitled to a government grant of 1,200 acres of land. His sons were also entitled to large grants. There was not enough remaining land in Fredericksburgh to supply these grants, after each family of the Rangers had received a homestead, and it was therefore necessary to supply grants located in Prince Edward and Northumberland. That fact may account for David M. Roger's location, where he lived and died.

The writer is indebted to Lieut.-Col. H.C. Rogers, Peterborough, for an interesting copy of a paper by Walter Rogers, Esq., B.A., Barrister, Inner Temple, London, Eng., and read before the United Empire Loyalists' Association, at Toronto, from which a number of the facts herein contained have been gleaned. Here is an extract from that paper; "David McGregor Rogers seems to have been a man of considerable force of character, uniting as he did the blood of his soldier father with that of the Highland outlaws, which he owed to his mother, whose name he bore as a part of his own. On one occasion he is said to have slain a wolf, the marauding tyrant of the district, with his oaken walking stick. As a lad he had taken part in the migration, and upon his return to St. John's years afterwards, he was invested with the dignity of an honourary chieftainship by the local Indians. He died at Grafton, Ontario, in 1824, while still a member of the House of Assembly."

COL. JAMES ROGERS.

From the same paper we take also the following extract; "The founder of my own family in Upper Canada was Col. James Rogers. During the Revolutionary war he had served for five years as commandant of a corps known as the King's Rangers, which, during, that time, formed part of the garrison of St. John's, Quebec. This post commanded the northern outlet of the great waterway which connects the valley of the Hudson with that of the St. Lawrence. At the peace he settled with some two hundred of his disbanded soldiers upon the shores of the Bay of Quinte, he and his followers occupying what is known as the township of Fredericksburgh, as well as a part of Adolphustown.

ABOUT FREDERICKSBURGH.

How Fredericksburgh came to be settled and how it has come that a large slice of Adolphustown was added to that municipality is, no doubt, known to many, but for the information of some others, the following extracts from Dr. Canniff's excellent history may be of interest. He writes; "The early settlers sometimes called it the "Township of Frederick." It was called after Augustus Frederick, the Duke of Sussex, ninth child of King George III. According to the original plan of this township, preserved in the Crown Land's Department, it was surveyed in 1784. The limits of the Second town (Ernestown) having been defined, the Third, Fredericksburgh, was also planned. Having fixed the base line which formed a slight angle with that of the Second town, over the width of twenty-five lots, it was at first the intention to limit the township to this extent of frontage; and the lots were consequently completed and numbered from west to east, as had been done with the first two townships. But it turned out that this would not meet the requirements of Sir John Johnson's disbanded soldiers, (of whom Jas. Rogers was a Colonel,) to whom a promise had been made that they should be located in a township by themselves. The result was that the wishes of the corps were gratified, and the township was enlarged to the extent of thirteen additional lots, taken from Adolphustown, which the map will show are numbered from east to west, and which indicates that the lots were completely surveyed before they were numbered. That portion of the Third town included in the portion first numbered, received the name of Fredericksburgh Original, and that subsequently added was called Fredericksburgh Additional."

And so it came about that in order to make room for Roger's men in one township that Fredericksburgh contains over 40,000 acres, and Adolphustown a little over 11,000. It thus comes about that Fredericksburgh—since divided into two townships, contains two sets of lots, from No. 1 to 11, numbered in opposite directions, from the west base line of the originally surveyed township.

IS DEAFNESS CURABLE?

The article we published on this subject about a week ago has excited so much comment and has brought us so many inquiries from our readers who are anxious to know where they can obtain particulars of the new treatment for Deafness that we are obliged to remind the public that the last number of the "Journal for the Deaf," contains a complete description of the Drouet Treatment, and particulars of some 200 cases recently cured. A free copy of "The Journal for the Deaf" can be obtained free by addressing the secretary of the Drouet Institute, 72 Regent's Park Road, London, England. This Journal is always accompanied by a pathological report form which enables each patient to describe his case so clearly that the consulting surgeon can send accurate information of the treatment necessary to effect a cure.

ROYALTY IS AT BANFF

Here the Duchess Will Stay at C.P.R. Hotel.

DUKE WILL SHOOT IN MANITOBA

Names of Those Who Will Compose the Shooting Party at Poplar Point, Man.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Will Not Shoot, But Will Wait at Winnipeg for the Royal Party—Sir Claude Macdonald.

Banff, N.W.T., Oct. 5.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall arrived here from Vancouver at 3.30 o'clock yesterday, and at 10 o'clock last night the Duke left for Poplar Point, Manitoba, where he goes for two days' hunting on the place of Senator Kirchhoffer.

The Duke was accompanied by Prince Alexander of Teck, the Duke of Roxburghe, Viscount Crichton, Lord Wenlock, Sir Charles Cust, Hon. Derek Keppel, Commander Faussett, R.N., Col. Percy Sherwood, Major S. F. Maude, Major Borand and Capt. Graham.

The private car of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was attached to the Duke's special, but the Premier will not go shooting. He is to wait at Winnipeg for the royal party. The Duchess and the rest of the party are to remain here until Sunday afternoon. To-day the Duchess of Cornwall and the Countess of Minto go by special train to Laggan, and from there drive to Lake Louise.

The royal party enjoyed the ride through the mountains from the coast, and cow-catcher riding was a popular sport.

Shortly after their arrival here yesterday the Duke and Duchess drove to Banff National Park and saw the herd of buffalo. Later they dined at Banff Hotel. While the royal party were out there, Sir Claude Macdonald, now British Minister to Japan, and who was British Minister to China during the siege of Pekin, in 1900, met them and was presented to the Duke. The two walked up and down the platform at the station during the entire stop of the train and engaged in earnest conversation.

When the Duke Leaves.

Halifax, Oct. 5.—From an official source it is learned that the Duke of York will not leave Halifax until 9.30 o'clock on the morning of October 21. It was originally intended that the Ophir should sail at daylight.

Duke Will See Gold Rivet.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—It is the intention of the Grand Trunk authorities to have the royal train, when it passes through the Victoria bridge, on its return from the west, stop at the central arch to allow the Duke and Duchess to inspect the gold rivet which King Edward, then Prince of Wales, put in place in 1860 on the occasion of his visit to Montreal.

DEPARTMENT REPLIES.

Complaint of "C" Battery re Deferred Pay Answered From Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—The Department of Militia has authorized the statement in regard to the complaints of "C" Battery about their pay in South Africa.

This is an old subject. The pay of the men serving in the Mounted Rifles and Artillery was fixed at 75 cents per diem. The Canadian rate was adopted for them. The British pay was to be supplemented to make the amount equal to the Canadian pay. The men of "C" Battery got Rhodesian pay, or $1.32 per day, while their comrades of "D" and "E" Batteries received only 29 cents. These amounts were paid the War Office. The matter was referred to the Justice Department here and it was decided that there was no parliamentary authority to give to "C" Battery "deferred pay" which the statute provided for, as they had received more than the 75 cents which was arranged for. As to the war gratuity, the department is paying for the Imperial Government. If the men do not parade to receive their medals no one will be injured but themselves, because they will be deprived of the honor of receiving these medals from the hands of H. R. H. the Duke of Cornwall.

Won't Let the Matter Drop.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—The Montreal Harbor Commissioners, despite the fact that Mr. Tarte has declined to investigate the matter, do not intend to let the charge made by the Minister that the Board was offered $20,000 to hurry through the Jamieson elevator contract, fall to the ground.

The matter was discussed at a meeting of the Harbor Board yesterday, and it was decided to request Mr. Jamieson to appear before the Board on Monday to tell what he knows of the matter.

BRITISH COLUMBIA CRISIS.

The Defeated Minister Has Handed in His Resignation.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 5.—Mr. Brown, the newly apoointed Minister who was recently defeated in New Westminster, has placed his resignation in the hands of Premier Dunsmuir, who, however, has not yet accepted it. Mr. Prentice is acting Provincial Secretary and Minister of Education. Premier Dunsmuir's own resignation was looked for yesterday, but no official statement on the subject has been made.

A New Departure.

A New, Effectual and Convenient Cure for Catarrh.

Of catarrh remedies there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies to relieve, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water through the nose would often relieve and the washes, douches, powders and inhalers in common use are very little, if any, better than the old fashioned salt water douche.

The use of inhalers and the application of salves, washes and powders to the nose and throat to cure catarrh is no more reasonable than to rub the back to cure kidney disease. Catarrh is just as much a blood disease as kidney trouble or rheumatism and it cannot be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

To cure catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach an internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to drive the catarrhal poison out of the blood and system, and the new catarrh cure is designed on this plan and the remarkable success of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is because being used internally it drives out catarrhal infection through action upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman of St. Joseph, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrh sufferers everywhere. He says:—"I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchitai tubes and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but as I was able to keep up and do a day's work I let it run along until my hearing began to fail me and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh or lose my position as I was clerk and my hearing was absolutely necessary.

"Some of my friends recommended an inhaler, another a catarrh salve but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and bought a package at my drug store. They benefitted me from the start and in less than four months I was completely cured of catarrh although I had suffered nearly all my life from it.

"They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies that I feel I cannot say enough in favour of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

A little book on cause and cure of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and the tablets are sold by all druggists in the United States and Canada.

America's Earliest Map.

Berlin, Oct. 5.—There have just been found in the historic Castle of Wolfegg, Wurtemberg, the first maps that contain the name and geographical outlines of America.

The maps bear respectively the dates 1507 and 1516, and are stated to be in a remarkable state of preservation. The first, it is believed, was drawn under the personal supervision of Columbus.

VOICES.

When bloodroot blooms and trillium flowers
Unclasp their stars to sun and rain,
My heart stirs to the woods with winds and showers
And wanders in the woods again.

Oh, [illegible] of spring,
[illegible] of my soul,
No bird [illegible] wing,
No stave important or control!

Impetuous oil pulse it beats
Within my blood and bears me hence;
Above the brown logs and the sweets
I hear the happy eloquence.

It tells me all that I would know,
Of birds and buds, of blooms and bees;
I seem to hear the blossoms blow
And leaves unfolding on the trees.

I seem to hear the bluebells ring
Faint purple peals of fragrance and
The honey throated poppies fling
Their golden laughter o'er the land.

It calls to me; it pleads to me;
I hear its far voice night and day;
I cannot choose but go when free
And flower clamor, "Come away!"
—Madison Cawein in "Woods by the Wall."

Hunted Down

BY M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

I was putting in a month in a Swiss town, and as I was strolling along the highway in the suburbs one day a vehicle containing a single traveler appeared. The driver pulled up that the traveler might ask if he could find accommodations at some chalet instead of at the hotel, as he was not in good health and wanted quietness. I was lodging at a private house, and there was room for another guest. The stranger was driven on, and I sat down on a rock to sum him up. Having come from the west in a country vehicle, he must have come from beyond the railroad station. The horse looked weary, the hour was 4 in the afternoon, and I settled it that he must have come from Thalia, 15 miles away. The man wore a hat which did not fit him and had the collar of his coat turned up. He had on goggles, though it was a dark day. A person who wears goggles for weak eyes will carry a finger to one of the glasses every two or three minutes, even if he does not remove them occasionally. On this man's face was a newly grown beard about an inch long. Every 30 seconds up went his hand to scratch. He was not used to a beard, but had grown one for an object. He thickened his voice when he spoke to me, and it was easy to detect the unnatural intonation. Why did he do it? Travelers searching for health are seldom to be met with in the mountains except in early summer, and this was late in the season. He might explain, however. Mr. Braceby, as he had given his name, probably had more reasons for seclusion than he had stated, and I had a curiosity to observe him further.

He was taken in at the chalet, and that night we ate supper together. I saw from his table manners that he had been used to the quick lunches of a restaurant. He claimed to be an Englishman, but his American idioms would have given him away to a child.

WAS SMOKING ON THE VERANDA.

The heels of his boots, as I observed, were very true. He was therefore a man who did little walking. He had the curve of shoulders and neck which come to one who sits a great deal. Now and then he leaned back and locked his fingers, as most public officials do when a caller enters. He claimed to have nervous trouble. That was or was not a good excuse for his presence. A door slammed, and he jumped. That showed nerves. The diligence rattled past on its way from the railroad station to the big hotel, and Mr. Braceby slyly and furtively peered out of the window. That was the action of a fugitive from justice.

In the course of four or five days I had the stranger sized up to a dot and would have bet five to one that my diagnosis was positively correct. He was a straight haired American. He was a public official. It was his first time abroad. He was in disguise and a fugitive. Whatever boodle he had with him was in his undershirt pocket. I knew this because he was constantly raising his hand to the spot. That boodle was probably in drafts, as he made cautious inquiries about bankers. Mr. Braceby removed his goggles and turned down his coat collar and spoke in natural tones after he got installed, but he did not wander far from the house and sought no other company. He asked for no papers, but when I bought copies of a New York daily at the hotel and took them home to read he could scarcely control his impatience until he had his hands on them.

I am no man hunter. I did not go to the police or drop a hint to any one. Of whatever crime he was guilty, he was safe from me. I knew it wasn't murder unless done in the heat of passion, for he was sentimental and tender hearted. I think it was on the fifth day of his stay that he became feverish and called in a doctor and went to bed mentally sorry, too wise. I had [illegible] per and was smoking my pipe on the little veranda when I saw a stranger coming up the path from the hotel. From his gait I judged him to be an American. From the way he furtively eyed the chalet and its surroundings I reasoned that he had other business than seeking for lodgings. As he came to a halt and looked me over he gave himself away as a detective. He had taken me for the man he wanted, and chagrin showed clearly on his face. He was from a western state and on the trail of a defaulting city treasurer. It was queer enough that he didn't ask if there was another traveler in the house. He took it for granted that I was the only one, and he told me the whole story of Braceby's theft and flight. My diagnosis had been positively correct. There was the man under his thumb. He had followed him for three months and had only to climb a flight of 11 steps to lay hands on him, but it never happened. I was mum. I was not interested in the case beyond proving my observations. He talked for two hours and then went away, saying that he should hang about for a few days. Half an hour after his going it was discovered that Braceby was missing. His bedroom window was over the veranda, and he had heard all.

When three days had passed and no trace of the missing man had been had, he was given away to the detective by one of the town officials. He had left the chalet lightly clad, without food or baggage and in a fever, and the idea was that he had lost himself on the mountains and would perish if not found. Parties were sent out in search, and it was not long before evidences were found. When the fugitive discovered that he had been hunted down and was about to be arrested for his crime, there was nothing left for him but to take to the mountains and find a temporary covert until he could plan a little. Being ill, without food and thinly clad, he could not keep his life over two or three days. In the gloom of that first night he had traveled nearly two miles, making up the mountains by a path. Then he had wandered from the path and fallen over a bank 30 feet high into a stream. The rushing waters had carried him down a mile or more, and they found his dead body wedged between two great rocks.

When the coroner overhauled the effects found on the body, there came to light $5,000 in English money and drafts for nearly $200,000 more. His name was not Braceby, of course, but as the city treasurer of a town in the west he had gobbled its last dollar and fled to enjoy his ill gotten gains on the other side of the ocean. He had not spent a thousand dollars as yet or taken a moment's comfort. He had too much conscience and not enough nerve. If he had got safely away, he would never have enjoyed himself. As I looked down on his dead body and thought of his shattered and disgraced life I felt something more than a passing sorrow. As I helped carry the bruised and battered corpse down to the townhouse for inquest and burial I found tears in my eyes and pity in my heart.

"You Are So Slow."

If the woman at work should make answer to the other woman, she might, perhaps, say: "You never had to scrub and clean when your back ached so that it seemed that every movement would break it in two." It's bad enough for a woman to suffer. But when she must suffer and slave at the same time she reaches the limit of her endurance.

Weak women who have been made strong by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, recommend it to others as a godsend. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I have been ailing some time now, being troubled with female weakness," writes Mrs. Wm. H. Johnson, of Avondale, Chester Co., Pa. "Every month I would have to lie on my back. I tried many different medicines and nothing gave me relief until I began Dr. Pierce's medicines, using two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' These medicines have cured me. When I began your treatment I was not able to do very much, but now I do the work for my family of nine, and feel better to-day than I have for a year."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache. They do not create the pill habit.

Manila In 1586.

Manila is well planted and inhabited with Spaniards to the number of 600 or 700 persons, which dwell in a town unwalled, which hath three or four small blockhouses, part made of wood and part of stone, being indeed of no great strength. They have one or two small galleys belonging to the town. It is a very rich place, of gold and other commodities, and they have yearly traffic from Acapulco in Nueva Espana and also 20 or 30 ships from China and from the Sanguelos (people from Sanga, in Japan), which bring them many sorts of merchandise. The merchants of China and the Sanguelos are part Moors and part heathen people. They bring great store of gold with them, which they traffic and exchange for silver and give weight for weight.

These Sanguelos are men of marvelous capacity in devising and making all manner of things, especially in all handicrafts and sciences, and every one is so expert, perfect and skillful in his faculty, as few or no Christians are able to go beyond them in that which they take in hand. For drawing and embroidering upon satin, silk or lawn, either beast, fowl, fish or worm, for liveliness and perfectness both in silk, silver, gold and pearl, they excel.—"Cavendish, First Voyage."

Hunger and Ideas.

If you wish to increase your imaginative powers, says a scientist, go without food. Abstinence from food till the pangs of hunger make themselves distinctly felt will quicken your mental powers and stimulate the flow of ideas, such ideas being of a kind that agree with the regular bent of your mind.

This seems to offer good prospects not only to literary men, but also to machine makers and all those who are on the watch for some improvement or invention that will revolutionize some industry. But you must be careful or you will overdo it. Prolonged fasting, according to the same authority, creates a desire to commit some horrible crime, makes you wild and cruel. The prolonged faster becomes a prey to hallucinations, is unable to sleep and likely to go mad. In short, abstinence from food for long periods—and "long periods" is a term that varies with the individual—induces the same effects as drunkenness.

Cooking Vegetables.

A cooking teacher's directions for boiling vegetables, even onion, cabbage or cauliflower, without filling the house with an unpleasant smell, are to cover the vegetables with boiling salted water and stand the kettle aside, where they cannot boil rapidly again, until tender. It is the steam, according to this authority, that is driven off by rapid boiling that carries away not only the odor but the flavor of vegetables.

The Nervous System

Each organ of the body is of great importance, otherwise a wise Creator would have omitted it. Of no less importance is the great network of nerves running all through the body. They all connect with the brain, which is a central office or bureau of information. Is there inflamation in some part of the body? The nerves convey the news to the brain and the pain caused by irritation of the nerves is located. If there is a weakness in any part of the body or some organ is being overtaxed, the nerves convey the news. Symptoms manifested by the nerves are sleeplessness, headache irritability, nervousness, dizziness, forgetfulness, dispondency, lack of muscular control, and general loss of tone and debility. What's the cure? Not stimulants, for they only intensify the exhausted condition and result in harmful after-effects. Not opiates which only stupify and hide the danger signal, but Merrill's System Tonic which soothes the irritated condition of the nerves, feed and reconstruct the fast decaying sensibility and then by its general curative action on the different organs of the body, bring the general health back to its normal condition. System Tonic is an honest medicine, doing good in nearly every instance and doing harm in none. Its chief aim is to build up and strengthen each organ in the body and nature can and will then restore perfect health.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S SPECIAL SESSION.

repair throughout the entire length, whether in the village or in the country.

Reeve Adams wanted the council to memoralize the Legislature to amend the Act to the end that the villages might benefit.

County Councillor Pearce showed that the Act already provided for the villages, as a moment before stated by Reeve Garbutt. He did not think that the ratepayers would pass the bylaw if it was submitted to them, although he was, himself, in favour of it. The Reeves of the townships had been asked to come and talk the matter over in an endeavour to find out just what the people wanted. The county of Hastings had assumed the leading roads some years ago and the system was found to work to perfection.

Messrs. Elliott and Garbutt moved that, the deputation asks the county council to submit a bylaw to the ratepayers asking the county to assume certain roads, as designated by the county council.

In speaking to the motion Reeve Garbutt expressed the opinion that much time was being lost in working in the rut of statute labour and the time was opportune to see what the people as a whole thought of it.

County Councillor Peck stated that there was no necessity of such a bylaw being submitted to the ratepayers. That was the alternative provided the municipalities objected to the roads the County designated. He thought that the bylaw might be prepared and submitted to the councils of the municipalities, and if they agreed with its provisions, a great many dollars would be saved through not having to call for a ballot of the ratepayers.

Councillor Elliott agreed to change his motion to read in accordance with the suggestion of Mr. Peck.

The motion was then put to the deputation as follows and carried:

"We recommend that the County Council designate by bylaw the highways to be improved in the County of Peterborough, under the 'Act for the Improvement of Public Highways,' and that a copy of the bylaw be transmitted pursuant to the Act to the Clerk of each municipality."

Reeve T. E. Bradburn, of North Monaghan, suggested that arrangements be made to have Mr. Campbell, Good Roads Commissioner, give the people a number of talks on road-building.

County Councillor Dr. Jeff's idea was to the effect that Peterborough should represent the hub of the county, and the roads assumed should be those running out to the various villages, which would then be extended beyond. All this would take some time, and deputations should go around addressing meetings as well as Mr. Campbell, educating the people up to the requirements of the day in road building.

County Constable Pearce asked the members of the deputation to suggest the various roads in the different municipalities which the County should take over.

Reeve Garbutt mentioned three roads in Smith — the River Road, from Lakefield to Peterborough, 10 miles; the Buckhorn Road, 12 miles, and the Chemong Road, 7 miles; in all 29 miles.

Councillor Deyell, of Otonabee, stated that all the roads in that Township were leading roads, and it was therefore difficult to specify which ones were the most important. There was the Wallace's Point road, 12 miles; the road to the Bensfort bridge, 7 miles; the Keene road, 12 miles; then on to Westwood, 10 miles; and the Norwood road, 10 miles. This made 51 miles altogether.

Reeve Andrews, of Asphodel, spoke of the six miles of the Hastings road, and the other road to Norwood, 10 miles; as well as the boundary road between Asphodel and Dummer, 10 miles; and the road from Norwood to Hastings, 6 miles. Total, 32 miles.

Reeve Moloney, of Douro, referred to the North Douro road, 7 miles; the boundary between Douro and Otonabee, 10 miles; the Warsaw road, 14 miles; the Ashburnham and Lakefield road, 10 miles; Lakefield to Young's Point, 5 miles; Lakefield to Warsaw, 9 miles and the stage road south from Warsaw past the Douro Post Office, 4 miles. Total 39 miles.

Reeve Doran, of Ennismore, was modest in his demands, the roadways in that township which he suggested that the county assume totalled 28 miles, as follows: — From the Mud Lake bridge to the Pigeon Creek bridge, 8 miles; from the Mud Lake bridge to Gannon's Narrows, 12 miles, and along the 8th concession to Emily, 8 miles.

Reeve Bradburn claimed that he could not pick one road above another in importance in his municipality. He suggested that the county councillors take a map and work out their ideas themselves concerning which were the leading roads of the county. No one travelled through the county more than the Warden, and he should have a pretty fair idea of which were the most important highways.

Dr. Jeffs in speaking of Belmont mentioned the Marmora road and spoke of the tremendous amount of work being done at the Cordova Mines, the output being now valued at $25,000 per month.

The discussion then swung around to the cost of constructing highways, concerning which opinions differed.

Councillor Elliott, of Smith, stated that crushed stone could be put on a road at a cost of $250 per mile.

Reeve Adams thought $500 per mile should build a good road.

County Councillor Pearce remarked that he had interviewed an expert road maker from Hastings county, and he placed the cost at $1,500 per mile. This was a conservative estimate. The great cost was in the proper drainage of the road.

Mr. Elliott told the North Monaghan delegates that they made a mistake in draining their roads down the middle. It involved tearing up the entire roadway for repairs. The cost was far less to drain along the sides. He thought Mr. Pearce's figures were away too high. He had built a piece of road recently for a quarter of a mile through a cedar swamp. It was better than many of Peterborough's streets and yet only cost $150.

Coming back to the matter of the bylaw, County Councillor Peck suggested that, at the January meeting, the council draft a bylaw and consult with the township councils as to the various roads to be chosen. It would take several meetings of the council to get the bylaw into such shape as to be satisfactory to all, but the work would then be done thoroughly.

It was then moved by County Councillors Pearce and Peck that, whereas, it is proposed at the next meeting of this council to pass a bylaw to designate the highways, in this county, to be improved, pursuant to the Act for the improvement of public highways, this council respectfully requests each local municipal council to pass a resolution recommending the highways in their district, which they wish the county to assume as county roads.—Carried.

The passage of this resolution ended the discussion and the deputation by this time fully realized the responsibility which the County Councillors would assume in apportioning the grant equitably throughout the County, as the five townships, the representatives of which estimated the length of the roads which they would like the county to assume, aggregated 200 miles, without taking into consideration the other Townships. As, according to Mr. Pearce's estimate, only 60 miles of road can be properly built, it can be seen that the task of choosing the roads to be benefitted is to be no easy one.

CHAPTER IV.

When we landed in Cape Town, in the very midst of the dreaded Tse Tse fly and other annoying insects, the very first thing we did was to crop off the foretop close to the skull, shear off the mane except a small tuft to be used in mounting and dismounting, and lastly cut off their tail quite short, thus depriving them of the only means of warding off the invaders, and securing a moment's sweet rest. Poor things! They were on active service now, and like their riders, must humbly submit to the folly of all commissioned individuals. If they, like Baalam's Ass, had been endowed with the power of speech, they might easily have issued orders in which there was more reason and good common sense, than in those which were so carefully carried out, having emanated from the pompous and self-sufficient officers in command. Perhaps the individual, who, in his marvellous wisdom, issued orders to this effect, considered the overplus of tail unnecessary and useless burden to the horse, and not caring to impose a greater burden than was absolutely necessary, he decided to deprive them of their tails; or possibly he believed the incessant switching of the tail would be a useless waste of energy, and when the horse's efforts in this way failed to remove a fly, he would cease from further exertions, and the energy thus saved would enable him to travel much further in a day and eat emergency rations with greater avidity. The Canadian horses were eulogized on every side in Cape Town, and not a few pronounced them the finest that had been landed, notwithstanding the fact that England's best cavalry and artillery horses had long before gone up to the front. Those who selected our mounts are worthy of a word of praise, for their skill in detecting imperfections.

The days came and went with but little change in the routine of duties. We had improved every opportunity of growing familiar with the city, and while at the zenith of our revelry, unexpectedly received marching orders for Quebec. Our short sojourn in Montreal had been one of combined interest and pleasure, and although we were anxious to move on towards the front, yet it was with great reluctance we severed the happy bonds that so closely bound us to the kind citizens, and bade them a long farewell. Our departure was not permitted to pass unobserved. His Worship the Mayor, accompanied by his worthy aldermen, entered the drill hall about 9.30 p.m. and made a most flattering address, in which he praised the men, eulogized their bravery and motive for going to the front, wished them God-speed and a safe return. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, and as we mingled with them, buttons were being "swiped" or exchanged for ladies' hat pins. At 10.30 we had assembled in heavy marching order, and paraded, with a large military escort, to Bonaventure railway station, where we entrained for Quebec. It was storming heavily when we left the shed and had been for some time previous. The large snow flakes fell softly upon the thousands of patriotic citizens who thronged the line of march and cheered vociferously as we slowly tramped along. Street car service had been temporarily suspended. The crowd was so dense and enthusiastic we were obliged to link arms to retain our position in the formation of fours. There were as many civilians in the parade as military men before we had gone far, and the pandemonium along the streets completely drowned the martial airs of the seven or eight bands in the procession. When we reached the station there was a scene—the crowd literally picked us up and carried us up the steps, through the spacious corridors and along the extensive platform. It was with difficulty we could extricate ourselves from the arm-locked position we had assumed. Many of the spectators were more of less injured and will not soon forget the night Johnny Canuck left Montreal. I entered the car with promptitude and found sweet rest, while many of my comrades were being bounced and jostled on the platform. The crowd on that platform would madly rush one way and in an instant it would be in the opposite direction. I raised the window to behold the manoeuvres, and two gentlemen standing on the platform near by began to converse with me. From the indistinct articulation of the first speaker and his odiferous breath I knew at once that he had been too intimate with John Barleycorn. J.B. is a wonderful fellow in cold weather he makes you warm and in warm weather he makes you cold; he drowns sorrow and dispels dull care; he makes the foolish wise and the wise foolish; he ruins many homes, yet makes palatial mansions out of others; but of all things when John is in wisdom is out. My conversative friend desired to give me his card, but after a very close search, during which several pockets were turned inside out, he gave it up as a bad job, being unable to find one. Then the thought entered his benumbed brain to write one, but he experienced trouble in procuring some paper and a lead pencil. At last he secured all the writing necessaries, and taking a lean against the car he endeavoured to write his own name. Sometimes he would be lavishly hugging the car, and if it hadn't been for the crowd befing him I don't know where he would have landed. He evidently had almost lost his centre of gravity, and frequently would curse everybody for disturbing him and spoiling his penmanship. No wonder: no man could write with such unruly profs around him. He had made several heroic attempts at getting that name on paper, but without success, at least none were satisfactory. His friend, who was just as drunk, observing what a fizzle was being made of the address, grew impatient, and implored the writer to let him have a trial at it, but his entreaties availed nothing. Finally, after a long time, in which the friends grew angry, and almost became enemies, the card with the address was was given me with a most courteous bow. I looked at it enquiringly, for a few moments, not knowing whether it was was a prize puzzle, a conundrum, or a mixture of hieroglyphics and Chinese. My friend enquired if I could read it, but I hesitated in making a reply, so he undertook to tell me verbally what he had written, or in other words solve the prize problem that lay before me. The penmanship was illegible, and his speech equally unintelligible, but believing he desired me to correspond with him, I assured him I would write but as a matter of fact I never did. In the midst of all this confusion and excitement we steamed out for Levis, opposite Quebec, at 11 a.m. The storm continued unabated, and with little indications of improvement.

Digestion Without a Stomach.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy active, and vigorous, and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

THE BOYS IN RED.

The Remaining Companies Inspected Last Night by Lt.-Col. Henning.

The remaining three companies of the 57th Regiment, consisting of Nos. 4, 5 and 6, underwent company inspection last night before Lieut.-Col. Henning. There was a very fair turn out and the boys acquitted themselves with much credit. The Regimental inspection will take place in Toronto on Wednesday next. The Regiment is recruited up pretty well and is in splendid condition. As the time for the Toronto trip draws near, the men are becoming very enthusiastic. The absence of light during the past week or so, particularly during the past few nights, has been a source of much inconvenience to the Regiment.

It is said that the officers have been offered quarters in the new wing of the Central Prison while in Toronto.

AUTUMN RHEUMATISM CUTS OFF THOUSANDS OF VICTIMS.

Paine's Celery Compound

BANISHES PAIN AND AGONY AND CURES PERMANENTLY.

A Long-Standing Case Cured After Use of Three Bottles of the Marvellous Compound.

Why suffer the excruciating pains of rheumatism and allow yourself to become crippled and useless when thousands of others are banishing the terrors of the disease by the use of Paine's Celery Compound?

The wonderful cures effected by Paine's Celery Compound for almost incurable sufferers must be known to you. Your friends and neighbours can tell you of many rescues from suffering and death after use of the great compound. Your physician, if he is honest with you, will recommend its use. Past failures with other medicines should not utterly discourage you or cause you to think that Paine's Celery Compound is no better than the many medicines you have tried.

Paine's Celery Compound is the true and only specific for every form of rheumatism; it cannot disappoint you if you give it a trial. Do not allow any dealer to suggest a substitute for Paine's Celery Compound. Substituting is practiced by dishonest dealers for the reason that other medicines pay larger profits than Paine's Celery Compound. Mrs. Elizabeth King, Cedar Hill, Victoria, B. C., says:—

"I have been troubled with rheumatism all my life, and about eight years ago I had a very severe attack, almost losing the use of my right arm. A friend recommended the use of Paine's Celery Compound, and kindly gave me a bottle. I was so much benefitted by that one bottle that I took three more, and was quite cured. Since then it has been almost my only medicine for all the ailments that I experience from time to time, and all my family have found some benefit from it. I am sixty-five years of age, I live on a farm, get up early in the morning, and am equal to a good day's work."

BRING A FLASK ALONG WITH YOU

It has not yet been made part of the game laws—although it will be much more sensible than some of them and less liable to infraction—to bring a flask along when you go hunting. Every good hunter knows, however, how necessary it is in an emergency, being a small medicine chest in itself.

Don't think that because the prices of our Whiskies, Brandies and Wines are moderate that there is anything wrong with the quality. We not only give you quality that is beyond suspicion, but we save you considerable on every purchase you make.

BULLET IN HIS BRAIN

Allan Gibbons of London Shoots Himself in Toronto.

RAILWAY CROSSING'S VICTIMS

Mrs. George Symonds and Her Daughter Killed by International Limited at Lancaster—A Merritton Man's Death at Niagara Falls—Drowned in a Gale—Fatal Slip From a Train.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—Allan Gibbons, the 17-year-old son of Mr. George C. Gibbons, K. C., of London, died early yesterday morning at the Emergency Hospital under such circumstances as to warrant Coroner N. A. Powell in communicating the facts to Crown Attorney Dewart. The cause of death was a bullet wound through the head inflicted by himself, but whether by accident or with suicidal intent is not known. Friends of the young man stick to the theory that he was probably handling the revolver, and that it exploded accidentally.

The physicians who were in attendance say there were no powder marks on the lad's face, showing that the pistol must have been held at least a foot from him. If he had intended to end his life they say he would have placed the barrel against his head. On the other hand there is a strong suspicion that the young man committed suicide.

The police have in their possession a circular which was found torn up in the room occupied by the young man, and which, they say, may explain why Gibbons would want to take his life.

This note was addressed to "Neophyte," and was written in green ink, bearing the insignia of the Alpha Delta Phi Greek Fraternal Society, carried on by students of Toronto University. It read: "Be at southeast corner of St. George and Dupont streets on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 5, at half-past 7 o'clock, and there await a summons. Fail not in this, and mention not this notice." The note was not signed, nor was it dated.

Gibbons was taken to the hospital in the police ambulance about 10 o'clock on Saturday night by Policeman Thomas Bastard. He was removed from the home of Mrs. Glass at 56 Murray street, where he had apartments, and where he had been discovered in an unconscious condition by some members of the Alpha Delta Phi, who had called to see him. They rapped at the door, and getting no response, one of the party climbed through the transom. Gibbons was found lying across the bed with his head in a pool of blood which flowed from a wound in the right temple. One arm hung over the edge of the bed and within a few inches of the hand was a 32-calibre hammerless Iver-Johnston revolver.

Mr. George C. Gibbons, father of the young man, reached the city on a special train from London at 4.30 a. m., and was present at the bedside when his son expired. The dead lad is survived by his parents, three sisters and one brother. Many visits were paid by him to the Alpha Delta Phi Chapel at 43 Murray street during his short stay in Toronto, but in an interview one of the young men high up in the order said it was utterly absurd to think that Gibbons committeed suicide through a dread of the initiation proceedings. On the suggestion that there might be an investigation into the circumstances leading up to the death of young Gibbons, he observed: "The boy's father is satisfied that there was nothing wrong and it is nobody else's business."

A Probable Suicide.

Guelph, Oct. 7.—A very sad fatality occurred at Acton station yesterday morning, the indications of which point to suicide. Rev. H. A. McPherson was walking back on the track to the station, when he came upon the decapitated body of a man, with arms crossed, lying on one side of the outer rails, and the head on the inner side of the rail. He recognized it as that of Mr. Fred. Glebe, miller.

It would seem, from the position in which the body was found, that the unfortunate man had fallen across the rail, or had deliberately laid his head across the rail behind the tender wheels, and in front of the baggage car wheels, and that his life was crushed out as soon as the train started. The trainmen did not know of what had happened until they reached Georgetown. Mr. Glebe was a practical miller and came to Acton last June from Mildmay, where he had been in the milling business with his brother-in-law. He bought the mill formerly run by the Cheyne brothers, and spent a good deal of money in putting it in good shape and in building a nice residence. He had been telling his acquaintances lately that he was discouraged because the return for this expenditure did not come in so quickly as he thought it should, and he was quite despondent. He was about 45 years of age and leaves a wife and three children.

Homer Pingle Found Dead.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—Homer Pingle, the well-known telegraph man, was found dead in bed in his room at 84 Wellesley street early Saturday morning, and the gas jet was turned full on. When found deceased had been dead for several hours, the body being cold. Deceased was 54 years of age, and leaves a widow, who at present is visiting in Ottawa. He was born at Unionville, and at an early age commenced in the telegraph business, in which he had engaged all his life. He was appointed manager of the Canada Mutual Telegraph Company, and when the Canadian Pacific Railway inaugurated their commercial telegraph system, 14 years ago, he associated himself with the latter. Two years later he was appointed superintendent of the Ontario division of the C. P. R. Telegraph Company. He retired from this office after 12 years' service, owing to ill-health. He was a member of Zetland Lodge, A. F. and A. M. and other organisations.

Killed by International Limited.

Lancaster, Oct. 7.—A most distressing accident, resulting in the loss of two lives, occurred at the railway crossing a mile west of this town Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, when the International Limited, running at a speed of from 50 to 60 miles an hour, struck a vehicle containing Mrs. Symons and daughter and Annie, Symons and daughter Annie, of the second concession of Charlottenburg. The victims of the accident were at the time on their way to Lancaster, and, seeing the approaching train, made every effort to pull up their horses, according to the story of an eye witness. The result was that the occupants of the buggy, which was smashed to pulpwood, were instantly killed. The remains were terribly mangled. The accident has caused a gloom in the town, intensified by the fact that Mr. Geo. Symons pre-deceased his wife and daughter but six months ago.

Body Found on the Rocks.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 7.—The body of Patrick Duher, an employe of the Merritton cotton mills, was found lying on the rocks at the base of the cliff on the Canadian side of the river, just south of the cantilever bridge, at 8.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. There was a deep gash in the back of his head, and Dr. Eames, who was sent for, stated that the man had been dead about 12 hours. Duher had $4.60 in his pockets. Duher left Merritton Saturday morning to meet friends at the Paa-American. He was seen at the Windsor Hotel in the evening and said he had been to the Exhibition. He was alone and perfectly sober, and his death is believed to have been due to suicide or to foul play. Duher leaves one little daughter and an aged mother, who depended upon him for support. He was 36 years of age.

Telephone Lineman Killed.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—George De Munn, a lineman, employed by the Bell Telephone Co., was almost instantly killed about 1 o'clock on Saturday by falling from a pole on which he was working at the corner of Bloor street and Brunswick avenue. He never spoke after he fell, and was dead in less than two minutes. Deceased was 20 years of age, and had been employed by the telephone company for about six months. He lived with his widowed mother and two sisters at 65 Sydenham street.

Killed by a Saw.

Rat Portage, Oct. 7.—Word has been received here of a fatal accident at Beaver Mills. Andy Hutchison, employed in the Rat Portage Lumber Company's mill there, while working on a slash table, fell on a saw and was killed. Deceased, who was 19 years old, was a son of Mr. Hutchison of Dryden. The remains will be brought here and an inquest held.

Dropped Dead.

St. Catharines, Oct. 7.—George Nesbitt, a well known man of this city, dropped dead on the street while returning from work on Saturday evening. Heart failure is said to have caused death. He was a native of Ireland, 51 years of age, and leaves one son and three daughters.

Over a Cliff.

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—The body of W. L. Scott, Nepean Township, 50 years of age, brother to Dr. J. G. Scott, Ottawa, was found at the foot of a cliff overhanging the Ottawa River, near Bank street on Saturday. He no doubt fell over the cliff.

Slipped From a Train.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 7.—Thomas H. Hunting, a leading resident of Indian Head, slipped from a train while bidding friends farewell at that point Saturday night. Both legs were taken off. Hunting died in a few hours.

Drowned in a Gale.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 7.—William McDonald, aged 22 years, was drowned at Little Narrows, C. B., on Saturday afternoon while attempting to land from a schooner into a small boat during a gale.

Suicided and Had Diamonds.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—A man committed suicide by shooting near the Grant monument at Lincoln Park Saturday night. He had $100,000 worth of diamonds in his clothing. The suicide was well dressed, and the police believe he was a stranger in the city. The diamonds are pronounced genuine by experts.

Four Railway Men Killed.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 7.—Four Pan-Handle Railroad trainmen met death near Onward, 14 miles southeast of here yesterday morning in a rear end collision of freight trains. The bodies of three of the dead were taken out badly mutilated, but the fourth was almost entirely consumed by the flames, which broke out soon after the wreck.

WEST VICTORIA.

Mr. Newton Smale, a Popular Young Farmer, Nominated by Liberals.

Lindsay, Oct. 7.—West Victoria Liberals met in convention here on Saturday. The attendance was large and representative. Senator G. McHugh, R. J. McLaughlin, Thomas Stewart, James Graham, D. R. Anderson, Newton Smale, Dr. Herriman, F. C. Taylor, Dr. McKay and a host of others were proposed and addressed the meeting on current political topics. The convention unanimously decided in favor of Mr. Newton Smale of Ops, a popular young farmer, brother of Dr. Smale of Toronto. All the others withdrew in his favor.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The desire for the annexation of Newfoundland to the Dominion is not necessarily inspired by the fear that our present supply of codfish aristocracy needs recruiting.

It is proposed that the Philippines shall be known as the McKinley Islands. The question arises as to whether the inhabitants would then be known as McKinleyites, McKinleyans or McKinleyines?

A company has been recently formed in England, under the name of the British Ontario Gold Company, Limited, with a capital of £300,000, for the purpose of leasing for a term of 99 years the "Alice A," a promising gold mine in the Seine River District, Ontario.

The Beitung Iron Company is now pushing development work on its property on the Algoma Central Railway, near Sault Ste. Marie. A vein of specular iron ore has been found, 300 feet wide, and 60 per cent. pure on the surface. A large plant of machinery will shortly be installed.

Hon. Thomas Chapais, a former Conservative Minister of Quebec, speaks of the Hamilton Spectator, as "narrow, wicked, small, unintelligent, sectarian, bigoted, fanatical, provoking, an author of discord, abettor of prejudices and an exploiter of hatreds." And more than that, it is the organ of the Conservatives in the district of Quebec that publishes the scathing denunciation.

The Grand Trunk continues to improve its line between Port Union and Whitby. These improvements include double tracking and levelling the grades. When completed the Grand Trunk will have a fine double track between Toronto and Montreal, with the exception of the part of the line between Whitby and Port Hope, a distance of less than 30 miles.

Prof. Miller has returned from a trip to the country north and west of Lake Temiscamingue, and reports much good farming land there, and surface indications of valuable iron and copper deposits on the ridge of broken country along the height of land. He has now gone to examine the reported iron discoveries in Lount and Hutton townships, in the District of Parry Sound.

The Hamilton Morning Post, which began publication a little over a year ago, under the auspices of several gentlemen as the organ of their views, and an advocate of their interests, has ceased publication. It is said that the stock holders have pretty well lost all they invested in the enterprise. It seems to be one thing to start a newspaper and another to make it go. There must be a demand for it and it must be so conducted as to meet that demand.

Those who are anxious to see confederation rounded off by the union of Newfoundland with the Dominion will regret to learn that Sir Charles Tupper has prophesied saying that before long Newfoundland will become a part of the Dominion. We all remember how in the last Dominion election he belched poetic fire with a forecast of a sweeping Conservative victory. We know the result. He also prophesied a great Conservative victory in the recent Nova Scotia elections, and the Conservatives elected two members in a House of thirty eight.

The action of the Ross Government in securing the attention of the British Army authorities to the facilities Ontario presents for the purchase of horses for army remounts, is likely to bear fruit. Col. Dent, remount officer of the the British War Office, had a long conference on this subject with Hon. Premier Ross on Friday. The Ross Government is doing its level best to stimulate every interest in Ontario, by providing means for its development. We can raise as good horses as any country in the world,, and if through the efforts of the Government a good market is found for them, a great good will have been done to the farming community.

One after the other is to be noticed in Saturday's Globe the report of two fatal accidental shootings. One occurred by a loaded rifle being left in the living room of a residence, and the other from a revolver in the hands of a young man. In the first case a nineteen months old baby in its mother's arms was shot and killed, and in the other the young man fooling with the revolver shot and killed instantly a twelve year old companion. There was no criminal intent in either of these shootings, but the criminality rests with the modern custom of leaving laoded firearms accessible to children and fools, who have not judgment enough to use them without dangerous consequences. There are altogether too many firearms in the country. It is doubtful if one revolver out of ten thousand has any legitimate use or necessity in the homes or custody in which they may be found.

CANADIAN FOOD PRODUCTS AT BUFFALO.

If the splendid showing made by Canadian food producers at Buffalo has not received due attention, it is because we are all so accustomed to regard Ontario as a great fruit, dairy and stock country, that we are disposed to take these honours as a matter of course. It is gratifying, however, to know that there has been no falling off, and that Canada is able to make so good a showing in competition with the best agricultural States of the American Union. Ontario has yielded the palm to Manitoba in regard to wheat, but in mixed farming this province has an unexcelled position. The vineyards and orchards of the Niagara peninsula are a sight worth seeing, and the great cattle and cheese counties are better than gold mines as steady producers of wealth.

The system of agricultural colleges, experimental farms and stations which prevails throughout Canada and the United States, forms a splendid means of gathering and exchanging the results of experience in all the branches of food production. The recognition that farming is one of the most scientific of pursuits is resulting not merely in the increase of agricultural wealth, but in the higher standing of the farmer's occupation. It is coming to be recognized that the brightest boy in the farmer's family can have no better scope for his ambition than the farm.—Globe.

She Goes to Poplar Point Where She Will Meet Duke Tuesday.

ABOUT THE SHOOTING PARTY.

His Royal Highness at Poplar Point—Lord Minto Joins Him—Arrangements for Good Sport—Trip by Canoe to Senator Kirchhoffer's Lodge—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Winnipeg.

Banff, N.W.T., Oct. 7.—The Duchess of Cornwall left here at 9 o'clock Saturday night for Poplar Point, Man., where on Tuesday she will rejoin the Duke. Yesterday morning, in company with the Countess Minto, she attended special services at St. George's Mission, and later drove to Devil's Lake and the buffalo and elk paddock in the National Park. She also visited the geyser caves and sulphur pools. She was so greatly interested in the Rockies and Selkirks that she purchased a collection of paintings of them, and also carried away a large number of souvenirs. The entire local population were at the depot when the royal special pulled out, and when the Duchess was leaving they gave a hearty cheer.

THE SHOOTING PARTY.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall at Poplar Point, Man.

Poplar Point, Man., Oct. 7.— The royal train conveying His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and York and suite arrived here about 11 o'clock yesterday morning and was received by Senator Kirchhoffer and Lord Minto, Governor-General of Canada, who had arrived to meet the party. The distinguished guests are in excellent spirits and looking forward with great anticipation to enjoying the shooting at Lake Manitoba. The shooting party consists of His Highness the Duke, Prince Alexander of Teck, Lord Crichton, Commander Godfrey Fausset, Sir Charles Cust, and Major Maude.

After luncheon on the train Senator Kirchhoffer and his guests drove out to the lake, a distance of about 12 miles. On arrival at the landing a fleet of canoes were ready to convey the guests to the shooting lodge, which is a five miles paddle across the marsh slough. The canoe conveying the Duke of York was guided by John Atkinson, premier guide of Lake Manitoba shooting grounds, with Lord Minto in the bow, the other boats forming a fleet of honor. The party reached the shooting lodge about 5 o'clock. Elaborate preparations had been made for their entertainment there which highly delighted the guests. The country is wild in the extreme, but the site selected for the shooting lodge is an ideal spot, and has the appearance of a shooting box. Outbuildings and a group of tents made a very pretty picture. The weather is perfect, and as game, particularly the ducks, are plentiful, there are prospects of a splendid outing. All the shooting will be done from canoes, and the sportsmen will be on hand in good time in the morning to catch the early flight of the birds.

Amongst those assisting Senator Kirchhoffer in the entertainment of his guests are the well known Winnipeggers, George J. Galt, Percy Galt and "Tip" Halliwell of Brandon, all of whom are expert duck hunters, and whose intimate knowledge of the country will be of great service to the party. Shortly after the arrival at lodge, dinner was served, and the remainder of the day was spent in a quiet inspection of the lodge and its surroundings. The party will remain at the shooting box until Tuesday and will in that time have plenty of opportunity of securing a large bag of game. They will entrain at Poplar Point at 3 o'clock Tuesday, reaching Winnipeg about 4 p.m. Sir Wilfrid Laurier left the party there and will remain in Winnipeg until Tuesday as the guest of Lieutenant-Governor McMillan and Senator Watson.

Lord Minto Meets Duke.

Winnipeg, Oct. 7.—The Earl of Minto, accompanied by Capt. Bell, A. D. C., and his private secretary, Arthur F. Sladen, arrived from the East by Saturday's Imperial Limited on the private car Metapedia. His Excellency's visit West is of a strictly private character and he was not met at the station by any one. Lord Minto meets the Duke at Poplar Point for a duck hunt. The royal and vice-regal parties commence their homeward trip Tuesday afternoon.

A Letter for the Duke.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—A letter lies at the General Postoffice bearing the King's seal and addressed to the Duke of York. It came last night. It may contain warrants for additional honors for Canadians.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distaste for food often follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

Accident to British Destroyers.

London, Oct. 7.—The torpedo boat destroyers Salmon and Angler went out on a steam trial Saturday, and met with a serious accident while they were off Margate. In rounding the Tongue lightship at full speed the propeller of the Angler struck the Salmon's stern and tore the steel plates to pieces like so much paper. The two destroyers were towed to Sheerness later on. No lives were lost.

WILL TAP GREAT NORTHERN.

Line Laid Out to the Boundary by the Canadian Northern.

Emerson, Man., Oct. 7.—There is great interest here over the movements of the Canadian Northern Railway. As is well known, the system being originally part of the Northern Pacific, it has always been run in connection with the Northern Pacific. Ever since the road was taken over by Mackenzie & Mann, since the Northern Pacific refused to make any arrangement satisfactory to the Canadian Northern people for the handling of Manitoba business from the boundary to Duluth, the latter people have been casting about for another outlet, and now it appears that an arrangement has been made with the Great Northern.

A few days ago a line was laid out from the Canadian Northern near here to connect with Mr. Hill's road at the boundary. Grading will be pushed forward with all speed, and the connection established as soon as possible. The old iron bridge over the Red River here has passed into the control of the Canadian Northern, and is now being rebuilt and put in shape for a railway traffic bridge. It appears to be that the Manitoba Government had the control of this bridge, because the province had guaranteed the bonds which paid for it. The Government seems to have handed the bridge over to the railway company for the purpose indicated above. The establishment of the connection with the Great Northern road is doubtless intended as an important feature of the business of Mackenzie & Mann's system.

A PLAIN STRAIGHT-FORWARD LETTER.

Mrs. Louis Brovosts Publishes What She Thinks About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A Convincing Piece of Evidence as to the Wonderful Power of This Remedy—Bright's Disease, Heart Disease and Rheumatism Each Afflicted Mrs. Brovosts—Dodd's Kidney Pills Positively Cured Her.

St. Magloire., Que., Oct. 6. (Special). —The following letter was written by a well-known and highly respected lady of this place, being a copy of the original sent to the Dodd's Medicine Company, of Toronto.

"When I wrote you for some Dodd's Kidney Pills I was so discouraged that I had no hope of being able to find any remedy to save my life. I suffered with Bright's Disease, Heart Disease and Rheumatism, and I was much bloated also with Dropsy. I was so feeble that I was unable to do anything. I suffered for sixteen years with Rheumatism. There were two years and a half that I suffered with Bright's Disease. I have tried all the remedies in the world, and always grew worse and worse.

"There was one time when for three months I abandoned all my remedies, and resolved to let myself die without taking any medicine. I received by chance one of your almanacs and a paper. I read them and I decided to write you and try again with your remedy.

"Great was my surprise at the good that Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me with the first box you sent, I took them and my health was greatly improved. Since then I have taken twenty boxes. I am cured of my Bright's Disease, my Heart Disease, and my Rheumatism. I have still two boxes to take and by the time I have finished them I shall be in perfect health. I will permit you to publish this letter with pleasure, and I hope later to give you the facts of my recovery more completely than at present. I am still weak, but with time I shall be as strong as ever. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with any of the diseases that I did."

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Premier Dunsmuir Says He Will Remain in Office.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 7.—Premier James Dunsmuir has decided to remain in office. In spite of the defeat in New Westminster and the resignation of the Minister more directly involved in that defeat, Mr. J. C. Brown, he has concluded that he has the support of an overwhelming section of the Legislature. His decision was communicated in an interview in which he was asked regarding his intentions.

"I will remain in office," he responded, "and will meet the House with 22 supporters."

He was asked if a special session would be called, or if he would wait for the regular meeting of the Legislature. He replied that he would wait for the regular meeting of the Legislature, which will probably be held early in January. In reply to the question what was being done to fill the vacant portfolios or to bring on the election in the City of Victoria, he stated that no decision had as yet been arrived at in regard to either matter.

HEROIC HEART "FOOD"

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the heart is heroic because in cases of heart disease seemingly beyond all human aid it goes to the very brink of the "Black River" and snatches from it the heart-sick victim.

In a trice it allays pain—in a twinkling it gives strength and vigor and it works a quick and permanent cure as by magic. It is the one great heart remedy which rightly bears the crown of supremacy and on which is inscribed the life words, "It never fails." Thirty minutes after taking the first dose, the sick heart forgets its pain. Try it. 43

KIDNAPPERS ARRESTED.

Prominent Philadelphians Charged With a Daring Crime.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Four men—Howard K. Sloan, an unemployed reporter; Henry Wallace, society editor of one of the morning papers; J. Knight Findlay, stenographer, and O. S. Dunlap, a barber—were arrested yesterday on a charge of kidnapping Mrs. Mabel Goodrich, robbing her of her jewels worth $2,000, and compelling her to sign cheques for all the money she had deposited in the bank. Mrs. Goodrich was invited to go for a drive by a young man who had been a frequent caller at her establishment, and she consented. At a lonely place in Fairmount Park another man, who represented himself as an officer of the Law and Order Society, stopped the carriage and told Mrs. Goodrich he had a warrant for her arrest. She was invited out of the rig, and the next moment the woman was gagged and blindfolded and driven to a house, she did not know where, and kept there several days. The police have been working on the case since Monday, and finally got a clue, which led to the arrest of Findlay, who admitted his connection with the crime, and implicated the others. The punishment for kidnapping is life imprisonment.

THE CARLISTS.

The Pretender's Agitation Seems to Be Real This Time.

Cerbere, Oct. 7.—The Carlist agitation keeps constantly increasing.

The Spanish Government became aware of it only after the Carlist chiefs had already disappeared.

News received from a good source states that the movement will break out in Berga and other localities in the mountains, which are hotbeds of Carlism.

The arrival of the Carlist generals with instructions from Don Carlos is expected for a meeting, which will take place Wednesday. The authorities have taken the necessary precautions.

The Carlists are in possession of 20,000 rifles, which have been brought in from time to time by smugglers.

The Carlists will carry on guerilla tactics. It is stated that the insurrection will break out before the proclamation of the majority of Alphonse XIII. The authorities are aware of what is going on, but forbid the publication of any news.

King's Visit to Ireland.

Dublin, Oct. 7.—The Freemasons' Journal asserts that King Edward and Queen Alexandra will arrive in Dublin to attend the next Punchestown races, and will remain a fortnight in Ireland, visiting Lord Londonderry and the Duke of Abercorn, and going to the City of Belfast. Their Majesties, however, will not go into the south of Ireland.

Stop Thief!

Would be a justifiable cry directed against the countless humbugs that offer a cure for Catarrh. There is only one scientific method of treatment for Catarrh. Make the air you breathe the carrier of healing, balsamic, curative agents. It bathes every inch of mucous membranes with its healing, soothing properties. That's Catarrhozone. Your druggist or doctor will tell you it's the only effective method of treatment and that it is sure—prompt — permanent. Remember the name Catarrhozone. All dealers, 25c. and $1.00

London, Oct. 6.—An official report issued on Saturday shows that the British casualties in South Africa from the beginning of the war to Sept. 30, were 548 officers and 5,823 men killed in action, and 1,529 officers and 28,032 men wounded; 365 officers and 9,177 men are classified as missing or prisoners, of whom 354 officers and 8,471 men have either been released or have escaped. Boer Attack Repulsed.

Cape Town, Oct. 6.—Gen. Smith's commando, which went south toward Grahamstown some days ago, has now turned west and is being closely pursued by Col. Gorringe and other British columns.

About 180 Boers, a portion of Theron's commando, attacked Heidelberg West yesterday. Fifty of them galloped over the bridge into the main street, while the remainder fired from the river. The defenders, who numbered only 26 soldiers steadily replied from the sandbag fort and roof of the hotel. The Boers withdrew after two hours' firing, leaving one man fatally wounded. They did not loot the stores.

German Sympathy for Boers.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—The Lokal Anzeiger yesterday closes an article on the prospects of the Boers: "Who wants to blame the brave Boers for hoping, notwithstanding the non-interference of the Powers, in their final success? The Americans fought for eight years, often under unfavorable conditions, before the English yoke was shaken off. The independence of the Boer States is not yet lost."

SUNDAY'S ACCIDENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rye met With a Painful Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rye, of North Monaghan, met with a very painful accident yesterday about noon. They were driving home from St. John's church, and when in front of the Snowden House, the kingbolt of the carriage broke. The result was, of course, that the horse attached to the front portion of the carriage went on uninterrupted. Through the shock that followed when the remainder of the vehicle struck the ground, Mr. and Mrs. Rye were thrown out, receiving very severe injuries. They were both badly cut about the head. Mr. and Mrs. Rye were taken into the Snowden House and medical aid summoned. It was found necessary to place six or seven stitches in the deep cuts in Mr. Rye's head. He and Mrs. Rye were then conveyed to their home.

BADLY SCORCHED.

Mr. Harry Hutchinson met With a Serious Accident on Saturday.

As a result of an explosion of a gasoline stove in the store occupied by Messrs. George Hutchinson & Son, hardware merchants, George street, on Saturday afternoon, Mr. Harry Hutchinson will be laid off work for some weeks. He was engaged heating a soldering iron in the cellar when the explosion occurred. His face and hands are very badly burned, whilst the hair on his head was almost entirely singed off. Dr. Scott was summoned and dressed the wounds, after which the injured man was removed to his home.

Mr. Hutchinson's injuries are very painful and will necessitate his remaining inactive for several weeks.

CAUGHT IN A SAW.

An Employee of Clinkscale's Planing Mill Loses Half of a Finger.

John C. Stinson, who is employed in Alderman Robt. Clinkscale's planing mill, met with a very painful accident on Friday, as the result of which the usefulness of the index finger of his left hand is destroyed.

It seems that Stinson was feeding a saw and ran his hand up too far with the board, the saw catching the finger in the centre of the nail and slicing off fully one half of the digit.

THAT GOLD PEN.

The Duchess of York Wrote Her Name With it Out West.

Mr. John A. Ewan, the Globe correspondent, who is accompanying the Royal train to the Pacific Coast, in writing from Banff, N.W.T., says:—

"Previous to the departure for Laggan the Duchess visited more of the show places of the park, including the sulphur pool and cave, where she signed her name, "Victoria May," in the registers with a gold pen, which Mr. Galletty, the caretaker, had had presented to him in Peterborough some years ago, but which had never been dipped in ink. Mr. Galletty, at the request of the Princess, broke off a beautiful piece of the frost-like stalactites which are again forming."

Mr. D. D. Galletty the gentleman above referred to was some years ago choir master of St. Andrew's church.

OFF TO SEE THE "DOOK."

The Fifty-Seventh Regiment Leaves To-Morrow Night.

They are Very Enthusiastic Over the Trip—Leave by Special Train—Parade to Station.

The local Tommy Atkins is a very enthusiastic man these days — in fact he is a very important man, and as Tuesday night approaches he becomes more enthusiastic and more important. To-morrow night he will parade down George street to the beat of the drum and the inspiring strains of the regimental band which will tear off the regimental march in regimental style. Tommy's blood will boil with enthusiasm and he will scarcely be able to control himself sufficiently to sing to himself the appropriate selection "Dolly Grey." No, Tommy knows that he will be back in a few days, that he is not going to face the mouth of the deadly cannon or the muzzle of the guerilla's rifle. He is off on a holiday to see the "Dook" after several months faithful drill, and every man while out for a time as the boys might say well knows that the honour of their town is at stake and they will endeavour to up hold it.

When the 57th Regiment were invited to take part in the reception ceremonies to the Duke and Duchess of York and Cornwall, every man of the Regiment, officers, non-commissioned officers and privates entered into the work of placing the regiment on a first-class footing, with enthusiasm not frequently heard of, with the result that when the boys to-morrow night entrain for Toronto the gallant old 57th will be recruited to more than full strength with men that would be a credit to any corps. Great rivalry exists amongst the companies, the non-coms. vie with each other in their ability at their respective work, aye, in their appearance even, and the officers put forth every possible encouragement. The result has been of a most satisfactory nature and a first-class regiment is in our midst.

The absence of street lighting will be universally regretted as the parade to the C.P.R. station to-morrow night will be quite a pretty sight. The men will wear their serges and helmets also their great coats which will, of course, be bundled on their backs in the usual manner. The special train will pull out just after the local arrives from Toronto, although the march down to the station will take place some time previous to the entrainment. There should be a large turn out of citizens to see the boys off and inspire them with confidence.

No. 4 company is not the least enthusiastic company of the regiment and promises to make an excellent showing. They did splendidly at their company inspection and they declare that they will draw forth special mention from the "Dook" in the review, of course this latter statement is only a rumour.

The men will be quartered in the Exhibition buildings and the officers in the new wing of the Central Prison. They will return to town on Friday night.

THE NEW BRIDGE.

Traffic is Brisk Over it Already—The Old Structure.

Mr John Telford, of Ennismore, claims that his sons were the first to cross the new Mud Lake bridge with a load of any kind, having come across on Friday with several loads of grain.

The old bridge is being pulled out of the water, and piled on a vacant lot on this side of the lake. Mr. J. Smith, of Hiawatha, has been awarded the contract. There is an immense amount of good material in the old bridge, which will be used in maintaining other bridges to be repaired by the county from time to time.

The traffic over the new bridge is becoming very heavy, and the people of Ennismore are beginning to take advantage of the same.

THE POWER QUESTION.

Our evening contemporary returns to the subject of the development of power at No. 5 dam, and endeavours to show that some advantage, for political reasons, has been given in connection with the lease. Nothing that is done, either by the Dominion or Provincial Governments, is right in the eyes of the Review. Things were only done right by a Dominion Government at Ottawa that was paying it $400 or $500 per year in Government advertising. Then it could see everything in a rosy light. The subject of power development in connection with dam No. 5 has been sufficiently threshed out, and if an expression of opinion could be had from the ratepayers, our contemporary would then form some conception of where it stands in relation to the matter. The facts simply are these, and no amount of verbiage will alter them. A number of Peterborough gentlemen desired to establish factories in Peterborough; no power was obtainable from the Auburn Power Company, or the Peterborough Light and Power Company at any price. What was to be done? Were the industries to leave Peterborough and go elsewhere? Or try and utilize some of the power that is running to waste over the dams between here and Lakefield? The latter course was decided upon. Application was made to the Government for a lease. After some negotiation, an agreement for a lease was entered into, by which power was allowed to be developed at $2 per horse power on the minimum flow of the river on the head at the dam. The order-in-Council was passed granting the lease. Then the monopolists in power, backed by the Review, formed a deputation and went to Ottawa, to prevent the development of cheap power in the interests of the manufacturing welfare of Peterborough, by misrepresenting the conditions that existed. The Government practically said to these monopolists, "We do not propose to prevent development. We are not going to throw any obstacles in Peterborough's way; the water is running to waste, capital is waiting for investment, contracts have been made. Now, if you think they are getting special advantages we will give you a chance to take all their contracts off the hands of the gentlemen you say are getting power too cheap, and give you a chance to make us a better offer. They are bona fide applicants—not applying to tie up the power—they are entering upon the work in good faith. The Government desires to see all powers developed. There are other dams, if you have any undertaking in view that demands power come and make your application and give us a guarantee of bona fide intention of development. Deposit $5,000 to be forfeited if $50,000 is not spent within nine months, $25,000 within four months. If you are in earnest, and don't like this proposition, you may take any of the other three dams on the same terms. There is no monopoly; there can be no monopoly." Now what is the Otonabee Power Company's position, and the position of other manufacturers interested in power? They say—"We wanted and want cheaper power than steam to drive our industries. We formed a company to develop power, took stock, and made application with that sole end in view. There is no political favouritism about the matter; it is pure business procedure. Any person in Peterborough can take stock in our company, it is not a close corporation. If there are any political or monopolistic advantages, come in and share them. We are putting up the money, we are taking all the risk. If there are advantages granted political friends you Conservatives who assert it, can share them with us, and other public spirited Conservatives associated with us. This is the position of the whole affair; is it not a reasonable one? What can be fairer?" If the Review thinks advantages are given for political reasons, why dosen't it go in and share them by taking stock in the Company as it has a chance to do, instead of trying to give the power enterprise and other enterprises dependent upon it, "a black eye?"

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Addressed by Rev. J. G. Shearer—The Matter of Religious Instruction in the Schools.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association was held this morning in the Y.M.C.A., with the President, Rev. Mr. Bastow, in the chair.

The question of religious instruction in the schools was taken up. Rev. J. C. Davidson reported as to the result of the interview on the subject with the Board of Education, and Rev. W. L. Armitage gave a list of the rooms to be visited in the different schools. Rev. Messrs. D. O. Crossley and W. L. Armitage were appointed as a committee to draw up a programme should a satisfactory arrangement be made with the Board.

Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, Rev. Mr. Hanna and Rev. Mr. Yule, were formally received as members of the Association.

Quite a long discussion was engendered through the introduction of the matter of the recently taken census, and its relation to the morals of the public. It will be more fully taken up at the next meeting of the Association.

The election of officers was the next order of business and after a standing vote of thanks being tendered to Rev. Mr. Bastow, president, and Rev. Mr. Armitage, secretary, both gentlemen were pressed to take office for another year, a request unique in the history of the Association. Most complimentary references to the work of both officials were made by Rev. J. C. Davidson and Rev. D. O. Crossley, and their consent was obtained to continue in their positions for the next term.

Both President and Secretary expressed their warm appreciation of the cordial vote of thanks which had been passed.

The meeting was then addressed by Rev. J. G. Shearer, of the Dominion Lord's Day Alliance. His remarks on "The power of public protest" were most interesting.

The schedule of visits to the Nicholls Hospital and Peterborough Protestant Home was arranged as follows:

Nicholls Hospital.

TENNIS.

In the finals of the mixed doubles in the fall tournament of the Peterborough Tennis Club, Mr. Kerr and Miss G. Dennistoun defeated Miss Aileen Rogers and Mr. Bouchier by the following score: 6—3, 6—4, and 7—5. Game was played Saturday.

The last tea of the Peterborough Tennis Club for the season will be on Wednesday, October 9th, weather permitting, when the members of the club will be the guests of Mr. Bouchier and Mr. Kerr. The finals of the men's singles for the club championship between Mr. Bouchier and Mr. Kerr will take place the same afternoon. Play will commence at 3.15.

RUGBY.

Notwithstanding the fact that there was a slight rain on Saturday afternoon, there was an excellent Rugby practice. The turn out was only fair, but the work out was first class. Robinson was out o nSaturday for the first time, and it is universally regretted that he did not get into the game before. He gives promise of developing into a first class man. Daimard, Nobel and Dillon went into the game for all that it was worth and altogether a red hot practice was the result.

The committee will meet at 7.30 o'clock to-night in the Y.M.C.A. for purpose of selecting the team to go to Ottawa on Saturday next. As the time for the first match approaches the men are becoming more enthusiastic and they will go down to Ottawa on Saturday confident of winning.

London won from Sarnia on Saturday by 25 points to 0, in London.

The general results of Saturday's games were as follows:

Ontario Union Senior.

Argonauts, 8; Hamilton, 6.
Ottawa, 51; Granites, 0.

LACROSSE.

Mr. "Bob" Gilman, of the Rangers Lacrosse Team, Rochester, N.Y., is home on a visit to his parents in Ashburnham. "Bob" has been quite a prominent figure in lacrosse circles in New York State this season, as a stalwart defence player. Tuesday afternoon the Roobester Rangers played the combination lacrosse teams of Carraraugus and Iroquois Indians at Gowanda. The game was a hard fierce battle from beginning to end, the Indians finally winning by a goal, which was the only one scored during the game, and this was accomplished during the last two minutes of play. The Indians were very much heavier than the local team, and to keep them from scoring for fifty-eight minutes was very creditable work.

AQUATIC.

Harry Searle is usually rated as the best oarsman the world ever produced. He had lots of pluck and never went into a race without being certain that he was going to win. Before one of his great races he cabled to his father in Australia, "Won easily," five minutes before the race took place. When asked why he took such a risk the young Australian said "I knew I would win and I thought it was better to tell father before the race than to try and get through the crush afterwards."

CITY OF THE DEAD.

Considerable New Land has Been Acquired by the Company.

The directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company have made a very important purchase during the past few weeks by which a considerable portion of desirable land will be added to the cemetery property. The land which has just been acquired consists of 100 feet on Crescent street, at the corner of Crescent and Haggart streets, and 54 feet on Ware street at the corner of Ware and Haggart streets, making a clear frontage of 387 feet on Haggart street facing the cemetery proper. The 100 feet was purchased from Mr. Gus Sawers, and the 54 feet from the Burnham estate.

The new land will not be used for interment purposes but there is a probability that before long a handsome new house for the caretaker may be erected upon the Sawers lot, whilst the other lot will be most likely have erected on it sheds suitable for the shelter of horses, etc., an accommodation badly needed at the present time. The caretaker's present quarters would then be removed leaving a considerable piece of most desirable land for interment purposes.

There is a small house on the Sawers lot at the present time. This, it is understood, will be placed on a scow and taken to a point somewhere below the locks, it having been purchased by some one other than the Cemetery Company.

Altogether the addition of this new piece of land will prove most valuable to the Company.

HANDLE THE WHEELS

THE CUP RACING SKIPPERS OF THE BIG 90-FOOT YACHTS.

Upon Them Much of the Performance of Their Craft Depends—Pen Sketches of Captain Edward Sycamore, of Shamrock II., and of Captain Urias Rhodes, of the Constitution—Their Records.

Of equal interest with the big 90 foot yachts that are soon to race for the America's cup, "the blue ribbon of the seas," are the men who will handle the wheels of the vessels. The racing of yachts, especially of the larger sloops, is not a matter of build alone, as most persons think. Seamanship plays a very large and important part in the contests. A yacht needs a skipper who knows how to handle her as much as she needs the best of sails and spars.

Captain Edward Sycamore swings the wheel on the Shamrock II., while Captain Urias Rhodes does similar service for the Constitution, and each of these men is a past master of his craft.

"Sycamore? He's a good skipper and knows his business. Besides, he's been in American waters before and ought to know how to sail his boat in them," is the manner in which American yachtsmen refer to the captain of Shamrock II. Their good opinion is based on Captain Sycamore's record. The present is not his first experience in racing for the America's cup. In 1895 he was assistant skipper of Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie, acting in conjunction with Captain Cranfield. In 1899 Captain Sycamore held the wheel on August Belmont's 90 footer Mineola.

Captain Sycamore is 45 years old and a product of the Wivenhoe district, Essex, England, that sends out the very best of English yachting sailors. Captain Sycamore chose following the sea as a profession very early. His first experience in yachting was on board the Marquis of Ailsa's yacht, the Lady Evelyn. He remained in the employ of the marquis for a number of years, leaving him in 1878. In 1884 Sycamore first earned the title of captain as skipper of the yawl Amberwitch, and in 1885 he commanded the Amelia, owned by an Englishman named Beauclerc. Captain Sycamore remained in Mr. Beauclerc's pay until 1892 and sailed for him two of the crack small boats of the season of 1890-1. He won 36 first and 2 second prizes for this owner.

Since then Captain Sycamore has had chief authority on a number of yachts and has won about 100 prizes.

Pitted against Captain Sycamore and handling the helm of the New York Yacht Club's new cup defender, Constitution, is silent and reserved Captain Urias Rhodes. Captain Rhodes is noted among yachting sailors for his lack of words and for the good results that usually follow his handling of a wheel. Rhodes is a product of the south shore of Long Island and has been a sailor from his earliest years. Before entering upon sailing for prizes Captain Rhodes was engaged in the West Indian freighting trade. From that to yachting was a natural transition for the young man.

Captain Rhodes' first experience in America's cup racing was service before the mast on the sloop Atlantic in 1886, when that vessel contended for the honor of defending the "mug." He was later mate of the Volunteer and afterward sailed the Sea Fox and the Montauk, famous vessels of their day. He built up for himself a reputation as an alert, cool headed man and a thorough sailor.

In 1898 Captain Rhodes was called on to command the Defender, succeeding Captain Haff. Rhodes held her wheel during the races that were sailed to "try out" the Columbia. At the time of Captain Rhodes' selection to command the Constitution, an appointment that met with the hearty approval of yachtsmen, he was chief on William Iselin's Emerald. Captain Rhodes is about 48 years old, of splendid proportions and commanding appearance.

MISTAKES TO AVOID.

An English paper gives what it terms "thirteen mistakes of life:"

It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly.

To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To look for judgment and experience in youth.

To endeavor to meld all dispositions alike.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.

Not to yield in immaterial matters.

Not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies in our power.

Not to make allowances for the infirmities of others.

To consider everything impossible that we cannot perform.

To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.

To expect to be able to understand everything.

Vigorous Womanhood

Made Perfect by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food—A Common Sense Treatment Which Does Exactly What is Claimed of It.

The happiness of every home depends very largely on the health of the wife and mother. If she is nervous, peevish and irritable, worried by the little cares of every day life, and tormented by pains and irregularities that are sure to accompany a rundown system, there can be no happiness in the home for husband and children.

Too many women are victims of nervous exhaustion, and do not know it. They suffer from indigestion dyspepsia, nervous headache and sleeplessness, and drag themselves about the house feeling languid and tired out. The slightest mishap causes them to worry, and they feel gloomy and despondent.

Some women seem to think this a part of women's existence. Not at all. You can be healthy and and vigorous if you follow the advice of Dr. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author. He would not deceive you, and his treatment never disappoints. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is intended for just such cases as are here described.

It is above all a common sense treatment, which is approved of by physicians and laymen alike. By supplying to the thin, watery blood and weak, exhausted nerves the very materials of which nature constructs new nerve cells and new bodily tissue it gradually and certainly reconstructs and revitalizes the weakened and debilitated nervous system, cures nervous headaches and dyspepsia, and permanently overcomes the weaknesses and irregularities from which women suffer so much.

Mrs. Chas. H. Jones, Pierceton, Que., writes:—

"For years I have been a great sufferer with my heart and nerves. I would take shaking spells and a dizzy, swimming feeling would come over me. Night after night I would never close my eyes, and my head would ache as though it would burst. At last I had to keep my bed, and though my doctor attended me from fall until spring, his medicine did not help me.

"I have now taken five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it has done me more good than I ever believed a medicine could do. Words fail to express my gratitude for the wonderful cure brought about by this treatment."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is immensely popular among women, because it restores them to perfect, vigorous womanhood, and does so by naturally and gradually toning up and invigorating the system, gently regulating the bowels, and strengthening the action of the heart. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanton, Bates & Company, Toronto.

Digestion Without a Stomach.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy active, and vigorous, and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355.92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

HANDWRITING EXPERTS.

It would seem from the frequent appearance of handwriting experts in the courts and the charges they make for their services that there must be something occult about the science of chirography and that the ways of the handwriting expert must be queer and devious. To hear one of these men explain his science, however, it all appears exceptionally simple. One of the best known of these experts a few days ago explained his plan of work in this wise:

"When a writing of unidentified authorship is submitted to me, I aim to determine the dissimilarities it exhibits from a conventional standard. Every person writes with a certain general movement, these movements being classified under the heads of forearm movements, wrist movements and finger movements. The trained eye can see at a glance according to what general system the writing is penned.

"This anonymous writing we call the 'suspect.' The suspect is now carefully analyzed. Every letter in every word is dissected, and each departure from the standard is noted. These dissimilarities, taken in full, will be invarably found to be characteristic of the writer. In spite of himself they will appear to a greater or less extent in everything that he writes.

"Having thus analyzed the suspect, I take up the specimens of known authorship and regarded as being very likely of identical authorship with the suspect. These specimens we call the exemplars. They are analyzed and dissected, just as in the case of the suspects. It will be very easy in most cases to say that certain of the exemplars could not have been penned by the author of the suspect, and after more careful examination it will be possible to say with accuracy whether the suspect was written by the writer of one of the exemplars, and if so, which one.

"In cases of disguised handwriting the difficulty is generally not greatly increased. A person simply cannot avoid betraying himself in his penmanship, and although he may successfully disguise a few letters, in the main the natural dissimilarities from the accepted standard will be evident and unmistakable.

"In cases of disguised handwriting the expert must first determine the method of the disguise so as to know what are the real and what the unreal features of the person's regular handwriting which are here displayed. Having determined the method the rest is easy, for an adjustment can be made in every case, just as the surveyor allows in his calculations for abnormal influences upon his compass."

POINTS ABOUT DIVING.

Rules For Making a Graceful Plunge Into the Water.

A good diver may occasionally lose his balance when taking a high dive, but being generally cool headed he can regain it or at any rate sufficiently so to prevent injury to himself, for if he came from a great height flat on to his stomach he would, we are told, be torn open, most probably with fatal results. While this presumably is anatomically possible, it is doubtful whether there is any actual case on record among medical and diving authorities.

Divers sometimes go deaf through not sufficiently protecting the face and head. Many find it difficult to drop the head sufficiently to get it well between the arms; the result is they get some tremendous blows on the head, and if the water is struck sideways the ear gets most of the concussion, and the result will not improbably be a rupture of the membrane of the tympanum. A little medicated wool, dipped in oil and placed in the ears, is said to be a preventive to such an accident, but it is disregarded by most experts.

In diving you must have perfect control ovef yourself or you will get nervous and lose your head. Confidence and the proper amount of practice will make each successive part of the dive more or less mechanical. The tension experienced by some divers is over when they spring, with others not until they enter the water. But this is chiefly a matter of temperament, for others feel no tension whatever and appreciate each part, the filling of the lungs with air, the spring, the falling through space and the entering and cleaving of the water.

One of the chief dangers of high diving is that of coming over on one's back. Divers often get the backs of their legs fearfully bruised by neglecting to keep them quite straight and allowing them to bend backward from the knees.

William Henry, secretary of the English Life Saving society, says: "According to the rules of the Life Saving society, framed for the purpose of the national graceful diving competition, a dive is defined as follows: A leap is made into the air, the body is then straightened almost horizontally, the arms are turned at once toward the water and the legs thrown up for the downward drop. On entering the water the arms must be extended in advance of the head, the forefingers must be in contact and the palms of the hands held downward. The thighs and the legs from the hips to the great toes must be kept close together and the feet turned back. No dive is counted in which the competitor when entering the water turns on his back."

Gave Napoleon Advice.

Napoleon Bonaparte had no more devoted and disinterested friend than Gaspard Monge, the illustrious academician and founder of L'Ecole Polytechnique. On one occasion he demonstrated his regard by giving the great general some unwelcome advice.

Napoleon announced his intention of reading a paper to the French institute. Monge frankly expressed his disapproval of the plan.

"You have not time to write a good paper, and you cannot afford to write a poor one. The eyes of the world are upon you. Whatever you write will be severely criticised."

Napoleon was astounded and indignant at this plain speaking, but he never wrote the paper.

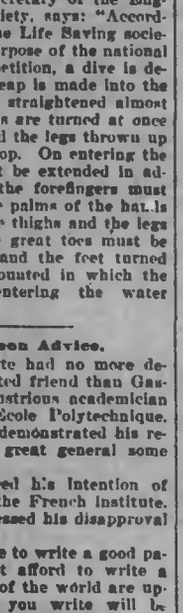
The Truth

Is told by most people. If it were not, the whole commercial and social fabric would fall to pieces. There are thousands upon thousands of people who testify to the cures effected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. They are representative people in their communities. You would believe their word on any question of knowledge. They speak the simple truth when they testify that Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia, "weak" stomach and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures when all other remedial means have failed. It cures perfectly and permanently.



There is no alcohol in the "Discovery" it is free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. There is nothing "just as good."

"I was a total wreck—could not eat or sleep," writes Mr. J. O. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors, but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep, and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Often skeptics used to laugh
At Marconi's telegraph;
Took no stock in wireless scheme;
Said 'twas just a foolish dream.

But Marconi pegged away;
Said he'd show them all some day.
Still the skeptics oft would smirk,
Sure the system wouldn't work.

Shrewd Marconi toiled and planned;
Rigged machines on sea and land.
By and by came final test,
And the scoffers ceased to jest.

Men on steamship out of sight
Fixed a message for its flight;
Sent it flashing through the air
Just as if some wires were there.

Men on land the message caught,
And the air was then kept hot;
Back and forth the greetings went,
By the wireless system sent.

No more skeptics scoff and laugh
At the wireless telegraph.
All now see that it's no bluff,
But a wonder sure enough.

THE PROLIFIC FLY

To Lessen the Pest All Organic Refuse Should Be Buried.

Flies multiply at a prodigious rate. Given a temperature sufficiently high to hatch eggs, their numbers are only limited by the amount of food available for them. Linnæus is credited with saying that three meat flies, by reason of their rapid multiplication, would consume a dead horse quicker than would a lion, and the fact that certain diptera having some outward semblance to the honeybee lay their eggs in the dead carcasses of animals probably led Samson and Virgil to make erroneous statements with regard to the genesis of boney and the manufacture of bees. The breeding of "gentles" for ground bait is an industry the practices of which could probably give much information as to the nicety of choice exercised by flies in selecting material for feeding and egg laying. According to Packard, the house fly makes selection of horse dung by preference for ovipositing, and as each female lays about 120 eggs and the cycle of changes from egg to fly is completed in less than three weeks it seems probable that a female fly might have some 25,000,000 descendants in the course of a hot summer. Other varieties of flies multiply, I believe, still more rapidly.

As flies multiply upon and in organic refuse of every kind, it is obvious that the sooner such refuse is placed where it cannot serve for the breeding and hatching of flies the more likely is the plague of flies to be lessened. The most commonly available method for the bestowal of organic refuse is burial. The egg laying of flies in dead carcasses commences at the very instant of death or even before death in the case of enfeebled animals.—Lancet.

This trying period in women's life usually comes between the ages of forty and fifty years and is marked by irrita, headache, dizziness, irregular monthlies, fitful appetite, forebodings of evil, palpitation of the heart and constipation. It enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves, regulates the functions of the feminine organs and tones and invigorates the whole body.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM CURED

Chronic Rheumatism Cured

The action of Powley's Liquified Ozone is quick in giving relief to rheumatism. The antiseptic action of the oxygen destroys the germs which produce the disease and antidotes their toxins. It will be worth your while to read the interesting statement of Mr. A. Charbonneau.

The Ozone Company

Gentlemen: In response to your communication of late date, I am happy to state that I have made use of Powley's Liquified Ozone, and the results have been far ahead of any thing I hoped for when I was first induced to try same. I have been a constant victim of rheumatism, lumbago, etc., for nearly two years and tried all sorts of remedies and so-called cures without benefitting from their use. I must say that I obtained some relief, but this was only temporary and quite unsatisfactory. When I was induced to try Ozone I had a very limited confidence in its merits, but I had taken less than half a bottle when I was notably relieved of my trouble and continued the use of Ozone. The results, I am happy to say, have been marvelous. With less than two bottles I am now entirely free from pain of any kind and feel rejuvenated by ten years, no trouble whatever having been my lot since I used Ozone. I have since used it in my family with the same beneficial results and I mean to have it handy at all times in the house.

You are at liberty to use the present testimonial as you see fit, and to refer to me as to what Ozone has done for me and may do for anyone in a general way.

Wishing your preparation all the success it does ryes, and yourselves the recognition of the public for putting the same within the reach of everyone, I remain.

Very truly yours, A. M. Charbonneau, 200 St. Hippolyte St., Montreal, P. Q.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is oxygen in stable liquid form. It's a new discovery, this way of using oxygen. If you are troubled with rheumatism, kidney disease, try a bottle, it will relieve you in a wonderfully short time.

DOURO WEDDINGS.

Two Events Which Were Solemnised at St. Joseph's.

St. Joseph's church, Douro, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday, when Miss Mollie O'Leary, daughter of Mr. Daniel O'Leary, of Indian River, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. W. Plourde, of Harvey. The bride was assisted by her cousin, Miss Laura Leahy, while Mr. S. O'Brien performed the duties of best man.

After the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Father Kelly, the happy couple returned to the home of the bride's father, where a wedding repast was done ample justice to.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts, as well as the hearty good wishes of her numerous acquaintances.

On Tuesday another interesting event occurred in the same church. This was the marriage of Mr. Jas. Collins, of Douro, to Miss Mary Hanrahan, of Ashburnham. A neice of the bride, Miss K. Allan, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Jos. Collins, brother of the groom, was best man. Guests to the number of eighty assembled at the house of Mr. F. Moher, where the wedding breakfast was served. Here a pleasant afternoon and evening was spent, after which the bridal party repaired to their future home. The numerous gifts received, showed the high estimation in which the bride was held.

MORE COMPLIMENTS.

The Campbellford Despatch speaks thusly of the recent visit of the 57th Band to Campbellford:—

"That popular musical organization, the 57th Regimental Band, of Peterborough, visited Campbellford on Friday last, and in the evening discoursed the finest programme of music which has ever touched the ear of a Campbellford audience. This organization has reached a high standing in the profession of music and deservedly so, for wherever it has filled an engagement it has added to its laurels, and has called forth the highest encomiums of the press.

"In their leader, Rupert Glidden, they have one of the best instructors holding a similar position in Canada, and to him credit is due for the perfection they have attained. The members, each and every one are "musicians" and under the careful instruction of Mr. Glidden have become most efficient, especially in the ensemble numbers."

ABOUT SABBATH OBSERVANCE

Rev. J. G. Shearer was in Peterborough Yesterday.

He Preached Two Sermons and Spoke in the Y. M. C. A. at Night.

The services of several of the churches yesterday were of especial interest, the congregations having had the opportunity of listening to the Rev. J. C. Shearer, field secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance. In the morning he spoke at the George street Methodist church taking for his text the 27th verse of the 17th chapter of Jeremiah. Rev. Mr. Shearer interpreted the words of the text to apply to the people of this Dominion and Ontario in the same strength as they applied to the people who entered the gates of Jerusalm. He feared that we were not inclining our ears to the warning that was laid down in this text. Several illustrations and instances were cited showing where there had been encrochment upon the object of the Alliance. To this end Western Canada had contributed a greater portion than the Eastern, but many cases were cited which showed that even Ontario had been guilty of having its Sabbath desecrated in various places to a considerable extent.

In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Shearer spoke at the Park street Baptist church along similar lines, and in the evening addressed the congregation of St. Paul's church, taking his text from St. Mark, 2—27, "The Sabbath was made for man." Voltaire, when in his attempt to contradict the teaching of the Scriptures, said in a fit of excited despondency that if the Sabbath was observed Christianity would be safe. Since that time there seems to have been rabid attacks made upon the Sabbath with the object of overthrowing Christianity. There are some to-day who will deny that the Sabbath is of Divine authority. Of the seven days taken to create the earth the last was taken for rest. God blessed it and hallowed it. Some of the things to-day that are given as the reasons for the indirect attacks upon the sanctity of Sabbath are the greed of gain, commercial urgency, lust of pleasure and passion for sport. The speaker so illustrated his address that each of these things were proven to be absurd in the light of the result that followed each case.

In the evening a mass meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. hall, when Rev. Mr. Shearer outlined briefly the object of the work, and what progress had been made during the past year. He said it would come under four heads: Educational; Organized workingmen, Resistence against Legislation, Public Remonstrance. He claimed that great thanks were due to the secular press of the country for their advocacy of the principles for which the Lord's Day Alliance stands. The help given by the organized workingmen of Canada, who are satisfied that six days are sufficient to earn enough to supply the necessaries of life. There had been several corporations asking for legislation permitting them to make money on the Sabbath Day in the guise of public convenience. The protests of the public in many cases against Sabbath desecration, were some means which are being heartily applauded.

The annual meeting of the local branch of the Lord's Day Alliance will be held Tuesday evening next, when reports of the local committee will be given.

What Shall We Eat

To Keep Healthy and Strong?

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats, is undoubtedly the best in spite of the claims made by vegetarians and food cranks generally.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Ramusson on this subject says: Nervous people, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat plenty of meat. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent Tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs, or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods like potatoes, bread, etc., and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to perfect digestion and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use.

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stomach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures are useless for the relief or cure of indigestion, because they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe preparation which is endorsed by the medical profession, and which is known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All druggists throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain sell them at the uniform price of 50 cents for full treatment.

HISTORIC HASTINGS.

What is Going on in the Village on the Trent—Business Brisk.

Mr. Thos. Anderson, formerly of here and recently of the Union Bank of Canada, Norwood, has been appointed manager of the same bank at Wawanesa, Man. His many friends here wish to congratulate him on his promotion.

The band concert held in the town hall on Tuesday evening, although not largely attended, was highly appreciated by those present. The comic selection entitled the "Village Band" created great laughter.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Clarry and Miss Clarry are visiting friends at Millbrook this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Anderson have just returned from a visit to Scotland. Mr. Anderson reports a very rough voyage home.

A number of Hastings' citizens attended the fair held at Warkworth last week.

Major H. W. Fowlds has been confined through illness to his bed during the past week. His many friends all hope for a speedy recovery.

Miss Polly Fowlds, who has been the guest of Miss Amy Dilworth, Welland, during the past two weeks, has returned home.

A number of our citizens intend taking in the celebration at Toronto this week on the occasion of the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. On this occasion our townsman, Capt. Jas. A. Fraser, who served in the South African campaign, will be presented with a medal of honour from the Duke.

The promoters of our proposed pork packing establishment, contemplate holding another meeting in the near future. They are this time securing the services of a competent pork packer of hams to address the meeting. Those interested hope that they will be able to obtain more information regarding this industry, than was given at the last meeting. The secretary and president say this coming lecturer must root, hog or die.

Judging from the number of farmers delivering grain, cheese, apples and other produce to the elevators and G.T.R. warehouses, business seems to be booming, also our stock buyers seem to be busy, for as high as four hundred hogs were shipped from this station last week.

Our city fathers met at their usual monthly meeting on Friday last. It is reported that the Premier and one of the members of our local government had a somewhat stormy debate over street construction.

Dr. Wilson made his first professional visit to Keene last week.

Great Double Sale of a Great Double Stock.

Now, thanks to the past fortnight's great business the way is clear, and a practically new sale begins on Monday. The bulk of the patterns now removed from Turnbull's store, are fully on a par with their own regular stock. But what is of more importance to buyers is the fact that just about half prices is all you'll be asked to pay. Wason vs. Douglas.—Judgement (E.B. B.) on motion by defendant to set aside verdict and judgement for plaintiff in an action for trespass to land and to determine a boundary, tried before Lount, J., and a jury, at Peterborough, and to dismiss the action or for a new trial upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence and the weight of evidence. The land in question is in the Township of Dummer, near Warsaw, and consists of an island in Indian River, lying between the two channels of the river. Held, that the question left to the jury was whether there was any southerly channel at all, and they were told that if they found there was, the plaintiff was entitled to succeed, but that they should have been asked to find, if there were two channels, which of them was the main channel when the conveyance to the defendant was made. They have in effect found merely that a south channel then existed, leaving the real question undetermined. Under these circumstances, there has been a mistrial, and, although the objection to the charge was not taken, the case must go down again for trial, but without costs. Per Street, J.—Cases of this nature involving the title of land should be tried by a judge, not a jury, so that the necessity for a second trial may be avoided. E.B. Edwards, K.C., for defendant. G. A RIDE ON A HANDCAR

Duchess of Cornwall Enjoys a Novel Experience.

THE DUKE HAS GREAT SPORT.

Shooting Ducks at Poplar Point Was Carried on for Five Solid Hours, and a Good Bag Was Secured by the Party the Duke Contributing Fifty-Two as His Share of the Day's Booty.

Regina, N. W. T., Oct. 8.—The royal special, carrying the Duchess of Cornwall from Banff to Poplar Point, passed here at 7 o'clock last evening, having completed 565 of the 872 miles lying between the two towns. The royal special was run in two sections, 30 minutes apart, the first carrying the Countess of Minto and part of the suite. The snow of ten days ago had disappeared from the plains, and fair weather made the day's ride an enjoyable one.

The Duchess was given a ride on a handcar at Parkberg. She was accompanied by Lady Mary Lygon and Mrs. Derik Keppel, and the car was manned by the following distinguished crew: Sir Arthur Bigge, Sir John Anderson, Major S. Edison, Dr. A. Manby, W. R. Baker, Superintendent Milestone of the C. P. R., and F. P. Dug. The party rode for a mile and a half, and, after posing for an amusing photograph, returned to the town.

At Regina the first section of the royal special was stopped for 30 minutes, and Lady Minto formally opened Victoria Memorial Cottage Hospital, built from a fund founded by her. The Duchess' train is due at Poplar Point at 10 o'clock today, and will be met by the Duke and the other members of the royal party. There is to be an exhibition of wheat threshing at a Poplar Point ranch, at the conclusion of which the eastward journey will be resumed. At Winnipeg Sir Wilfrid Laurier will rejoin the ducal party.

DUKE GOES DUCK SHOOTING.

At Poplar Point His Splendid Luck Thoroughly Delighted Him.

York Lodge, Lake Manitoba, via Poplar Point, Oct. 8.—Sunday and yesterday were probably the most informal spent by His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and party since they began their tour through Canada. After arrival at the lodge Sunday evening the party partook of a splendid dinner served in banquet style in a marquee erected for the purpose immediately adjoining the cottage occupied by His Royal Highness. The arrangements made by Senator Kirchhoffer for entertainment of his guests were perfect in every detail.

At a very early hour yesterday morning the camp was astir, and the canoes carrying the distinguished sportsmen were under way to the haunts of the wild duck. There were in all seven canoes, and each chose a different route, a capable guide or veteran duck hunter taking charge of each boat. The well-known hunter and trapper, John Atkinson, handled the paddle of the canoe carrying the Duke and his valet. The morning was an ideal one for duck hunting, the sky being slightly clouded and a light breeze blowing, and the party took every advantage on the morning flight. For five hours the sound of the guns could be heard from every part of the big marsh, and shortly after 10 o'clock the canoes arrived at the lodge.

The first to land was the Duke, and although there were no cheering crowds to greet his arrival, this did not appear to distress his spirits, for the excellent morning's sport and splendid luck had thoroughly delighted him. Lord Minto, Sir Charles Cust, Prince Alexander of Teck, Major Maude and Senator Kirchhoffer arrived in quick succession, and the duck-laden canoes were landed. As a result of the morning' sport nearly 200 ducks, which number included all varieties known to Manitoba hunters, were brought in, and in addition to this number numerous birds were shot but could not be secured because of the impassable marshes.

His Royal Highness proved himself an excellent shot, bagging 52 birds, and of the adventurous ducks coming within range of his unerring aim few indeed escaped. He expressed great pleasure and was enthusiastic over the outing.

Early yesterday afternoon the party started out again to remain until sundown. The guests are thoroughly delighted with the sport here, and will embark for the east to-day with feelings of regret.

Lord Crichton and Commander Godfrey Faussett are guests of Messrs. Galt of Winnipeg at the shooting lodge three miles east. This morning the guests will again go after the ducks and immediately after luncheon on their return the party will leave for the train. It is the intention to afford them an opportunity to witness a threshing scene near Poplar Point to-day before the departure of the train.

As the Duke of York landed here Sunday, the royal standard of Britain was flung to the breeze from the flagpole of the Lodge Cottage, and it remains hoisted until his departure. Accompanying the party is Col. Sherwood of Ottawa, who is here in charge of the guard, and Captain Young of Souris, who is in charge of the camp. Several Winnipeggers are also assisting in the arrangements, looking to the comfort and pleasure of the guests.

No Halifax Review.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Dr. Montizambert, Director-General of Public Health for Canada, has reported against the holding of any military review at Halifax on the 17th inst., in honor of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, because of smallpox at Halifax, and a number of other places all over the province. The likelihood, therefore, is that the review will be abandoned.

Duke at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 8.—Through the influence of Sir Sanford Fleming, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Governor-General, H. R. H. the Duke of York has consented to lay the foundation stone of Queen's University new Arts Building.

Mr. Fielding Will Come.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Hon. W. S. Fielding will leave on Wednesday for Toronto to attend the royal review.

SCHLEY DID RIGHT.

Witness Defends the Admiral for His Conduct During Battle.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Lieut.-Commander Hodgson again occupied the greater part of the Schley Court of Inquiry yesterday as a witness. He was followed on the stand by Captain W. M. Folger, formerly Chief of the Bureau of Ordinance of the Navy Department, but commander of the New Orleans during the Spanish war.

Commander Hodgson repeated and extended his story of the battle of July 3, giving the opinion that Commodore Schley's conduct on that occasion was such, as that of the commander-in-chief, should have been.

Captain Folger said that the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon on May 31 had been eminently successful in developing the strength of the ship's shore batteries, and had shown them to be very weak. He also said that if the ships had attempted to escape at night they could not have been seen by the blockading fleet in bad weather.

A Tardy Statement.

New York, Oct. 8.—Col. R. N. Thompson, President of the United States Naval Academy Alumnae Association, made a statement yesterday concerning MacLay's book, in which the author calles Admiral Schely a coward and a catiff. The story is that the proofs of the book were submitted to Admiral Sampson for correction, but, as soon as Admiral Sampson arrived at the part which contained the statement that Schely was a coward, he was very much angered, and said the statement was one the author had no right to make, that it was unjust and unfair to speak of any naval officer in such terms, and declined to have anything further to do with the proofs. His secretary then continued the reading of the proofs, comparing the book with the records, and marking corrections on the margins, but paying no attention to opinions expressed by the author.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

They are having a brisk controversy at Ottawa over church precedence at state functions. The littleness of these moral Liliputians! They pay their "tithes of mint, anise and cummin" to Mrs. Grundy; they pay their respects to to Royalty or vice-Royalty, they pay — everything except their debts, and make a mighty pother about nothing. What folly to quarrel about church precedence, in face of the declaration of the Great Master that he that maketh himself greatest shall be least in the Kingdom of Heaven.

As a result of the change in the law regarding the assessment of companies, the assessment of the Telephone Company at Ottawa has been increased from $10,000, to $75,000; the Ottawa Electric Co. from $40,000 to $125,000, and Ottawa Gas Co. from $40,000 to $75,000. These increases are made because the plants of these companies throughout the city are assessed as parts of a going concern.

The yacht races are over, and Sir Thomas Lipton failed to convert the coveted jam-pot into a tea-cup. And what have the races shown? Not the superiority of one yacht over another. The whole series was so close that only seconds decided the result, and a flukey puff of wind decided the seconds. What, after all, is the good of these racing contests? If one or the other yacht were decidedly beaten, what good end would be subserved. They are mere racing machines and a fisherman wouldn't give a quintal of codfish for either of them for practical purposes. A racing horse is ever so much better than a racing yacht; the horse in his moments of ease could be put to use to plough up potatoes, but a racing yacht is all at sea in the way of usefulness. The chief redeeming feature of the late race was the magnanimous sporting spirit developed in Sir Thomas Lipton. When he saw the Columbia was likely to win the last race by a few seconds he said to his friends on the yacht, Erin, "The best boat has won, let us give her a cheer," while the propability is if his own yacht had won there would have been a proposition to lynch him—to hang him to his own yard arm—that is if they have anything so useful as a yard arm about a racing yacht.

WEST VICTORIA CONVENTION.

Mr. Newton Smale Chosen as Liberal Candidate.

A Young Man of Good Ability and an Intimate Acquaintance With Political Affairs—Successful Convention at Lindsay on Saturday.

Lindsay, Oct. 5.—The Liberals of West Victoria on Saturday placed at their head a worthy leader for the coming Provincial contest, Mr. Newton Smale of the Township of Ops, near Lindsay. Mr. Smale is a young farmer with special qualifications as a candidate. First of these must be placed his thorough knowledge of politics and everything that pertains to the history of the Province; next come his pleasant manner and good platform ability, and, thirdly, the fact that he has lived his life in Lindsay and the adjoining townships, and not a man can or would say an ill word of him. The convention was a fairly representative one, and the utmost good feeling prevailed. It was held in the Academy of Music, the excellent place of assembly with which Lindsay is blessed, and was presided over by Mr. George Johnston of Cannington, President of the South and West Victoria Reform Association. The convention opened shortly after 11 o'clock, and nominations were received both before and after the dinner hour. The number of names placed before the delegates was quite exceptional, and the list included many gentlemen who would have made worthy candidates, but the majority of them retired, leaving only three to be voted upon—Mr. Smale, Mr. Bowes and Dr. Herriman. One ballot decided the selection, Mr. Smale receiving a four-fifths vote of the delegates.

In opening the meeting Mr. Johnston briefly outlined some of the advantages which Ontario has enjoyed under the successive Liberal Administrations, and asked if any Liberal who had seen the methods of the Conservative party when in power at Ottawa would desire to have a change in Ontario.

Senator McHugh addressed the convention, impressing on them the fact that the struggle would be their struggle as much as it would be that of the candidate. The members of the present government were the same men who backed up Sir Oliver Mowat in his great struggle for Provincial rights. They had preserved Provincial autonomy, they had protected the rights of minorities. Mr. Ross had placed before the country now a policy of development such as no leader ever had before, and the Liberals should rally around their standard-bearers and see that the Premier had a good, substantial majority to carry out the policy of development he had laid down.

After a few words from Mr. R. Kennedy, Vice-President of the association, nominations were received as above stated. The convention adjourned at 12 o'clock until 2 o'clock, when the somewhat serious task of straightening out the immense list of candidates was entered upon. The nominees in retiring showed a unanimous determination to support the man who might be selected by the convention.

When it was announced that Mr. Smale was the choice, Dr. Herriman, in one of the hearty speeches that are characteristic of him, moved that the nomination be made unanimous, incidentally mentioning that he had voted for Mr. Smale himself. This was done by a standing vote, amid cheers much more enthusiastic than are commonly heard at conventions.

Mr. Smale in accepting the nomination, said that he had seen 101 objections to becoming the candidate for the riding, but since he wished him to become their standard bearer he cast all these objections behind him. He wished for victory for the Liberals of West Peterborough, and for himself; if it was not to be victory, he coveted honourable defeat. He had not been ambitious for a nomination, but since it had come his way he felt he would not be right in refusing it. He had long supported the Liberal cause from conviction. While they should make the warmest contest possible for their opponents, it should be a contest honourable to themselves, honourable to their opponents. "If this should be my battle," said Mr. Smale, "it would be a foregone conclusion from the start; it would be utter defeat; but I am the candidate, the standard bearer of the party, and that is all. It is your campaign and your fight, and if it is a victory, it is your victory." Mr. Smale contrasted the record of the Liberal Government with the vacillating course of the Opposition. Mr. Whitney, after being taunted by the Globe for months, had manufactured a policy. The Liberal leaders had great policies and great issues, which they propounded, not at the request of newspapers, but because in their own judgment the public good required it. He appealed to the delegates to rally around the old party and continue the policy of wise administration and economy.

Mr. McLaughlin of Lindsay, congratulated the convention on the selection of Mr. Smale, who was a man physically and mentally well fitted to be a candidate. He was a true man, a well-read man; no man in the constituency was better informed on politics than Mr. Smale. He was a good candidate, a faithful candidate and a man who would do his whole duty. He had a very strong conviction that they would elect Mr. Smale for the next four, the next eight, and the next sixteen years. Mr. McLaughlin insisted on the necessity of electing a man to Parliament when he was young if he was to be successful, pointing out that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was elected when he was younger than Mr. Smale, and was in the Cabinet when but a little older, while Pitt was in Parliament when when he was 21, and Premier before he was 30. Chamberlain, Balfour, Salisbury, all entered Parliament early in life.

Dr. McKay, ex-M.P.P., promised to do everything in his power to help elect Mr. Smale. Senator McHugh, Mr. Kennedy and Dr. Burrowes also spoke briefly. The convention broke up with hearty cheers for the candidate, the leaders and the King.

Mr. Smale was born in Mariposa in 1868, so that he is now 33 years of age. He is the son of Isaac Smale of Ops. He was educated in the Collegiate Institute at Lindsay, and ranked high among the students. While his brother, Mr. F. J. Smale, chose a professional career, and after graduating from the university, won the 1851 scholarship in science, Mr. Newton Smale chose agriculture as a calling and has taken a high standing as one of the most progressive, scientific and prosperous farmers in the county.

To simplify the organization, separate officers were elected for West Victoria as follows:
President—W. W. Weeks.
Vice-President—E. Mosgrove.
Secretary—Jas. Graham.

St. Magloire., Que., Oct. 6. (Special).—The following letter was written by a well-known and highly respected lady of this place, being a copy of the original sent to the Dodd's Medicine Company, of Toronto.

"When I wrote you for some Dodd's Kidney Pills I was so discouraged that I had no hope of being able to find any remedy to save my life. I suffered with Bright's Disease, Heart Disease and Rheumatism, and I was much bloated also with Dropsy. I was so feeble that I was unable to do anything. I suffered for sixteen years with Rheumatism. There were two years and a half that I suffered with Bright's Disease. I have tried all the remedies in the world, and always grew worse and worse.

"There was one time when for three months I abandoned all my remedies, and resolved to let myself die without taking any medicine. I received by chance one of your almanacs and a paper. I read them and I decided to write you and try again with your remedy.

"Great was my surprise at the good that Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me with the first box you sent, I took them and my health was greatly improved. Since then I have taken twenty boxes. I am cured of my Bright's Disease, my Heart Disease, and my Rheumatism. I have still two boxes to take and by the time I have finished them I shall be in perfect health. I will permit you to publish this letter with pleasure, and I hope later to give you the facts of my recovery more completely than at present. I am still weak, but with time I shall be as strong as ever. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with any of the diseases that I did."

B.C. Election Cases.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 4.—The Supreme Court heard argument yesterday in the Victoria, B.C., election case, in which preliminary objections to the petition against the return of the sitting members, Messrs. Prior and Earl, were overruled by the election judge. The objections were that the status of the petitioner was not proved, that the petition did not complain of either of the members' nomination, but only prayed that the members were not duly elected and that the election should be set aside. It was also claimed that the security was insufficient, $2,000 being deposited to meet the costs of both respondents, which would not be available to one of them.

On the conclusion of the hearing the court adjourned till next Monday for the re-hearing of Quebec appeals.

LINES OF THE FACE.

THEIR RELATION TO THE BEARD AND THE MUSTACHE.

A Knowledge of Drawing on the Part of Men, Says a Woman Artist, Would Have the Effect of Enhancing Masculine Good Looks.

"A knowledge of drawing on the part of men would have the effect of increasing their good looks," said a lady teacher of that art recently, "and it would make presentable many a man whose appearance is not calculated to excite admiration. It sounds an odd combination, drawing and beauty, does it not? Nevertheless it is a fact."

To the natural request for an explanation she replied:

"The first principles of drawing are geometrical lines and curves. These lines and curves occur in everything. A potter in criticising an ugly shaped jug will most probably tell you that its 'lines' are bad. Most of those who dabble in drawing and gain certificates merely learn to make these lines and curves without acquiring the slightest knowledge of their effect.

"Here is an example. Just take this pencil and draw a face. Oh, anything will do! But be sure to make two straight lines over the eyes for eyebrows. That's it. See how serious that expression is?

"Now rub out those straight lines and in their places make two curves with the ends upward. That face has an expression of intense surprise, hasn't it? If you had made curved eyebrows with the ends down in the first instance, the difference between the two would have been more striking.

"Well, the human face has its 'lines,' and by studying them our men could improve their appearance. The most elementary expedient is to adapt the mustache and beard to the lines of the face, and I must here tell you that 'lines' in technical language include both straights and curves. Such an expedient is within the reach of all, and there is no need for me to remind you that the whiskers make a tremendous difference in a man's appearance.

"Take a man with an aquiline nose, clear cut features and broad brow, then imagine this individual with a long, drooping mustache; why, it accentuates the whole 'droop' of the face and spoils it. Such a man should have a small pointed beard and a mustache with ends pointing slightly upward.

"The exact opposite is also frequently met with. A man with features that have a distinct upward tendency will wear a mustache with ends that are turned up and so long that they seem to be thinking of joining the eyebrows. Men with mustaches that display an inclination to grow long ends think that these ends should be permitted to grow and that they must be trained upward. That strikes them as the only proper way. But to suit the lines of the face those ends should in many cases be cut off, and in others they ought to be trained downward.

"Whiskers, again, are allowed to grow whether they suit the face or not. Often a fine, vigorous, manly face is contradicted by an insipid little mustache worn over a firm, clear cut mouth, the expression of which it does much to alter. It is quite a pity to see such fine lines spoilt in that way. The wearer cultivates the hirsute appendage merely because it is the fashion for men to have a mustache. You talk about women being slaves to Dame Fashion, but in the matter of your whiskers you men are worse slaves than we are to dress!

"Now don't run away with the notion that I advocate general shaving. Some men who are clean shaved ought not to be. The lines of their faces simply demand that of which they are depriving their countenance every morning. It requires a strong, very intellectual face to do without beard or mustache. The latter is an absolute necessity for hiding the bad lines of some mouths that would if left totally uncovered spoil the whole face.

"Women as a rule are more careful of their lines and choose hats and other things to match. Men also study their dress more than the hair on their faces, but a knowledge of drawing would correct many mistakes in hats, collars and other masculine accessories.

"In the matter of color we rather pass from the domain of drawing and mere 'lines' and trespass into the realm of painting, but I cannot resist saying that both men and women, especially the former, would be all the better looking if they knew more about the blending of colors, because they would not then choose hues which do not harmonize with their complexions. I have known a man with red hair to wear a red tie because red ties were fashionable!

"We are all going in for art and the beautiful nowadays, and you men are not handsome as a body. You could make yourselves more handsome by attending to such easily managed details as I have pointed out. See that your sons learn drawing."

FLOWER AND TREE.

Plants cannot live if deprived of their leaves.

Tea plants at the age of 7 years yield 700 pounds of tea to the acre.

The date palm requires a hot, dry air, but moisture about the roots and plenty of it.

Palms never live more than 250 years. Ivy has been known to live 450, chestnut 860, oak 1,600 and yew 2,880.

An oak tree of average size, with 700,000 leaves, lifts from the earth about 123 tons of water during the five months it is in leaf.

Jasmine is an Indian shrub. Its starry, wax white blossoms are indescribably sweet. All the burning pain and passion and pathos and mystery of the Hindoo race seem to rise up to you in its breath.

There is a rose tree with a trunk 2 feet 9 inches in circumference in a Ventura garden in California. It is a Lamarque, has been growing a quarter of a century and yielded over 21,000 blooms in 1895.

Applied Christianity.

Tommy had been quiet for fully five minutes. He seemed to be engaged with some deep problem.

"Papa," he said.

"Well?"

"'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you'—that's the golden rule, isn't it, papa?"

"Yes, my son."

"And it's puffickly right to follow the golden rule, isn't it, papa?"

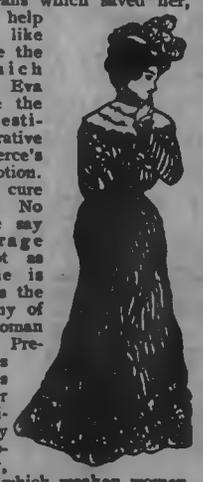
"Yes, indeed."

Tommy rose, went to the cupboard and returned with a knife and a large apple pie. The latter he placed before his astonished sire with great solemnity.

"Eat it, papa!" he said.—San Francisco Bulletin.

LOOKING BACK

To the time when she was plucked from the very grasp of death, the natural impulse of the womanly heart is thankfulness for the means which saved her, and a desire to help other women in like case. Those are the motives which prompted Mrs. Eva Burnett to write the accompanying testimonial to the curative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is only one cure out of thousands. No one would dare say that the average woman was not as truthful as she is good. And it is the truthful testimony of the average woman that "Favorite Prescription" cures womanly diseases when all other means and medicines absolutely fail. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves, restores the appetite and induces refreshing sleep.



"I have intended for some time to write to you," says Mrs. Eva Burnett, of Russellville, Logan Co., Ky., "and give a testimonial in regard to what your medicine has done for me. My baby came in July, 1895, and I had congestive chills, and lay at death's door for ten long weeks. I was in a dreadful condition and had six of the best doctors of the city. After everything had been done and I had been given up to die I asked my husband to get me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. He had no faith in it, but he got it, and when I had taken it two weeks I was able to walk to the dining room to my meals, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was able to cook for my family of four. I can never praise Dr. Pierce and his medicine enough."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

Cents East and West.

"There is always a scarcity of pennies in the west," says an official of the Philadelphia mint, "and a superabundance of them in the east. Every little while the banks out there set up a hoot and cry for pennies, but our banks here are ever glad to rid themselves of their surplusage in these coins. It is difficult to see why such a state of things should be. I'm sure a penny is just as dear to the easterner's heart as to the westerner's. One would no more throw a penny away than would the other, yet here we always have too many pennies. There they never seem to have enough."

Deathbed Flattery.

Almost every dying person is liable to be allured by the solemn attitude of the company and the restrained or flowing torrents of tears and emotions to an alternating conscious and unconscious comedy of conceitedness. The seriousness with which every dying person is treated has undoubtedly been the very finest enjoyment of his life to many a poor despised devil and a sort of indemnification and partial payment for much privation.—Works of Nietzsche.

Saluting With the Hat.

Before the invention of wigs the hat was rarely removed except to salute others, especially royal personages. It was worn at table when ladies or persons of rank were present. Except when saluting royalty it was the custom merely to raise the hand to the hat somewhat after the manner of a military salute. When it became the mode to wear a profusion of false hair, the hat was less needed as a protection for the head and was carried under the arm.

A Tart Retort.

The infant of a household was in its cradle. The head of the house was at home, peevish and fault finding. At length he became unendurable. "You have done nothing but make mistakes tonight," he growled.

"Yes," she answered meekly; "I began by putting the wrong baby to bed."

Why Housekeepers Lose Appetite.

The woman who orders a dinner has eaten it before it reaches the table. If she cooks it, too, then she has eaten it twice. Is it any wonder she has no appetite for a third course of it?

Silken raiment has a standing among the oldest garments in the world. Robes of that material were worn by men and women alike 2,500 years before the birth of Christ.

CULINARY CAPERS.

Rice has a finer flavor if washed in hot water instead of cold before cooking.

A little sugar added to the sauce, soup or vegetable in which too much salt has been used will remedy the evil.

Spanish sweet peppers and onions added to beef and potato hash give variety to the dish. Serve on slices of toast with a poached egg on top of each.

An excellent salad may be made with a foundation of string beans. Cut them in short lengths, sprinkle them with chopped chives, season with salt and pepper and cover with French dressing.

A plain rice pudding, the variety that is made with rice and milk and without eggs, is much improved if a cupful of almond meats, blanched and chopped very fine, is put in to be cooked with the pudding.

Onion juice improves the flavor of scrambled eggs, if onion is liked at all. While a tablespoonful of butter is melting in the chafing dish add a teaspoonful of onion juice or grated onion. This quantity is sufficient for six eggs.

In cooking new peas try for variety, tossing a small onion and one or two stalks of mint in the water in which they are boiled. Take both out, of course, before serving. It will be found an unrecognisable but delicious flavor has been added to the vegetable.

Does She Lose Speed by Running?

"Did you ever," asked an observant and somewhat cynical citizen, "take note of a woman running? I thought not. Well, I have, and I can tell you for a fact that a woman never runs quite as fast as she could walk. Sometimes, when women are hurrying to catch a car or something of that sort, they think they will get over the ground faster if they run; but, so far from accelerating their progress, it rather retards it. All the same, they seem to think they are going a great deal faster than they could walk, and perhaps that answers the purpose just as well. Sometimes I think they know better, but feel that they must make a bluff at speed. At any rate, when you have a good opportunity to estimate a running woman's speed just do it, and you will be convinced that I am not telling fairy stories.'

Every Woman Needs It.

There are times when every woman is tormented by itching skin and would give anything for relief. There is a preparation, known as Dr. Chase's Ointment, which is a prompt relief for these sufferings. Women prize it both for their own use and for its wonderful effectiveness in curing Baby Eczema, scald head chafing, and the various skin diseases of childhood.

If you will carefully read this advertisement, you will see how you may get absolutely free $500 in gold coin of the standard weight and fineness of the realm. We are manufacturers of Merrill's System Tonic, which is undoubtedly the best medicine in the world to-day. It is a thorough blood purifier, acting on all the glands of the body and enabling them to perform their natural work of eliminating all poisons from the system, and absorbing the valuable nourishment in the food. Hence, it cures skin diseases, such as pimples, itching sores, eczema, salt rheum, etc. Besides this, it is a muscular and nerve tonic, and this effect, combined with its alterative action, makes it a specific for constipation, which it cures on account of the combined action of its alterative and tonic properties. The cure it makes is permanent, and differs from the temporary effect of irritant drugs, of which most cathartic pills are composed. This alterative and tonic effect reaches every organ in the body, and cures the diseases attending them, such as dyspepsia, kidney diseases, pain in the back, urinary troubles, nervousness, sleeplessness, liver complaint and all female disease. Now, to win the above reward you have only to prove that our statements regarding the properties of Merill's System Tonic are false. We do not say it will be easy, but we do say if you have any of the above troubles, a cure is certain if you take Merrill's System Tonic.

A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which a sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. A Rush on in Wedding Cakes.

Hardly a day passes without seeing a new wedding cake displayed in the attractive show window of Messrs. Lane & Co's confectionery store. This firm seems to have had their hands full of wedding orders the past few weeks. Only last week four of these handsomely decorated, time-honoured crowning features of the bridal banquet were designed and completed to order by Lane & Co. This week three more bridal tributes are under way, and orders for two others have been placed for delivery at early dates. Such a record must be quite complimentary to Lane & Co., whose success in catering to the demand for these delicately bewitching triumphs of the confectioner's art seems to have gone the rounds of numerous prospective brides. 2d-1w

A PRESENTATION

Which was Made to Mrs. George Swain Last Evening.

The residence of Mr. David Wallace, No. 219 Dublin street, was the scene of a pleasing event last evening, when a large number of the friends of Mrs. George Swain gathered to bid her farewell on the eve of her departure for Manitoba, where Mr. Swain has already gone, and where they will reside in future. Dr. Jessie Birnie, on behalf of those who had assembled, read an address, and presented Mrs. Swain with a beautiful clock, and Mr. Swain with a pair of beautiful fur gauntlets. The address was as appended:

To Mrs. Susan Swain, Peterborough,

Dear Madam, — We, the undersigned, having learned with regret of your intended departure from among us, have met here for the purpose of spending one more evening together, and bidding you God-speed.

We all feel that, although the time has been so short since you decided to leave Peterborough, we could not let you go out from our midst without showing to you in some form the high esteem in which you have been held among us, and we ask you, therefore, to accept this clock as a small token of remembrance. We trust that while your eyes rest on it in your future home on the distant prairie of the west, you will think of your friends in Peterborough.

We trust that you and Mr. Swain will be abundantly rewarded with all the blessings, both of this world and the world to come.

Language cannot express the sadness we feel at parting with you, but we hope it is all for the best, and that God has ordered it so; and although some of us may never meet again on earth, we pray that we may all be permitted to meet in that better land where parting is unknown.

We desire you to convey to Mr. Swain, who has preceded you to the west, our best wishes for his future success and prosperity, and ask him to accept this pair of mittens as a small token of our esteem and respect.

Praying that both you and he may be long spared to enjoy all the blessings of this life, and in the world to come life everlasting.

A number of gramophone selections given by Mr. William Stone during the hour or two of social enjoyment that followed, were greatly appreciated. Refreshments were served during the evening.

CHIEF DOUGLAS' QUESTION.

What he Asked the Local Chief Regarding Copper Wire.

Chief Roszel received a letter this morning from Chief Douglas of Port Hope on a certain matter. Of course there is nothing extraordinary about this, as the Chiefs of the two towns often have occasion to conduct a friendly correspondence. But Chief Douglas is becoming sarcastic — he likes to give his brothers in the service a "josh" once in a while. This morning after saying what he wanted to say on a certain matter, he added in the form of a post script—"How much copper wire will a fellow have to steal in your town before he can be convicted?" The Chief is not going to answer the question just yet, but when he recovers enough stolen wire to construct a telephone line between here and Port Hope he will call up Chief Douglas and tell him.

ENLARGED WEEKLY EXAMINER

An Addition of From Eighteen to Twenty Columns of Reading Matter.

October 10th witnesses the issue of the Weekly Examiner in a much enlarged and improved form, and it will hereafter be an eight-page, eight column or 64 column weekly journal. The columns are also considerably lengthened so that the enlargement means an addition of between eighteen and twenty columns of reading matter. The contents of the Weekly will include all the current foreign news and all the local news of the county and district. The padded weeklies of the city may strive to compete with the local weekly, but they can never take its place. The function of a local paper is to give the local news and this it supplies in a form and to an extent which the most pretentious outside weekly cannot and will not do.

Correspondents are asked to have their matter in not latter than Wednesday morning to ensure publication the same week.

FROM TOM MILLER.

He Writes Home to His Mother Mrs. F. W. Miller.

Mrs. F. W. Miller has received the following letter from her son, Tom, now in South Africa:

Bloomfontein, Sept. 8th.

Dear Mother, — I have just received a letter from you, and one from Kitty. We are still doing duty in this place, and I can tell you we are sick of it. I wish we could go on the trek again, as it is much better than being in a place like this. There is however some good news. They say we are going down to Cape Town about the 17th of this month, and will sail shortly afterwards. I only hope it is true as I think we have been out here long enough, and I want to get home to my wife.

Well, mother, I see by one of those bits of paper that you sent me that Sgt. Spicer has got home. I hope that he will come down to see you; he was the last one I saw in this country that I knew, and I saw him several times. The last time I saw him was at Pelt Reteiff, last March, when he was wounded. He said he would go and see you. Father knows him; he was a drummer in C School.

Well, dear Mother, I don't know of any more to say this time, so hoping to be home soon, I remain, as ever, your loving son. Give my love to all.

TOM.

HUNTING NOTES.

The E. A. Peck Hunt Club Lodge Almost Completed—Members are Leaving for the North.

A meeting of the E. A. Peck Hunt Club was held, last evening, for the purpose of fixing the date on which the party will leave for Lake Ketchecum to occupy the new hunting lodge, which is in course of construction by McIntyre Bros.

It was decided that a portion of the party would leave next week for the north and the remainder would proceed to join them the week following.

The club is composed of twenty members and for their accomodation during the hunting season the lodge is being built on a very pretty point on Lake Ketchecum.

HANDKERCHIEF SALE.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. held last week, it was decided to hold a handkerchief sale on the 20th of November in the building. The funds secured from the same will be applied to furnishing the new rooms. The plan of the affair is a unique one. All who wish to have a part in the sale are asked to contribute a handkerchief, and in order to assist in this a nicely printed invitation has been sent out to those who may be so interested. The invitation is in poetry, and the object well expressed in one of the couplets:

So this, then, is our plan in brief,
To help along our enterprise;
You each shall send a handkerchief,
Regardless of its kind and size.

There will also be a doll and candy table, and contributions are solicited for these. In the afternoon of the day of the sale there will be a tea. The ladies meet on Thursday, 17th when final arrangements will be made. Mrs. C. B. McAllister is convenor of the committee has the matter in hand.

THEY ARE WINNERS.

Mr. Robt. Leary's Horses at the Keene Fall Show.

Mr. R. H. Leary, Peterborough's well-known livery man, does not make a practice of showing his horses at fall shows, but if anyone hires them in the ordinary way, and carries off prizes with them, he can't help it. This is just what was done last week. Mr. Jas. Gillespie of Smith, hired the bay mare "Minnie" from Mr. Leary, and went down to the Keene show, and in the face of keen competition carried off 3rd in the driving class. Mr. Thomas Tully, of Millbrook, did better than this. He hired the brown mare, "Maud" to go to the same show, entered it also and carried off 2nd prize over the horse that took first at Lakefield and second in Peterborough.

POTTING AND RE-POTTING.

This is the season for potting and re-potting the flowers and preparing them for their winter quarters. Nothing in the line of house decorating gives such life and glow to the rooms as flower-filled windows. Whatever you want to help you with your "garden in the window" you will find in brilliant, novel and ornamental bloom and foliage. West End Greenhouses, 465 Park street, residence of G. M. Roger. Telephone 21a. A. Blade, manager.

PERSONALS.

Miss Grace Ely, of New York, and Miss Taylor of Toronto, are visiting Miss Gertrude Kendry.

Miss Carrie Goodfellow, of Brooklyn, who has been the guest of Miss Margaret Cox, for the past week, is leaving to-day to spend a few days at the Pan-American on her way home.

Mr. W. H. Cummings, manager of the "Thelma" Company, who occupy the opera house to-night, held an engagement for three years in the Toronto Theatre, and comes with excellent credentials.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—There are inquiries at this office for position as servant.

—The second day of the Norwood Fair will be to-morrow.

—The Centreville Fair will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

—The Thelma Company arrived in town to-day and are at the National Hotel. They will appear in the house to-night.

—Victoria Park is enclosed with a wire fence for the remainder of the season, and the public are warned against trespassing thereon.

—Don't be taken in by peddlers selling spectacles. The glasses are ruinous to your eyes, and the frames are only brass, which some by experience have learned. It is safer to go to a responsible optician, and know what you are getting. The Tate Optical Company, "Specialists," are the most reliable. 428 George street.

CATTLE FAIR.

The congregation of St. Joseph's church, Douro, intend holding another cattle fair. It will be held on the lot immediately opposite St. Joseph's church, on Tuesday, October 29th inst. There and then over 150 cattle will be disposed of and the debt still remaining against St. Joseph's church wiped out. Buyers from all over the province will be present.

EVENING SCHOOL.

No Better Opportunities Were Ever Offered to Men.

The enrolment in the Y. M. C. A. evening educational classes has begun, and as the school opens next week, it is desireable that all students register this week for the courses they purpose taking up. Up to the present time the classes in mechanical drawing, and algebra promise to be the largest. No better opportunities were ever offered to men of all occupations to improve their time and thus by study to improve their positions. The following is the list of the subjects to be taken up, in addition to the two already mentioned: — Electricity, arithmetic, bookeeping, shorthand, English, business and commercial law, intermediate combined course, and orchestra music. The general secretary will be pleased to consult with students at any time.

NEW CLOTHING ENTERPRISE

Combining the Experience of Three Manufacturing Firms.

The T. O. Rush Clothing Company and What it is.

Modern wants beget modern methods. Clothing is as old as man, yet in nothing else is there so much desire for something to meet the ever-changing requirements of mankind and, especially, womankind. But the subject of this little article is of sterner stuff than the habilimentary frivolities of the gentler sex. Man has peculiar needs, and say what you will, man is just as exacting in his clothing requirements as the vainest woman, and to meet these requirements in a manner never before presented in Peterborough is the special mission of a new clothing supply establishment about to be placed in our midst.

In announcing the opening of the establishment of the T. O. Rush Clothing Company, one has to announce something unique and superior in its line.

About the end of the week—notice of the exact date will be given—this clothing house will open its doors to the public at 403 George street, which is being fitted up in the most modern and elegant manner, worthy of receiving one of the finest stocks of ready-to-wear, down-to-date clothing ever lifted out of packing cases in Peterborough. The guarantee of this claim is found in the fact that the T. O. Rush Clothing Company represents a strong triple combination — large capital, large experience and large knowledge of the business, from the raw material to the finished garment, complete in every detail, modern in fabric and correct in style. The company represents some of the most successful manufacturers of cloths in Canada, and the new stock of the new clothing establishment represents the latest special output of the three most prominent manufacturers of clothing in Canada, manufactured especially for this fall and winter's trade in Peterborough. The material of this stock of high-class clothing is from the best looms and comprises fabrics of English, Canadian, Irish, Scotch, French and American manufacture, each with its special excellencies and claims to preferance. Consequently the stock of the T. O. Rush Clothing Company is modern and up-to-date, in material, texture, fabric, style and general character. To fill the special order of the firm it has all been manufactured within a few weeks; indeed, some of it, particularly the clothing for boys and youths, is now in process of manufacture.

The new firm will be in a position to cater to the wants of the best trade of the town, and district. Not only will the new stock of clothing of the new company possess the distinguishing features of excellence recounted, but the stock was purchased for cash, with all the implied advantages to the customer which such a mode of purchase on an extensive scale represents.

It is safe to say, without any exaggeration, that never has been offered for sale in Peterborough, or on terms more favourable to the purchaser, a better stock of clothing than will be offered at the store of the T. O. Rush Co. in the future. It is to be borne in mind that the goods are all new, of the very latest styles, especially manufactured within the past few weeks for the fall and winter trade of the good town of Peterborough and surrounding country. There is no old stock, either in fashion of fabric, or date of make. The goods are all bona fide goods, offered at prices that mean bona fide values. Bought for cash in the very best markets, they will be sold for cash, and the clipping of cost at both ends of the transaction gives the purchaser unexcelled values in unexcelled goods, the best ready-to-wear, up-to-date goods that can be bought.

Not only have the members of the firm had large experience in the production of the best clothing materials, which has given them an inside knowledge of the market, but the manager of the firm, Mr. T. O. Rush has had a lengthy and intimate experience in the retail and manufacturing departments of the ready-to-wear clothing trade, and his very large connection in this county will be pleased to know that this experience and knowledge of the business will be placed at their service in his capacity of manager of the T. O. Rush Clothing Company, which will open its doors for business, at 403 George street, on

SUCCESSFUL RALLY

Of the Three Epworth Leagues Held Last Night at Charlotte Street.

The union meeting of the Methodist Leagues of Peterborough and Ashburnham last night was a decided success. The Charlotte street hall was tastefully decorated with flags, festoons of grain and tinted maple leaves.

The addresses by Mr. Stubbs, Rev. D. O. Crossley and Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil were deeply interesting and attentively listened to. The open discussion brought many members to their feet and proved so interesting that the subject will be continued at the next open meeting.

The musical part of the programme was a treat. The male quartette consisting of Messrs. A. Froude, A. Doidge, E. Doidge and B. Turner, sang in magnificent voice "Just as I am." The duet "Love's dream," by Miss Stevens and Mr. Doidge, was charmingly rendered. The meeting was brought to a suitable termination with "Bleat be the tie that binds." Miss S. Campbell was the accompanyist of the evening.

WALL PAPER CLEARANCE.

Great Double Sale of a Great Double Stock.

Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Co. have been unable to display a large portion of their recent purchase of the Turnbull stock of wall paper, bought at so great a sacrifice. Now, thanks, to the past fortnight's great business the way is clear, and a practically new sale begins on Monday. The bulk of the patterns now removed from Turnbull's store, are fully on a par with their own regular stock. But what is of more importance to buyers is the fact that just about half prices is all you'll be asked to pay. With this great double stock to pick from, there is practically everything to suit the needs of everybody.

THE FIFTY-SEVENTH ENTRAINS TO-NIGHT

Nunc ut Semper Paratus, for Royal Review.

FINAL ORDERS WERE ISSUED.

What is Required of Our Citizen Soldiers—No Tunic Buttons for Toronto Girls—Notes of Interest

There was a first class turn out of the 57th Regt. last night, and the march out down George street was witnessed by many townspeople. Both bands were in attendance, and the commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Edwards was mounted. The town of course, was in darkness, and the regiment did not show up to advantage. The companies were well filled up and their marching was splendid. On returning to the drill shed the men were put through company drill.

• • •

The members of the regiment were last night furnished with their new helmets. They are pretty stylish-looking too, and will set off the regiment in fine style. Helments will be worn to-night.

• • •

Sergt. George Burnham, of No. 4 Co., lost night met with an accident that prevented his going on parade last night, and may infact, prevent his going to Toronto. While coming to town he collided with another bicyclist, and came out considerably the worse. His head was badly cut, necessitating several stitches. Sgt. Burnham is one of the most popular non-coms. of the regiment, and his friends will regret exceedingly to learn of his misfortune.

• • •

Surgeon-Major Young of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, is being attached to the 57th, Surgeon Major Halliday being absent from town. Major Young will enjoy the trip to Toronto as well as the next

• • •

Lieut.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, commanding officer of the 57th, sends the Examiner the following:

To the Editor of the Examiner:

I desire through your columns to acknowledge the courtesy and public spirit of the management of our Manufactories and other employers in allowing the men in their employ leave of absence to attend the Royal Review at Toronto. It has been recognized that the occasion is much more than an ordinary one, and even in cases where it has been done at considerable inconvenience permission to go has been freely and heartily given.

The Manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, in whose employ there are about 100 of the men of the Regiment, set the example by writing me some time ago asking the names of their men in the Regiment, so that arrangements might be made to let them away. The same public spirit has been shown by others, and it tends greatly to encourage officers and men to do their best to uphold the credit of the Regiment and of the town.

Yours truly,
E. B. EDWARDS,
Lieut.-Col.

THE FIRST FROST.

(For the Daily Examiner.)

And now the leaves are falling,
Yellow and bronze and red;
And autumn birds are calling
That Spring, and its birds, are dead.

'Tis false; the Spring is smiling,
And Summer is in its prime,
With brilliancy beguiling
Redundance of Autumn time.

The vernal tints, outgrowing,
Bounds which the Spring had set,
In perfect bloom are glowing
On Summer's coronet.

And Summer's wealth, outspreading
It's strength and primal cheer,
In radiance is wedding
The prince of the royal year!

Oh, days, transcending beauty!
Most gorgeous in the train,
Your only peer is duty,
Self-sacrifice and pain

Laid on the altar blandly,
With joy and not regret;
Unrecognized, but grandly,
That gem with sorrow wet,
In heavy crown is set.

'Twill grace a clime more kindly,
And tell of distant years
We groped among, as blindly
As through a veil of tears.

An Ideal Ready-made Food.

Prof. Naumann, a most eminent authority on chemical and medical questions, says that cod liver oil is almost an ideal ready-made food. He says it is easy to digest, easily makes fat, and is also a medicine. Scott's Emulsion contains this oil so prepared that it is not at all unpleasant.

To the Lungs.

Do you go to Chicago to reach Quebec? No. There's a better and more direct way. Then why try to reach your lungs by way of your stomach? Don't. Better go straight to the lungs at once. Just light the vaporizer and breathe-in the healing, soothing vapors of Cresolene. The medicine goes exactly to the right place. Your lungs quickly heal and your cough disappears. For whooping-cough it's simply perfect. 7

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPO-CRESOLENE Co., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

Recommended and sold in Peterborough by H. H. Edmison, druggist.

HON. N. CLARKE WALLACE.

He Is Very Ill, and Physician Is Using Chloride of Sodium.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—Hon. N. Clarke Wallace passed a very bad night on Saturday. His condition was so critical that his physician, Dr. King, stayed near him all night, and the nurse in attendance found his respiration so weak at times as to think that the end was near. On Sunday morning he appeared much better. His mind was clearer and he was able to recognize Mr. Tighe, a friend from Montreal, who had called to see him. On Sunday night he was weaker again, and could not collect his thoughts sufficiently to tell Dr. King what he wanted, but at 8 o'clock was not as weak as on Saturday night. His physicians are injecting chloride of sodium into his veins with the hope of changing the condition of his blood.

A Common Form of Indigestion

Which cannot be cured by ordinary stomach medicine—The kidneys, liver and bowels become deranged — Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pill.

By far the most important part of digestion takes place in the intestines, as has been repeatedly shown in cases where the stomach has been removed and the patient has lived and digested food without the aid of the stomach.

It frequently happens that people who continually dose the stomach for indigestion and use pepsin and various kinds of digestive tablets and powders can obtain no relief from such treatment, because the real trouble is in the intestines, the liver and the kidneys.

There is fullness and pains after meals, coated tongue, headache, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and in the back and shoulders, flatulency and constipation, frequently alternating with diarrhoea.

In cases of intestinal indigestion the liver and kidneys usually become clogged and sluggish in action, and poisonous impurities are left in the blood, which should be removed by these filtering organs.

There has yet to be a remedy discovered that is so prompt and thorough in curing intestinal indigestion as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. And as this is the most common and severe form of indigestion it can well be claimed that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most successful treatment extant for indigestion and dyspepsia.

Mrs. T. Woodley, Tyrone, Ont., writes:—"I was a great sufferer for a long time with indigestion and very distressing pains in my stomach. I was persuaded to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Their mild yet powerful action worked wonders in me."

It is not unusual for persons who have long been suffering from chronic indigestion, biliousness and constipation to be thoroughly cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have by far the largest sale of any similar remedy. You may be skeptical, as others have been before you, but a single trial of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will convince you of their unusual medicinal value. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

An Effort to Speak.

Dogs in a native or wild state never bark. They simply whine, howl and growl. The noise which we call barking is found only among those that are domesticated. Columbus found that to be the case with the dogs he first brought to America and left at large, for on his return he tells us that they had lost their propensity to bark. Scientific men say that barking is really an effort on the part of the dog to speak.

He Knew.

She—How beautifully Miss Heavy weight dances! She doesn't seem to touch the floor sometimes!

He (whose feet are still suffering from the last polka with her)—She doesn't!

His Record as an Abstainer.

She—Are you a total abstainer, Colonel Blue Grass?

He—Yes, ma'am. I hain't touched water for 40 years.

BY THE LITTLE ONES.

A Few Bright Thoughts by Some Clever Youngsters.

The pony was shedding his coat, and when 4-year-old Helen noticed it she ran into the house, exclaiming: "Oh, mamma, come and look at Billie! He's all moth eaten."

"When are you going to have the measles?" asked a visitor of small Johnny, whose little sister had them.

"Just as soon as Minnie gets through with them," was the logical reply.

Little Bessie had been burned several times and was warned to keep away from the stove. One day while in the garden she chanced to be stung by a bee, and running to her mother exclaimed, "Oh, mamma, I didn't know the bugs carried stoves with them!"

A lady frequently sent her 5-year-old son to a neighbor's for milk. One day, wanting some sour milk, she gave him the pail and said, "Charlie, go over to Mrs. Smith's and get a pint of sour milk." Charlie looked surprised and said, "Why, mamma, has Mrs. Smith got a sour cow too?"—Chicago News.

Ate His Bonnet.

An English driver for a Market street business house persuaded his employer to buy a straw hat for the horse during the recent hot spell, and on Tuesday the horse appeared without the new headgear.

"What has become of the horse's bonnet, Harry?" asked one of the firm. "Don't you think it is hot enough this morning?"

"'Ot enough! That it is, sir, but the bloomin 'oss ate the 'at afore I could put it on 'im this mornin," said 'Arry.

Effect of Too Much.

Mr. Goodanplenty—Sit down, De Thirst, old friend. We'll have a nice quiet lunch together.

"Excuse me a moment; somebody wants to speak to me at the door."

Later on: "You might leave the chair, old man, even if you must have the fizz."

57—62 the Critical Age.

Height of vigour past — nature's power slowing down, vitality less, recuperative power less, endurance less. Stop the progress of decay, tone up the weakened nerve centres, impart vigour to the tiring brain, prepare for the crisis. A means of remarkable protency in the renewal of decreasing vigour is found in Ferrozone. It brightens up the whole being, imparts a sence of power and strength. By the use of Ferrozone, old age is pushed back twenty years. Ferrozone gives strength, vigour, endurance, vim. Ormond & Walsh have it. Get a box to-day.

Eighty Persons Killed.

London, Oct. 8.—In Pavlouka, a town of 4,000 inhabitants, 120 miles from Kharkoff, says a despatch to The Standard from Moscow, a quarrel between students and orthodox church people led to a free fight. The Russian church was wrecked. The police were powerless and troops were sent from Kharkoff to restore order. The Russian priests escaped with the more valuable sacred images and altar vessels.

A "DEMON" DISEASE

Doctors prescriptions and strongest Liniments had no effect on Mr. Humphreys' Rheumatism.

Two bottles South American Rheumatic Cure cured what he is pleased to call "this Demon from the Lower Regions."

Henry Humphrey, of London, Ont., expresses himself very strongly:—"I think Rheumatism is a demon from the lower regions, judging by my sufferings before I began using South American Rheumatic Cure. Doctors prescribed the strongest liniments with no more effect than water, but this great remedy had me up and about my work, and as well as ever, after taking only a couple of bottles."

Mrs. Witmer, a Dayton, Ohio, Widow, Makes a Record.

Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 8.—Mrs. A. J. Witmer, a widow residing in this city, has been arrested by the police at the instigation of the Coroner, and is held a prisoner at central station pending an investigation into very serious charges. Mrs. Witmer, the police say, is suspected of fourteen murders, the list including four husbands, five children, one sister, and four members of different families in which she was employed as housekeeper. The last supposed victim was her sister, Mrs. Anna Pugh, who died a week ago under mysterious circumstances. An autopsy, performed at the request of Mrs. Witmer's mother, who came here from Detroit, is said to have disclosed the presence of arsenic and coperas in the stomach. Following closely upon the death of her first husband, Fred Schweger, came, according to the police department data, the death of two children. The second husband died suddenly several years after the wedding, and the children of this marriage died in rapid succession. Her last husband, A. J. Witmer, died last April. In each instance, death was somewhat sudden, and all were strangely alike. The prisoner is 47 years of age and formerly lived in Middletown, this State. She has two sons in the Philippines, and a sister, it is stated, in a New York asylum. No conceivable motive for the suspected crimes has been disclosed. Drugs found in the house occupied by Mrs. Witmer, are in the possession of the police, and will be examined.

The third husband of Mrs. Witmer was William Stowe, who died in Middletown with alleged symptoms of arsenical poisoning. Mr. Stowe's death was investigated by the coroner, but without result. Shortly after Mr. Stowe's death Mrs. Witmer came to Dayton, and became housekeeper for Charles K. Keller, a widower. Keller died suddenly, and the information since gained by the coroner concerning Keller's death is that his ailmone was similar to that of a person affected by poison. Mrs. Witmer next acted as housekeeper for John A. Wease, a druggist. In July last Wease's 4-year-old son suddenly died, and two months later Wease died. The doctors attributed Wease's death to blood poisoning, but now tell the coroner they were dissatisfied with their diagnosis at the time. Mrs. Stowe then went to live with a Mr. and Mrs Gabler on East street, Riverdale. These two persons died suddenly, and the coroner now says the sickness was the feature of arsenical poisoning.

Four Killed in a Feudal Fight.

Middlesboro, Ky., Oct. 8.—A feudal fight, in which four persons were killed and four wounded, occurred Sunday at the Big Springs Union Baptist Church over Tennessee line.

The killed: Tip Chadwell, James Chadwell, Rush Morgan and Henry Morgan.

The wounded: Henry Overstreet, mortally; Tex Jones, mortally; Morgan, leg broken, and Joe Moberly, flesh wound.

The feud has existed between the Virginia Morgans and the Tennessee Chadwells since the civil war. Since then thirty Morgans and forty Chadwells have been killed in the numerous fights that have taken place.

TIME EXTENDED.

The Brigands Will Give Miss Stone's Friends Another Month.

London, Oct. 8.—It is reported from Sofia, says a despatch from Vienna to The Daily Express, that United States Consul Dickinson and an envoy of the missionary society arrived there Saturday intending to follow up Miss Stone, the abducted missionary, and to deposit a portion of the ransom. The brigands have extended the time of payment one month.

Ransom Comes Slowly.

Boston, Oct. 8.—The fund for the ransom of Miss Helen Stone, the American missionary captured by brigands in Turkey, at 11 o'clock yesterday had reached $27,000.

At noon yesterday the fund had grown to $42,959.

A New Departure.

A New, Effectual and Convenient Cure for Catarrh.

Of catarrh remedies there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies to relieve, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water through the nose would often relieve and the washes, douches, powders and inhalers in common use are very little, if any, better than the old fashioned salt water douche.

The use of inhalers and the application of salves, washes and powders to the nose and throat to cure catarrh is no more reasonable than to rub the back to cure kidney disease. Catarrh is just as much a blood disease as kidney trouble or rheumatism and it cannot be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

To cure catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach an internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to drive the catarrhal poison out of the blood and system, and the new catarrh cure is designed on this plan and the remarkable success of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is because being used internally it drives out catarrhal infection through action upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman of St. Joseph, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrh sufferers everywhere. He says:—"I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchital tubes and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but as I was able to keep up and do a day's work I let it run along until my hearing began to fail me and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh or lose my position as I was clerk and my hearing was absolutely necessary.

"Some of my friends recommended an inhaler, another a catarrh salve but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and bought a package at my drug store. They benefitted me from the start and in less than four months I was completely cured of catarrh although I had suffered nearly all my life from it.

"They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies that I feel I cannot say enough in favour of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

A little book on cause and cure of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and the tablets are sold by all druggists in the United States and Canada.

To cure a cold in a night—use Vapo-Cresolene. It has been used extensively during more than twenty-four years. All Druggists.

TO BE ALL-AMERICAN

Agreement for a New Isthmian Canal Treaty.

U. S. TO CONTROL THE CANAL.

The Clayton-Bulwer Pact Dead—Great Britain Has Agreed to Treaty Making the Proposed Canal Distinctively Pro-American—New Agreement Will Be Presented to the U.S. Senate.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Walter Wellman wires The Record-Herald from Washington: The United States and Great Britain have reached an agreement concerning the Isthmian Canal question, and the new treaty will be presented to the Senate for its ratification early in the coming session. I am now able to give the substance of this treaty. It provides:

1. For abrogation of the old Clayton-Bulwer treaty in toto.

2. For a neutral Isthmian canal, in case one be constructed by the United States, open in time of peace to the ships of all nations, upon equal terms.

3. This neutrality is guaranteed by the United States alone, and other maritime powers are not invited to participate in such guarantee. Great Britain is inferentially one of the guarantors, because she is a party to this treaty.

4. In case of war, the United States reserves the right to take such steps for its own protection as it may deem proper.

It will be seen that the new treaty meets the principal objections which were offered to the old Hay-Pauncefote convention, and which led to its rejection by the Senate.

While the principle of neutrality is asserted, the United States alone guarantees that neutrality, and no European powers are invited to give their assent to it.

It was this feature, more than any other, which led to the defeat of the former treaty. Many Senators were willing to join with Great Britain in a guarantee of the neutrality of the proposed new waterway, because England already enjoyed certain treaty rights upon the Isthmus. But they were decidedly unwilling to invite other European nations to give their assent.

Those nations had no standing in the case, and it was deemed most unwise to invite them to participate in a purely American affair with which they had no direct concern.

By the terms of the new treaty, the United States may, in time of war, deal with the canal as it deems best for its own interests. It may close the canal to the ships of its enemies, and could, if it were thought advisable (which no one believes it ever will be) fortify the channel or its terminal.

In the broad sense, the Isthmian waterway is to be "all-American." The United States is to build it and to have complete control of it, unhampered by onerous restrictions.

Englishmen Will Be Startled.

London, Oct. 8.—The Washington correspondent of The Daily Chronicle gives the alleged substance of a provisional canal treaty, abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

Commenting editorially upon the advices, The Daily Chronicle says:

"Englishmen will be startled to learn that we have abandoned our rights under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and surrendered every disputed point without any compensation. The new treaty is apparently another instance of Lord Salisbury's placid indifference and Lord Lansdowne's impulsive generosity."

KIDNAPPERS HELD.

Sensational Case in Philadelphia Looks Bad For the Prisoners.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 8.—Charged with abducting and robbing Mabel Goodrich, the proprietress of a disreputable establishment, Howard K. Sloan, Henry E. Wallace, D. Knight Finlay and Oscar S. Dunlap, were yesterday brought before a magistrate and committed without bail, for a further hearing next Monday.

The woman was the first witness against the prisoners, and identified each of them. She then told the remarkable story of her abduction, confinement and robbery, as detailed in these despatches. She concluded her testimony by stating that she had been robbed of her jewelry, valued at $2,500, and cash amounting to $70, and forced to sign cheques for $500. After a cheque for $155 had been cashed, she had been released, she said.

Detective Donaghy related the story of the arrest of the prisoners, and stated that all had confessed.

Two Ottawa Tragedies.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Isadore Bureau, 97 Cathcart street, an old man, was yesterday found lying dead in the hallway of his own house. On his breast was a Fenian raid medal, and his clothes and boots were covered with mud. His latch-key was in his hand. People in the house say they heard two men put Bureau into the house Sunday night. He had about $30 on Saturday, but only a few cents were found in his pockets by the coroner. An inquest will be held.

Harry Turcotte, 7 years old, son of Charles Turcotte of the city fire alarm department, was drowned in Patterson's Creek Sunday, while playing in a boat.

Mr. Peter Campbell, the popular president of the Golf Club, is wearing a very handsome silk tile, as the result of a wager, which he made with a well known member, to the effect that Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Toronto could win from the Bank of Commerce and the Ontario Bank by eight holes. Mr. Campbell and Mr. Myles Hamilton represented the first two banks and Mr. W. D. Parker with Mr. R. C. McHarrie played for Ontario and Commerce. Mr. Campbell and Mr. Hamilton won by 4 up and 2 to play, and as a consequence Mr. Campbell has a new silk hat to wear to the Duke's reception in Toronto.

In the semi-finals of the Ladies' Championship yesterday, Miss Daisy Hamilton won from Mrs. R. M. Denistoun by one hole. In the first round the two players tied in both strokes and holes. In the second round Miss Hamilton was one hole and one stroke up, winning the eighteenth hole. Miss Hamilton will now play Mrs. Campbell in the finals.

RUGBY.

A meeting of the Team Committee of the Peterborough Rugby Club was held in the Y.M.C.A., last night, when the team for Ottawa on Saturday next was roughly drafted. It will be announced later

The management of the local team this morning received a communication from the Ottawa team asking that the dates of the matches between Ottawa 2nd and Peterborough be changed so that the Senators might play here on Saturday and the Peterboroughs in Ottawa a week later. A meeting of the local Executive was held at noon and it was decided to stick to the original schedule. Peterborough will play in Ottawa on Saturday of this week.

Trinity College School telephoned out to-day regarding a game with Peterborough's second. They will be accommodated later on.

Every man of the local team is urged to turn out to practice until the end of the week.

And then the winners could play sudden death games till they were knocked out or landed the championship.

It Gives New Vitality, Strengthens Brain Power and Maintains Perfect Digestion.

MR. G. CRAWFORD,
AN OCTOGENARIAN SPEAKS OF THE WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

Paine's Celery Compound has added years of peace, free from the infirmities of old age, to thousands of lives. It stimulates the vital powers; it keeps the body free from pains; it gives perfect action to the kidneys; it keeps up nerve force; it builds strength and makes life happy and enjoyable. Multitudes of people reduced in strength, sleepless, nervous, and apparently near the end of life, have joyfully testified to rapid gain in vigour with regular and refreshing sleep after a trial of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Geo. Crawford, London, Ont., writes as follows:—

"After using eight bottles of Paine's Celery Compound, I wish to let you know the results. I had a painful fullness and an unnatural heat in the top of my head, and it felt as if something was rolling through it. I had dizziness, I slept little and irregularly, was troubled with restlessness and uneasy dreams, and my appetite was bad. I am now vastly changed by the use of your medicine; I sleep well and relish my food, and nervous system is greatly renewed. I feel my whole system better. I cannot expect at seventy-nine years of age to be as I was at thirty, but Paine's Celery Compound has done wonders for me."

DEATH OF THE AMEER

Ruler of Afghanistan Died After a Brief Illness.

SHORT SKETCH OF HIS CAREER

Notice of the Death Was Sent to the British Agent at Kabul by Habib Oullah Khan, His Eldest Son—His Death May Be the Signal for Fierce Civil War—Was British Nominee.

London, Oct. 8.—A news agency last evening publishes the following despatch from Simla, dated the same evening:

"Habib Oullah Khan, eldest son of the Ameer of Afghanistan, has reported to the British agent at Kabul that the Ameer died last Thursday, after a brief illness."

Sketch of His Life.

Abdurrahman Khan was the eldest son of Mohammed Afzul Khan, grandson of the famous Dost Mohammed and nephew of the late Ameer, Shero Ali. Born in 1830, he had had the wild career of an Oriental Prince of the type dear to lovers of the Arabian Nights. Civil war raged in 1864, and he took sides against his uncle, winning the battles of Shaikhabad and Khelat-i-Ghizai. The, four years later, Yakoub Khan, son of Shere Ali, defeated him in turn, and he fled to take asylum with the Russians. In one of his stories Kipling tells a tale which is current of the Ameer's wild early life, when, defeated and hunted, he was forced for a while to make his living by manual labor. The Russians treated Abdurrahman Khan with consideration, gave him a residence at Samarcand and allowed him a pension of 35,000 roubles. His chance came in the confusion to which the second Afghan war brought his country. In 1879 he made his way to the Kabul frontier, and, having gained the allegiance of the leading men of that district, the British Government finally decided that he was a better candidate than the irreconcilable Yakoub. He was recognized as Ameer, established on the throne and given a subsidy of twelve lakhs of rupees a year, besides helped in various other directions. Despite his ten years' of residence with the Russians, he adopted a pro-British attitude, and afterwards steadily held to his bargain. He made by it, for with his treasury filled with British money and his arsenals filled with rifles made under the supervision of English engineers, he cemented his hold upon Afghanistan and even extended its borders, by agreement with the Indian Government, into remote Kafiristan. In 1893 a British mission to delimit the Anglo-Afghan frontier was treated with much civility: at the same time his sibsidy was increased to eighteen lakhs, and he was given the G. C. S. I. During the Tirah campaign he used his influence on the side of the Indian Government.

There is no Afghan nation, and some one or other of the tribes are perpetually in revolt and have to be reduced to order by military expeditions from Kabul. His death will probably be the signal for fierce civil war.

The Ameer leaves four sons, the eldest being Habid Oullah Khan, to whom the succession would naturally fall. but he is said to be held in little esteem by the royal house and by the people on account of his birth, his mother being of low decent. It was the second son. Nasr Oullah Khan, who visited England in 1895. The fourth son, Mohammed Omar, has a strong following. He is quite young and a great favorite with the Princes and the people.

CLARKE WALLACE DYING.

Physicians Say West York's M.P. Can Last Only a Few Hours.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Hon. N. Clarke Wallace was very much weaker last night. Dr. McPherson and Dr. Temple held a consultation at his bedside at 11 o'clock, having been summonged from the city after 8 o'clock. They met Dr. King, the local physician. After a careful examination the decision arrived at was that Mr. Wallace's case was hopeless, and that his end was only a matter of a few hours, perhaps a day at the most. His blood at the last examination had only one-eighth of the richness of an ordinary circulation. He was conscious at times and seemed to recognize those around him. Woodbridge is overcast with gloom.

INSANITY IS INCREASING.

Statistics show that asylums are overcrowded with patients suffering from despondency and mental collapse, due to low vitality and impoverished blood, which cannot keep the brain healthy. TOOK HIM LITERALLY.

That Was Why His Signature Was Rejected at the Bank.

"Bank clerks are so often called upon for directions that they sometimes fall into the habit of giving them in a hurried and mechanical manner, consequently they are frequently misunderstood," remarked the clerk of a savings institution to a reporter the other day. "For instance, the usual formula when a stranger is called upon to sign his name is, 'Sign here; pen and ink at your left hand.' One morning last week a stranger entered our bank and asked me for a certificate of deposit for a considerable sum of money which he handed over. I counted the money and found the amount to be as stated and hurriedly said, 'Sign there, sir; pen and ink at your left hand.'

"Well, it took the stranger a long time to sign his name, but I thought nothing more of it and issued the certificate of deposit. About a week later the same man, whose face I had forgotten, reappeared and presented the certificate. He dashed off an ornate signature, which I proceeded to compare with the first signature. The two were vastly different, as the first one was apparently the labored effort of an old man.

"'I can't pay you this money, sir,' I said.

"'Why not?' asked the astonished stranger.

"'Because it is not the signature of the man to whom I issued the certificate of deposit,' I replied.

"'Well,' said the stranger, 'when I was here a week ago you told me to write my name with my left hand, and I did so, but I can't write very well that way.'

"'Then will you oblige me by writing your name with your left hand again,' I asked as a light dawned upon me.

"'Certainly,' said the man, and after much labor he produced a facsimile of his first signature, and I apologized and paid him his money."

Kidney Irritability.

Causing Frequent Rising at Night, is Completely Cured by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets

Many people are troubled with an irritable condition of the kidneys and bladder that compels frequent attention during the day and frequent rising at night.

For such an annoying and serious kidney trouble, there is no remedy so beneficial as the modern kidney medicine, Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They allay all irritability, regulate the kidney action and permit undisturbed rest at night.

Mr. Isaac Hutel, an old and highly respected resident of Mount Forest, Ont., has this to say:—"For some ten years past, owing to hard work in my younger days on the farm, I have had a constant pain in my back that ran at times up into my shoulders. The kidneys bothered me very much and my liver somewhat also. I tried a good many remedies with only indifferent success, until I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets at Yeoman's drug store in this town. The result of using these Tablets has been beyond my expectations. They stopped the pain and soreness in the back and allayed the kidney irritation, so that I can now rest well at night. They have also regulated my bowels and stirred up my sluggish liver, so that I am only too pleased to give this testimonial as to the good the remedy accomplished in my case."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

BRING A FLASK ALONG WITH YOU

It has not yet been made part of the game laws to bring a flask along with you when you go hunting, although it would be much more sensible than some of them and less liable to infraction. Every good hunter knows how necessary it is in an emergency, being a small medicine chest in itself.

Don't think that because the prices of our Whiskies, Brandies and Wines are moderate that there is anything wrong with the quality. We not only give you quality that is beyond suspicion, but we save you considerable on every purchase you make.

Duplicate orders is what makes our business. If you try us once you'll come again. If you have a keg, send it with your order.

MR. WALLACE IS DEAD

Grand Orange Sovereign Passes After Long Illness.

HAD A NOTABE PUBLIC CAREER

The Great Opponent of Remedial Legislation—One of the "Noble 13"—For Fourteen Years He Controlled the Policy of the Orange Order in British North America—Sketch of His Life.

Woodbridge, Oct. 9.—Hon. N. Clarke Wallace passed away peacefully at 10.15 last night.

In these few words is recorded the death of one of the most forceful men in the public life of the Canadian Confederation. Mr. Wallace had been in ill-health for some time and spent part of the summer in the west in an effort toward recovery, but without result, and several weeks ago returned home to die among the friends of his youth. On Monday it was seen that the end was near, and Drs. King of Woodbridge and McPhedran and Temple of Toronto held a consultation, which disclosed the fact that Mr. Wallace was in a practically hopeless condition.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home of deceased to Christ Church Cemetery, Woodbridge. Rev. W. S. Swallow will conduct the services at the home and grave. The funeral will be under the direction of the Most Worshipful the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America, and the R. W. Grand Lodge of Ontario West.

He will be succeeded in the office of Grand Sovereign of the Orange Order of B.N.A. by Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., of Markdale, who is Deputy Grand Master.

The members of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West have been requested to attend the funeral of their late Most Worshipful Grand Sovereign.

Sketch of His Career.

Mr. Wallace was perhaps best known in consequence of his connection with the Orange Order, of which he became Grand Master and Sovereign of Canada in 1887. He had been re-elected to that high office every year since that time, a total of fifteen elections. He was also President of the Triennial Conference of Orangemen of the world. Mr. Wallace at all times fought strenuously for the principles of Orangeism in the House of Commons. He was one of the "noble 13," who voted for the disallowance of Mercier's Jesuits' estates bill, 1888.

Hon. N. Clarke Wallace was a son of the late Nathaniel and Ann Wallace of Carney, Sligo County, Ireland, who settled at Woodbridge, then called Berwick, in 1833. He was born on May 21, 1844, and was married in June, 1877, to Melinda, youngest daughter of the late James Gilmour of Ottawa. He received his education at the Weston Grammar School. This he turned to account in early life by teaching school for five years. In 1867 he and his brother, Thomas F. Wallace, commenced the business of general merchants in Woodbridge, and later they built the Woodbridge flour mills. Mr. Wallace always took an active part in public affairs, and in 1874 and the four succeeding years was elected first deputy reeve of the Township of Vaughan. Under the old municipal system, this position gave him a seat in the County Council, and in 1878 he was honored with the distinction of Warden of York County. In this year he forsook municipal life to engage in Federal politics, and carried West York for the Conservatives by a majority of 202 over Davin Blain, the riding having previously been in the hands of the Reformers for 24 years. He continued to sit as the member for West York from that hour until the hour of his decease, in each contest adding to his majorities until 1896, when he had a majority of 4,068 over John Brown, Patron, and Samuel Platt, Conservative, the largest majority ever given to a candidate in Canada. In the contest of 1900 he defeated Mr. Archibald Campbell by a majority of 820.

The abilities of Mr. Wallace as an administrator were first recognized in 1884, when he was appointed chairman of the Public Accounts Committee of Parliament, and which later, in 1891 and 1892, were again recognized by his successfully ruling over the stormy proceedings and investigations which took place during those years.

In 1890, Mr. Wallace became the everlasting benefactor of the Orangemen of Canada. In that year, after others had failed, he carried to a successful issue the Orange Corporation bill. In 1892 Mr. Wallace was appointed Controller of Customs, and in this position was known to every business man in Canada. He was an indefatigable worker in his new position, not a mere figurehead only, but one who delved into and became acquainted with all the small details of the department. To both Reformers and Conservatives, Mr. Wallace gave the greatest satisfaction in this position, for on all tariff matters he was so well versed that any suggestion was thoughtfully considered and answered almost spontaneously. Deputations of business men waiting upon Mr. Wallace invariably got an answer, and it was not the stereotyped one so often given to deputations, which runs, "This matter will receive our earnest consideration." Mr. Wallace was a man of ideas, and was frank in giving utterance to them. He disliked hesitancy, and some of his most telling speeches were made against political opponents at a time when their undeveloped policies have been waiting for praise or condemnation by the people of the country. As a speaker he was fluent and forceful, with a strong vein of humor running through his thoughts.

Hon. N. Clarke Wallace passed through six successful electoral campaigns and was once returned by acclamation. His victories were over David Blain, T. Hodgins, Dr. Lind, W. H. P. Clement, S. Platt, John Brown and Archibald Campbell.

Deceased was 57 years of age. A wife, four sons and three daughters survive him. The eldest son, Thomas, resigned a captaincy in the 36th Battalion to serve as a private in the South African war. His second son is Lieut. L. Wallace of the Markham detachment G.G.B.G., and the youngest child is a girl nearing her eighth year. Mr. Wallace was a member of the Church of England, and for 25 years was superintendent of Christ Church Sabbath school, Woodbridge. The remains will be interred in Christ Church Cemetery on Saturday, October 12, at 2 p.m.

DR. KRAUSE, ALLEGED TRAITOR.

Former Governor of Johannesburg Shown to Have Kept Bad Company.

London, Oct. 9.—Dr. Krause, the former Governor of Johannesburg, who was arrested Sept. 2 on the charge of high treason, was arraigned in the Extradition Court at Bow street yesterday and charged with high treason and incitement to murder. The former charge is connected with the surrender of Johannesburg, when, according to the public prosecutor, Dr. Krause obtained from Lord Roberts 24 hours' armistice on the plea that street fighting would thereby be obviated, and utilized the period in getting all the Boer fighters out of town, and in sending £180,000 to Pretoria. After Dr. Krause had been paroled, he went to Europe and applied to Dr. Leyds, the agent of the Transvaal, for money on account of these services.

The prosecution introduced evidence to show that Dr. Krause had been in communication with Dr. Cornelius Broecksman, the public prosecutor of Johannesburg, who was executed Sept. 30 last for treason, and had urged the necessity for shooting or otherwise disposing of Douglas Foster, an English lawyer attached to Lord Roberts' staff, who was very active against the Boers.

The prosecution introduced letters, in which Dr. Krause described Lord Milner (the British High Commissioner in South Africa), as "an arch scoundrel, an enemy of Boer national existence, and a willing tool of the jingoes" and advised the burghers to break their oaths and shoot traitors.

The letters indicated that Dr. Krause had acted as a channel of communication between the Transvaal and the Boer Government in Holland.

The prisoner was remanded.

Railway Conductor Killed.

London, Oct. 9.—Rectory street crossing of the Grand Trunk was last night the scene of an accident in which William Birkett, a well-known railway conductor, lost his life. Birkett had been running on the Stratford accommodation for the past five years. On its return trip down the train is due to reach London at 10.40 p. m. As the train pulled up at the East London Station Birkett alighted to register. The accommodation was on the second track, and as Birkett stepped between the rails of the first track he was struck by a yard engine, killing him instantly. Birkett was married and leaves a widow and children.

Crippled for Life.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—J. H. Branscombe, a Grand Trunk Railway brakeman, met with an accident yesterday morning which will leave him a cripple for life. While working on top of a car in the yards at the Union Station, it suddenly started and he fell to the ground between two cars, and the wheels passed over his legs.

NEW ONTARIO.

Mr. Southworth's report shows that 818 colonists took up land in Ontario in 1900, representing a population of 2,266, and holdings of 127,494 acres. The returns for 1901 will be much better, and the settlement of the Temiskaming region alone for this year will be about equal to that of the whole province for 1900. There are also many squatters, of whom no record is kept. Of the 818 locatees 504 are from other parts of Ontario, 65 from the United States, 42 from Manitoba, 29 from Quebec, and the rest from Europe. The immigration to this province, according to Mr. Spence's report, was 4,983.

Mr. John McKay, of Sault Ste. Marie, Liberal candidate for East Algoma, reports that the work on the Manitoulin & North Shore Railway, is being rapidly pushed forward. One of the best equipped sawmills on Lake Huron has been removed from Bay City, Michigan, to Blind River, Algoma. "What was a forest a year ago is now a town site, with a waterworks system, electric light system, and sewerage, with connection by a switch with the C. P. R. Dockage has been constructed, and a canal three miles long is being excavated to connect the mills with the Mississauga River. About half a million dollars is being expended, and the mills give employment to 150 men. A municipality has been organized, and last Wednesday the cornerstone of a new $5,000 public school was laid."

The new Ontario is making good progress, and the little item about the $5,000 school house shows that the most important form of development is not being neglected. Important results may be expected from the completion of the railway or railways to James Bay. This project has been long regarded as part of a plan for a northern ocean route; but the value of the railways does not depend upon the practicibility of the ocean route. There is a lot of good farming land to be opened for settlement. There are large stores of timber and minerals, and there are the fishing industries of Hudson Bay.

The Rainy River country will soon have railway communication. It possesses considerable agricultural resources, and it is possible that it may become the seat of manufacturing industries for the supply of Manitoba and the west, and that its population will provide one of the best markets for the wheat, cattle and other food products of the west.—Globe.

The Toronto Telegram has a series of articles on the election prospects, and the political situation in the several constituencies. If the Telegram's articles reveal as masterly ignorance in all cases as did that dealing with the situation in East and West Peterborough, they will add little to popular enlightment, as to the real political situation of the province.

BRITISH VALOR DISPLAYED.

(Toronto News.)

British courage and determination have again achieved one of those phenomenal victories which have done so much for the glory of the army and the nation. From the accounts received of the fight at Forts Itala and Prospect, in Zululand, it is safe to say that the annals of warfare contain nothing finer or more stiring than the stand of the little garrisons of these small and not very defencesible forts against the overwhelming forces of the Boers. For nineteen hours three hundred British soldiers withstood onslaught after onslaught by four thousand of the enemy, who fought, it is said, with a fury and daring never before displayed by them during the war. At Fort Itala the British guns were put out of action, but the undaunted defenders met the attacks with the bayonet and gave the Boers a taste of the terrible effectiveness of that weapon in the hands of the English private. Every attack was repulsed, and at the close of the long fight the enemy withdrew, leaving over three hundred of their number dead on the field, and carrying off many bodies. The number of their wounded was not known, but it must have been large. The British also suffered heavily; every man in the garrison at Itala was wounded, and many were killed. At Fort Prospect the garrison consiated of only twenty men. Against these were six hundred determined Boers, fighting under the eye of their principal general. Their charges were desperate but unavailing, and they withdrew, crushed and defeated. For many hours the British in both forts were without water, and anyone who has experienced the dreadful heat of the South African day will understand what that means; but in spite of thirst and the burning sun; in spite of the tremendous odds against them; in spite of their useless guns and failing ammunition, there never was a thought of surrender or of making terms with the enemy. The charge of the Six Hundred was not more heroic than the defence of these little forts, and their action will undoubtedly go down to posterity as one of the most glorious ever performed by British soldiers. Its moral effect should be considerable. If the Boers did not before know their inferiority when brought face to face with the English, they must know it now, and the folly of prolonging their resistance against such an enemy must be patent to the most obstinate of them. They cannot skulk forever among the hills and out-of-the-way places, and they must see that disaster awaits them when they come out into the open. It is probable that there is good ground for the rumour that the war is near its close, and this victory, won against such mighty odds, should contribute greatly to bring about the event.

One in Four Has Piles.

The Most Torturing Disease That Man has Ever Known—The Safest and Most Certain Cure is Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Of the grown-up persons you meet from day to day on in four suffers more or less from itching, bleeding or protruding piles. Mock modesty leads many to suffer in silence, others dread the surgeon's knife, and, believing an operation to be the only cure, neglect to be treated. Some have found out by actual trial that piles can be promptly relieved and thoroughly cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

If you are a sufferer from this exasperating ailment and will once make a test of Dr. Chase's Ointment you will be greatful to the end of your life for having read this advertisement. It will certainly cure you, no matter what forms of piles you have, so long as you give it an honest trial.

It has been frequently remarked by persons who have used this preparation that it has probably relieved more suffering from itching skin disease than any remedy that the world has known. While remarkably effective as a cure for eczema and salt rheum, Dr. Chase's Ointment is unique as the only actual and proven cure for each and every form of piles.

Mr. W. D. Ketchison, Bailiff, 9th Division Court, Frankford, Hastings County, states:—

"I was troubled for thirty years with Itching Piles and Eczema. I could not sleep at night, and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered my legs down to the knees—perfectly raw. I have tried every preparation I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and less than this one box effected a complete cure."

If you have not met with some one who has been cured of piles by Dr. Chase's Ointment, ask your neighbours about it. It is impossible to publish testimonials of persons that all readers know, but by asking your friends you are sure to hear good words for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is standard the world over and is guaranteed to cure any case of piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

NEW ONTARIO BOOMING.

Big Increase in Customs Receipts at Sault Ste. Marie.

Two Liberal candidates, both McKay by name, had an interview with Hon. G. W. Ross on Monday morning. The first gentleman to appear was Mr. R. G. McKay of North Grey, and a little while later came John McKay of Sault Ste Marie.

The man from the "Soo" was fairly bubbling over with optimistic talk of the new country. He said that two American firms had recently erected saw mills at Blind River. They were the Eddy Bros., of Bay City, and the Michigan Land and Lumber Company, of the same state. The works at the "Soo" are being pushed quickly forward, according to Mr. McKay. The Customs receipts for the year ending June 30th, 1900, amounted to only $45,000, while for the twelve months ending June last the amount had gone up to $369,000. Judging by the returns for July, August and September, Mr. McKay declares the figures by next June will reach half a million.

A PLAIN STRAIGHT-FORWARD LETTER.

Mrs. Louis Brovosts Publishes What She Thinks About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A Convincing Piece of Evidence as to the Wonderful Power of This Remedy—Bright's Disease, Heart Disease and Rheumatism Each Afflicted Mrs. Brovosts—Dodd's Kidney Pills Positively Cured Her.

St. Magloire., Que., Oct. 6. (Special).—The following letter was written by a well-known and highly respected lady of this place, being a copy of the original sent to the Dodd's Medicine Company, of Toronto.

"When I wrote you for some Dodd's Kidney Pills I was so discouraged that I had no hope of being able to find any remedy to save my life. I suffered with Bright's Disease, Heart Disease and Rheumatism, and I was much bloated also with Dropsy. I was so feeble that I was unable to do anything. I suffered for sixteen years with Rheumatism. There were two years and a half that I suffered with Bright's Disease. I have tried all the remedies in the world, and always grew worse and worse.

"There was one time when for three months I abandoned all my remedies, and resolved to let myself die without taking any medicine. I received by chance one of your almanacs and a paper. I read them and I decided to write you and try again with your remedy.

"Great was my surprise at the good that Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me with the first box you sent, I took them and my health was greatly improved. Since then I have taken twenty boxes. I am cured of my Bright's Disease, my Heart Disease, and my Rheumatism. I have still two boxes to take and by the time I have finished them I shall be in perfect health. I will permit you to publish this letter with pleasure, and I hope later to give you the facts of my recovery more completely than at present. I am still weak, but with time I shall be as strong as ever. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with any of the diseases that I did."

RETURNING ROYALTY

The Duke of Cornwall and Party Are on Their Way East.

AN HOUR WITH THE THRESHERS

The Duchess Witnesses Farm Operations in a Large Scale—The Duke a Good Duck Shooter—The Preparations for the Royal Visit in Toronto —Troops Arrive—A Review Rehearsal.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 9.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York bade farewell to the West yesterday, and are once more speeding eastward on their special train. They will reach the lakes to-day, and on Thursday afternoon will be in Toronto.

The Duke and Duchess met again at Poplar Point yesterday afternoon. She arrived from the West in the morning and he came down from the hunting lodge of Senator Kirchhoffer in the afternoon.

He had been expected in the morning, but had found the game so plentiful and enjoyed the shooting so much that he tarried until the last moment.

Poplar Point is in the centre of the great Manitoba wheat belt, and an exhibition of threshing was given for the benefit of the royal party. A threshing outfit, drawn by a large traction engine, was brought into action close to the depot and placed beside an immense stack of sheafed wheat. The Duchess stood very close to the thresher, and a gust of wind brought the mass of chaff down on her head and shoulders. She raised her parasol in defence and laughingly retreated.

The Duke reached Poplar Point at 3.45 o'clock, accompanied by Lord Minto, Governor-General, and others who had formed his hunting party. He was very proud of his bag of game, and expressed the greatest pleasure at his hunting experience. His game was placed aboard the train, and he will have the hunter's pleasure of having birds shot by himself for his table.

The royal special reached Winnipeg at 5.10, and made a stop of half an hour, during which the Duke and Duchess visited the flour mills. A crowd of several thousand gathered about the depot and cheered the royal couple as they left their car and again when they returned.

The Duke and Duchess and members of the royal party, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier, left for the east at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A large crowd was at the depot to see the Duke, but he did not appear outside the car.

The Duke is reported to have shot about 100 ducks in two days.

Royal Servants Arrive.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—A royal servants' train from Ottawa arrived yesterday morning. It consisted of a special baggage, carriage, one tourist sleeper, two ordinary sleepers and several horse cars.

A second servants' train reached the Union Station at an early hour this morning from Vancouver. A large number of servants were on board, who will prepare arrangements here for the royal party and suite.

The carriages which will be used by Their Royal Highnesses and staff while in Toronto, and the horses that will draw them arrived here yesterday. There are five carriages and sixteen horses, which came in on a special train from Ottawa. The magnificent coach which will carry the Duke and Duchess was taken to Government House, where it will remain until the royal party arrive. It is the one used by the King in England, and is of a quaint English design. It affords seating capacity for four persons, and is beautifully finished.

14 TRAINS OF SOLDIERS.

They Arrived in Toronto on Tuesday to Be in Readiness for Review During the Royal Visit.

Toronto, Oct. 9. — The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk railways were kept busy yesterday in bringing into the city the soldiers who will take part in the royal review. During the day 14 special trains arrived, bearing the country's defenders from various points of the Province. They were all landed at the Exhibition Grounds, where they went into camp.

The first to arrive was the 42nd of Renfrew and Pembroke, 300 strong, under command of Col. Irving. Then followed in succession during the day:

A and B Batteries of Kingston arrived at the grounds at noon with 160 men, 100 horses, and 12 guns, all 12-pound breach-loaders.

The 30th Regiment from Wellington County arrived later with 600 men.

During the afternoon and evening the regiments arrived in such rapid succession that the arrangements for their reception were somewhat demoralized, several regiments arriving ahead of the time expected. The Guelph regiment was wired to delay its advent here, but had left the Royal City before the despatch reached there.

The arrivals included: 27th Sarnia; C and D Batteries, Kingston; 45th, Lindsay; 30th, Guelph; 14th, Field Battery; 31st, Goderich; 46th, Port Hope; Hussars, Kingston; Hussars, London; 8th Field Battery, Gananoque; Red Cross Bearer Co., London; 26th, London and Southampton, 22nd, Woodstock and Ingersoll; 21st, Windsor; 42nd, Pembroke.

The commander of the forces in Canada, Major-General O'Grady-Haly, accompanied by Mrs. Haly and Major Heward, A.D.C., are at the Queen's Hotel.

The major - general inspected the Exhibition Grounds in the morning, and was very much satisfied with the arrangements made for the royal review. He thinks it will be the greatest military display in Canada's history.

Major-General O'Grady-Haly's staff will be composed of Col. Aylmer, Adjt.-Gen.; Col. Cotton, Q.M.G.; Major Biggar, Ordinance Department; Director - General Neilson, A.M.S., and Col. Rutherford, A.A.G. of Artillery.

This morning the general and his staff will again visit the Exhibition Grounds, and the staff will take up their quarters there.

The general will make a preliminary review of the troops at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when it is expected that all the outside corps will be on hand.

The influx of visitors to the city has commenced, and the demand for accommodation at the hotels has never been greater. Almost every city, town, village and hamlet in the country has sent its quota of sight-seers, anxious to get a glimpse of the royal party, and to be present at the festivities attending their sojourn in the city. From the United States, too, visitors are beginning to pour in. Most of the visitors will arrive to-day and stay over until Saturday, so as to see everything worth seeing. Fully forty or fifty thousand of them will be in the city, it is estimated.

Going to Toronto.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—All the Cabinet Ministers except Sir Richard Cartwright and Hon. R. W. Scott will be in Toronto during the visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. Sir Richard will not be able to be present on account of rheumatism and Mr. Scott will take charge of affairs for the Government here while the other Ministers are away.

TURKEY ALONE RESPONSIBLE.

President of Macedonian Committee Blames Turks for the Abduction.

London, Oct. 9.—The Daily Mail has received the following despatch from its Vienna correspondent:

"In reply to a telegram I addressed to him to-day, Gen. Zontrichew, President of the Macedonian Committee, denies the committee had any hand in the abduction of Miss Stone. He adds: 'The committee desires the support of the civilized world for the Macedonian cause, and therefore would not commit such a folly. The Turks did the deed, and Turkey must be made responsible.'

"M. Danew, the Bulgarian Foreign Minister, indignantly denies the suggestion that the Bulgarian Government is not doing its best to rescue Miss Stone. He says three thousand troops are engaged in the search for her."

The Money Is Ready.

Paris, Oct. 9.—A letter received by the Havas Agency from Salonica, dated Oct. 4, says:

"The American Consul here has just received orders to make the arrangements with the Vali (Governor) for the payment of the ransom of Miss Stone. The United States will advance the money, afterwards settling with Turkey.

What Shall We Eat

To Keep Healthy and Strong?

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats, is undoubtedly the best in spite of the claims made by vegetarians and food cranks generally.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Remusson on this subject says: Nervous people, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat plenty of meat. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily strengthened by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent Tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs, or other animal food in three or four hours, while the malt diastase also contained in Stuart's Tablets cause the perfect digestion of starchy foods like potatoes, bread, etc., and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase so necessary to perfect digestion and any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach will be overcome by their daily use.

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its complete digestion by the systematic use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, peptones and diastase, which actually perform the work of digestion and give the abused stomach a chance to rest and to furnish the body and brain with the necessary nutriment. Cheap cathartic medicines masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures are useless for the relief or cure of indigestion, because they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the indigestion is to make daily use at meal time of a safe preparation which is endorsed by the medical profession, and which is known to contain active digestive principles, and all this can truly be said of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All druggists throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain sell them at the uniform price of 50 cents for full treatment.

THE GRAND TRUNK'S REPORT.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson's Deliverance Unanimously Adopted.

London, Oct. 9.—At the meeting yesterday of the stockholders of the Grand Trunk Railroad the report of the President, Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, was unanimously adopted. The report referred to the tragedy at Buffalo, and said that, if President Roosevelt succeeded in carrying out the policy of reciprocity indicated in President McKinley's last speech, it would remove some of the most serious barriers to the prosperity of Canada and of the Grand Trunk Railway. He also said the expiring half-year had been the most prosperous since 1884. The company's relations with the Canadian Government, the President said, had been of the most pleasant kind.

A resolution that holders of 4 per cent. guaranteed stock receive two pounds per cent., and that holders of first preferred stock receive two pounds ten per cent., was adopted.

The attendance at the meeting was small.

How to get up an Appetite.

Distaste for food often follows Grippe and Fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures, and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

Suicide in a Barn.

A Knock out for Asthma.

You have had many disappointments, filled your stomach with nasty drugs, tried lots of things, but they all failed. Not being a stomach complaint, of course Asthma can't be cured by stomach medicine. But Catarrhozone cures Asthma; it gives it a tired feeling in about 15 minutes. Inhale Catarrhozone; it makes breathing easy, cures the cough, makes you well. Doctors say there is nothing like Catarrhozone for Asthma. 25 cents and $1.00.

A Rush on in Wedding Cakes.

Hardly a day passes without seeing a new wedding cake displayed in the attractive show window of Messrs. Lane & Co's confectionery store. This firm seems to have had their hands full of wedding orders the past few weeks. This week three more bridal tributes are under way, and orders for two others have been placed for delivery at early dates. Such a record must be quite complimentary to Lane & Co., whose success in catering to the demand for these delicately bewitching triumphs of the confectioner's art seems to have gone the rounds of numerous prospective brides. 2d-1w

THE ROYAL CHORUS.

The Peterborough Contingent has a Final Rehearsal—Contributions Recognized—To Leave for Toronto Thursday Morning.

The last practice was held last night when the final arrangements were announced. There was a large and enthusiastic band of singers and quite a large sized audience.

Mr. Mulligan announced receipt of the following donations towards the expenses of the journey, viz:—Hon. J. R. Stratton, $50.00; Town Council, $50.00; Mr. J. W. Flavelle, $10.00.

The following resolution was moved by Mr. George K. Martin, seconded by Rev. W. L. Armitage: That the best thanks of the Peterborough members of the Royal chorus are hereby tendered to the Mayor and Council of Peterborough, the Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. J. W. Flavelle for their generous contributions to the expenses of the chorus in connection with their trip to Toronto.

Needless to say it was carried with greatest enthusiasm, as were votes of thanks to Mr. G. W. Mulligan for his services as conductor, and to Mrs. Mowat and Miss L. Hurley for their services as accompanyists.

It was also decided to give a concert here in the course of the next fortnight, when those citizens of Peterborough who are unable to hear the selections in Toronto, will have the opportunity at home. A committee to make arrangements was nominated with the Rev. W. L. Armitage as convenor.

It was earnestly requestd that all going should be at the C.P.R. station to-morrow (Thursday) morning in good time to catch the 7.10 a. m. train, on which two cars will be reserved for the chorus. The same two cars will be attached to the train leaving Toronto to-morrow night at 10 p.m. for the convenience of those returning then.

Don't forget the maple leaves, and don't forget to be 30 minutes before the time for the train to start.

PRETTY OCTOBER WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Genevieve Winnifred Amey and Mr. H. Bruce Fowler.

A very pretty house wedding took place at half-past one this afternoon, when Miss Genevieve Winnifred Amey, daughter of Mrs. H. Amey, No. 41 London street, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Bruce Fowler, of the Toronto branch of the Bank of Toronto, who was connected with the local branch of the bank about six years ago.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the George street Methodist church, and the parlour was most tastefully decorated with palms, smilax and white asters.

The bride was most daintily attired in white organdie trimmed with white satin ribbons, and her bridesmaid, Miss Kate Fowler, sister of the groom, was similarly gowned.

Mr. J. A. MacLaren, of Barrie, assisted the groom.

Only the most intimate friends of the family witnessed the ceremony.

After a charming wedding dejeuner was served, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler left for a trip west, and will take up their residence in Toronto on their return.

CHRIST CHURCH OMEMEE.

Its Removal and Restoration Commemorated by a Handsome Brass Tablet.

The Examiner had the privilege of seeing the handsome brass mural tablet to be placed in Christ Church, Omemee, to commemorate the removal and restoration of the edifice. It has been brought to a more conspicuous position than it formerly occupied. A new basement has been added and improvements effected to an extent to make the entire cost of removal and restoration amount to $1,500. To mark the date of these events, and at the same time to pay a tribute to the work and services of their late rector, the building committee have had prepared a handsome brass tablet, in excellent ecclesiastical good taste, for insertion in the wall of the church The engraving upon the tablet reads thus:—"To commemorate the moving and renovating of Christ Church, Omemee, during the rectorship of Rev. Ernest Alwin Langfeldt, M. A., August, 1901."

It is seemly to thus mark the reconstruction of the church, but it is much more to the point to thus bear tribute to the work of the late rector, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, whose earnestness and zeal give warrant for the hope that the best part of his ministerial work will receive a record more enduring than brass—aere perennius.

Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, who as is well known, has become rector of St. Luke's, has been succeeded by Rev. J. H. Torney, late of Craighurst. His appointment by the bishop dates from Oct. 15th.

ST. PETER'S T. A. S. NOTES.

On Monday evening a largely attended meeting of the ladies of St. Peter's Cathedral, was held in the T. A. S. Rooms for the purpose of organizing an auxiliary to assist the T.A.S. in its series of fortnightly entertainments, and in fact to assist the society in every way possible. A committee was selected from the different wards and Ashburnham, which will consitute the auxiliary. This new organization will undoubtedly prove a great impetus to the cause of temperance in town.

The trustees of the T.A.S. have secured the large room adjoining the library, which will be fitted up as a ladies' room. The sum of one hundred dollars is being expended for new books for the library, and when these are placed in position the society will have one of the most complete libraries in the province.

The trustees have also installed electric light in the building, and as a result the rooms are well lighted in the evenings.

The membership of St. Peter's T. A. S. is increasing by leaps and bounds, and it is expected that the membership will total five hundred before another month.

A juvenile branch of the T.A.S. has also been started, and the intention is to enroll every Catholic youth under the banner of total abstinence.

A DEVINE BANQUET HELD.

T. A. S. Literary Committee Honour Their Late Secretary.

Mr D. J. Devine Banquetted at McCallum's Last Evening—A Very Enjoyable Event.

Mr. D. J. Devine, who for the past two years has filled the agency of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company in Peterborough, left this morning for Toronto, where he accepts the management of the city branch of the Company.

During his residence in town Mr. Devine has won many friends by his courteous manner as well as his all-round gentlemanly disposition. It was, however, his connection with St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society that won for him the popularity which he achieved, and during his connection with this excellent organization as chairman of its Literary Section, he has at all times shown himself to be an energetic and pains-taking official, always at his post, and ever ready to do everything in his power to further the interests of the T.A.S.

Accordingly the members of St. Peter's T.A.S. Literary Committee felt that they could not let Mr. Devine's departure from town occur without a recognition of his services. They therefore invited their late secretary to a banquet at McCallum's restaurant last evening, and the affair will long live in the memory of those who were fortunate enough to be present. Mine Host McCallum seemed to excel himself in the excellent spread provided, and it is needless to say that ample justice was done to the good things provided.

Mr. J. J. Hickey, chairman of the Literary Committee, acted as chairman of the evening and around the festive board were noticed: Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Spiritual Adviser of the T. A. S., Messrs. T. Lane, President, Jos. Mahar, J. P. Shevlin, J. Roach, J. Sullivan, W. Meagher, F. McFadden, J. O'Brien, Frank Pope, J. Sharpe, Fred Derocher, J. Dennaird, and the guest of the evening.

At the conclusion of the banquet proper, speeches were the order of the evening, all of which were replete with eulogistic references to Mr. Devine's ability, and the great loss the T. A. S. had sustained by his removal to Toronto. While all regretted his departure exceedingly they however were consoled by the fact that he would visit town quite often, as he had interests in this district which were dear to him.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien's references to Mr. Devine's services to the society were contained in an excellent speech, in which he paid a warm tribute to the guest of the evening.

The speeches were interspersed with several vocal numbers, contributed by Messrs. John Roach, and Frank Pope.

The banquet terminated by the assembly singing "God Save the King," after which Mr. Devine was bidden farewell, with the best wishes of all present for a successful future, in the Queen City.

WALL PAPER CLEARANCE.

Great Double Sale of a Great Double Stock.

Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Co. have been unable to display a large portion of their recent purchase of the Turnbull stock of wall paper, bought at so great a sacrifice. Now, thanks to the past fortnight's great business the way is clear, and a practically new sale begins on Monday. The bulk of the patterns now removed from Turnbull's store, are fully on a par with their own regular stock. But what is of more importance to buyers is the fact that just about half prices is all you'll be asked to pay. With this great double stock to pick from, there is practically everything to suit the needs of everybody.

MR. SAM. RAY IS THE CHAMPION.

He Won His Match Yesterday From Dr. Eastwood.

6 UP AND 5 TO PLAY.

The Champion Secured His Lead in the First Round and was Able to Maintain it.

Mr. Sam Ray won the open championship of the Golf Club, yesterday, by defeating Dr. Eastwood, the runner up, by six up and five to play in a 36 hole contest. The doctor was off his play in the first round and allowed Mr. Ray to take a lead of six holes on the first nine. After that the game was fairly even, both players doing exceptionally good work in the field with their irons, but being a trifle off in the short approaches and putting.

The umpires for the match were Mr. J. H. Hall and Mr. R. M. Hamilton. Unfortunately, it was decided at the last moment to begin the game at half past one instead of two o'clock and therefore, a record of the score for the first seven holes could not be obtained. However, Eastwood won the first, tied one and lost seven. Ray made the first seven holes in 35 and Eastwood in 41.

8th hole — Both drives were only fair. The bunker was cleared in the second. In the third Eastwood was short of the green and Ray pulled to the left. In the fourth Eastwood mashied to within 3 feet of the hole and Ray came even closer. Eastwood missed his putt and Ray went in in five winning the hole.

9th hole — Both got good drives for about 160 yards and in their seconds easily cleared the trees. Eastwood over ran the hole and Ray lay within three inches. Eastwood missed and Ray won on his fifth, concluding the first round by being 6 holes to the good.

10th hole — Ray drove through the fence and Eastwood just reached it. Eastwood made a good recovery from his short drive, but Ray did even better approaching to the edge of the green on his second. Eastwood landed nicely on the green in his third. Ray was 6 feet short of the hole. Both missed their putts, in the fourth and halved the hole in five.

11th hole — Ray got in a fine drive with his cleek lying just to the right of the green on his first. Eastwood topped and lay short of the ditch. In his second Eastwood made a clean long approach, running just over the edge of the green. Ray mashied to within 3 feet of the hole. Eastwood putted to within six inches of the hole but Ray went in on his third, winning the hole and making him 7 up all around.

12th hole — Ray got a long straight drive over the ditch. Eastwood pulled behind the bunker near the well hole, but with his brassey made a fine recovery running well down the field. Ray brassied into the bunker, and in his third had to play to the side. He brassied for his fourth to within 30 feet of the green. Eastwood did the same in his third and mashied on the green in his fourth. Ray was short of the green in his fifth and missed his putt on the sixth. Eastwood made the hole in his fifth, pulling Ray's lead down to 6.

13th hole. — Eastwood made the lane in his first, and Ray cleared both fences. Eastwood lofted over the second fence and lay dead, close to the green, in a bad hole. Ray over-ran the green on his second. In his 3rd, Eastwood mashied on the green, but was short of the hole in his fourth. Ray over-ran the hole in his third, and Eastwood did the same in his fifth, but made the hole in his sixth. Ray putted in, in his fifth, winning the hole and again leading by seven.

14th hole. — Ray drove over the gully to the right. Eastwood lay in the gully. In his second Eastwood lofted to the green. Ray foozled his second and made the green in his third, but was short of the hole in his fourth. In his fifth he lay within a foot of the hole, Eastwood over-ran the hole slightly in his third, but won out in 4, Ray taking 6.

15 hole. — Eastwood crossed the green in his first, and Ray just reached it nicely, both being clean, iron drives. Eastwood was too strong in his second and Ray ran to within two feet of the hole. In his third Eastwood came to within a foot of the hole and it looked like a stimy for Ray, but he just had room to get past and made the hole in 3, Eastwood taking 4.

16th hole. — Ray topped in his drive but ran well out into the field. Eastwood drove well over the path. Ray ironed almost to the bunker, and Eastwood over-ran the green in a fine approach. Ray landed to the left of the green in his third, and in his fourth mashied to within six feet of the hole. Eastwood was about the same distance away on his third. Ray lay on the edge in his fifth, and Eastwood over-ran in his fourth, going in on his fifth. Ray took 6.

17th hole. — Eastwood pulled to left of bunker and Ray lay just to the right of it. Both over-ran the green in their seconds. In their third stroke both mashied to within ten feet of the hole, and both putted to within a couple of feet in their fourth. The hole was halved in 5.

18th hole. — Eastwood drove to the 160 yard stone and Ray did the same, pulling a little to the left. Eastwood got through the trees, and Ray went over them, running to the edge of the green. Eastwood's third carried him almost to the green, but he played short in his fourth. Ray topped his third and in his fourth ran six feet to the right of hole. Eastwood putted to within three inches of the hole in his fifth, and made it in the sixth. Ray made it in 5.

This completed the second round, Ray making it in 45 and Eastwood in 44. Ray gained one more hole in the round, making him 7 up altogether.

19th hole. — Ray drove just past the fence, away to the left, and Eastwood got a long straight one to the big tree. Ray ironed up into line in his second, and in his third just crossed the green. Eastwood landed in the stoneheap in his second, but got nicely on the green in his third. Ray foozled his fourth, and in his fifth made the green. Eastwood putted close to the hole in 4, and went out in 5, Ray taking 7.

20th hole. — Eastwood ironed straight and fair for the short hole, and Ray pulled slightly towards the stable. In his second he over-ran the green, Eastwood doing the same. Ray was 12 feet crooked in his approach to the hole, and Eastwood, in the like, was several feet short. Ray was a trifle short in 4, and Eastwood made the hole, winning by 5 to 4.

21st hole. — Both cleared the ditch in their drives, Ray pulling considerably to the left. Both made splendid brassey drives, and in his third Ray brassied on the green. Eastwood's approach brought him to the right of the green, and in his fourth he over-ran the hole by 12 feet. Ray hung on the lip in his 4th and went in in his 5th, Eastwood taking 6.

22nd hole. — Ray drove out of bounds into the garden, and Eastwood cleared the lane. Ray brassied to the first fence in his second, and in his third lofted to the green with a nice lift. Eastwood lay short in his 2nd and again in his 3rd. Ray over-ran the hole in his 4th and both players did the same thing again, halving the hole in 6.

23rd hole — Ray sliced his drive making the gully to the right. Eastwood topped and did the same thing with his iron. In his third he cleared the gully and made the edge of the green. Ray was short in his 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th. Eastwood ran to the hole in his 4th and went in in 5. Ray taking 7.

24th hole — Both ironed clean, to the edge of the green. Eastwood mashied to within 3 feet of the hole, and Ray over-ran. Eastwood made it in 3. Ray taking 5.

25th hole — Eastwood topped but ran to the path. Ray drove straight and strong. Eastwood topped with his brassey, as did Ray, but the latter had sufficient run in his ball to jump the bunker. Eastwood over-ran the green in his 3rd, Ray doing the same and in his 4th running to within 5 feet of the hole. Eastwood was the same distance away in his 4th. The hole was halved in 5.

26th hole — Eastwood topped his drive and Ray drove well up to the bunker. Eastwood ironed straight for the green but lay short. Ray approached to the left and in his 3rd over-ran by 15 feet. Eastwood was short the same distance, and in his 4th lay within 2 feet of the hole. Ray, in the like, lay the same dis-off. Eastwood missed his putt and Ray made the hole in 5, Eastwood taking 6.

27th hole — Ray drove slightly to the left for 160 yards and Eastwood was straight for the same distance. Ray's 2nd carried him to the left of the green. Eastwood topped but got through the trees. Eastwood approached to the left of the green in his 3rd and Ray over-ran the hole in the like. Eastwood was weak in his 4th but lay within a foot of the hole in his 5th. Ray putted well in his 4th and lay 3 feet off the hole. Both missed in their 5th and halved the hole in 6.

28th hole and final round — Ray drove well past the first stone heap. Eastwood lay on the wrong side of the fence. Eastwood ironed to the second stone heap, and Ray played short twice; his fourth, however, landing just over the green. It took Eastwood two more to get within 4feet of the hole. Ray over-ran in his 5th and 6th. Eastwood lay close in 5th and went in with his next stroke winning the hole.

29 hole — Eastwood drove into the ditch. Ray didn't get that far. Ray made a fine approach to the right of the green in his second. Eastwood played back and then just cleared the ditch in his 3rd. He landed on the green in 4th. Ray's 3rd brought him 3 feet from the hole. Eastwood was 2 feet short in his 5th. Ray was close in his 4th and made the hole in 5th, Eastwood taking 6.

30th hole — Ray drove away past the ditch and Eastwood topped twice clearing the ditch in his 3rd. Ray brassied well over the bunker in 2nd. Eastwood brassied into trouble and gave up the hole.

31st hole — Ray made the lane in his drive and Eastwood got to the first fence, and in his 2nd ironed into the lane. Ray's 2nd carried him over the green. Eastwood's 3rd hit the 2nd fence and his 4th took him nicely on the green. Ray overran in 3rd and in the like both lay within 3 feet of the hole, halving it in 5.

As there were only five more holes to play and Ray was six up, the championship was won and Mr. Ray received the warm congratulations of these who had followed the game.

Farmers are complaining that potatoes are rotting in the ground. The largest ones are the worst.

The Township Council of Cavan is making great improvements on the Middle Line. We have not heard of tenders being called to expend the $200 on the 13th Concession Line in the swamp, east of the Middle Line. Now is the time to have the work done as promised, so that we may have a good winter road made through the swamp.

There are many who will not have sufficient apples for their own use during the winter, winter apples are very scarce.

Height of vigour past — nature's power slowing down, vitality less, recuperative power less, endurance less. Stop the progress of decay, tone up the weakened nerve centres, impart vigour to the tiring brain, prepare for the crisis. A means of remarkable protency in the renewal of decreasing vigour is found in Ferrozone. It brightens up the whole being, imparts a sence of power and strength. By the use of Ferrozone, old age is pushed back twenty years. Ferrozone gives strength, vigour, endurance, vim. Ormond & Walsh have it. Get a box to-day.

STOMACH GAVE OUT.

The unhappy condition of Alex. Lang, shipper for P. Freyseng & Co., manufacturers, Toronto, cured permanently by Powley's Liquified Ozone.

If you are troubled with coated tongue and bad taste in the mouth in the morning, sick headaches, stomach pains, flatulency or sour waterbrash, take Powley's Liquified Ozone. Alex. Lang suffered exceeding, he tells about his cure:—

THE OZONE COMPANY, Ltd., TORONTO, ONT.

Gentlemen: About two years ago my stomach completely gave out. I was in a wretched condition, and my life was anything but pleasure. I tried several prescriptions from my doctor, and also other remedies which I saw advertised for dyspepsia, but I was getting worse all the time. I might say that at the same time I had a breaking out on my face and body, which gave me great annoyance. No remedy I took could relieve me of this vexatious disease. At last I was advised to try Ozone. The first bottle gave me relief. I took about ten bottles altogether, and I am thankful I can report to you that I am completely cured. I can eat anything now without the least uneasiness; also the itching eruptions, which I believed were germs in my blood, are all gone. I also use Ozone for my children when any ailment overtakes them. (Signed) ALEX. LANG, 67 Sumach St., Toronto.
Shipper P. Freyseng & Co., Cork Mfrs., Toronto.

There is nothing like Powley's Liquified Ozone to cure stomach disorder. The condensed oxygen is most efficacious; it makes your food digest thoroughly and tones up your entire system.

Write our doctors about your case. Tell them just how you feel and how long you have been sick. They'll make a study of your case and give you advice as to treatment, absolutely free. Address the Consulting Department of The Liquid Ozone Company, 220 Kinzie Street, Chicago, Ill.

STRENGTHENS THE STATE.

Life Insurance is for the protection of those dependent on a man's life; their dependence makes it an unavoidable duty. Those dependent we assume to protect by our contract, at his personal cost; our duty to them is to make that contract as large, as secure, and as certainly available to them as possible; thus every Policy written conserves the interest of the State. A man with a Life Insurance Policy is apt to be a good citizen. Anarchists have no use for Life Insurance, and the state has no use for anarchists. The State should encourage every citizen to carry insurance. This Strengthens the State, abolishes alms-houses, and creates property that can be taxed. Further, the income from Your labour ends with Your life. The cost of living to the family continues. Take measures to have the income continue also. The Life Insurance Policy Does It.

The most enterprising and progressive of all the Canadian Life Offices to-day is the Sun Life of Canada. Ten years ago the Company had Life Assurance in force to the extent of $16,759,355,92. On the 31st of December last, this amount had been increased to $57,980,634.68. The increase, therefore, of Life Assurance in force during the last ten years amounted to the tremendous sum of $41,221,278.76.

The Evolution of Warships.

A man need not be a scholar to be an inventor. One of the most successful aeronauts of old times who had made a study of aerial currents and the management of balloons once delivered an address in which he referred to "the anaconda" as "the largest bird that ever flew," and he also remarked that "the mental faculties of a man's mind is so constructed as to bring things down to a pin's point." He also referred to the currents of air as stretchums, meaning strata, and yet he was one of the foremost balloonists of his time.

He was an inventor also of many useful things and was the first man in the country to suggest an ironclad man-of-war with slanting sides. He built a miniature vessel on this plan of sheet iron, placing it in the water and fired musket balls at it at short range. Every ball glanced off. The Merrimac was built on a similar plan, and from that humble beginning the evolution or revolution in naval architecture took its start.

A Tall Smoke Column.

During the burning of the Standard Oil company's tanks at Bayonne, N. J., in July, 1900, an immense column of smoke, shaped at the top like an umbrella, rose into the air, where very little wind was stirring, to an elevation, measured by triangulation, of 12,411 feet, or more than two miles and a half. Above the column white clouds formed in an otherwise cloudless sky and remained visible for two days, the fire continuing to burn and the smoke to rise. After the explosion of an oil tank flames shot up to a height of 3,000 feet, and the heat radiated from them was felt at a distance of a mile and three-quarters, where it was more noticeable than close to the fire.—Youth's Companion.

DRIVEN TO MADNESS.

TIMES WHEN AN EXCESS OF JOY IS LINKED WITH INSANITY.

Some of the Saddest Cases of Lunacy Are Those Where the Mind Is Unable to Stand the Shock of Sudden Good Tidings.

It is no exaggeration to assert, said an asylum doctor of long and varied experience, that there are scores of men and women in our asylums who have literally been sent there through excess of joy. Many of these cases which are, in my opinion, the saddest of all have come under my own observation.

I remember in the very first asylum with which I was connected one of the patients was a strikingly handsome and very well educated man, who was as sane as you or I except on one point. He was really a man of considerable wealth, but his delusion was that he was a pauper, and he would tell the most pitiful tales of his destitution, begging, with tears in his eyes, for a few coppers with which to buy bread.

According to the story told me, he was the only son of a wealthy merchant. In his youth he had fallen among evil companions and had led such a dissolute life that his father not only threatened to disinherit him, but forbade him ever to enter his house again. After that he seems to have sunk into the lowest depths of poverty until he was glad to earn a few coppers by selling papers or matches in the streets.

It was at this last and lowest stage that news came to him that his father had died intestate and that he was heir to an immense vast fortune. The sudden news completely turned the man's brain and brought on such a condition of excitement that he had to be sent to an asylum, and when he calmed down again he had lost all recollection of his good fortune, and nothing can shake his delusion that he is on the verge of starvation.

Another patient in the same asylum was a young and in his lucid moments a most intelligent fellow, whose "brain was turned," as the saying is, on learning that he had passed an examination. He had sat for the matriculation examination at the University of London, on passing which he had set his heart and had asked a friend in London to wire the result as soon as the names were screened at Burlington House.

About three weeks later came a fatal telegram, "Failed—sorry," which sent the young man into the lowest depths of despair, for he was too old to sit again. Not many hours later, however, came another telegram, "Passed honors—very sorry crush so great did not see name this morning." The revulsion of feeling was so great that the student's reason gave way, and he became so violent in his excitement that he had to be confined. Fortunately he was not with us long and is now, I am glad to know, doing very well as a solicitor.

Disappointed love sends many people to asylums, but it is very seldom that success in wooing drives a man mad. It had this strange effect, however, on one of my late patients. The girl he loved had gone out to India to keep house for her brother before he had screwed up his courage to the point of proposing to her, but an offer followed by mail very quickly after her.

Weeks and months passed, and no answer came to the impatient lover until, after waiting two years in despair, he became engaged to a girl who had nothing but her money bags to recommend her and for whom he had not a particle of love. Scarcely, however, was his fate sealed than he received the long despaired of letter from India, accepting his offer and explaining that the girl's brother had received and mislaid the letter, which had only just been found and had come into her hands.

Within an hour of the receipt of this letter the man was a raving maniac, and although his condition is improved I doubt whether he will ever recover his reason.

In another remarkable case it was the joy at seeing her husband again that robbed a lady patient of her reason. Her husband was the captain of a merchant ship which was reported to have gone down with all hands. The widow had deeply mourned her husband for nearly a year, when one day on returning from a walk she found him sitting in the drawing room as hale and robust as ever.

With a shriek she fell unconscious on the floor, and when she recovered her reason was gone. It seems that her husband, after floating for some time, had been picked up by a passing "tramp" and had been landed on the west coast of Africa, from which he had returned home by the first available vessel.—London Tit-Bits.

A WOMAN'S THROAT

Is her fortune if she chances to be a Patti or Albani, and that fortune is guarded day and night with the greatest care. Nothing frightens a singer so much as a cough.

Every woman ought to be afraid of a cough. It is nature's danger signal. Who does not know of some sweet woman-voice silenced forever by disease which began with a slight cough.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will ensure a permanent cure of the most obstinate and lingering coughs. Even when the lungs are involved and there are hemorrhages and emaciation, "Golden Medical Discovery" is generally effective in restoring the diseased organs to sound health and strength. There is no alcohol in the "Discovery" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

"I am feeling quite well," writes Miss Dorcas A. Lewis, of No. 1129 24th Street, Washington, D. C., "and I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had been quite a sufferer for a long time, and after reading Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser thought I would try his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one teaspoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and slept nearly all night without coughing, so I continued taking it. I had been a great sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. I coughed until I commenced spitting blood but now I feel much stronger and am entirely well."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BICYCLE COSTUMES.

Some Timely Hints on How to Make Them.

To look well on a bicycle the skirt must be sufficiently full to fall on either side of the saddle and yet not be full enough to catch the wind. The front breadth of the skirt should therefore be narrow, with all the fullness coming from the inverted plait in the back. In cycling, as in riding, neatness is of the first importance, and any exaggeration in the way of hats, blouses and ties should be carefully avoided. There must be a certain amount of weight in the skirt to have it look well, and it is far better to have the coat and bodice to match. There is nothing so good as coarse hopsacking for a summer costume in a pretty shade of gray, which does not show the dust and yet has sufficient color to be becoming.

Black of course looks extremely smart, but it shows too much dust.
